| 100000,                                                                                      | Meteor                                                  | 8                                      | 5.00@35.005.00@4.7.00                                                                                                                                                                 |
| 4.4                                                                                          | Bridge                                                  | Bridesmaids                            | 5.00@ 7.00                                                                                                                                                                                |
| 14                                                                                           | Parles                                                  | ······································ | 4.00@ 5.00                                                                                                                                                                                |
| 4.4                                                                                          | Wootte                                                  | on                                     | 1.000 5.00                                                                                                                                                                                |
| 61                                                                                           |                                                         |                                        |                                                                                                                                                                                           |
| 4.6                                                                                          | La Fra                                                  | nea                                    | 3.00@ 5.00                                                                                                                                                                                |
|                                                                                              | La Fra                                                  | nce                                    | 2.00 @ 10.00                                                                                                                                                                              |
|                                                                                            | La FraKalseri                                       | ncene                                  | 2.00@10.003.00@10.00                                                                                                                                                                  |
|                                                                                            | La FraKalseriCarnot                             | ncene                                  | 2.00@10.003.00@10.004.00@10.00                                                                                                                                                    |
| Carnat                                                                                       | La FraKalseriCarnotlous                     | ncene                                  | 2.00@10.003.00@10.004.00@10.002.50@.3.00                                                                                                                                      |
| Carnat                                                                                       | La FraKalseriCarnotlousCalifo           | ncene                                  | 2.00@10.003.00@10.004.00@10.002.50@3.00.25@.50                                                                                                                            |
| CarnatViolets                                                                            | La FraKalseriCarnotlousCalifosingle | ncene                              | 2.00@10.003.00@10.004.00@10 002.50@ 3 00.25@ .5015@ 25                                                                                                                |
| CarnatVioletsValley                                                                  | La FraKalseriCarnotlonsCalifosingle | ncene                                  | 2.00@10.003.00@10.004.00@10.002.50@3.00.25@,50.15@253.00@4.00                                                                                                     |
| CarnatVioletsValleyHarrisi                                                       | La FraKalseriCarnotlousCalifosingle | nce                                    | 2.00@10.003.00@10.004.00@10.002.50@3.00.25@.50.15@253.00@4.00                                                                                                     |
| CarnatVioletsValleyHarrisiCallas                                             | La FraKalseriCarnotlonsCalifosingle | nce.ne                             | 2.00@10.003.00@10.004.00@10.002.50@3.00.25@3.50.15@253.00@4.0012.50@15.00                                                                                     |
| CarnatVioletsValleyHarrisiCallasTulips                                   | La FraKaiseriCarnotlousCalifosingle | nce.ne                             | 2.00@10.003.00@10.004.00@10 002.50@ 3 00.25@ .50.15@ 253.00@ 4 0012.50@15.0010.00@15.00                                                                   |
| CarnatVioletsValleyHarrisiCallasTulips                                   | La FraKaiseriCarnotlousCalifosingle | nce.ne                             | 2.00@10.003.00@10.004.00@10 002.50@ 3 00.25@ .50.15@ 253.00@ 4 0012.50@15.0010.00@15.00                                                                   |
| CarnatVioletsValleyHarrisiCallasTulipsNarcissSmils x             | La FraKaiseriCarnotlousCalifosingle | ncene                                  | 2.00@10.003.00@10.004.00@10.002.50@3.00.25@.50.15@.25.00@4.0012.50@15.0010.00@15.003.00@4.003.00@4.00                                             |
| CarnatVioletsValleyHarrisiCallasTulipsNarcissSmils x             | La FraKaiseriCarnotIousCalifosingle | nce.ne ::ruis ::               | 2.00@10.003.00@10.004.00@10.002.50@3.00.25@.50.15@.25.00@4.0012.50@15.0010.00@15.003.00@4.003.00@4.00                                             |
| CarnatVioletsValleyHarrisiCallasTullps.NarcissSmils xFreesia | La FraKalseriCarnotlousCalifosingle | ncene                                  | 2.00@10.003.00@10.004.00@10 002.50@ 3 00.25@ .50.15@ .253.00@ 4 0012.50@15.000.00@15.000.00@15.002.00@4.002.00@4.002.00@4.252.00@2.50 |

| MILWAUKEE, March 11.             |
|----------------------------------|
| Roses, Beautyper dozen 1.(0@4,00 |
| " Brides, Bridesmaids 3 00% 8 00 |
| " Perle. Belle 3 00@ 5 00        |
| " Meteors 3 00@ 6 00             |
| Carnations 1 00@ 2.50            |
| V101ets                          |
| ROMAIS 9 (002) 3 00              |
| valley, 3 now 1 no               |
| rreesiss                         |
| Tunps, Hyacinths                 |
| Off Stons, Jonantis 2 ma 3 to    |
| Canas, Harrish                   |
| Smllax                           |
| BUFFALO, March 10.               |
|                                  |

| .coses, Beauties                      |
|---------------------------------------|
| Brides Bridesmalds Metaors 5 00 10 00 |
| " Perles 1000 500                     |
| " Ninhatos 1005 200                   |
| Kalaarin Marmata                      |
| Kalserin. Mermets 4.00@10.00          |
| Carnations extra                      |
|                                       |
| (8.11ev                               |
|                                       |
| Romans                                |
| Invalett                              |
| Iarrisii 8 00@12.00                   |
| 24118X                                |
| diantum                               |
| Asparagus                             |
|                                       |

The American 🚜 🚜 Florist Company's

Of FLORISTS, NURSERYMEN and SEEDSMEN of the United States and Canada is now undergoing a thorough revision, and the SIXTH EDITION

THE AMERICAN FEORIST COMPANY, 324 Dearborn Street, Chicago.

....WILL BE READY SOON.

C. A. KUEHN. Wholesale Florist,

1122 PINE STREET,

ST. LOUIS, MO.

A complete line of Wire Designs.

MOUND CITY CUT FLOWER CO.

Wholesale Florists.

CONSIGNMENTS SOLICITED Special attention given to shipping orders

1322 Pine St., ST. LOUIS, MO.

.....ROSES, and a full line Headquarters for the South West...

When writing mention American Florist

ST. LOUIS CUT FLOWER CO.

Wholesale Florists

E. H. MICHEL

1620 Olive St. ST. LOUIS, MO.

ROSES, CARNATIONS, AND ALL KINDS OF SEASONABLE FLOWERS IN STOCK.

F. KASTING WHOLESALE COMMISSION FLORIST....

495 Washington St., Buffalo. N. Y. Also Dealer in Florisls' Supplies and Wire Designs

W. A. MCFADDEN,

NEAVE BUILDING. CINCINNATI.

Producers and Shippers of every description of High Class Floral Supplies.

CYCLAMEN PLANTS. JARDINIERE FERNS.

Quotations issued weekly, forwarded on request.

HOLTON & HUNKEL CO.

The Wisconsin Flower Exchange Fresh Cut Flowers, Florists' Supplies Manufacturers of WIRE DESIGNS

Consignments Solicited.

457 Milwaukee St., MILWAUKEE.

THE "OLD RELIABLE" FOR

WHOLESALE

Hunt's Flowers Go Everywhere

76 Wabash Ave., CHICAGO.

WHOLESALE CUT FLOWERS AND FLORISTS SUPPLIES. WIRE WORK 88 WABASHAVE CHICAGO

E. C. AMLING. WHOLESALE

51 WABASH AVENUE,

CHICAGO.

Consignments Solicited. Prompt attention to shipping orders.

A. G. PRINCE & CO.

ROOTED GARNATION GUTTINGS

Albertini and Bridesmaid, $2.00 per 100; Daybreak, $1.50 per 100; Lizzie McGowan, Ivory, Lizzie Gilbert, Fred Dorner and Rose Queen, $8.00 per 1000.

88 & 90 Webseh Avenue,

Telephone Main 3208.

CHICAGO.

WINTER & GLOVER,

21 Randolph St., CHICAGO.

HIGH

so they was reach you in just as good condition as they reach us

WIRE DESIGNS: A Full Line. Write us for our Illustrated Catalogue.

Vaughan, McKellar & Winterson

FLORISTS SUPPLIES FLORISTS SEEDS SPRING BULBS

All the leading varieties in Carnation Rooted Cuttings

Best varieties of Young Roses in 2½-in. Pots.
Fine well curved Pearl Tuberose Bulbs, per 1000. $7.50
Extra fine mixed Gladioli Bulbs, per 1000. 22.50
Fine mixed Gladioli Bulbs, per 1000. 7.50

SEND FOR CATALOGUE.

Vaughan, McKellar & Winterson, 45-47-49 Wabash Ave., Chicago,

Wholesale Flower Markets

|          | CF         | HCAGO.  | March 1   | 11.       |          |
|----------|------------|---------|-----------|-----------|----------|
| Rosea.   | Beautlea   | рег     | doz. 1.50 | (iu 4.00  |          |
|          | frides     |         |           |           | @ 4.00   |
|  3     | leteors, B | ridesma | ld. Kaise | erin 3.00 | kāi 4.DO |
| · · · j  | erle. Gont | lers    |           | 1.00      | (a 3.00  |
|          | A France.  |         |           |           |          |
|          | ons, comm  |         |           |           |          |
|        |            |         |           | 2.00      |          |
| Violets. |            |         |           |           |          |
|          | ia. Roman  |         |           |           |          |
| 'allas   |            |         |           |           | 8.00     |
| farristi |            |         |           |           | 8.11     |
| Valley.  |            |         |           | 2.00      | ka 3 00  |
| Fullps.  |            |         |           | 1.00      | Não 4.00 |
| Von Sic  | ns         |         |           |           | 2.00     |
| Hyacin   | .hs        |         |           | 3.0X      | a 6.00   |
| Adlantu  | m          |         |           |           | 1.00     |
| milax.   |            |         |           | 10.00     | @12.00   |
|          | us         |         |           |           |          |

Consignments Solicited.

All Florists' Supplies.

19 & 21 RANDOLPH STREET. Fine Stock a Specialty. CHICAGO.

Wholesale Florist

DON'T FORGET that we are at the old number, 126 Dearborn St., Chicago.

Write for special quotations on large orders.

N. Y. CUT FLOWER EXCHANGE

404-412 E. 34th St. Near Ferry Open for Cut Flower Sales at 6 o'clock Every Morning.....

DESIRABLE WALL SPACE TO RENT FOR ADVERTISING.

JOHN DONALDSON, Secretary.

Www.Wholesale Florists

111 West 30th Street, NEW YORK.

Consignments Solicited. Telephone, 260 38th St.

Good Money for your Flowers.

Good Flowers for your Money 49 WEST 29TH ST.

THE NEW YORK CUT FLOWER CO.

119 and 121 West 23d Street. II2 and II4 West 24th Street.

Telephone 733-18th.

NEW YORK.

CONSIGNMENTS SOLICITED. Special Attention Given to Shipping Orders.

ROGERS PARK FLORAL CO..

Wholesale Growers of FLOWERS.

51 WABASH AVENUE,

CHICAGO.

HEADQUARTERS FOR AMERICAN BEAUTIES.

assett & Washburn

WE HAVE 50,000 American Beauty Plants

TO CUI ILOWERS FROM

ROOTED CUTTINGS

w fol the following Rose to be filled in rotation, netter to be be in first-class con-Send in your orders now.

ROSES.

HRIDES BPIDESMAIDS METEOPS LA FRANCE

$1,50

PER HUNDRED. We sha have aboutdance of nice plants later by the

CARNATIONS.

#3 to per 105 4 % 00 per 1000 TRHUMPH TRIUMPH
DAYBPEAK
WM SCOTI
HAPPISON S Wilte
MINNIE COOK
ROSE QUEEN 13 50 7 50

Cut Flowers at Wholesale

ASPARAGUS PLUMOSUS 50c a string. SMII 4X $2.00 per doz. strings.

All Florists' Supplies.

& WASHBURN, BASSETT

Greenhouse and Residence, HINSDALL, ILL.

store: 88 Wabash Ave., CHICAGO, ILL.

Long Distance 'Phone Main 223. Long Distance 'Phone No. 10.

CONSIGN TO

M. A. HART. Commission Dealer Cut Flowers.

44 WEST 29TH STREET, NEW YORK CITY.

THE BEST MARKET IN NEW YORK.

TRAENDLY & SCHENCK, Wholesale Florists.

Control the stock of many celebrated growers and are prepared to quote prices on First Grade Cut Flowers. All varieties.

38 West 28th St., and Cut Flower Exchange. Tel. 961 18th Street. NEW YORK CITY.

FRED. EHRET.

No. 1403 Fairmount Avenue,

PHILADELPHIA. Telephone, Long Distance.

Wholesale Flower Markets

| NEW YORK, March 9.                        |
|-------------------------------------------|
| Roses, Beauty,                            |
| " Brides, Bridesmald 2 00@ 6 00           |
| " Testont, Carnot                         |
| " Morgan, Meteor                          |
|                                           |
| Carnations 1.00@ 1.50                     |
| " fancy 1 50kd 3.00                       |
| Valley 1.00 & 2.00                        |
| Mignonette 2 00@ 6.00                     |
| Violets                                   |
| Harrisii 4.00@ 6 00                       |
| Tullps 1.50@ 3.00                         |
| BOSTON, March 9.                          |
|                                           |
| Roses Beauties                            |
| refre, Niphetos                           |
| Bride, Bridesmaid, Murgans 4 000 8.00     |
| " Carnot Meteor 4.00@ 8 00                |
| Carnations, ordinary 1.00@ 2 00           |
| " fancy                                   |
| Valley, Daffodlis                         |
| Violets                                   |
| Freesla                                   |
| Tulips                                    |
|                                           |
| PHILADELPHIA March 9.                     |
| Ruses, Beauties, per dozen3.00@6.00       |
| " Brunners, per dozen1.50@4.00            |
| " Teas 4.00@ 8.00                         |
| Carnations                                |
| " fancy 3 00@ 4.00                        |
| Valley 3 00@ 4.00                         |
| Violets                                   |
| Narciesus 2.50@ 3.00                      |
| Hyacinths                                 |
| Harristl                                  |
| Daffodils                                 |
| Tullps                                    |
| Tunpo,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,, |

1612-14-16 LUDLOW ST. PHILADELPHIA, PA.

John I. Raynor,

49 WEST 28th STREET.

NEW YORK.

SPECIAL EXTRA STOCK OF AM. BEAUTY, METEOR. BRIDESMAID, BRIDE.

Record Breaking Carnations ALL THE YEAR ROUND.

THOS. YOUNG, JR.

* * Wholesale Florist

43 West 28th Street, New York.

WALTER F. SHERIDAN. WHOLESALE

FLORIST

39 West 28th Street, NEW YORK.

Roses shipped to all points. Price list on application.

ose Growers

Will find a good market and good returns for their stock at....

JULIUS LANG'S

53 W. 30th Street, - NEW YORK.

Edward C. Horan. 34 W. 29th Street, NEW YORK.

WHOLESALE • FLORIST.

Careful Shipping to all parts of the country,
Price list on application.

WM. C. SMITH, Wholesale Florist.

40 So. 16th St., PHILADELPHIA.

Consignments Solicited. Special attention given to shipping orders. Long Distance Telephone 5008 A.

r flower market, 9 Chapman Place, 15 Province Street, BOSTON, MASS.

We guarantee payment for all Flowers sold. Sales reported Consignments from regular growers assigned separate space in our market. weekly; payments mouthly, or oftener if required.

THE NEW ENGLAND HEADQUARTERS FOR THE BEST GRADE OF FLOWERS AT ALL SEASONS OF THE YEAR.

J. K. ALLEN. Wholesale Florist.

WHITE VIOLETS, finest quality. EXTRA ROSES and other desirable specialties.

57 West 28th Street,

Long Distance Telephone 382-38th St

NEW YORK.

GALVIN&CO. Wholesale Florists

AND DEALERS IN ALL

FLORISTS' SUPPLIES, 4 Ordway Place, BOSTON, MASS. Cut Flower Consignments Solicited. Best market.

GEORGE A. SUTHERLAND, Cut Flowers & Florists' Supplies WHOLESALE.

67 Bromfield St.,

BOSTON, MASS.

Wholesale Florists

JOBBERS IN

Horticuliural Auctioneers. 84 HAWLEY STREET. . BOSTON.

JOHN YOUNG. ROSES, CARNATIONS, VALLEY

and all other choice cut flower stock.

51 W. 28th Street. NEW YORK. Price list on application.

FRANK MILLANG, CUT FLOWERS,

WHOLESALE COMMISSION.

408 E. 34th Street,

Cut Flower Exchange.

NEW YORK.

Buffalo.

SPRING WEATHER ARRIVES.— HALF-PRICE AND BARGAIN COUNTERSALES.—A CARNATION EXHIBITION.

We are having weather that is decidedly suggestive of spring; the first robin has been seen, and the mud is hub deep on the country roads. Lent is here, too, and the customary quietness is being felt in the flower trade. Flowers are plentiful enough, such as they are, and good enough, what there is of them.

To help liven things up, some of the down-town flower stores have been indulging in half-price sales, and bargain counters, and other advanced ways of the department store.

Violets are feeling the bright weather and are abundant and small.

Long is arranging for a carnation exhibition for Thursday the 10th inst, so I hope that those of us who were notable to get to Chicago will have an opportunity to see some of the new varieties, and see for ourselves what advance has been made during the year. This exhibition will probably bring out two or three new things from local growers, which seem to promise well.

We were honored during the week with an all too brief visit from Mr. W. N. Rudd, of Chicago, and we shall now proceed to do carnations and chrysantheniums in a way that will startle the neighborhood.

The Florists' Club still lives and it will hold its annual meeting, and give its customary banquet in a few days. At the same time it is hoped that a decision may be reached in regard to a fall show. C.

New Orleans.

Our winter has been very mild, consequently no killed geraniums, no dead heliotrope, alternanthera, or other plants that the florists have to replenish every season. This is bad for the business in one way, while on the contrary it gives more satisfaction to the amateur, who is thus more encouraged to invest in some new plants.

Our plant market has fully started. After a nice display of azaleas, which were offered during the last month, comes the geranium, which fills the bulk of our stands at the market. They are generally nice and well grown, retailing at from 15 to 25 cents according to size. The supply of all other plants seems to be very large this year, but about the prices we can not say very much yet.

Roses are offered at such different figures that it is hard to tell what they are worth. Still several sensible florists seem to realize that it is foolish to offer a well grown potted rose for any less than $3

1 dozen

Preparations are being made for the flower show which is to take place the last days of the month. M. M. L.

Worcester, Mass.

The annual reunion and banquet of the Worcester County Horticultural Society was held on Wednesday evening, March 9, and proved to be a very enjoyable affair. The banquet was served at 6:30 o'clock, and was followed by brief addresses from prominent horticulturists and other guests of the society; after which dancing was indulged in until ameanly hour.

Trade continues fairly brisk, and florists are getting about all the stock they can handle. The weather is very warm and sunny.

A. H. L.

| Varieties of Begonia Semperflorens

of which "Vernon" is perhaps the best known are gaining new friends every year, and are holding on to the old ones.

EXCELLENT FOR BEDDING

Try CRIMSON GEM. CORAL GEM and DUCHESS OF EDINBURG in comparison with Geraniums.

SOW NOW

Send one dollar and receive a ½ trade packet of each of the above three varieties in return. Cash with order.

A. H. LONSDALE CO., Spacialists. Station II Philadelphia, Pa.

Aster Seed

Semple's celebrated strain of Asters. Finest inthe World. Mixed colors, pink, white and lavender. Also a small quantity of pink separate.

JAMES SEMPLE,

BOX 2....

BELLEVUE, PA.

FLOWER SEEDS

Sweet Peas, Nasturtiums, Asters. And a full line of New Crop Seeds.

VAUGHAN'S SEED STORE

14 Barclay St., NEW YORK.

84-86 Rondo'ph St., CHICAGO.

The Easter Number...

OF THE AMERICAN FLORIST APRIL 2

Will be mailed to all names in the New Directory Florists, Seedsmen, Nurserymen, Parks, Cemeteries

* * * IT WILL REACH * * *

EVERY ONE OF THEM---OVER 13,000

Helpful Reminders.

This being a time when the retail trade is moderately quiet, and the evenings a good length, we are inclined to read most and lay our plans. It is opportune to remind growers of a few points as to how best to stock their houses for future crops, and suggest desirable alterations. I will take the first topic only now.

There is a growing demand for something suitable for decorations more than roses, carnations, violets, lily of the valley and Harrisii for staple flowers, or sweet peas for changes, not only for a change of variety but an improvement in style. A person who forms a habit of using flowers in the home, grows to enjoy them more and more as he learns to appreciate the perfect from the deformed. Note the development in rose and carnation culture; how short stemmed flowers were used five years ago; they can scarcely be given away now.

The successful decorators are imitating natural growths, drooping foliage, towering branches, vines for high places, etc., which are not in demand regularly but have come to be necessary at times.

I find that in many greenhouses which are adapted for just such plants as are wanted to-day, much space is wasted entirely. In the northwest and northeast corners, which are not used, large plants would not obstruct light from an ordinary crop in the benches.

Considerable space overhead at the entrance of many doorways are of no value to the crops in benches; something pretty there would be so much gain, when north walls as a rule go to waste, I mean a north wall which faces south: also where a walk runs north and south, overhead it might as well be covered in almost every instance. Plants snitable for filling the demand referred to which are adapted to the situation spoken of, are of course many, but I will only mention those which I have had practical experience with. They are Jasminum grandiflorum, Rhynchospermum jasminoides, Bougainvillea, Stephanotis floribunda, Bignonia venusta, the Lamarque rose, Marchal Niel rose, Passiflora princeps, Lygodium scandens, asparagus (three varieties), and Maurandya.

Jasmine grown in open ground, can be trained up a few wires south of walk and cover the walk so that a person may pass under it.

Rhynchospermum is a compact growing vine; it only blooms once a year, but bears an immense crop and lasts for six weeks. The flowers are sweet-scented, shaped something like potato blossoms. A milky sap runs out when cut. Rake in some manure every year, and be sure it has a good watering once a month. The temperature of the house in winter should be from 50° to 60° degrees.

The stephanotis is entirely different; it does well in the same house but it is best to give this plant numerous bamboo poles to run on, such as are commonly used for staking chrysanthemums and other plants, from six to eight feet long. The vines are thick stemmed with but few leaves; there are no tendrils, but it likes to run around other stems. Place a number of these canes in the ground, radiating in different directions, like a fan or a peacock's tail; a vine will run up each. The flowers are in clusters mostly at the end; it takes so little light that it can run over other plants with no injury. The flowers come in summer mostly, when greenhouse flowers are so scarce.

The Bougainvillea has been so much talked about lately that no discription is necessary.

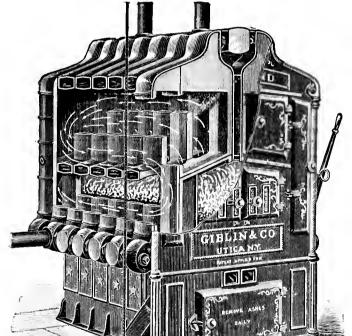

The Bignonia venusta is a grand plant, and can be run on wires overhead in a part of the greenhouse used for packing and filling orders, and serves as an awning to shade the men at work. When it gets in the way of other plants, cut it back. It bears immense crops of flowers in the shape of a trumpet honeysuckle, but about ten times as large, and of a rich dark orange color. This plant will be in bloom from March 15 to April 15, and can be cut in pieces varying from one to ten feet long, often giving a glorious crop for Easter.

The Lamarque and Marechal Niel roses will grow almost anywhere; growers can have the roots in open ground, any place, and train the stem to wherever there is overhead room or wall space; they have pretty flowers and the branches are quite valuable for arranging with other roses, the whole year around. The demand for this sort of wood is on the increase.

Passiflora princeps has pretty, closely arranged leaves, with a scarlet flower; it is always welcome in decorations. It is a money maker to some enterprising grower, as it ships well.

The Lygodium scandens is a beautiful vine; it is most particularly valuable for making its strings regulary in summer, when smilax is frequently out of crop. It is prettier than smilax, a small bed of it sends up its fronds year after year with little attention other than keeping out the weeds and giving water; it is a fern. C. B. W.

PROFIT IS CERTAIN....

in the prudent and thorough heating of a greenhouse as much as in large sales of stock. If a florist is burdened by an unnecessary annual tax of from

$50 ~ $100

for fuel and extra labor he must work much harder in order to make up this unnecessary tax out of the profits of his business. We know from our past experience that there is no unnecessary tax for fuel and labor when our boilers are used, because they are made after careful examination of the reasons why other boilers have failed and their construction avoids the defects shown. No one has bought that ever regretted it and thousands have bought and look back at the cost as the best investment they ever made.

OUR BOILERS

SEE WHAT

these florists say:

S. L. BRONSON, New Haven Conn., Jan. 4th, 1898 says: I have in my greenhouse one of your No. 40 Standard Sectional Hot Water Boilers, bought June 28th, 1897. I find that its work is truly excellent and think it is the best beater I ever had. I can find no fault with it in any particular.

is the best heater I ever had. I can find no fault with it in any particular. GEORGE BOYCE, Florist, Utica, N. Y. Jan. 3lat, 1888, says. I have thoroughly tested the No. 50 Standard Sectional Hot Water Boller bought of you leat fail and it is a pronounced success. It is very easy to raise the water to a high temperature and keep it so. The boller is easy to operate and I can arrange the firent 10 o'clock at night and find it in good condition at 7 o'clock in the morning, and by the use of drafts quickly obtain a new, bright tire for the day. The arrangements for cleaning are admirable as every part of the boller is accessible to the light and cleaning brush. You have certainly secured the right construction for a first-class greenhouse heater, and I can heartly recommend it to all florists.

OUR GREENHOUSE CATALOGUE

is free, and we are in business to give information about our boilers and heating greenhouses, and solicit correspondence.

WE CAN MAKE

prices delivered at any station, so that a florist knows exactly what the cost will be of a boiler selected.

GIBLIN & CO., Utica, N. Y.

Grafted Versus Own Root Roses.

The article under the above caption in the issue of February 12, from the pen of our esteemed friend, Mr. May, surprised me more than a little l must say. Though written ostensibly as a reply to certain letters of inquiry bearing upon the subject of grafting, it is very evident that Mr. May intended it to be, at the same time, a good square broad-sider for the man who was so reckless as to advocate grafted roses in his regular rose notes published in this paper. There can be no harm, however, in a little friendly criticism on the part of Mr. May. Criticism makes things lively, and is apt to bring out the truth and let in some light. We are a good deal in the dark yet in respect to many of the problems and difficulties of rose growing, and if any light can be turned on any heresies nailed to the wall, any specious theories exploded by such criticism the whole rose growing frater-nity will be placed under an everlasting obligation.

After reading the article in question very carefully, and thoroughly weighing all the evidence, pro and con, an impartial and unbiased mind would probably conclude that a clear case had been made out, and that henceforth no man (not a fool) would think of planting a grafted rose, which costs more to begin with, and produces less in the end. I am glad that Mr. May has said frankly he can give the experience of only one man (himself), because that gives the parties to the other side of the question a chance to show that the experience and testimony of one man, be he ever so conscientious, is not proof positive either one way or the other. I believe it is the preponderance of testimony which counts. If Mr. May has tried faithfully and continuously for twenty-four years to grow grafted roses, and in all that time has not met with success, he surely deserves the thanks of every member of the craft for his remarkable perseverance and Job-like patience. I confess that I should have given up in disgust years ago.

In my contributions to this paper I have at different times during the last two years said a good word for grafted roses; I couldn't help it. Somehow it seemed too good a thing to keep quiet about. I have claimed that they were in many respects superior to plants raised from cuttings, basing my claim on the following observations and conclusions: First, that plants worked on the Manetti if done properly, grow much more rapidly in the early stages than do those from cuttings, and consequently are ready to bloom much earlier in the season. This fact does not seem to be controverted. In the next place, that grafted plants will produce many more flowers during the season, which will grade higher on the average, because of longer and stiffer stems, even it the blooms are not any larger. Mr. May takes issue on this point, asserting that in his case the own root stock produced from 10% to 12% more blooms than the grafted article. If his plants bloomed so poorly I am not sur-prised that he is down "on 'em."

In the spring of 1886 the Bride made her debut and with us the first season was rather weak and disappointing (I suppose we expected too much). The next spring I gratted enough on the Manetti to plant half a bench as an experiment, with very gratifying results. It was not necessary to mark them, the increased agon and florierousness at once arrested the attention, the difference was very marked all, through the season though we unfortunately kept no separate record of the cut. Three years ago, at Mr. A. N. Pierson's we experimented to the extent of 15,000 plants grafting some of every variety, and grew them side by side with own root stock, the result was that with the exception of Perle and Sunset, the grafted stock netted from 25% to 100% above the other, and led us to drop the rooted plants entirely, as far as Bride and Bridesmaid were concerned. One house with solid beds holding 1800 plants was filled with Bride, all grafted, and proved to be the finest house of roses that I have ever seen; the average per plant I do not remember, but the cut was large, and at least 75% of the flowers were good enough to class as extras. The same plants carried over were equally productive and the flowers quite as fine, or more so the following season. Another house with benches holding 2500 plants was filled with Bridesmaid, all grafted. I have previously called attention to this house, the season's cut of which was 130,000 blooms, or an average of fiftytwo per plant; the quality was not quite equal to the Brides in solid beds, but remarkably good nevertheless. Mr. May will agree that this is a very good average for Bridesmaid, almost equal to his best own root stock.

Another point I have urged in favor of grafted plants, and I now urge it more strongly than ever, namely that grafting gives increased vitality to the variety, and that by following it up year after year, instead of a rose becoming enfeebled and gradually deteriorating to be in the end discarded, as a result of the high pressure system of forcing under glass, with no fixed season for rest and recuperation, it is possible I think to not only maintain its native original vigor, but to actually improve upon it each successive year. This is no mere theory I am advancing, as from actual experience I am positive that it is so.

I would like to take Mr. May over to a little town in the center of the nutmeg state and show him house after house of Bride and Bridesmaid, every plant of which are on the Manetti stock. I would especially call his attention to four large houses standing side by side, two of them Bridesmaid, one Mrs. Pierpont Morgan, and the other Meteor, all grafted (I have never advocated the grafting of the two last named kinds), but if Mr. May can walk though those houses and see their wealth of foliage and bloom, and after-wards inspect the huge refrigerators where nearly all the blooms are "specials" and "extras," and then deliberately sit down and write to some correspondent that grafting is a failure, I shall be driven to the conclusion that "none are so blind as those who won't see."

In making our tests three years ago we had both grafted and own-root plants growing side by side in the same kind of soil, and having precisely the same treatment, in at least ten different houses, and when we came to pull them out at the end of the season we found, though we had not suspected it, that comparatively few of those on their own roots were freefrom root galls; some were a perfect mass, while not a trace could be seen on the Manetti; rather strange it seems to me, if it is really susceptible to the eel-worm. Since then I have received a great many inquiries bearing on this point, and to thoroughly satisfy myself I have examined hundreds of plants, and have also inquired' of those who were likely to know, but can truthfully say that I have never seen the first symptom of eel-worm on the roots of the Manetti.

In conclusion I would say that I have no doubt whatever of the sincerity of Mr. May in making the statements contained in his article, and that I thoroughly appreciate the service Mr. May has rendered to the rose-growing fraternity during the many years that he has freely and unreservedly given of his knowledge and experience for the benefit of all. May the ROBT. SIMPSON. good work go on.

Palmer's Hot Bed Mats

Indestructible, Cheap and Warm

WILL not harbor mice or vermin. Easily handled. Bry out quickly after rain. Have now been in practical use three years, test less than old-lashfoned straw mats and entirely take their place.

MADE IN FOLLOWING GRADES:

No. 1. Burlap Cloth, filled with combination wood and quilted, seams 3 mehes apart and edges firmly bound.

Size 40x76 inches, 50 cents each, 2 76x76 2 75 75 2 2

Made any length, 76 inches wide, at 12 cents per running foot.

No. 2. Duck Cloth outside, filled and quilted.

Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985 Solve 1985

No. 3 Waterproof, made of oil duck, filled and quilted same as Nos. 1 and 2.

S17e 40x76 inches, $1.00 each.

" 76x76 " $1.25 to $1.50 each.

Made any length, 76 inches wide, at 20 centsper running foot. . *****£

A want of the same

That these mats are a much needed improvement over anything heretofore used for the same purpose, is demonstrated by the large demond and many testimonials from prominent men in the trade. Everyone using Hot Bed Mats should give them a trial.

2

PATENT APPLIED FOR.

WE ALSO MAKE QUILTED HORSE BLANKETS the Cheapest, Warmest and Strongest in the World....

The R. T. Palmer Co.

Or New Landon, Cann.

- 113 Worth Street, NEW YORK

Address all correspondence to The R. T. Palmer Co., New London, Conn. Agents wanted 'paygood commission.

Mention American Florist.

Death of Charles Hamilton.

Whether the saying, "Death loves a shining mark," be true in general or not, it certainly seems so when the member-ship of the Gardeners' Club of Baltimore is concerned. There was probably not one man in the trade who did not feel a pang of sincere grief when he heard of the death of Mr. Charles Hamilton on Thursday, March 3, at 5 o'clock a. m. Genial, sociable, kind-hearted, whole-souled "Charley." Where was the man in trouble that he did not sympathize with? Where was the sorrow he did not try to alleviate, the burden he would not share, the trial that he was not interested in? Where can be found the record of a more unostentationsly helpful, sincere, generous, unselfish life?

He had been seriously ill several times during the last four or five years; but after passing through a severe operation last year, had apparently quite recovered and when last at the club, was the picture of health and good spirits. His devotion to the interests of the club can best be shown by his action at the last meeting, when a number of members having failed to pay their dues for some time, he strenuously opposed striking their names from the roll, and finally undertook to see each one of them personally, and endeavor to persuade them to pay up.

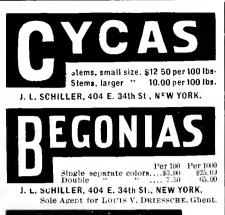

His unfailing good humor, and ready wit made him a general favorite. All seemed to appreciate the frankness and the open cheery way with which he engaged in the discussions and debates at the club, and in private life. He wasborn in County Armagh, Ireland, in 1828, and was educated at the National Academy. At the age of fifteen he began gardening on the grounds of Sir James Strong, Lyon Four years later he went to the Abbev. Botanical Garden at Dublin, where he remained until 1851, when he came to America. After spending three years in the florist establishment of Mr. Solomon B. Davies, he engaged with the late Mr. Hugh Jenkins, coffee importer. While Hugh Jenkins, coffee importer. While here he imported many orchids and exotics for Mr. Thomas Winans and Dr. Edmondson. He next entered the Bank of Baltimore where he remained until 1862, when he started his own greenhouses on the York road near Waverly.

In addition to the Gardeners' Club, where he was chairman of the executive committee, he held membership in the Improved Order of Heptasophs, and the Independent Order of American Mechanics.

He was married to Miss Margaret Barnhill, of Londonderry, Ireland, by whom he had four daughters who survive him, Misses Margaret E., Mary A., and Clara J. Hamilton and Mrs. Geo. B. Roche,

The funeral took place on Saturday at 3 p. m., and a better evidence of the high regard in which he was held, could not be asked than the attendance of gardeners on the chief market day of the week, and the great number of really beautiful floral pieces with which the cemetery lot was filled. The pall bearers were Messrs. N. F. Flitton, I. H. Moss, Geo. Roche, Sr., W. Hart, Jas. Pentland and Wm. Me-MACK. Roberts, Jr.

Paterson, N. J.-John Kerberg, of 114 Broadway, was struck and instantly killed by an express train on the Susquehanna railroad near Rochelle Park, when crossing the tracks on the morning of March 7. He leaves a widow and one son.

It will be better for everybody if you mention the American Florist when writing advertisers on this page

THIS IMPRINT ON

CHICAGO

IS A CUARANTEE OF SATISFACTORY QUALITY....

Manz makes illustrations for this paper.

FLORISTS MUTUAL

Application Blanks and Prospectus Ready.... Write now. Delays are dangerous.

W. J. VESEY, Sec'y, - Ft. Wayne, Ind.

For Insurance against damage by hail, Address

JOHN G. ESLER. Sec'v, F. H. A., Saddle River, N. J.

THE NATIONAL Florists Board of Trade

C. S. LODER, Sec'y, 271 Broadway. New York.

Kentia Palm Seeds FRESH SEEDS of Kentia Belmoreana and Forsteriana by the case of 5000 Seeds received direct from Australia. Price $17.50 net cash, F. O. B. New York. Prices for large quantities on application..... Australian Palm Seed Co. ROOM 52. 90 Nassau Street, NEW YORK.

ROSE HILL NURSERIES.

JUST ARRIVED, ANOTHER SHIPMENT OF -----

Cocos Weddeliana $^{\text{SEEDS}}_{55.75~\text{per}\,1000.}$

SIEBRECHT & SON, New Rochelle, N. Y.

New York Office. 409 Fifth Avenue.

THE WABASH R. R. COMPANY

The Short and Quick Line between the

The Short and Quick Line between the East and West connecting Buffalo, Detroit and Toledo with Chicago, St. Louis, Kansas City and Omaha.

The Wabash is the Only Line running sleeping cars and chair cars (free) between Buffalo and St. Louis and Kansas City.

Through sleeping cars between New York and Boston and St. Louis and Chicago run every day.

cago run every day.

For further information apply to the nearest Railroad Ticket Agent, or to

H. B. McCLELLAN, G. E. A., 387 Broadway, New York City,

J. D. McBEATH, N. E. P. A., 5 State Street, Boston, Mass.

C. S. CRANE, Gen. Pass. & Tkt. Agt., St. Louis, Mo.

Do the American Florist a small favor. Mention the paper when writing to advertisers.

THE Regan Printing House NURSERY SEED FLORISTS

87-91 Plymouth Place, L. L. CHICAGO L. L.

GEO. E. COLE & CO. Blank Book Makers, Stationers and Printers

86 and 88 Dearborn Street, CHICAGO.

...THE...

"Lyon=Horticole"

is an interesting review of French horizonlure. Issued semi-monthly. 20 8-yo, pages illustrated. Subscriptions to the United States, 1 year, $2.00, 6 months, $1.00. Address

DIRECTEUR LYON-HORTICOLE,

THE SEED TRADE.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

JEROME B. RICE, Pres.; E. B. CLARK, 1st Vice-Pres.; S. F. WILLARD, Wethersfield, Conn., Sec'y and Treas.

St. Louis reports trade very active the past week on all lines.

THE mild and spring-like weather of the past week has increased the mail orders from 20' + to 30' ε.

VISITED CHICAGO: W. Brotherton, B. F. Brown, B. L. Grant.

THE Brown Bag-Filling Co, are putting in four of their machines at Chicago.

GOODWIN, HARRIES & Co., of Chicago, are making pea contracts in Wisconsin.

ALL California reports agree as to cold and drouth.

SWEET CORN is getting very scarce, and at last materially higher in price, also Telephone peas.

Columbus, O.-A. W. Livington's Sons report that their receipts are almost exactly 25' emore this year than last, and the number of orders shows the same rate of increase. This is more surprising when it is remembered that the weather last year was much more forward.

St. Paul.-L. L. May & Co. find business better on all lines, their trade in packet seeds in cases being exceptionally good both east and west. Carload orders for early Ohio potatoes are coming in. Mr. May will probably visit California this summer.

MINNEAPOLIS.-S V. Haines, of the firm of Miss C. II Lippincott reports high water mark in number of letters received March Total cash received also shows gain.

Catalogues Received.

R. Douglas' Sons, Waukegan, Ill., trees, shrubs and fruits; Wm. Il. Moon Co., Morrisville, Pa., trees, shrubs, fruits and plants: Geo. F. Taber, Glen St. Mary, Fla., trees, shrubs and fruits; M. B. Fla., trees, shrubs and Irints; M. B. Faxon, Boston, Mass., seeds; Parsons & Sons Co., Flushing, N. V., trees, shrubs and fruits; A. Tilton & Son, Cleveland, O., seeds; L. E. Archins & Bro., Carthage, Mo., seeds, F. Sander & Co., New York, plants; Walter A. Potter & Co., Providence, R. L. seeds; N. W. Craft, Shore, N. C., fruits, vines and plants; Jos. W. Vestal & Son, Little Rock, Ark., plants; Ingle-C., truits, vines and plants; Jos. W. Vestal & Son, Little Rock, Ark., plants; Ingleside Floral Co., Alhambra, Cal., plants; Lager & Hurrell, Summit, N. J., orchids and orchid sundries, B. F. Merriman, Painesville, O., trees, shrubs and fruits; Williams & Sons Co., Batavia, Ill., plants and sundries, Frank Banning, Kinsman, O., seeds, A. A. Richardson, Faribault, Minn, seeds, Herbert A. Jackson, Portland, Me., trees, shrubs and fruits; E. C. Ergese, Harrington, Jul., traits, Lelie, E. Rand, Mc., trees, suruos and rruits; E. C. Freese, Harrington, Del., fruits, John F. Dayton, Waukon, Joaca, fruits, A. T. Goldsborough, Washington, D. C., fruits, Wm. H. Harrison & Sons, Lebanon Springs, N. V., trees, shrinbs and plants, Crote Nurseries, Crete, Neb., trees, shrubs and finits T. G. Pratt, Concord, Mass., trees shrubs and plants, Geo II. Whiting, Yankton S Dakota trees shrubs and fruits, S Lenton, Fullerton, Cal., trees, shrubs fruits and plants Ketten Bros., Luxembourg roses J C Schmidt, Erfurt, Germany sundries, L. H. Krelage & Sons, Haarlen, Holland, hulls, roots and plants Wilhelm Pitzer Stuttgart, Ger-many seeds and plants Ch-Molin, Lyon, I rano , seeds and plants, Webster Bros , Hamilton, Ont., plants; Hoosier Drill-Co., Richmond, Ind., drills.

Cut Flower Price Lists Received.

Welch Bros., Boston; Wm. F. Kasting, Buffalo; W. A. McFadden, Cincinnati; Bassett & Washburn, Chicago; S. S. Pennock, Philadelphia; Frank W. Ball, Cincinnati; Holton & Hunkel, Mil-waukee; Ellis & Pollworth, Milwaukee; Illinois Cut Flower Company, Chicago.

Portland, Ore.

Mrs. Rosa Pfunder, wife of L. G. Pfunder, the pioneer florist of Portland, Ore., died February 28, after a brief illness. Besides four children, who mourn the loss of their mother, Mr. Pfunder has lost a true and faithful wife and untiring helpmate in business. GEO. OTTEN.

Seed Stores and Flower Stores

Can profitably handle our Packages of Plant Food.
Attractive, take little & & shelf room. Valuable & booklet free. Good profits.

The WALKER FERTILIZER CO. Clifton Springs, N. Y.

Clifton Springs, N. Y.

l®aaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaa

WRITE

R, & J. FAROUHAR & CO.

**SEEDSMEN**

16 and 19 South Market Street,

BOSTON

FOR THE CHOICEST AND BEST NEW CROP

FLOWER SEEDS

Neponset Paper Flower Pots, Pure Sheep Manure, and All Florists' Supplies.

Catalogues mailed free,

NEW . GIANT . ESCHSCHOLTZIAS, "THE GOLDEN WEST."

THE GULDEN WEST.

She puttle $\forall 0.2. \) Genetic $\forall 8. oz.

New Glant Fancy Cosmos, six splendid varieties, separate, $\forall 0.2. \) Gunit Cosmos, splendid mixed, $\forall 5c oz. \) Calliopsis "Callifornin Sanbennis." $\forall 1. \) Cappend ferrantis given on Cosmos in quantity. Apple Gerantium, fresh, $\forall 1 per 1000 seeds; New Large Flowering Zomile Gerantium, $\forall 2.50 oz. \) Homeon, Thomas and Homeon $\forall 1. \) Domeon Homeon $\forall 1. \) Homeon Homeon $\forall 1. \) Homeon $\forall 1. \] Home

MRS. THEODOSIA B. SHEPHERO, Ventura-by-the-Sea, Cal.

Manufacturers and Dealers COTTON SEAMLESS, BURLAPS, ETC.

SECOND HAND BAGS BOUGHT AND SOLD. CINCINNATI BAG CO. Second and Walnut Sts., CINCINNATI, 0.

ALWAYS mention the American Flo-RIST when writing to advertisers.

E. F. C. YOUNG, Pres.
JOS. D. BEDLE, Sec'y,
S. M. PEASE, Gen'I Mgr.

The Cleveland Seed Co.

Contract Growers of

Peas ∞ Beans and General

IOBBERS IN SEEDS.

Cape Vincent, N. Y.

THE ALBERT DICKINSON CO. GRASS SEEDS

Parks, Tennis Courts, Lawns, &c. in fancy I and 2 pound packages and bulk.

SPECIAL PRICES TO THE TRADE. CHICAGO, ILL.

"BEST OF ALL" TOMATO

"ENGLISH" MELONS

(FOR FORCING)

FLOWER SEEDS FOR FLORISTS
Catalogues on application.

WEEBER & DON, Seed Merchants and Growers, 114 Chambers St., NEW YORK, N. Y.

CLUCAS & BODDINGTON CO.

Importers and Exporters of

Seeds, Bulbs Plants,

501 TO 503 W. 13TH ST., NEW YORK CITY.

Send for quotations on all Florists' Bulh Stock.

Always mention the ......

American Florist

when writing advertisers.

1878

NEW Price List for If you have not re-Will mail you list illustrated descrip-

INSIR SPRING and SUMMER ceived, send Postal, and beautifully tive Cutalogue.....

H. H. BERGER & CO., 220 Broadway, NEW YORK.
ESTABLISHED 1878.

(Branch for Pacific Coast, San Francisco, Cal.) Horticultural Imports and Exports from Europe, China, Japan, Australia, Moxico, etc.

BURPEE'S SEEDS PHILADELPHIA.

Wholesale Price List for Florists and Market Gardeners.

August Rölker & Sons, Spring Bulbs. Spring Bulbs, Florists' Supplies, S[

ITPORT ORDERS booked now for forcing Burbs, Azaleas, Idly of the Valley, etc., for fall delivery, send for terms to 52 Dey Street, - NEW YORK.

ROSES OWN ROOTS.

FIELD GROWN

No. 1. 2 to 4 feet, cut back to 2 feet.

Yellow Rambler (Aglaia), Hybrid Per-petuals, Mosses, Hardy Climbers and Madame Plantier. These plants are very strong and well shaped. Prices on application. Address

W. F. HEIKES, Manager, Room 1308 Unity Bldg., - CHICAGO, ILLS.

HARDY

Herbaceous Perennials

THE MOST COMPLETE STOCK IN AMERICA.

PÆONIES, PHLOX, IRIS, DELPHINIUMS, ETC., ETC.

JACOB W. MANNING,

The Reading Nursery, READING, MASS. ESTABLISHED 1854.

When writing mention the American Florist.

Assorted in 25 Varieties.

My selection $50 per 1000. Descriptive catalogue and price lists for the trade.

SAMUEL C. MOON, Bucks Co., PA.

CLEMATIS

Large flowering varieties. Rhododendrons, Ampelopsis, Azalea, H. P. Roses, Tree Roses, etc., etc. Lilies, Tuberoses, Begonius and etc., etc. - ы Gloxiaias....

Branch of The Horticultural Co. Boskoop, Holland. L. C. BOBBINK, Rutherford, Rutherford, N. J.

SEND for handsome illustrated catalogue of English, French, German, Chilean and American

STRAWBERRY PLANTS

and other soft fruits.

A. T. GOLDSBOROUGH, Wesley Heights, - WASHINCTON, D. C.

F, & F, NURSERIES

New Fruits and rare Ornamental. Shade Trees, Shrubbery, Privet. Specialities. 100.000 Frach at lowest prices. Cutalogue free. Agents wanted.

LZŸP &

UITGEEST,

BULB GROWERS AND NURSERYMEN

(Nurseries in Holland and Begium)

HEREBY give notice to the American Trade that their representative, Mr. H. Zyr, will arrive in New York on March 16th per 8. 8. Teutonic. All mail matter for them may be addressed to him.

Care of KNAUTH, NACHOD & KUHNE. NEW YORK.

Jackson & Perkins Co.

NEWARK, NEW YORK. ROSES, NOVELTIES, Strong, field-grown, dormant plants......

THREE NEW RAMBLERS, $1.75 per 10: $16.00 per 100.

ROSES, COMMON SORTS.

Strong, field-grown, dormant plants, $10 per 100. We can still offer, in nice assortment, some extra fine plants at the above price. List of varieties upon application.

Madame Plantier, Russell's Cottage, climbing, crimson; Tenn. Belle, climbing, blush; extra heavy dormant plants, on own roots, two years old, $5 per 100.

TREE ROSES.

7 ft., extra fine. $3.50 per 10; $75 per 100. Crimson, Pink. Rose. Red, White, Yellow.

ORNAMENTAL SHRUBS.

UHNAMENIAL SHKUBS.

DEUTZIAS, assorted, 3 to 4 ft., $7 per 100; EXO-CHORDA GRANDIFLORA, tree-shape, 3 to 4 ft., $15 per 100; EXOCHORDA GRANDIFLORA, 2 to 3 ft., fine, $10 per 100; FRINGE, Purp'e, 3 to 4 ft., $10 per 100; HYDRANGEA Thos. Hogg, strong, field-grown, dormant plants, with good crowns. $10 per 100; LILACS, new and old varieties, prices and sizes on application; $NOWBALL Common, 2 to 3 ft., fine, $10 per 100; SNOWBALL Common, 2 to 3 ft., fine, $15 per 100; SNOWBALL Tomentosa (I'. Tomentosam), 2 to 3 ft., $15 per 100; SPIRAEAS, assorted, very busby, handsome plants, $6 to $7 per 100; TREE PAEONY, Banksii, 2 year, strong, $30 per 100; XANTHOCERAS SORBIFOLIA, a most rare and beautiful shrub, $18 per 100.

XANTHOCERAS SUMBIFULIA, a measure ful shrub, $18 per 100.

Complete list of unsold stock including additional Roses and Shrubs, Clematis, Ornamental Trees, Conilers, Small-Fruit Plants and Fruit Trees sent upon application. A postal eard will bring it if you mention this paper.

JACKSON & PERKINS CO.

NEWARK, NEW YORK.

STRAWBERRIES

NEW Lloyd's Favorite

A new variety that has been recommended very highly. Also Lady Thompson and Tennessee Prol-fic. $2.00 per 100, $15.00 per 1000. We have ten more good varieties.

RUDOLPH BARTH, Florist,

1540 No. 27th Street. - PHILADELPHIA, PA.

Please mention American Florist.

Dreer's Offer

Herbaceous Plants. Anthericum Liliastrum (St. Beruno's Lily). $3.60
Achilles, The Pearl 50
Achilles, The Pearl 50
Achilles, The Pearl 50
Adods V Frenchica 50
Anthemic tractoria. 50

Kelwayi 50
Anthemic tractoria. 50

Reliastra 23-4n, pots. 50
Pennsylvanica. 23-10, pots. 50
Characteria. 50
Pennsylvanica. 23-10, pots. 50
Characteria. 50
Characteria. 50
Characteria. 50
Characteria. 50
Coreynatia. 3-10, pts. 60
Canadeness 2-10, pts. 60
Casta Mariaodica (American Sciole varieties. 50
Bocconia ordata 60
Casta Mariaodica (American Sciole varieties. 50
Carocopia Lanceolata, strong clumps. 60
Coreopata Lanceolata, strong clumps. 60
Dictamurs Fraxiella Alba. strong. 60
Casta Maria Mariaodica (American Sciole varieties. 60
Casta Ma

HENRY A. DREER, 714 Chestnut St., PHILADELPHIA.

FIRST-CLASS GOODS and CORRECT PRICES

have forced us to the front and today we are the largest manufacturers ot....

IRON RESERVOIR VASES

and Lawn Settees in America. . A 40-page catalogue for the asking.

McDonald Bros.

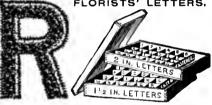

1CB-114 Liberty St., COLUMBUS, O.

John Conley & Son,

2 AND 4 DOMINICK STREET,

Boston Florist Letter Co.

This wonden box nicely stained and var-niahed, 18x30x12 made in two sections, one for each size letter, given away with first order of 500 letters.

Block Letters 1 % or 2-inch size, per 100, $2.00. Script Letters $4 Fastener with each letter or word. Used by leading thorists everywhere and for sale by all wholesale dorlsts and supply dealers.

N. F. McCARTHY, Treas, and Manager, 84 Hawley St., BOSTON, MASS.

H. BAYERSDORFER & CO.

Cycae Wreaths, Moss Wreaths, Ferneries and Jardinieres, Wheat Sheaves and immortelles.

New (atalogue of all FLORISTS SUPPLIES on application, TETFor the trade only,

H. BAYERSDORFER & CO.

50. 52. 54 and 56 N 4th St , PHILADELPHIA, PA.

REED & KELLER Florists'

Supplies

122 W. 25th St.,

NEW YORK CITY.

AND

LEUGOTHE of the wholester of

SPRAYS... HARLAN P. KELSEY, 160 Tremont Building.

BRILLIANT GREEN AND BRONZE

GALAX LEAVES.

For Decorating and all Florieta Designs. CHAS, H. RICKSECKER, Linvilla, Mitchall Co., N. C.

Always mention the American Florist when writing to advertisers.

WOODEN LABELS for FLORISTS and NURSERYMEN

Being located at the head center of this country for White Pine Lumber we are able to buy our stock right and turnish our customers with goods of the best quality and at prices which will put them at your station lower than the lowest. Our factory is thoroughly equipped and turning out promptly the most uniform, smooth and best painted goods made in this country, put up in neat packages, guaranteed full count and nicely crated. SEND FOR SAMPLES AND PRICES

WOODEN GOODS COMPANY, 83 Western Ave., MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.

Folding Boxes and Wax Paper

The Aull Bros. Paper & Box 60.

پېپېDAYTON, OHIO، د پېپې

Do not order any ferns unless you are willing to pay this price as my stock is very limited and I have hardly enough now to carry my old stand-by customers to Laster

L. B. BRAGUE, Hinsdale, Mass.

& CO.

CLEARY

Announce a grand importation of IRISH GROWN ROSES from the ech heated resarians, AULA DICKSON & SONS, Belfast, Ireland — Also a consignment of Roses (dwarf and standard), Azaleas, Rhododendrous — Magnedias—etc.—Also Gladidi, Tuberoses, Caladiums and Nursery Stock and Friday 60 Vesey St., NEW YORK.

Tuesday, March 15th, 1898

Chicago Horticultural Society.

We have received the preliminary list of premiums offered by this society for competition at the exhibition to be held November 8 to 12, inclusive. For the best specimens of tomato grafted on potato three prizes are offered, first, $15; second, $10; third, $5. There are many new classes in cut roses and cut carnations, and the classes of all kinds in which prizes are offered now number 225. The prizes for chrysanthemum blooms and plants, also table decorations, have been yery considerably enlarged. In all there are offered for this single exhibition some dozen silver medals, and cash prizes to the amount of close upon $3000.

Copies of the premium list may be had upon application to the assistant secretary, room 202, 185 Dearborn street

Chicago.

1898.

KENTIA FORSTERIANA & BELMOREANA Size of Pot No of Longon

| 5-in | 4-6 | $ 6.00 |
|------|-----|---------|
| 6-in | 5-7 | 10.00   |

|     |      |      | LA | NTAP | NIA     |      |       |
|-----|------|------|----|-------------|---------|------|-------|
| 5-1 | in   |  |    | 4-5.        |  |  | 4.00  |
|     |      |      |    | 5- 6,       |         |      |       |
| 7-1 | n.,. |  |    | fi-7.       |         |  | 10.00 |
| 0 3 |      |      |    | 60          |         |      | 20.00 |

ILLINOIS CUT FLOWER CO.

51-53 Wabash Ave.,

E. E. BOYNTON, - CHICAGO. Sycamore, III.

ROBERT CRAIG Roses, Palms and Novelties in Decorative Plants Market

Market and 49th Street, PHILADELPHIA, PA. eerrerererere

ASPARAGUS SPRENGERII

ASPARAGUS PLUMOSUS

The Conard & Jones Co. West Crove,

ORCHIDS

Our Specialty. Correspondence Solicited.

LAGER & HURRELL, - Summit. N. J. Mention American Florist.

IN ANY QUANTITY.

Palms, Pandanus and Araucarias

Keap Street Greenhouses, JOHN SCOTT, BROOKLYN, N. Y.

SPECIA

(Heather.) & Save 25 per cent. Duty and Ocean Freight.

FINE BUSHY PLANTS FROM 3-INCH POTS, I-YEAR-OLD. Persoluta alba. ERICA WILMOREANA, FINEST FOR XMAS, 2-year-old...

ANTON SCHULTHEIS.

Felephone Call 51 F. P. O. Box 78.

....Florist,

College Point, L. I.

40 Fine Palms Ready For Sale

All fine clean stock. Packed light, by express.

Rooted Cuttings of Lemon Verbena, Salvia Splendens. Strong and well rooted, $1.00 per 100; §8-00 per 1000

Cash with order please

ritchell's

110 E. 4TH STREET.

Cincinnati, Ohio.

 Չուսանանանանանան անձան ան

LARGE HEALTHY STOCK

| 3 1  | lants | . 6-in. | Pot, | 24 to 32-in | ı. high, | very | bushy. | each |    |     |      |    |  | #1 | 00     |
|------|-------|---------|------|-------------|----------|------|--------|------|--------|-----|------|----|------|----|--------|
| •5   |       | 7-111   |      | 32 (a.36    | • •      | * *  | • •    | 4.4  |        |     |      |    |      | 1  | 50     |
| - 33 |       | 8-1D    | * *  | 36 to 42    | 4.4      |    | 4.4    | 4.4  |        |     |      |    |      | 47 | 4 14 3 |
| 3    | + 1   | S-in.   |      | 42 to 48    |        |      | 4.4    | * *  |        |     |  |    |  |    | 50     |
| 1    | + 1   | 10-in.  |      | 4 to 5-ft   | high     |      |        |      | ٠. | • • |  | ٠. |  |    | 11(1)  |

ALL MEASUREMENTS FROM TOP OF POT.

*************

JOHN H. LEY, Good Hope, D. C.

Solicits early orders for following fine stock:
 NEPHROLEPIS, D. Furcans
 Each.
 Doz.

 31 1 4 feet over, full, splendid plants
 $2.00
 $18 00

 50 or more fronds (in pans)
 $2.00
 $18 00

NEPHROLEP'S, D. Furcans Very large, full of fronds, 3 feet over (6 luch pots, fit for 8-luch).......

DWARF PAPAYAS

M<sup>OST</sup> magnificent bedding and decorative plant known. Equal to a palm in beauty and manner of growth; grows with the ease of the Ricinus and endures drought with impunity. Plan s from 4-in, pots set out June 1st attained a height of 10 feet and though not watered once, remained fresh and vigorous throughout the extreme drought. Also produces a delicious fruit; as easily grown as a tomato. Our plants are propagated from a tree which has produced this winter 192 lbs. of fruit, the largest weighing 12 lbs. Send for half-tone illustration from photo showing bed of these plants. Every florist needs it. Price $2.25 per 12 for 3-in, pots, ready May 1st. We are headquarters for tropical plants. Send for list.

Martin Benson.

DONGOLA, ILLINOIS.

Strong plants, 6-inch pots, $1.00 each; $12.00 per doz.; also three varieties of PTERIS, bushy plants, 5-inch pots, 20c each; $2.40 per doz.

JOHN WELSH YOUNG, .... CERMANTOWN,

Carnations.

Helen Keller is a carnation one seldom sees to-day and will serve as a good object lesson. I had the pleasure of seeing this variety the year it was originated and watched its development with a great deal of pleasure, and am watching ir to-day as a teacher of facts, some of which will be given later on in the season.

Mr. Lonsdale, the originator of this variety, we all know as a man who does not do things by halves, and he certainly did not do this by halves. It was a pleasure to see it growing as he grew it, every flower a perfect gem as to form and markings, and the stems holding the flowers erect from as good and healthy plants as one could wish to see. The year it was sent out was but a repetition of the good qualities it had the year before, and visits to the place three or four times during the season always found it in bloom and bud. The cuttings were propagated with care, and the plants were not maltreated in any way to produce cuttings in quantity.

With all this promise and care the variety is now grown only by a few growers (with these few growers there is nothing in the market to-day can touch it). With the major portion of the growers the flowers do not open; they seem to get sleepy in the bud, and other faults are found, not without reason, either. The variety seemed to lose vigor the year it was put on the market, and has been going from bad to worse ever since.

Helen Keller is not alone in this respect, many of our new ones of the past few years have gone the same way, and there is certainly something wrong somewhere. I may be all wrong in my ideas, but the facts of the case seem to point out that we are going wrong with our introductions, by feeding them and petting them up to the extent we do for the purpose of having not only fine, but superfine flowers to show. Would it not be better for the introducer of a new variety to have a portion of his stock set aside for the pro-duction of exhibition blooms and the balance of it grown under good cultural condition and without any excess of stimulants, so as to produce a better class of wood for propagation. This would give the variety a better show with the general run of growers and would, I believe, considerably decrease the list of introductions, called in private correspondence, humbugs, frauds, etc.

Some of the new varieties of this season are just this class of cuttings taken from plants that are over stimulated, and the indications are that there will be several failures among the introductions of 1898, in a great measure due to this very cause. Once the general run of carnation growers recognize the fact that to have good carnations they must have houses equal to the best rose houses, and give them as much or in fact more care than a house of roses, this feature of carnation growing will be overcome. Until this era arrives the introducer of a new variety should ended or to have it in such a shape that it will stand the test of medium culture, or expect his variety to be condemned,

A lew words regarding the treatment of this class of stock may help the case

When a doctor prescribes whisky for a temperarce patient he will prescribe teaspoorful doses increasing to tablespoon. ful and it the treatment is for a lengthy period he sall gradualls get up to a mir ized drind. Now, it you are the recipient stallatch of cuttings that look as if they had been taken from strongly stimulated stock, or were boxed up in rich soil to make them appear extra strong and healthy, do not give them poor treatment in any way, shape or form. Keep up the feeding process or you and the variety are both "goners."

Give such cuttings good rich soil, with a little lime added if your soil is deficient in that element. See that they do not wilt or suffer from an excess or lack of water, and grow them in a temperature of at least 50% until well established in the pots or boxes, after which they will be the better for a temperature of 45° (these temperatures are for night with 10 higher during the day); grow them along in the latter temperature until planted out.

For my own stock I like to grow them in an ordinarily good soil and a temperature of about 50°, but for nearly all novelties it will be better to keep up the feeding process, and not let it lag until the variety has become thoroughly acclimated to your soil and treatment.

If the cuttings come affected with rust, do not grow them in a lower temperature than 50; 55° is better. Because cuttings have rust is no reason for throwing them away, as I have known instances without number where it has grown out of them or left them for some reason unknown. The time to throw them away, if at all, is just before planting in the field. It is not a wise thing to plant a lot of rusted stock in the same field with clean, for summer winds and rains will carry it from one lot to the other, and the result will be that your general stock will all become more or less affected, and while we all recognize the fact that rust is not the serious affair we once thought it, we at the same time want as much of our stock free from it as possible.

Summer treatment of rusted stock will form the paper for next week.

ALBERT M. HERR.

Lexox, Mass.-The March meeting of LENOX, MASS.—The March meeting of the Horticultural Society was attended by about thirty members. Two visitors, W. J. Stewart, of Boston, and W. A. Prosser, of New York, were present and in the absence of any regular programme were drawn upon for such entertainment as they could offer as the result of their experiences of the scenery and hospitality of the Berkshire hills in winter. Messrs. Russell, Donohue, Finaghty, Huss and Wingett were soon involved in the discussion which yielded plenty of entertainment, at least for their auditors. There was a nice exhibition of carnations, including a group of new ones from C. W. Ward, and some fine specimen blooms from Geo. Thompson. The latter received a certificate for his Storm King, and like honors were conferred on Mr. Ward's Gold Nugget, John Young and New York. A talk by Mr. Harrison on fruit is promised for the next meeting. Four new members were admitted.

New Garnation, Gerise Queen.

DAILLEDOUZE BROS., FLATBUSH, BROOKLYN, N. Y.

JORN BREITMEYER A SONS.

Mt. Clemens, Mich..

Gents:- We have a few plants of your No. 16,
Cerise Queen, on trial; the flower is medium size, but fine codor, in fact the only fault we find is its dwarf habit; we should like to grow some for side benches, as we believe it far superior to Tidal Wave for that purpose, and should make a commercial variety, but not high priced. Please give us your best price on 1000 rooted entings.

Very truly yours,

DAILLEDOUZE BROS.

MOUNT GREENWOOD, ILL.

MOUNT GREENWOOD, ILL.
MR. FRED BREITMEYER,
Mt. Clemens, Mich..
DEAR SUR:—In reply to yours for our experience of Cerise Queen, will say that under our treatment the endor, form and substance is all that can be desired; we have also found it a very free and continuous bloomer and have never found a bursted ealyy the whole season; it is a little weak in the stem, but we lay that to the poor place in which it is growing, also we think one should be careful and not overfeed it, as it does not need it, but produces a fine tlower under ordinary care, Yours truly, C. W. JOHNSON.

H. DALE, Cut Flower Grower, BRAMPTON, ONTARIO,

MLSSRS, J. BREITMEYER A SONS,
Mt. Clemens, Mich.,
Gents - The plants of Cerise Queen which you sent me last spring for trial have done well; the flower is of Very pleasing color, stem medium length, 15 to 18 inches; habit of plant good. I shall plant it again next year
Your truly, H. DALE.

GEO. A. RACKHAM, Wholesale Grower, DETROIT, MICH.

DETROIT, MICH.

J. BREITMEYER & SONS,
Mt. Clemens, Mich.,
DEARSUS: In reply to yours asking as to my success with your No. 16, Cerise Queen, will say that I consider it the ideal Carnation of its type, very productive, continuous, stiff stem, of medium length, and holds its color longer on the plant than any Tidal Wave ever grown. I shall plant a house of it, if I am able to procure the stock.

Yours, GEO, A. RACKHAM.

We predict CERISE QUEEN is the coming Dark Pink Commercial Carnation. Orders booked and filled in rotation. Price, $2 per doz.; $10 per [00]; $75 per [000]. The Price the best of all yellows. Buy your stock from the Originators. Our stock is in excellent condition; $5 per [00]; $10 per [000], $10 per [000]. R. C.

JOHN BREITMEYER & SONS, Cor. Gratiot and Miami Aves DETROIT, MICH.

Flora Hill CARNATION ...

It sells because there is nothing in sight to at all equal it. It speaks for itself wherever grown. It is fragrant. It is the largest bloom. It puts all others in the shade. Nothing past or present to equal it. We have four thousand plants exclusively for propagating from; don't allow them to bloom. Send at once and get the best stock ever offered. $5.00 per 100; $40.00 per 1000.

Our trade list is issued. If you have not received one send for it.

E. G. HILL & CO.. = Richmond. Ind.

Richmond, Ind. E. G. HILL & CO.,

A Visit to Rogers Park.

At the southeast corner of Ridge avenue and Pratt street, Adam Zender has four large rose houses. One house in Beauties, one of Meteors and two with Brides, Bridesmaid, Kaiserin and Perle. Although off crop at present the plants are in excel-lent condition and breaking finely. There will be a large crophere very soon. About two blocks south, on the opposite side of Ridge avenue, Mr. Zender has a larger place. Here roses and carnations are grown. One house of Portias was phenomenally good. Mr. Zender considers Portia his best paying carnation. While going through a house of McGowan Mr. Zender called attention to the fact that though generally the plants were strong and healthy, a few were dying. An examination revealed the disease to be stem rot, and every plant so affected had been planted from one to three inches too deep. So much has been written about the injurious effects of planting carnations too deep that the subject should by this time be thoroughly understood by every car-nation grower. When carnation plants are unevenly grown, some short and others tall, with perhaps five or six inches of clear stem before branching, the average employe, unless closely looked after, is employe, unless closely looked after, is tempted to set the plants so as to make them look the best at the time of plant-ing, by planting the tall long stemmed ones deep, so as to give the plants a more even appearance. The result is that unless they are very carefully watered, the deep planted ones soon die.

All roses here were in fine shape. A very large number of flowers are being cut at present. One large house about 170 feet long, half Brides and half Bridesmaids, was in a remarkably vigorous condition. A heavy crop of flowers is being cut from this house, and at the same time strong breaks are coming along that will produce a more abundant crop later on. Mr. Zender says this house was the last one he planted, and his poorest and smallest plants were used. The very hot weather which came on soon after planting seemed to check the growth in this less than in any of the others.

Wietor Brothers, on Devon avenue. about a quarter of a mile southwest of Mr. Zender's place were next visited. The firm of Wietor Brothers is one of the five largest growers around Chicago. Roses are the principal product, and American Beauty the leading rose grown. Four houses of Meteors were very good. Messrs. Wietor have one house all planted to Perle, except a few President Carnots. As a winter rose Carnot is a total failure. It neither produces wood nor flowers. About three-fourths of the whole place is planted in American Beauties. Í never before saw Beauty plants so uniform in size and shape after a winter forcing. Quite a large number of blooms are being cut at present, though but a small pro-portion on long stems. There will be a good crop of long stemmed Beauties in a few weeks.

Triumph and Armazindy are the favorite carnations here. They claim that Triumph with them produces as many flowers as Scott and of a superior quality. I have seen Triumph in a number of places around Chicago, but nowhere else so good as here. Armazindy does equally well, and from the appearance of the plants as grown here, should judge it to be a wonderful bloomer for a carnation of its size.

Wietor Brothers have a sport from Armazindy which is a very beautiful carand Tidal Wave. It is quite a large flower with stem and foliage all that could be desired. They are now building five new houses, 27x130 feet. All are intended for American Beauties.

R. J. Donovan's was next on the list. He was not at home, and as the shades of night were beginning to appear, only a short call was made. Mr. Donovan has for many years been regarded as one of the best violet growers around Chicago. Violets have done poorly this winter with every one in this vicinity, and Mr. Donovan's among the rest. His carnations are doing well. The usual supply of hydrangeas will be ready for Decoration Day. I. T. A.

Pittsburg.

Trade is fairly good, considering that the Lenten season is fully under way and that society has given up the large and numerous social functions that are generally to the front. One or two good days of general trade with the balance of the week just so-so fulfills the conditions now.

Mr. H. Weber, of Weber & Son, Oakland, Md., was a recent visitor, and on Saturday gave a fine exhibit of the hybrid tea pink rose Mrs. Robert Garrett. A large vase of magnificent blooms were placed at Mr. Gus. Ludwig's stand, attracting universal admiration both for form, color and general excellence

Mr. Ernest Ashley, representing Mr. Henry A. Dreer, Philadelphia, was also with us. He reports trade good.

REGIA.

Tree Cutting in Boston Parks.

There has been considerable agitation and discussion of late with regard to the thinning of some tree plantations in the public parks of Boston. The superintendent of parks, Mr. J. A. Pettigrew, considered the removal of certain trees necessary to the welfare of the woods, and removed them. The uninformed newspapers and public made protest, and Mr. l'ettigrew, in a recent letter to the chairman of the Board of Park Commissioners, explains the situation and deals with his critics as follows:

"Regarding the petition which Mr. Winslow and other gentlemen presented to the park board at Pine Bank, January 24, asking that the board select advisers from a list of names submitted by them, based on the statement that in the matter in question (the thinning of woods and plantations) 'you rely on your superintendent, who himself does not wish to be wholly responsible,' I beg to say, I have no desire, nor have I expressed any, to be relieved of any responsibility, in this work. It is one of necessity where healthy natural effects are desired, and one that practical foresters and landscape gardeners understand.

"These statements certainly are not the result of close observation or investiga-tion, as can be proved by present condi-tions. I am able to say that the intent and purpose of the work that has been done on the plantations and woods were the opposite of those contained in the charges. The work of marking the trees for cutting was done in the summer, when the trees were in full leaf. Consequently, the condition of each tree could be accurately ascertained. Special effort was

NATHAN SMITH & SON

Wholesale Florists

Specialties & ADRIAN, MICH.

CHRYSANTEMUMS CARNATIONS .*.*.* AND VIOLETS.

· · · CORRESPONDENCE SOLICITED · ·

made to retain or create pleasing or picturesque groupings. Where trees were heing injured by too close crowding, the weak or sickly were marked for cutting. In no case has a single fine tree been sacrificed. All ground cover, shrubbery or undergrowth of native material has been carefully preserved, except possibly in the case of young tree saplings which, for obvious reasons, have all been cut out, leaving only those selected to replace sickly trees or for other requirements.

"It is to be regretted that this work had not been commenced as soon as the lands came into the possession of the park department. Judicious thinning from year to year, with the planting of native shrubs would, ere this, have shown the effect of intelligent effort to assist nature, for nature can be assisted and the evidence of assistance be concealed.

"Hastily considered criticism of the landscape gardener's effort to improve the condition of growing timber by thinning out crowding trees is probably largely to blame for the deplorable conditions." tion of the trees in most of our parks throughout the country. Central Park, New York, contains scarcely one fine specimen of a tree, even in grounds set apart for ornamental work; its wood-lands are forests of bare poles. Prospect Park, Brooklyn, still contains hundreds of nurse trees, planted for shelter to the intended permanent trees, which they have smothered and malformed, instead of protecting, because they were not cut out when their intended work was accomplished. Much of the planting will have to be commenced over again, the ruin being irretrievable, and all because of the mistaken sentiment against the cutting of a tree.

"The places from where trees were cut last year cannot now be identified; it is ever found so in forestry, the branches, having more room, spread out, the boles feather out; the general health of the tree is improved; undergrowth is encouraged, having more light. The cutting down this year has even now left little evidence; none will be found in summer except in the greater wealth of verdure and natural beauty."

Price $1.50 per 12; $10.00 per 100; $75.00 per 1000.

Premium-5 Red Wave with every 100 Kathleen Pantlind.

Is a much more substantial flower than Daybreak; color a shade or two darker and entirely rust proof. Can be seen at Vaughan, McKeler & Winterson's every Wednesday and Saturday. HOPP & LEMKE,

Paul P. O., E. GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.

A RUST PROOF CARNATION FOR BUSINESS.

Bright searlet and POSITIVELY RUST PROOF. As productive as Scott. Rooted Cuttings Feb. 15th, $10 per 100, $75 per 1000. Send for descriptive list of Firefly and fifteen other novelties of '98, fifteen varieties of '97 and older standard sorts.

GEO. HANCOCK & SON. GRAND MAVEN. MICH

$100 REWARD | will be oaid for any RUST found in our Carnations. All Pure and Healthy. Throw out that old RUSTY Stock, begin anew with clean stock.

Meteor. | Stock | begin anew with clean stock. |
Storm Klug | Stock | Storm Klug | Storm K

McDONALD & STEELE, 109 S. Washington St., Crawfordsville, Ind.

New Carnation

Wins Certificate at Chicago. delay your orders and get left.....

Cuttings from sand, $2.00 per doz.; $10 per 100; $75 per 1000.

Twenty-five ($25) dollars will be offered for the best 50 blooms at November Show held in Chicago. STOLLERY BROS., ARGYLE PARK, Chicago, III.

TELEGRAPH CODE

AM. SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION BH.OO

in either stiff or flexible cover ADDRESS ORDERS TO > AMERICAN FLORIST CO., CHICAGO.

BAKER'S

NEW CARNATIONS.

Grown and tested five years

ONEIDA: Fure pink healthy, no rust, continuous preducer ingest size bloom

RED JACKET Bright red fine stem and calyx; continuous cropper: $810.00 per 100.

Orders broked now to be filled in rotation as fast as rooted

C. F. HARBH, Utlon, N. Y.

April 2...

IS THE DATE OF THE

Easter Number

Cleveland.

The Lenten season so far, continues to be an agreeable surprise. It is true that business tends to show on the average a selight falling off from the first week of Lent, but it is hardly noticeable with most florists, and is not large with any so far as reported. Wholesale prices have shown a slight tendency toward weakening, but this is owing more to the usual spring increase in the supply of stock than to decrease in amount of business. very noticeable improvement in quality tends also to maintain wholesale prices, while the weather, which at this writing -and has been for some time—very fine, helps the retailer very materially in disposing of the stock coming in. Bulb stuff, so far this season, has never been in any serious over-supply.

Florists' row on Eric street is pretty well broken up nowadays. E. J. Paddock has moved out and taken a store further down the street. Charles Erhardt moves over on Prospect street in a few days. W. H. Beaumont has rented a store on Bond street, opposite the Hollenden, and fixed it up in fine style. These with Winterfield's establishment, closed some time ago, take four right out of the neighborhood, and leaves C. M. Wagner alone in his glory on the opposite side of the street; and in their place, which shall know them no more, will shortly loom a huge business block.

The advance guard of the Dutch bulb men struck the town the other day in the person of the representative of Van Waveren & Kruyff.

Miss Eadie returned lately from an extended sojourn in Florida, the "land of flowers," which title, according to that lady, is entirely unmerited, so far as florists' flowers are concerned.

A.

THE BEST OF THE NEW PINK CARNATIONS

Mrs. Frances Joost.

A WINNER EVERYWHERE.

$2.00 per dozen; $10.00 per 100: $75.00 per 1000 Cash with order.

C. BESOLD, Mineola, L. I., N. Y.

Experiences

. . . WiTH . . .

CARNATIONS

will be cultural as well as descriptive, and sent free to all applicants.

I Guarantee all cuttings sent out and offer a Special Guarantee to all buyers of Flora Hill and Triumph.

ALBERT M. HERR.

..... LANCASTER, PA.

Carnations Chrysanthemums NEW AND STANDARD VARIETIES

Our new Trade List will embrace the leading novelties of 1898 and 1897 as well as the best standard sorts. Address

H. WEBER & SONS. - Oakland, Md.

NEW GARNATION

"Mrs.S.A. Northway"

A soft shell pink, developing to nearly pure white.

OUR MASTERPIECE.

We shall commence shipping soon.

Orders booked now and filled in rotation. .

PRICE: PER 100. $10.00.

Newer Geraniums.

Mme. Bruant, Mme. Jaulen, Fleure Poitevine, J. Sallier and J. Ricaud. Fine stock from 2<sup>1</sup>4-inch pots, $5.00 per 100 *** *** ROOTED CUTTINGS, $3.00 per 100: $25.00 per 1000. Net cash. ***

GENERAL LIST OF GERANIUMS.

A superb stock in quality and variety of all the finest sorts, from 2¼-in. pots, named. $25 per 1000; unnamed. $20 per 1000. & ROOTED CUTTING, $12.50 per 1000. Net cash. ****

Fuchsias.

A grand lot of summered-over stock in small pots that will make early blooming plants, $3 per 100.

UW. P. SIMMONS & CO.

Make the following statement to the readers of the American Florist & & & & &

> As originators and introducers of

"Silver Spray,"

"Tidal Wave,"

"Daybreak,"

and "Rose Oueen."

each of which has, we believe. proven even better than we claimed for them. We NOW say for 1898 that possesses all the good points that go to make up a first-class and profitable cut flower sort, and that we introduce it with even more confidence than we did the others.

"Mrs. S. A. Northway"

It is an extra strong grower.

It is free from rust or disease.

It is a profuse bloomer.

It has excedingly strong stiff stems. It is of exquisite form full and double.

The flower is high built. petals serrated.

The calyx does not burst.

It is delightfully fragrant (a quality lacking in many new ones.)

OUR PRICE LIST now ready, contains prices on many other plants.

SEND FOR

W. P. SIMMONS & CO., Geneva, Ohio.

PRICE LIST of rooted cuttings of New Carnation

| 1   | doze | n or | up, prepaid | l by ma | il or ex | press                                   | $ 1.3 | 5     |      |
|-----|------|------|-------------|---------|----------|-----------------------------------------|--------|-------|------|
|     |      |      |             |         |          |                                         | to c   | 0 per | 100  |
| 1   | 100  | "    | purchaser   | paying  | charges  | ;                                       | 8.c    | 0 per | 100  |
| - 2 | 250  | 4.6  |           | 1.6     |          |                                         |        |       |      |
|     | 500  | 4.6  | 64          |       | 6.4      |  | 67     | 5 per | 100  |
| 1,0 | 000  | 64   |           |       |        |                                         | 65.0   | 0 per | 1000 |

Descriptive illustrated and priced circular free.

DAN'L B. LONG. Sales Agent, Buffalo, N. Y. ····

SOUTH PARK FLORAL CO., New Castle, Ind.

AT THE MEETING OF-

American Carnation Society

WE GOT FIRST PRIZES ON .... ALBERTINI

HELEN KELLER AND ALASKA

NOT SO NEW & & & as some, but the flowers were so fine they attracted a great deal of attention. We have very fine rooted cuttings of the above for sale. Write for prices on them and other varieties.

St. Paul.

The bright warm weather has brought out an abundance of good blooms, the supply being the largest and the quality the best of any time since Christmas.

Trade is good in spite of its being Lent, showing a substantial improvement over previous years. All stock is in good demand, though roses and carnations have the preference. The cut of violets, enhanced by the bright weather, is unusually large and prices have dropped accordingly.

Retail prices are well maintained though an occasional cut is noticed. The stores are all bright with blooming plants and everything in this line sells well; azaleas sell better than in several years, as do cinerarias, primulas and hyacinths.

Unite a good many roses are being shipped in from Milwaukee and Chicago, which does not speak well for our home growers. If more of our growers would grow roses and less bedding stock, prices would be better all around and profits larger at the end of the season. This is equally true of carnations.

L. N. Brant has recently located here as the representative of Brant & Noe, and has disposed of a great many flowers.

E. M. Parmelee, of the Jno. H. Allan Seed Company, Picton, Ont., was a recent

H. Peteler, formerly with Chris. Hanson, will shortly open a retail store on Robert street.

J. Haitomt has discontinued business. Superintendent Nussbanmer, at Como Park, has propagated a large quantity of spring bedding stock and will have them ready for the parks early.

J. C. Vaughan, of Chicago, was a recent caller.

W. G. Bunde, formerly with J. C. Vaughan, has entered the State Univers-FELIX.

New CARNATIONS.

WHITE CLOUD-White.

GOLD NUGGET-Yellow.

NEW YORK (Ward)-Bright cerise pink.

MRS. JAMES DEAN (Ward)-Clear silvery pink.

JOHN YOUNG (Ward) -White.

BON TUN (Ward)-Scarlet.

Prices for above varieties: $2.00 per doz., $10.00 per 100, $75.00 per 100, per 100.

We will also have Cerise Queen (Breitmeyer),

Argyle (Stollery), Jack Frost (Swayne), Empress (Swayne), Evelina (Witterstaetter), Fire-fig. (Hancock), Psyche (Hill), Painted Lady (Hill), and Mra. S. A. Northway (Simmons). All good 1897 novelties and other standard varieties at reasonable prices.

New Chrysanthemums.

MRS. C. H. PEIRCE—Vellow.
35c each, $3.50 per doz., $25.00 per 100.
SNOW QUEEN—White
50c each $5.00 per doz., $35.00 per 100.
MERRY CHRIST MAS—Late White
35c each, $3.50 per doz., $25.00 per 100.

Seried for Descriptive Price List Ready January, 1839

F. DORNER & SONS CO. TAFAYETTE, IND.

STRONG, HEALTHY ROOTED CUTTINGS Ready Feb. 1st and Later

In telling More of Lora Hill Davidreak Win Scitt Lizza Metawan Ever, Salver Spray Emily Pierce in too dfin hill Lorado, and others. Send rich as at of what you want and get prices before you but. We also have a fine lot of Carmitton and Violet blocking for sale. Write for prices widers as

CHAS. CHADWICK,

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH. Lock Box II.

New CARNATIONS

FOR SPRING OF '98 NOW READY.

WHITE CLOUD. EVELINA, per 1000. $80. MRS. S. A. NORTHWAY. ARGYLE.

GOLD NUGGET. BON TON.

Price for strong, well-rooted cuttings, per doz., $2.00; per 100. $10.00; per 1000, $75.00,

VARIETIES OF 1897

| FLORA   | HIL | L  |    |    |   |      |  |   |
|---------|-----|----|----|----|---|------|--|---|
| JUBILE  | E   |    |    |    |   |  |  |   |
| MAYOR   | PIN | IG | R  | E. | Е |      |  | ٠ |
| MRS. C. |     |    |    |    |   |      |  |   |
| MOREL   |     |    | ٠. |    |   |      |  |   |
| VICTOR  | •   |    |    |    |   |      |  |   |

Strong, rooted cuttings from flats, per doz., 75c; per 100, $5; per 1000, $40....

CALADIUMS, Fancy Leaved, choice bulbs in named sorts, per doz., 75c; per 100, $12.00.

VAUGHAN'S SEED STORE,

NEW YORK, 14 Barclay St.

84-86 Randolph St., CHICACO-

Orders Please

| All the Leading Carnations Now Ready. 19     | r 100 |
|----------------------------------------------|-------|
| Geranisms named, our selection only, 214-in. |       |
| Salvias, Chara Bedman, 24-in                 | -2.00 |
| Little Gem Feverfew, 214-in                  | -2.00 |
| Coleas, 20 best bedders, 214-in              | 1.50  |
| Lycopodium Denticulatum, 24-in               | 2.00  |
| Tradescantia Multicolor, 214-in              | -2.00 |
| Alternanthera Aurea Nana and P. Major,       |       |
| 214-in                                       | 2.00  |
|                                              |       |

SEEDS

Mammoth Verbenas, Asters and Pansies

The Morris Floral Co. MORRIS, ILL.

TRANSPLANTED CARNATIONS

| Jaybreak, t | ranep an |         |  |      |      |      |   |      |      |    |    |
|-------------|----------|---------|--|------|------|------|---|------|------|----|----|
| cott        |          |         |  |      |      |      |   |      |      |    |    |
| deGowan     |        |       |  |  |      |  |   |      |  | 1. | .5 |
| cohlnoor    |          |       |  |  |  |  |   |  |      | 1  | 7  |
| leteor      |        | 1.6     |  |      |  |      | ì |      |  | 2  | Ċ  |
| Bridesmald  | rooted o | nttings |  |      |      |      |   |      |      | 1  | 5  |

CHRYSANTHEMUMS

Kate Washburn, early white; Mrs. Robinson, extra early white; Miss. Johnson, extra early yellow; elegant plants, 2½ in, pots, 40c per doz; $3.50 per 100; rooted cuttings same 2c each. Salviss "Bonfre," extra fine 1½ in pots, 25c per doz.; $2.00 per 100. New Yellow Marguerite, 2-in, pots, 30c per doz.; cuttings, 2c.

cuttings, 2c. California Violets, rooted cuttings or clumps. Cash, by express.

GEO. M. BRINKERHOFF, Springfield, III.

50,000 Flat-Grown GARNATIONS

| STRONG STOCK. De                      | r 100 | per 1000       |
|---------------------------------------|-------|----------------|
| Daybreak                              | 82.00 | $15.00 |
| Scott                                 | 2.00  | 15 00          |
| Rose Queen                            |       |                |
| Tidal wave                            | 1.50  | 12.00          |
| Portla                                | -1.50 | 12.00          |
| Rob Roy (new)                         | 10.00 |                |
| Jubilee                               | 3 00  |                |
| Snow Queen                            | 10.00 |                |
| Silver Spray                          | -1.50 | 12,00          |
| L. McGiowan                           | -1.50 | 12.00          |
| Eldorado, Meteor                      | 2.00  |                |
| Flora Hill                            | 5.00  |                |
| Triumph, Armazindy                    |       |                |
| Pluto, new, and I ncle Sam, new, both |       |                |
| varieties,                            | 10 00 |                |
| Cook with order HENRY & NIEMEYE       |       | ria Pa         |

Cash with order. HENRY A NIEMEYER, Erie, Pa.

ROOTED CARNATIONS Stock....

Metrowan, Scott Tidal Wave, Cartledge $1.00 per 100, ∄8,00 Jubilee, Dazzle

ROSES, from Bench or Pots.

toool stock, sure to please. Write for samples and prices.

W. H. GULLETT & SONS, Lincoln, III.

CARNATIONS. EE. Rooted

I have a fine stock of this peerless variety, also most of the lending standard sorts. MARII 10(48) reloted runners at special low rates, Write for prices—Will exchange for fruit

W. W. COLES. - Kokomo, Ind.

FLORA HILL

STANDARD VARIETIES

$1.50 per 100, $12.00 per 1000, 25 at 100 rates. Special price on 5000 or more,

NEW ROSE MRS. ROBT. CARRETT.....

$3.50 per doz.; $25.00 per 100.

250 BOXES 16x24 CLASS FOR SALE. One of a Hundred Similar Letters:

1240 Smith St., PROVIDENCE, R. I., Feb. 7, '98.

H. F. LITTLEFIELD.

Desr Sir:—I must admit the Flora Hill cuttings were the best I ever had from snyone; all well-rooted plps. If we con'd get such stock from everyone it would be a pleasure to try new onea.

Yours truly JOEN MACRAE.

H. F. LITTLEFIELD,

WORCESTER, MASS.

NEW CARNATION....

The largest, bright rich crim- Empress

Send for price list of above. New and Standard Sorts....

WM. SWAYNE, Box 226, Kennett Square, Pa.

40,000 TRANSPLANTED CARNATIONS:

Daybreak, Sc. tt. Rose Queen, H. Keller, Harrison's White, $1.75 per 100 or $15.00 per 1000; Th. mas Cartledge, Lizzle McGowan, $1.25 per 100, $10.00 per 1000. CHRYSANTHEMUMS, 25g-leeh nots. Major Bounaulou, $2.00 per 100 or $15.00 per 1000. President Smith, Eda Prass, $2.00 per 100 or $15.00 per 1000. VIOLETS, Marle Landso, 75c per 100 or $5.00 per 1000. CERANIUMS, mixed varieties, good strong plants 35g in, pots, showing flowers, $3.00 per 100 or $3.00 per 100. 100, 25g-in, pots, $2.00 per 100 or $3.00 per 1000. Cash with order or satisfacte y reference.

PAXTON GREENHOUSES.

ROOTED CUTTINGS

| Armazindy       |          |              | 82.50 | per 100s |
|-----------------|----------|--------------|-----------|----------|
| Mrs Fisher, 38  | (a) lust | 1000         | 1 00  | per 100  |
| Wm. Scott, $10 | 00 per   | 1000         | 1 10  |          |
| Sweet Alyssum.  |          |              | 75    | per,100- |
| 4.1.1           | 1 11 34  | 170100 4 4 4 |           |          |

FRANK W. POORE, - Haverhill, Mass.

WEST ISLIP GREENHOUSES.

CARNATIONS. Rooted Cuttings

Scott, Portla, McGowan, $100 per 100, 8800 per 1000, Daybreak, $150 per 100 Mixed Geraniums, from this, strong piants $1500 per 100. Mixed Chimas, dry roots of the following sorts Alphonse Bouvier, Mine, Crozy, Chas Henderson, Oneen Charlotte, Burbank, John White, etc., $250 per 100 Cash with order.

E. B. SUTTON, Jr., Babylon, L. I.

Please mention the American Florist

5000 GARDENIA FLORIDA

(CAPE JASMINE.)

3-inch pots, 8-10 inches high, $8 per 100; $70 per 1000. 25.000 Capnas, dormant roots, in 20 hest sorts, $20 per 1000.

Latania Borbonica, 4-inch pots, 1-2 choice leaves, 12-15 in., $15 per 100.

Latania Borbonica 4-inch pots, 2-3 choice leaves, 15-18 in., $20 per 100.

Phoenix Reclinata, 4 inch pots, 12-15 in., $15 per 100. Phoenix Reclinata, 4-inch pots, 15-18 in., $25 per 100. Oranges, hest sorts, grafted, 4-Inch pots, 10-12 in., $20 per 100; 5-Inch pots, 18-20 in., $30 per 100.

P. J. BERCKMANS, Augusta, Ga.

PELARGONIUMS

JUST the thing for Easter Large specimen plants for 6 and 8-inch pots, just showing buds. 20e each; $2 per doz. 2½-inch pot plants at $4 per 100; such as Mabel, Mme. Vibert and others. Order at once as they are going out fast.

A. C. LAMPRECHT ASHLAND, OHIO.

GERANIUMS that will please you and prices that will suit you

S. A. Nutt, LaFavorite, Heteranthe, $2.50 per 100; $20.00 per 1000; Beaute Poitevine, Mary Hill, $3.00 per 100; Mme, Bruant, Frances Perkins, $5.00 per 100, 10 varieties Coleus, 4 varieties Carnations, 2 varieties Ageratum, Prices upon application,

H. R. CARLTON, Willoughby, O.

MARCH OFFER

| Per                                        | 100   |
|--------------------------------------------|-------|
| Alternanthera A. Nana, $1.75; P. Major$  | 2.00  |
| Begonias, 5 var. and Vernou                | 2.50  |
| Colens and Centaurea Gymnocarpa            | 2.00  |
| Geraniums, 2½-in. pots, $2.50; 3-iu. pots | 3.75  |
| Marguerite (Paris Daisy) 4-in. pots        | 4.00  |
| Pansy plants, 1000, $9.00                 | 1.(X) |
| CASIL WITH ORDER.                          |       |

JOS. H. CUNNINGHAM, - Delaware, Ohio.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS

Here is a chance to get the best standard varieties, extra strong plants, extra cheap, Only $2.25 per 100. 2½ and 3-in, stock; or will exchange for Jubilee, Victor or Flora Hill carnations.

F. WM. HECKENKAMP, Jr. 6th Ave. and Adams St., - QUINCY, ILL.

The Cottage Gardens OUEENS. L.I. Specialties in CARNATIONS, CHRYSANTHEMUMS CADDAS, GERADIUMS, DAHLIAS. SEND FOR OUR PRICE LIST ·····

The Jennings Strain of Finest Mixed Pansies....
Medium size, $5 per 10000 express; 75c per 100 by mail. Seed of above. $1 c. Aster Seed, Semple's Large Pansies in bloom man. Seen of above. $1 per packet; $6 per ounce. Aster Seed, Semple's pink, $1.50 per ounce. Large Pansies in bloom, ready March 20th. Cash with order.

E. B. JENNINGS, Southport, Conn. Lock Box 254. Grower of the Finest Pansies.

THERE WE ARE AGAIN.メメメ VIOLETS, MARIE LOUISE.

Rooted Runners, $1.00 per 1000; daily pick of dooms 10,000. Largest grower of Marie Louise violets, winner of the largest prize ever offered or Violets, Madison Square Garden, New York Sity. Cash with all orders.

GEO. T. SCHUNEMAN, Blue Point, L. I., N. Y.

THE CHOICEST VARIETIES 100.000 VERBENAS. IN CULTIVATION.

Fine pot plants, $2.50 per 100; $20 per 1000. Rooted Cuttings, 75c per 100; $6.00 per 1000; $50 per 10000. NO RUST OR MILDEW.

PACKED LIGHT, AND SATISFACTION GUARANTEED. SEND FOR CIRCULAR. We are the Largest Growers of Verbenas in the country.

Our plants cannot be surpassed.

J. L. DILLON, Bloomsburg, Pa.

wwVERBENAS.ww

The finest collection in America, 35 varieties, every one a gem-mammoth size, striking colors, green as grass. Strong rooted cuttings, 60c per hundred; $5.00 per thousand; five thousand, $20.00. New Yellow Marguerite finest variety, strong 2-in. pot plants, 3c; rooted cuttings, 2c.

STRICTLY CASH WITH ORDER.

SOUTH SIDE FLORAL CO., Springfield, III.

'ERBENAS

ROOTED CUTTINGS. WELL ROOTED.

Crimson Bedder, Candidate, Mrs. J. C. Vaughan, Fire Hall, Lavender, Swayne's Beauty, Francis, Perf. Pink Beauty, Aurora Borealis, Negro, Miss Arthur, Wille Desmond, Mrs. Cleveland, 15c per doz.: 70c per 100; 8,000 per 1000. All nice clean stuff. Express paid.

S. T. DANLEY, Macomb, IIIs.

AZALEA INDICA

We have an immense stock of all the best varieties; well set with buds; large plants, 12 to 15-inch. $6.00 per doz.; $45 per 100.

We grow over a million from the choicest seed of Bugnot, Cassier, Odier and Tri-mardeau; transplanted in cold frames; 60c per 100; $4.00 per 1000.

HARRISII LILIES

In bud, guaranteed right for Easter; 10c per bud.

CINERARIAS

In bud and bloom, $1.00 per doz.

ROOTED CUTTINGS 100 1000
 Mammoth Verbenas
 $ .70

 Double Petunia
 1.00

 Heliotrope
 .75

 Ageratum
 .50
 $5,50 Double Golden Dwarf Margnerite, $1.00 per 100.

PLANTS 214-inch.
 Double Geraniums
 $2.00 per 100

 Vinea Variegata
 2.00 per 100

WHITTON & SONS,

Wholesale Florists,

UTICA, N. Y. City and Creen Sts., -

GREEN AS GRASS.

MAMMOTH VERBENAS

Fine selected stock in separate colors. Rooted cuttings, per 100, 75c; per 1000, $6.00. Cash with order.

FRANK S. PAYNE, Barnard Crossing, N. Y.

FAXON'S "WHITE" PANSIES.

The best mixture in cultivation, flowers very rge, thick and velvety; of superb colors and arkings. The perfection of form and texture. large, thic markings.

In Trade Packets at $1,00 each. M. B. FAXON,

Lock Box 1528,

1528. BOSTON, MASS. Correspondence solicited.

SPECIALTIES

IN BEST VARIETIES.

ROSES, from 3-inch pots.

CARNATIONS, for fall delivery. CHRYSANTHEMUMS,
SMILAX,
VIOLETS,

Prices low. Send for list. WOOD BROTHERS, FISHKILL, N.Y.

CLEMATIS Jackmanni, Henryii doz. 100 and others......$3.00 $20.00

H. P. ROSES Strong 2 and 3 years own roots. $1.50 $10.00 native red. 75 $4.00

DOWNING, best for general crop, special prices.

prices.
PAEONIES, fine ass't of colors and kinds $1.25 $8.00

F. A. BALLER, Bloomington, III.

KLONDIKE

Cold Fields at Your Door.

COLEUS—All kinds, all grades and all prices. Verschaffeltil and Queen. 75e per 100; $8.60 per 1600; 2½-inch pots. $15 00 per 1600; 2½-inch pots. $15 00 per 1600; 2½-inch pots. $15 00 per 1600; 2½-inch pots. $12 00 per 1600; $1.50 per 1600; $1.50 per 1600; $1.50 per 1600; $1.50 per 1600. Puchslas, standard sorts. $12 00 per 1600; $1.50 per 1600. Puchslas, standard sorts. $12 00 per 1600; $1.50 per 1600. Puchslas, standard sorts. $12 00 per 1600; $1.50 per 1600. Puchslas, standard sorts. $12.00 per 1600; $1.50 per 1600; $1.50 per 1600; $1.50 per 1600; $1.50 per 1600. Anthemis Coronaria. Golden Marguerite. $1.50 per 1600. Anthemis Coronaria. Golden Marguerite. $1.50 per 1600. Anthemis Coronaria. Golden Marguerite. $1.50 per 1600. Anthemis Paronychioldes. Major and Aurea Nana. 30c per 160. $20.00 per 1600; $1.50 per 1600; $1.50 per 1600. Geraniums. standard sorts. our selection. $1.50 per 1600. Geraniums. standard sorts. our selection. $1.50 per 1600. Geraniums. $2.00 per 1600. $1.50
J. E. FELTHOUSEN, Schenectady, N. Y.

CARNATIONS AND COLEUS

ROOTED CUTTINGS

THE 1898 INTRODUCTIONS THE 1897 INTRODUCTIONS

DAYBREAK of special quality.
ROOTED COLEUS in variety.
Cood stock only. Price list free.

DAN'L B. LONG, Growers' Agent, BUFFALO.

5,000 SMILAX...

From flats, by mail, 50c ner 100, $4,00 per 1000 From 2-inch pots, $1,50 per 100, $13,00 per 100 From 3-inch pots. $3,00 per 100 Send for samples. Cash with the order.

FREO BOERNER, Cape May City, N. J.

WHY NOT....

Advertise and sell some rooted cuttings or other surplus stock.

THIS SIZE "AD." ONLY $1.00. AMERICAN FLORIST CO., CHICAGO,

......

LETTUCE AND OTHER... VEGETABLE PLANTS

LETTUCE—Big Boston, Boston Market, Tenn. Ball. Grand Rapids and Reichner's Forcing. 15 et per 100; $1.00 per 1000

TOMATO, CABBAGE and CELERY-Small plants for transplanting now ready. 15cts. per 100; $1.00 per 1000. plants for transplanting now ready. 15 cts. per 100; $1.00 per 100). Pepper and Egg Plants—25 cts. per 100; $2.00 per 1000.

CAULIFLOWER, Snowball—35 ets per 100; $2.5 per 1000; If by mall add 10 ets. per 100 for small plants, and 50 ets. per 1000. Send for price list. Cash with order.

R. VINCENT, Jr. & SON, White Marsh, Md.

TRADE SLOW. - STOCK INCREASING. - DIS-EASED HARRISH LILIES. - PERSONAL MEN-

Since the beginning of last week the demand has dropped from 15% to 25%, with a considerable increase in supply. Roses and carnations, although more plentiful, are moving fairly well, but bulbous flowers are beginning to accumulate in the wholesale houses, and prices will drop accordingly. Harrisii lilies are now bothering the growers on account of the disease; some growers report a loss of 50%; judging from present indications, they will not be as plentiful for Easter as

There was nothing rare or novel in the line of flowering plants at the Sixth street market Saturday. A collection of uniform high grade cinerarias was seen at Mr. Joe Linnfoot's stand, which he tells me find a ready sale. Mr. Fred. Walz had some well grown azaleas, ranging from fifteen to twenty inches across at his stand. Tulips and hyacinths in pots seem to lose their popularity; they are moving very slowly.

Mr. Gus Adrian has been confined to his room the past week with La Grippe. Mr. J. MacRorie, of the W. A. Manda, South Orange Nursery, is widely known among Cincinnatians outside his professional calling. He is one of the jolliest fellows on the road. Mr. MacRorie's friends here are legion, and he was around town Monday renewing old acquaintances.

H. SCHWARZ.

There is trouble between Park Superintendent Warden and Gardener Carsten. A series of disagreements are said to have culminated in a personal encounter between the two. Mr. Carsten subsequently made formal charges of a sensational character to the Board of Administration. An investigating committee has been appointed and the matter has been investigated. There is said to be, as in many other cities, altogether too much in many other cities, acceptant politics in the Cincinnati park affairs.

Plant Shipments to Michigan.

UNITED STATES EXPRESS COMPANY AND PACIFIC EXPRESS COMPANY.

ED. AM. FLORIST:-The matter of shipments of plants, etc., for Michigan points has been referred to the vice-president and general manager of the U. S. Ex-press Co. and to Mr. E. M. Morsman, president of Pacific Express Co. I have received reply from Mr. Crosby, vice-president and general manager, advising that in his next circular he will issue new instructions conforming to the interpretation of the law by the Michigan state President Morsman, of the Pacific Express, advises me that he will modify his instructions excepting "greenhouse plants and cut flowers" in his next circular, A. Wyoxxi, General Agent.

VMLRICAN EXPRESS COMPANY.

LD. AMERICAS FLORIST - Laurin receipt of your favor of March 8, with clipping enclosed upon the subject of the Michigan state law regarding transportation of trees, shrubs, plants and vines, and Thave instructed that in our next tanil department circular the attention of agents be called to the fact that this law does not apply to shipments of greenhouse plants or cut flowers. Thanking you for calling our attention to the matter, I am Yours truly, A ASTISDEL.

IMPORTERS

JAPANESE PLANTS,

BULBS, ETC.

At lowest prices. Small orders filled from experimental garden Columbia Road Dorchester, Muss. Wholesale catalogue, 1838 free to the trade.

JAPANESE NURSERY.

Office: 272 Boylston St.,

BOSTON, MASS.

Large Field. Grown Roots in all the Leading Varieties $5.00 to $7.00

30,000 DAHLIAS

Before ordering your Dahlla stock be sure and send for my catalogue of noveltles and standards of the best quality and at the lowest prices. All stock guaranteed true to name.

W. W. WILMORE, Dahlia Specialist, Box 382, Denver, Colo.

PEACOCK'S PRIZE WINNING DA

Did you know that in 1896 Peacock's Dahlias were awarded sixteen (16) first prizes at Philadelphia out of seventeen entries? And at the American Institute, Madison Square Garden, New York, the seven first prizes (all that were offered) and two special diplomas tor Clifford W. Bruton and Wm. Agnew? That last vear (1897) at New York, they were awarded six of the seven first prizes and The Medal of Superiority of the American Institute, the highest award ever given Dahlias in America? That at Philadelphia—well, we won't say anything, as they were not in competition; but, read what the Philadelphia Record of Sept. 22, 1897, says:

"Prominent above all the other exhibits is that of the Dahlia Society itself. It includes an almost perfect assortment of all the Dahlias known in this country, grown by W. P. Peacock, of Atco, N. J., but it was not in competition for prizes.

New Illustrated Descriptive Wholesale Catalogue now ready; send tor it before placing order elsewhere.

W. P. PEACOCK, ATCO, N. J.

Mention American Florist.

Two Great Sports

CARNATION

VICTOR

CHRYSANTHEMUM PENNSYLVANIA

Undoubtedly the best Pink Carnation in commerce and certainty the most profite bloomer, perfectly healthy and of vigorous growth Rooted cuttings now ready. $4.00 per 1001; $55.00 per 1000. Come and see this carnation growing.

The finest vellow for cut blooms or exhibition purposes ever produced. Plants ready March 15, $5.00 per doz.; $35.00 per 100; $250 00 per 1000.

HUGH GRAHAM, 104 South 13th Street, PHILADELPHIA.

"BOSS" Chrysanthemums wm. H. CHAOWICK—the grandest white novelty of the season. THE YELLOW FELLOW Winner of $100 Stearns bicycle prize. MADELINE PRATT—"As pretty as her picture."

Grove P. Rawson, Elmira, N. Y.

Jardinieres, Pots Pedestals

Florists' Use.

Artistic Shapes and Decorations.

สมัยเมียนโดนโดนโดนโดนโด

Write us for Illustrations and Prices.....

BURLEY & TYRRELL, 42=44 Lake St., CHICAGO.

Los Angeles, Cal.

WARM WEATHER INCREASES SUPPLY OF STOCK .- WATER SUPPLY THREATENED. -PHILANTHROPIC GIFT TO THE CITY.-ESTIMATES OF THE ORANGE CROP.

The warm weather is working wonders on the outdoor stuff. Carnations, violets and bulbous stock are coming in freely; sweet peas are beginning to bloom, and will soon be abundant; violets are getting too cheap to pick, fifteen to twenty bunches of forty blooms each are sold to the dealers for $1; ferns are getting scarce, the sales this year are much larger than usual, owing to the scarcity of cut flowers during and since the holidays.

For the past few years forest fires in the mountains have been a serious menace to the water supply for irrigating the val-leys. It is now estimated that more than 100,000 acres of mountain timber have been burned over and destroyed. To remedy this condition of affairs it is now proposed to plant this burned district with Pinus tuberculata which is a rapid grower and said to be almost fire-proof.
On March 5, G. J. Griffith, the wealthy philanthropist, will formally donate to the city of Los Angeles the land now known as Griffith's Park. The surveys show an area of 3015.4 acres, which will make this city the owner of the largest public park in the United States.

Every one interested in floriculturecommercially—are rejoicing that we are to have a fiesta again this year. This to have a fiesta again this year. festival always creates a very heavy demand for flowers.

The wave of prosperity has struck Mr. A. T. Garey, superintendent of parks of this city. The finance committee of councils has recommended that his salary be increased 25%. Mr. Garey has achieved remarkable success since his acceptance of the position, and deserves a greater advancé.

After deducting an estimated loss of 2000 carloads of oranges, damaged by frost, southern California will still ship east 12,000 carloads, which at present prices will tickle the growers with about $6,000,000 in coin of the realm. This return is principally for the celebrated navel orange, the first grove of which was planted in Riverside, Cal., twenty-one years ago; this grove now produces an average of twelve boxes per tree, 108 trees to the acre.

D. R. W.

ASHTABULA, O.-The extensive greenhouses devoted to growing smilax near this city, and until recently owned by James Fassett, have been bought by a local syndicate.

Gladiolus Bulbs FOR FLORISTS.

WE HAVE THEM! WE HAVE THEM!

> Columbian Medal. S. A. F. Certificate of Merit. First prizes wherever shown. Cushman's Celebrated Seedlings. A light mixture. No. 1, $1.25 per 100; $10.00 per 1000. No. 2, $1.00 per 100, $8 00 per 1000. Our No. 2 are fine bulbs, 1½-in. and over.

CUSHMAN GLADIOLUS CO., Euclid, O.

SPRING

LILIUM AURATUM.

Per 100 Per 1000 7-9 inch.....$3.75 9-11 inch.... 5.00

L. RUBRUM

(Speciosum) 7-9 inch..... 4.75 9-11 inch..... 6.75

40.00 60.00

LILIUM ALBUM (Speciosum) Per 100 Per 1000 55.00 65.00

BEGONIAS TUBEROUS ROOTED ...

Single, separate colors...... 3.50 Double, ......... 9.00 30.00

TUBEROSES....

True Excelsior Pearl.
"Hallock strain" First size..... 1.00 7.50

GLOXINIAS ......Per doz., 85e; per 100, $5,00

CALADIUMS.... Fancy leaved choice bulbs, per doz., $1.75; per 100, $12.00.

CALADIUM ESCULENTUM

Cured and sound bulbs with live center shoots.

Doz. 100 shoots. | Doz. | 100 5 to 7 inches in circumference | $ .40 | $2.50 7 to 9 | 65 | 4.50 7 to 9 " " 65 4 50 9 to 12 " " 1 00 6.50 50c per 100 less on 7-9 inch and 9-12 inch sizes if shipped from New York.

GLADIOLUS XXX Florists Mixture

....$15.00

VAUGHAN'S SEED STORE

NEW YORK 14 Barclay St.

CHICACO 84-86 Randolph St.

NAS NEW AMERICAN Finest in the World Our Novellies for 1898

DUKE OF MARLBORO, darkest crimson. $30.00
DUCHESS OF MARLBORO, only pure pink. 30.00
TOPAZ. only absolutely large pure yellow. 50.00
LORRAINE, pink, edged white, fine. 30.90
MAIDENS BLUSH, delicate flesh color. 15.00
GOLDEN PEARL, yellow, nearly double. 30.00
CUBA, finest and largest gilt edged. 40.00
GUBCAS, very dwarf, March delivery. 12.50
PHILADELPHIA, glowing crimson. 15.00
CHAMPION, largest, glowing searlet. $5.00 each
KLONDIKE, only large pure orange. $2.50
Send for complete list of 50 novelties and 200
standard varieties at lowest prices.

OUR CANNAS IN FRANCE.

OUR CANNAS ...

To Messrs. A. Blanc & Co.
Your new cannas of last year gave me much satisfaction. Please send me a complete set of your novelties for ISN as soon as ready. Also 12
Glant Crimson, etc. Signed CH. MOLIN,
Lyon, France. Jan. 3, ISS.

ASPARAGUS SPRENGERI

Fine plants in 6-loch pots, ready for 8-inch $5 per 12.

AMARYLLIS.....

Veltch's Hybrids. $4 per 12; Equestra, $4 per 100; Formosissima, $3 per 100.

Spotted Leaf, $3; Black, $5; Yellow, $30; all per 100. Golden, $2 each.

DAHLIAS

11 prizes out of 22 at the last Dahlia exhibition. First prize Dahlia, GILT EDGE, $15 per 100 Send for special list.

A. BLANC & CO., Philadelphia, Pa.

Mention Am. Florist when writing

Cablegram

okohama

"Kaishimeta Teppoyuri."

WE received the above Cablegram from our Yokohama house stating that again we control the largest part of Lilium longiflorum for next season. Prices will be quoted upon arrival of next Japan mail.

SUZUKI & IIDA,

No. 15 Broadway, NEW YORK.

No. 3 Nakamura, YOKOHAMA, JAPAN.

Say "saw your ad. in the Florist" when you write advertisers.

100,000 CANNAS

THE STORRS & HARRISON CO., Painesville, Ohio.

Palm Notes.

Throughout the dark months, namely November, December and January, our ordinary trade species of palms require little or no shading, with the possible exception of Cocos Weddeliana and Livistona rotundifolia, these two keeping in better color with some shade during the whole year. But with latanias, kentias, areeas and phoenix we find it a good practice to allow the shading to thin off to some extent by the latter part of September, and this, with the admission of plenty of fresh air, produces foliage of the firm texture that gives satisfaction to the purchaser.

As the sun becomes quite strong by the middle of February, the necessity arises for some protection, and the first application of shading is made on the west side of the houses, leaving the east side bare for two or three weeks longer, the complete shading of the houses depending on the condition of the weather and forwardness of the season. Like many other operations in our business, it is impossible to lay down hard and fast rules for shading, and much depends on the watchfulness of the grower, for when the shading is omitted at the right time there will surely be found some unsightly streaks burned across the best leaves in the house, owing to the fact that there is seldom a house constructed that does not include some defective glass in its roof.

As to the material for shading there is no room for choice, but in all probability the cheapest material for this purpose is ordinary whitewash, and during the hot weather this seems to keep the houses cooler than any other preparation that I have used. The great disadvantage in the use of lime for shading, however, is The great disadvantage in found in its action on the paint and putty, the latter being speedily eaten away by the lime. White lead and naphtha and white lead and kerosene have also been largely used, and are still in high favor with many growers, and a cold water paint known as "Indurine" gives good results, though the first cost is high.

The matter of repotting also demands attention at this time, for palms in general start into active growth quite early in the year. Well-rooted young stock should be potted first, for in many cases there is a less marked period of rest in young plants than is noted in more mature specimens, and providing an even growing temperature and proper condition of moisture be maintained there is little risk in repotting young stock at almost any season of the year. Large specimens may profitably be left alone in regard to potting until after March I, and they will then take hold of the new compost at once, and should go ahead rapidly up to November 1 under reasonable treatment. Just before reporting is a good time for a thorough cleaning of the large specimens referred to, for it is an unfortunate fact that most of us find insects on our palms at some period of our experience, notwithstanding the application of the vari-ous specifics that have been heralded with much enthusiasm and great quantities of printer's ink. While this cleaning operation is going on it is a good plan to give a coat of whitewash to walls, benches partitions, and in fact to all portions of the house to which such an application is adapted. The latter portion of winter and early spring is a favor able time for an outbreak of red spider in the palm house, owing to the fact that strong are heat at night and bright sunshine in the day are hable to dry the amosphere to a degree tayorable for this insect, and as a measure of prevention forcible syringing should be the order for every bright day, directing the stream of water on both upper and lower surfaces of the leaves, the red spider being somewhat impartial as to the location of its attacks. Yellow thrips also appear in the palm house at times, often injuring the young foliage before the presence of the insect has been noted, and for this trouble there is nothing better than tobacco applied either by fumigation or vaporizing.

Returning to the subject of potting, it may be taken as a safe rule to pot all palms firmly, there being no fear of retarding the root growth by thus firming the soil, and in the case of those plants that are intended to be taken out for decorating it is especially necessary that they be well potted, else they soon shake loose in the pots and the roots suffer from exposure to the air. Root pruning is sometimes practiced with this class of plants when the pots have reached an inconvenient size and the old compost is exhausted, and providing proper care is given the plants after the operation there is but little risk to strong growing species, but it is safest not to use this method too early in the season, and to give a little extra shade and keep the house somewhat close for a few weeks afterward.

Of course it will be understood that in an establishment where the amount of glass does not allow a whole house to be devoted to palms there must necessarily be modifications in the methods of culture. and it may be needful to postpone some of this work until later in the season, after the rush of Easter business and spring trade is past, when both space and time should be found for the annual elean-up.

For the benefit of the less experienced (though we all be learners), a word of warning may be added in regard to highpressure cultivation, that is by means of the hot-hed system and quantities of liquid manure, and this warning may be summed up in one word-Don't. What is gained in time is usually lost in quality by hard foreing, and it is quality that counts in the long run. W. H. TAPLIX.

NEW FORCING ROSE MRS. ROBT. GARRETT

Hybrid tea, rich soft pink, buds very long, flower extra large, delightfully fragrant, rivaling Bridesmaid in color, but larger and much more productive. A sturdy, vigorous grower, a money maker and a triumph of American skill. The best firms in the country are investing in it. It has won numerous prizes and has elicited the most favorable comment from critical judges. Price strong plants from 216-inch pots, $25.00 per 100 in lots less than 1000; $225.00 per 1000. Orders booked now, delivery March 15, 1898. Correspondence solicited. Address

H. WEBER & SONS, Oakland, Md.

ROSES

METEORS. BRIDESMAID BRIDE.....

 $\begin{array}{ccccccc} {\rm Pots} & 100 & {\rm Pots} & 100 \\ 2^{1}{}_{2} & $2.50 & 3 & $3.50 \end{array}$

Guaranteed first-class. Stock grown in low temperature,

THE E. HIPPARD CO., Youngstown, Ohio.

Potted Roses and... Cuttings of All Kinds

Same of Carnations.

Send 50c for samples and prices. Fine Smilax in 2-inch pots. Geraniums in 2 and 3-inch pots.

GEO. A. KUHL, Pekin, III.

New American Rose_

MRS. ROBERT GARRETT

As one of the syndicate bolding stock in this rose we offer first class plants, from 2½-inch pots, to be delivered on and after March 15, 188, at the agreed price of 83.50 per doz., $25.00 per 100.

AMERICAN ROSE CO.

300,000 YOUNG ROSES 300,000

Ramblers, Climb. Malmaison, Climb. White Pet, Climb. Wootton, Pres. Carnot and 100 other leaders in Teas, H. Teas and Climbers.

Send for prices.

The National Plant Company, Dayton, Ohio.

ROSES CUTTINGS ...ROOTED

| No scrub wood used. All stock thoro         | ughly root | ted and   |          |          | From 24g               | Inch Pots |
|---------------------------------------------|------------|-----------|----------|----------|------------------------|-----------|
| carefully packed when sent out. Ser         | id for san | aptes     | Per 100  | Per 1000 | Per 100                | l'er 1000 |
| AMERICAN BEAUTIES,                          | Rooted .   | Cuttings, |          | $22.00  |                        | $35,00   |
| BRIDES                                      |            |           | 1,50     | 12.50    |                        | 20.00     |
| BRIDESMAID                                  |            |         | 1.50     | F2.50    | 2.25                   | 20.00     |
| METEOR                                      |            |           | 1,50     | 12.50    |                        | 20,00     |
| KAISERIN                                    |            |           | 1,50     | 12.50    | 2.25                   | 20,00     |
| PERLE                                       | 4.1        | 4.4       | 1.50     | 12.50    | 2.25                   | 20,00     |
| - NOTE 11 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 |            | co-4 11   | Land Car |          | the man of the account |           |

J. A. BUDLONG, - STATION X. CHICAGO, ILL.

New Rose Clara Watson

Clear flesh pink shaded with salmon at the base, one of the finest roses of recent introduction. Extra strong plants $8,00 per t00.

PRESIDENT CARNOT. Those who have not tried it should do so.

All the standard forcing kinds in A1 stock at prices as low as it is possible to produce really good stock for, Bridesmaid, Bon Silene, Catherine Mermet, Madame Hoste, Mrs. Pierpont Morgan, Perle, Sunset, The Bride, American Beauty, Madame Caroline Testout, Meteor and Souv. de Wootton. Also Hybrids for forcing and summer bedding.

JOHN N. MAY, Summit, New Jersey.

 $^{\prime\prime}$ rrrescreterrescreterrescreterrescreterrescreterresc $^{\prime\prime}$

Rochester, N. Y.

TRADE QUIET .- FLOWERS PLENTIFUL .-PRICES UNSTEADY. - EASTER PREPARA-TIONS. - A NEW STORE. - BUSY BULB AGENTS.

Business is inclined to be quiet and slower than it has been; flowers of all kinds are decidedly more plentiful now, and prices are not so steady as formerly. Our storemen are only moderately busy, principally with the usual funeral work. For the first time this winter an oversupply of roses arrived in town; not all of this could be used up, though no high grades were left over at any time; tulips, narcissus and hyacinths are almost getting to be a glut in the market, but for the last few days less of them are coming in; carnations are usually cleaned up every day, and few violets remain unsold in the commission man's hands.

Easter stock is coming on in good shape; azaleas, with few exceptions, have kept splendidly in spite of the unusual mild winter; genistas are not too forward yet; rhododendrons and kalmias seem to be just in time, and the metrosideros, in the few places where they are grown have stretched out their buds wonderfully within the last two weeks; hybrid roses are growing fast; cinerarias, daisies and spiræas will be plentful; some excellent late cyclamen will surely be in the market, and we have just found out that quite a number of good sized Agathæa cœlestis have been retarded in one place so as to bring out their first flowers shortly before Easter week. The only anxiety seems to be about blooming the lilies; some of these are too forward, apparently ready to burst open in a few days; others do not come on fast enough, and require all the extra heat that can be furnished; hydrangeas too are a little behind in several places, but with the bright and moderate weather four weeks will help considerably to defour weeks will help considerably to develope and color up the flower heads. Lilacs and other shrubs are so easily managed that nobody has any trouble in getting them just right; stock of these is more abundant this year than ever before, and we shall be surprised if all of it can be disposed of. All our growers have prepared for a largely increased demand in Easter plants. mand in Easter plants.

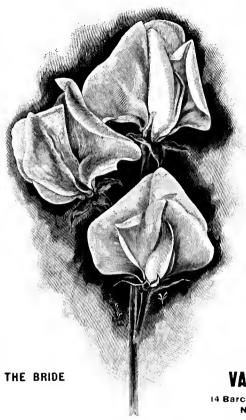

A bench of trailing arbutus (Epigæa repens) in one of W. King's houses is attracting universal attention; the plants are now in bloom and give promise of continuing for some time to come.

Another florist's store is to be opened here in a few days; John Dobbertin is after his share of down town traffic.

Mrs. F. Schlegel is not yet able to be out, but is regaining her usual strength. Bulb agents, too numerous to mention separately, arrive in town every day. J. B. K.

The Nurserymen's Convention.

It is expected that between 300 and 400 members of the American Nurserymen's Association will attend the convention to be held in Omaha, June 7, 8 and 9. Arrangements have been perfected by s. Artangements have been perfected by correspondence between the national secretary, George C. Seager of Rochester, and Prof. Taylor, superintendent of the bereau of agriculture, etc. President Wattles will deliver the address of welcome, and an address will also be delivered by Prof. Taylor.

Originated by M. Lynch, Menlo Park, Calif.

THE BRIDE This beautiful large, white-seeded variety is the best White Sweet Pea to date. It is a pure white selection from Mrs. Eckford and is the strongest germinator among all the white-seeded varieties—so often poor growers. Grown for the cut-flower market of San Francisco in competition with the other high class whites, it has brought the highest figures over them all, taking first rank among all the whites. The flowers are pure white of fine substance, large and of true grandidora type. Beside this every seed will grow. Perfect flowers were cut as early as April 16 last year. Price, per lb., $2.00; 1-4 lb., 60c; 02., 20c; pkl., 10c.

The Cornell Bullettin in naming the host Sweet.

The Cornell Bulletin in naming the hest Sweet Peas of each color, classes The Bride first as a white, with Emily Henderson second and Blanche Burpee third.

Blanche Burpee third.

Frank Pelleano, a leading florist of San Francisco, atated: "We can sell more Bride Sweet Pea blooms than those of any other variety which we have ever handled."

Prof. Tracy. In a recent review of some of the newer Sweet Peas says: "The especial ment of this variety (The Bride) is in its length, strength and grace of flower stem, and the disposition of the blooms thereon, being one of our hest sorts in these respects, and forming an exceedingly graceful hunch."

Mr. Lynch has sort up ble out he steel which

Mr. Lynch has sent us his entire stock which we offer to the trade as above.

VAUGHAN'S SEED STORE.

14 Barclay St.,

84 & 86 Randolph St.,

THE AMERICAN FLORIST COMPANY'S

NEW DIRECTORY

(SIXTH EDITION—1898)

Of Florists, Seedsmen and Nurserymen to which are added lists of Parks, Park Superintendents and Cemeteries. A complete list of all persons in the above trades in the United States and Canada, by towns; also a complete list of the same names, alphabetically arranged. 🗻 🎿 🚜

PRICE, TWO DOLLARS.

AMERICAN FLORIST COMPANY,

324 Dearborn Street, CHICAGO.

Syracuse, N. Y.

Nobody ever regrets going out to Quinlan & Co's houses on Genesee street, even if the time for a visit be short. "Bobby Bard," who has the whole say about the flower growing houses, always shows something interesting and fine. beliefs and methods might, in some respects, be considered next to eccentric, as where else to-day can be seen entire houses devoted to Hoste and Gontier roses? "Laugh at it you may." Bobby says, "we continue to grow them because there is money in it for us, while Niphetos 1 never succeed with, easy as it grows for many."

Emily Pierson made a highly satisfactory record in red carnations this winter as regards quality of blooms and prolific growth; also Nivea in white. A house of some thousands of L. Harrisii seems timed just right for Easter with little disease showing.

L. E. Marquisce has his new store on South Salina street in active business order. At his greenhouses, his special pride, and merited evidently, there is a seedling carnation, a veritable Albertini in form and stem but deeper colored and highly prolific. Some other seedlings also look promising, but not really so flattering as this.

Mr. Wheadon, the polite manager at Quinlan's store, stated that a good business had been done all winter.

Henry Burt does not complain of busi-

Henry Morris is now happily located in a prominent Genesee street store, not large in size but still reaching through to Railroad street, and thus fronting on two busy thoroughfares, a location promising for a lucrative business.

TRAVERSE CITY, MICH.-Charles Gunton will go into the florist business in a short time, he having leased the property for-merly known as the West Side Greenhouses

GREEN-HOUSE HEATING. MYERS & CO.

1518 & 1520 S. 9th St. PHILADELPHIA. Bend for catalogue and price list.

NEW & SECOND-HAND MATERIAL,

orchased from Storilt Besilver, and Assumes, less at less than one half prices. Plus and Flittings one Florists Wire Hot Water Heaters, Greenhouse digra and Engines. Bose Light Wrought from Plus, asseman and thousands of other articles, for section.

CHICAGO HOUSE WRECKING CO. Largest Mail Order Depot for New and Second Hand Material in the World W. 35TH & IRON STS., CHICACO. Write for our free Illustrated entalogues

OT BED SASH

of Red Cedar, Cypress and Pine. A. DIETSCH & CO.

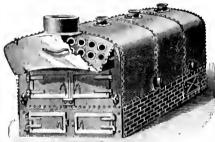

Manufacturers of Greenhouse Material,

615-621 SHEFFIELD AVE., CHICAGO, ILL. When writing mention American Florist.

SEND FOR CATALOGUE.

KROESCHELL BROS. CO. eenhouse * Boiler,

Boliers made of the best of uniterial shell, firebox sheets and heads of steel, water spines all around (front, sides and back). Write for information.

Boilers

For GREENHOUSES.

See our Catalogue. . . . .

IF Steam and

Giblin & Co., Utica, N. Y.

SYRINGE WITH COLD WATER.

itality of your stock, but write for particulars of my tempering Apparatus.

HENRY W. GIBBONS, 134 LIBERTY STREET.

Established 1859....

THOS. W. WEATHERED'S SON

HORTICULTURAL ARCHITECT AND BUILDER.

Greenhouse Wood-work. Greenhouse Iron-work.

Red Gulf Cypress free from Sap.

Get my prices on everything needful for the erection or repairing of Greenhouses.

Should write me your wants for everything entering into the building, heating or ventilating of greenhouses as well as Unions for pipes and Universal Joints torventilating apparatus. ENTILATION—I would call attention to my Patent Arm. It is so constructed that it cannot slip when once tightened up by the bolts, and, instead of the old-rashioned solid eye, which depends on a single set screw and is continually slipping, we use an open eye fastened by two bolts. There are three grips in the eye, running parallel with the shaft, which, when screwed down by the bolts, binds on the shaft like a pair of pipe tongs and cannot possibly slip, tor the more strain put upon it the tighter it will bind. By using the open eye a broken arm can be very easily replaced, whereas with the solid eye the shaft must be taken down to slip the new arm in place. Valves also trom the smallest for water pipe to the largest four inch for heating purposes.

EATHERED can and will cheerfully help you out of any difficulties you may have in the construction or heating of your houses. WOOD-1 use is of red gulf cypress tree from sap. If you are in want of pipe for water or any other purpose get my figures.

■ CEL—I try to in everything, especially in heating, building and ventilating apparatus, but don't lorgel I can supply you everything except masonry material.

S of wrought iron or heavy cast iron for every purpose. Write me your wants and they will receive careful and prompt attention.

-I don't keep in stock but if you want it very hadly I will try and get it for you.

THOS. W. WEATHERED'S SON.

141 Center St, New York.

Credit Conditions Printed on Invoices Do Not Bind.

Two very startling legal decisions have recently been rendered. In one the St. Louis court of appeals is reported as holding that when it is the custom of the trade that a sale made by a traveling salesman of his principal's goods may be rejected by the house on account of the unsatisfactory commercial standing of the purchaser, such a right is in the nature of an option, which must be exercised within a reasonable time after the order for the goods is received, and if not so exercised the contract of sale becomes absolute. Such option to reject the order or sale on account of the unsatisfactory commercial standing of the pur-chaser does not carry with it the right to repudiate the sale for any other reason or for no reason at all, as, for example, for the reason that the goods were sold below their value and the goods were sold below their value and the time of payment ex-tended beyond the limit of private in-structions. The principles here announced will readily be seen to be of the utmost importance to the commercial world in their immediate application, but their effect does not stop there.

Something of the same doctrine seems to be recognized by the supreme court of Montana in a recent case. It seems that on May 27 a salesman in the employ of a dry goods company named called upon a Helena firm. His duties were, as he testified, to sell his house's product to the retail trade by soliciting and sending to the house orders for their approval and filling. On that date he took four orders from that one firm. The goods were to be shipped in August and September, with "dating" of November 1, or perhaps, on part, of October 1, and terms of 60 and 90 days. The orders were filled.

Preceding the shipment of the goods, however, the wholesale house sent the Helena firm bills or invoices of the merchandise. Upon these billheads or inchandise. Upon these bilineads or invoices there was, among other printed matter, the following: "All bills become due when parties suspend payment, assign, or sell out. All goods dated ahead are merely consigned and subject to replevin until said dating has expired. Retention of goods will be considered acceptance of all the terms hereon." Shortly after the receipt of the goods and invoices mentioned the firm made an assignment for the benefit of its creditors, and, naturally, the wholesale house sought to enforce the conditions printed on its invoices. One of the firm to which the goods were shipped denied that he had ever noticed this printed matter on the invoices prior to the assignment. His partner, however, conceded that he was aware of it.

No question was raised as to the authority of the salesman to bind his house, and, from his own testimony, the court says it cannot in any manner be inferred that the goods ordered through him by the above firm were to be received on consignment. Nor does it think that it can be inferred from the evidence that there was any modification of the original contract entered into. It says that if, when the house received the orders from its traveling salesman, it had seen fit to make the ordering firm agree to the terms as printed on the invoices, it should have done so before shipping the goods. But, having shipped them under one contract, it had no right, on its own motion, to modify the terms thereof.

J. L. Rosenberger.

Kraft's Plant Tonic

For PLANTS, PALMS and FLOWERS

... A Wonderful Preparation for the Promotion of Plant Life, Destruction of Insects and Scale...

This is one of the greatest preparations for the use of Florists and Plant Growers ever compounded. It gives to the foliage of plants treated the bright, fresh color of healthy, growing vegetation. It destroys all insect life infecting the plant and eradicates scale.

Besides improving the color of the plant, it effects a general betterment of its condition, aiding nature in disseminating and retaining the sap and life of the plant. The Tonic makes the foliage of the plant soit and pliable, and a beautiful bright green.

Price per bottle, 25 cents.

84 & B6 RANDOLPH STREET, CHICAGO.

VAUGHAN'S SEED STORE.

14 BARCLAY STREET, NEW YORK.

Jadoo Fibre and Jadoo Liquid

are to-day being sold by the leading SEED HOUSES and are used by prominent GROWERS and FLORISTS.

You Cannot Afford to Grow

Plants Without Them

33333BBBB66

Send for particulars and be convinced

The American Jadoo Co.

815 FAIRMOUNT AVE.

...PHILADELPHIA, PA.

When writing mention American Florist,

STEMS

VAUGHAN'S SEED STORE,

Chicago. New York.

A COMPLETE AND IATIVE GUANO NATURAL FETILIZLR

(Desiccated Night Soil)

Gardeners and Florists. SOLUBLE, QUICK TO ACT, PLEASANT TO HANDLE.

STANDARD FERTILIZER CO. Inc.

1822 Filbert Street, Philadelphia.

KABCURA DIP CO. CHICAG AND SAVE BLOOMS QUICKLY DOES IT. Mention American Florist.

EXTRACT. TOBACCO HAMMOND'S

THE OLD ORIGINAL.

GEO S. OSBORN.

OLD TOWN FARM GREENHOUSES.
COR SARGEANT & ATTWOOD STS..

Hammond's Paint & Sing Shot Works. Fishkill-on-Hudson. N. Y.—
Gent.—I send check for amount of encloved bill, and think I shall need more of the Tobacco Extract for further trial TW SO PAR AS CAN BE JUDGED IT IS THE BEST EXTRACT I EVER HAD. Let It come by freight at once, as we have two houses longing for a dose.

Vours truly, GEO S. OSBORN.

SOLD BY WHOLESALE SEEDSMEN.

THE AMERICAN FLORIST'S COLOR CHART

ls now accepted as the standard in preparing color descriptions by many foreign houses as well as in America.

PRICE 15 CENTS POSTPAID. AMERICAN FLORIST CO., 322 Dearborn St., Chicago.

71 Myrtle Ave.
Brooklyn. N. Y.
VAUGHAN'S SEED STORE, Gen'l Western Agents, 84 Randolph St., CHICACO.

Sports.

There has been no novelty which originated as a sport that has caused so much unfavorable comment as the carnation Harrison's White, which was sent out last year. Being claimed as a sport from that popular variety, William Scott, was one of its greatest recommendations; though those who bought it the most heavily saw it in its own home growing, and many of them more than once. Secretary Herr, under the head of "Last Season's Introductions," states: "There is a possibility that a variety that can sport color can also produce a bud variation that would change the entire habit of the plant." Darwin designated sports as "bud variations," which is more specific and carries with it a more clear idea as to what is meant.

We have abundant evidence that most plants, if not all, have the power of varying in growth, when the color of the flower is not changed. Among roses we have Climbing Perle des Jardins, C. Meteor, C. Bride, C. Kaiserin Augusta Victoria, Souvenir de Wootton and some others which have originated in this country, besides many of the Bourbons and hybrid remontants that have originated in Europe; and so far as I know the color of the flowers in each individual case has re mained the same, the variation in growth being the only difference. Sunset was a sport from Perle, and the growth was by some growers considered to be somewhat weaker than was that of its parent. It would be difficult, it seems to me, to explain the cause of sports. Carnation Victor is considered to have a stronger constitution than Daybreak, its parent. Helen Keller earnation sported with me two distinct shades of yellow with the red stripes peculiar to that variety, but both of them were so affected with bacteriosis that they succumbed. Some experts who claim that Harrison's White is none other than Puritan assert that there are two distinct forms of that variety which have been "fixed" by selection. E. L.

Standard Made by

Good Rathroad Facilities KELLER BROS. For shipping. Special Attention Given to

NORRISTOWN, PA.

Price Lists Furnished on Application.

STANDARD FLOWER....

We Manufacture a full line of Standard Flower Pots, Hanging Vases, Lawn Vases, Seed Pans and Cylinders, glazed and with bandles.

SEND for our price list before ordering else-where and save 25 per cent. Andress

Hilfinger Bros. Pottery, Ft. Edward, N. Y.

(ake Your Own

The Cow Manure Pot

Pots
The tow Manure Pot is the best for young plants. For hedding and sending of plants is the best thing ever invented. The matter force the plant and makes if each of thing the monter sending them but in few particular the monter sending them but in few particular the monter sending them but in few particular to the 1 toom of the pot and set if in few particular to the pot and set if in the set if in each set is the growth of the plant the 1-20 cm. In the pots stand perfectly wait ring it reints as an included livers gardener should see in a little enach in the for patting furction in the 12 to be in Simple of sobsentiff wanted single Machine 2 Inch Pots.

M. 6.

wingle Machine 2 Inch Pote 84 41 Lemble 2 and clinch Pote 5.00

SYRACUSE POTTERY CO. Flower Pots,

Bulb Pans, Hanging Baskets and Saucers

OUR FLOWER POTS are standard measure and all first-class and we assure you they will give good satisfaction. We call your attention to our new pots, 6, 7, 8 and 9-inch, called the "Poro Pot." They are more Porous than any pots, smoother inside and outside, perfect drainage, and are easily washed and cleaned, Give them a trial and you will not want any other. Remember these Pots are as cheap as any other Pot on the market. Write for price list.

SYRACUSE POTTERY CO.

SYRACUSE, N. Y.

Send for our new price list, with extra discounts. All of our Pots from 7-inch and upwards have our Patent Excelsior Bottom, which is a great advantage as it insures perfect drainage. A FULL LINE OF BULB PANS.

THE WHILLDIN POTTERY COMPANY, 713 to 719 Wharton Street, Philadelphia, Pa. BRANCH WAREHOUSES: { Kearney and Westside Aves., Jersey City, N. J. Jackson Ave. and Pearson St., Long Island City, N. Y.

rlower

OUR POTS ARE OF THE BEST QUALITY.

We ship all goods from Cincinnati, guaranteeing lowest freight rates and prompt delivery.

Write us before placing your orders elsewhere......

CAMBRIDGE TILE MFG. CO., Covington, Ky.

OLD RELIABLE MAKE OF Elverson, Sherwood & Barker.

> Write for price list Address

PITTSBURG CLAY MFG. CO.,

New Brighton, Pa.

FERN PANS and

AZALEA POTS...

FLOWER POTS

A SPECIALTY

List and SAMPLES FREE.

J. G. SWAHN'S SONS, MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.

Jute Fibre Flower Pots...

The Finest Thing on Earth for Shipping Plants. 🚜 🥦

Very Strong, Light, Neat and Attractive tamps for samples and

HARALD ELIZHOLIZ, Central Valley, N.Y. J. B. WOODIN, - OWOSSO, Mich.

GEO. KELLER & SON. MANUFACTURERS OF

Flower Pots.

Before buying write for prices. 361-363 Herndon Street, noar Wrightwood Ave.,

CHICAGO. ILL.

Mention American Florist.

"STANDARDS"

FULL SIZE AND WIDE BOTTOMS BULB PANS AND AZALEA POTS

DETROIT FLOWER POT M'F'Y, DETROIT, MICH., 490 HOWARD ST. HARRY BALSLEY,

Standard 🧀 🏎 FLOWER

If your greenhouses are within 500 miles of the Capitol, write us; we can save you money.

W. H. ERNEST,

Station M. N. E.

WASHINGTON, D.

Butted Glass vs. Lapped Glass.

Answering J. W. D., Dixon, Ill., authorities differ in regard to this question. Each system has many strong advocates and many opponents. The butted glass system is certainly much the cheaper in first cost, and very much more easily repaired. It is, we believe, not well adapted to very flat roofs, but the main objection urged against it is that the objection inged against it is that the glass becomes quickly blackened on the inside, which is not only unsightly, but obstructs the light, unless frequently cleaned. This trouble is not so serious when anthracite coal or the best grades of soft coal are used, but with the low grade Illinois coal might be very annoving. Square glass (in your case 16x16) is generally recommended for butting, so that it may by changing sides be more carefully matched.

A carefully laid butted glass roof, with glass well bedded in good putty, is the glass well bedded in good party, is the standard for comparison, and the advocates of lapped glass will hardly claim more than that the butted glass, when well laid, is equally good.

This whole matter has been very fully discussed in many former issues of the AMERICAN FLORIST.

SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH .- A new organization has been formed in this city and will be called the Utah Florists' and Gardeners' Association. The growers alone have been organized up to the present time, but the new association proposes to be much broader in its workings. A meeting was held at the offices of the Huddart Floral Company March 3, and the following officers elected for the ensuing year: President, John Reading: vice president, John Starley; recording secretary, Hugh Connor; treasurer, Ed. J. Petty; corre-sponding secretary, Peter Huddart.

OUR NATIONAL FLOWER.—A correspondent who has been caught, and badly used up, in the cogs of a certain political machine says that the skunk cabbage flower is the only one truly emblematic of our institutions.

* You can not get a GOOD THING for nothing. But the price of this apparatus is next to nothing. Send for price and description to

J. D. CARMODY, Evansville, Ind.

Write for Estimates.

Open-air-dried Cypress Lumber is more durable, and better suited to Greenhouse conditions, than kiln dried stock. But you cannot get it from those that are engaged in the business in a small way—even though their entire busi ness is contined to greenhouse material—tor it takes a long time for the lumber ness is contined to greenhouse material—tor it takes a long time for the lumber to thoroughly dry and this means an investment in lumber that only those of large capital can make. The only way to have air-dried lumber is to buy green lumber and hold it until it dries. Those that order dry lumber from the producers of Cypress get kiln-dried stock. It is cheaper for them to kiln-dry than to hold the stock long enough to season it in the open air. We carry a large stock and fill all orders with open-air-dried Cypress clear of knots, sap and all other defects.

Write for Circulars or Estimates

Lockland Lumber Co. LOCKLAND, O.

STANDARD

NONE EQUAL IT

Strength AND Durability

Send for Catalogue.

VENTILATING

MACHINE. NOTHING

Flimsv OR

Complicated about it.

NEVER DECAYS.

A. DIETSCH & CO., 619 Sheffield Ave.,

MFR'S OF RED CEDAR AND CYPRESS GREENHOUSE MATERIAL.

CHICAGO.

Wheeler-Stenzel Co.

Make your contracts for next season now. We can deliver to any part of the country and Save You Money .....

Greenhouse Glass

72 Sudbury St., BOSTON, MASS.

FOR SALE CHEAP.

GLASS for Greenhouses, Conservatories, Hothers, Bods, etc. Also Hothed Sashes and Mats. Paints, Oils, etc. THE REED GLASS & PAINT CO., 456 W. Broadway, NEW YORK.

Everybody is more pleased if you say "saw your ad. in the American Florist" when writing

| Index to A                                                                                                                                                                                                           | dvertisers.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | Tonormanalis & 42 tall                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |
| American Index Co. MB                                                                                                                                                                                                | Lang Julius                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| American Rose Co 101                                                                                                                                                                                                 | Littlefield H F902                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |
| Amling E C See                                                                                                                                                                                                       | Long D B                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |
| Advertising Rates                                                                                                                                                                                                    | Lang Julius 889Ley John II 887Littlefield H F 987Lockland Lum Co 911Long D B 301 483Londale A H 880Lord & Burnham Co 912Lonisville Tobacco Co. 986                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
| Australia Falli Seco  Co                                                                                                                                                                                             | Lord & Burnham Co. 302 Lorlaylle Tobacco Co. 380 Lucas J & Co. 392 Lynch W E. 884 Lyon-Hortleole 80 Manning Jacob W. 855 Manz J & Co. 303 May Jno N. 905 McCarthy N F & Co. 835 McDonald & McManussos McDonald & McManussos McDonald & Stelle. 300 McFadden W A. 857 Millang Frank 889                                                                                                     |
| Baker C. F                                                                                                                                                                                                           | Lynch W E883                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |
| Barth Rudolph886                                                                                                                                                                                                     | Lyon-Hortleole SG                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |
| Bassett & Washburn                                                                                                                                                                                                   | Manz J & Co                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| Bayersdorfer H & Co 536Benson Martin                                                                                                                                                                             | McCarthy N F & Co 88                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |
| Berger H II & Co 84                                                                                                                                                                                                  | McDonald & McManusset                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |
| Besold C                                                                                                                                                                                                             | McDonald & Stelle 900                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |
| Bobbink L C                                                                                                                                                                                                          | Millang Frank889                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |
| Boerner Fred 203                                                                                                                                                                                                     | Moon Samuel C 80                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |
| Brague L B State                                                                                                                                                                                                     | Moon Wm H Co 855                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |
| Brinkerhoff Geo M 102                                                                                                                                                                                                | Mound City Flo Co887                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |
| Budlong J. A 304                                                                                                                                                                                                     | Millang Frank SSI Moninger J C Co 285 Moninger J C Co 385 Mon Samuel C 866 Mon Wm H Co 865 Morits Floral Co 867 Mound City Flo Co 887 Myers & Co 988 National Flo Board of Trade 888                                                                                                                                                                                                       |
| Burpee W Atlee & Co 84                                                                                                                                                                                               | Vestonal Plant Co. 1881                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |
| Co 110 Mik                                                                                                                                                                                                           | Niemeyer H A                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |
| Cariton H R                                                                                                                                                                                                          | N Y Cut Flower Ex., 888N Y Cut Flower Co888                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |
| Chadwick Chaa 1412                                                                                                                                                                                                   | Palmer The R T Co 892                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |
| Ing Co                                                                                                                                                                                                               | Payne Frank S883                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |
| Cheinnati Bag Co 84Cleary & Co 86                                                                                                                                                                                | Payne Frank S                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |
| Cleveland Seed Co 84                                                                                                                                                                                                 | Pittaburg Clay Mfg Co 910Poore Frank W 902                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
| Berckmans P J                                                                                                                                                                                                        | Prince A G & Co 888                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |
| Coles W W 902                                                                                                                                                                                                        | Randall A L888                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | Raynor J L 889                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
| Conley John & Son                                                                                                                                                                                                    | Pennock Sam'l S. 889 Pittsburg Clay Mfg Co 910 Poore Frank W 902 Prince A G & Co 888 Quaker City Mch Wks. 948 Randall A L 889 Rawson Grove P 901 Raynor J I 899 Regan Printing House 893 Reed Glass & Paint Co. 911 Reed & Keller 896 Reinberg Broa 887                                                                                                                                    |
| Critchell's B P Son So                                                                                                                                                                                               | Reed & Keller 836                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |
| Cushman Gladlolus Col05                                                                                                                                                                                              | Rice M & Co896                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
| Danley S. T                                                                                                                                                                                                          | Reinberg Broa SSIRice M & Co 886Rickaecker C H 886Rogers P'k Floral Co. 888Rolker A & Sons 894                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
| Dickinson Albert Co 84                                                                                                                                                                                               | Rolker A & Sons 894Schulthels A 897                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |
| Cnaningham J.H 345 Cushman Gladlolus Cotto Cushman Gladlolus Cotto Fanley S. T 345 Detroit Flow Pot Mig 300 Dickinson Albert Co. 344 Dickinson Albert Co. 349 Dillon J.L 345 DornerFred & Sons Co. 342 Drear H.A 345 | Schiller J L 883                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |
| Dorner Fred & Sons Co 342Dreer H A                                                                                                                                                                               | Rölker A & Sone. S91 Schuller J L. S86 Schuleman Geo T. 483 Scollay Jno A. 487 Setton W. Mfg Co. 887 Setton W. Mfg Co. 887 Shepherd Mrs T B. 844 Semple Jaa 80 Slebrecht & Son. 833 Simmons W P & Co. 891 Stinations. Wants, etc. 887 Skabchra Dip Co. 467 Smith Nath & Son. 893 Smith Valt & Son. 893 Smith W C. 893 Smith W C. 893 South Park Floral Co. 893 Schandard Fertilizer Cosses |
| Dreef H A                                                                                                                                                                                                            | Sefton J W Mfg Co. 896                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |
| Ellis & Pollworth 887                                                                                                                                                                                                | Shepherd Mrs T BS4Semple Jas                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |
| Ernest W H                                                                                                                                                                                                           | Sheridan W F                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |
| Farquhar R & J Co84                                                                                                                                                                                                  | Simmons W P & Co .901                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |
| Felthonsen J E                                                                                                                                                                                                       | Skabenra Dip Co99                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |
| Flo Mut Fire Ins Co., 898                                                                                                                                                                                            | Smith W C 889                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |
| Galvin & Co                                                                                                                                                                                                          | South Park Floral Co. 991                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |
| Gaivin & G. Gibbons H W                                                                                                                                                                                              | Standard Fertilizer ColorsSteama Lumber Co985                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |
| Goldsborough A T50Graham Hugh 504                                                                                                                                                                                | St Louis Cut Flower Coss?                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |
| Gullett W II & Son 502Gurney Heater Co910                                                                                                                                                                        | St Louis Cut Flower CossisStollery Bros                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| Hall Ass'n                                                                                                                                                                                                           | Struck J N & Bro911                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |
| Habcock & Sona 311                                                                                                                                                                                                   | Sutherland Geo ASSI                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |
| Hammond Benj                                                                                                                                                                                                         | Sutherland Geo A. SNISutton E B Jr                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | Swapne Wm                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |
| Helkes W.F                                                                                                                                                                                                           | Syracuse Pottery Co910Traendly & Schenck889                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |
| Herendeen Mfk Co                                                                                                                                                                                                     | Vaughan J. C.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |
| Hill E G & Co SS                                                                                                                                                                                                     | Vauhan, McKellar & Winterson . 888 Vincent R & Son . 503 Wabash R R . 803 Walker Fertilizar Co .84 Westhered's T W Son 548 Westhered's T W Son 548 Westher H & Sons .241 546 Wooder I I & Sons .241 546 Wooder I I was a son .                                                                                                                                                             |
| Hippard E                                                                                                                                                                                                            | Vincent R & Son 9B                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |
| Holton & Hunkel Co. 557                                                                                                                                                                                              | Wabash R R                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |
| Hopp & Lemke                                                                                                                                                                                                         | Westhered's TW Son 308                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |
| Herr Albert M                                                                                                                                                                                                        | Weeber & Don                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |
| Illinois Cut Flower Co                                                                                                                                                                                               | Wheeler Stenzel Co911                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |
| Jackson A. Perkins Co. 55                                                                                                                                                                                            | Whilidin Pot Co                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |
| Jeanings E B '413                                                                                                                                                                                                    | Weber H & Sons. 391 39. Weber & Don. 854 Welch Bros. 859 Wheeler Stenzel Co. 911 Whitidin Pot Co. 911 Whitton & Son 96. Willinore W W 991 Winter & Glover 855 Withhold Geo. 855                                                                                                                                                                                                            |
| Kelsey Harlan I'                                                                                                                                                                                                     | Witthold Geo 897                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |
| Keller Geo & Sons Sign                                                                                                                                                                                               | Wood Bros will                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
| King J. M. A. Co 2001                                                                                                                                                                                                | Witterstaetter R 807Witterstaetter R 808Wood Bross 945Wooden Grods Co 858Woodln J. H 910                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |
| Kraft's Plant Torde 40                                                                                                                                                                                               | Worn C.W No.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |
| Hant E H                                                                                                                                                                                                             | Wooden Goods Co., 859. Woodln J. H                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |
| Kuhi Geo A                                                                                                                                                                                                           | Zyp II & Co                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |

Atledes, Inc. - Mr. Frank Ben, late force in for Bassett & Washburn, Chi-ago is now with W. L. Smith, of this

Hitchings & Co.

ESTABLISHED 50 YEARS.

HORTICULTURAL ARCHITECTS AND BUILDERS

GREENHOUSE HEATING AND VENTILATING APPARATUS.

THE HIGHEST AWARDS RECEIVED AT THE WORLD'S FAIR FOR HORTICULTURAL ARCHITECTURE, GREENHOUSE CONSTRUCTION AND HEATING APPARATUS.

Conservatories, Greenhouses, Palm Houses, etc., erected complete, with our patent Iron Frame Construction. Send tour cents postage for illustrated catalogue.

233 Mercer Street. NEW YORK.

VENTILATING APPARATUS 🔤 FLORISTS

LOW COST--SATISFACTION GUARANTEED

send 5 cents postage to New York Office for latest catalogue of Greenhouse HEATING AND VENTI-LATING Apparatus. Send for estimates on GYPRESS GREENHOUSE MATERIAL, also for our PATENT IRON GREENHOUSE CONSTRUCTION. Send for circulars of HOT BED SASH AND FRAMES.

LORD & BURNHAM CO.

HORTICULTURAL ARCHITECTS AND BUILDERS.

NEW YORK OFFICE 160 FIFTH AVE., Cor. 21st St. GENERAL OFFICE & WORKS IRVINGTON-ON-HUDSON, N. Y.

On Your Coal Bills If your Houses are Heated by a Furman Boiler.

> Send for large Hiustrated Catalogue, Florists' Edition. Let us make you an estimate FREE.

THE HERENDEEN MFG. CO. 20 Vine Street, GENEVA, N. Y.

BRANCH OFFICES: | Hosgies 51 Oliver Street, New York, 39 Cortlandt Street | Philadelephia, 1019 Betz Building

Cast Glass John Lugas & 60.

CALLED PLATE

PHILADELPHIA.

Mass Agri Col GoodelHH

THE AMERICAN FLORIST

America is "the Prow of the Vessel; there may be more comfort Amidships, but we are the first to touch Unknown Seas."

Vol. XIII.

CHICAGO AND NEW YORK, MARCH 19, 1898.

No. 511.

THE AMERICAN FLORIST

Copyright 1898, by American Florist Company Entered as Second-Class Mail Matter.

PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY BY AMERICAN FLORIST COMPANY, 324 Dearborn Street, Chlcago.

Eastern Office: 67 Bromfield St., Boston.

Subscription, $1.00 a year. To Europe, $2.00. Subscriptions accepted only from the trade.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS AND ORNAMENTAL HORTICULTURISTS.

OFFICERS—WM. F. GUDE, Washington, D. C., president; A. DONAGHUE, Omaha, Neb., vice-president; W. J. STEWARF, 67 Bromfield St., Boston, Mass., secretary; H. B. BEATTY, Oll Clty, Pa., treasurer. The fourteenth annual meeting will be held at Omaha, Neb., August, 1898.

THE AMERICAN CARNATION SOCIETY.

Annual Couvention at Philadelphia. February, 1899. ALBERT M. HERR, Lancaster Pa., Secretary.

CONTENTS.

| Ornamental bedding.—Part I                                                                                                                                                                       | . 213 |
|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-------|
| Begonia coronata (illus.)                                                                                                                                                                        | . 914 |
| A new mushroom spawn                                                                                                                                                                             | . 914 |
| Omaha Exposition (illus.)                                                                                                                                                                        | 915   |
| Rose notes                                                                                                                                                                                       | . 915 |
| Rose notes                                                                                                                                                                                       | . 915 |
| Carnations                                                                                                                                                                                       | . 916 |
| Carnation notes                                                                                                                                                                                  | . 916 |
| Philadelphia                                                                                                                                                                                     | . 916 |
| Fred, Kanst (portrait).                                                                                                                                                                          | 917   |
| Boston.                                                                                                                                                                                          | . 917 |
| New York                                                                                                                                                                                         | 917   |
| Soil for roses and carnations. Carnations Carnation notes Philadelphia Fred. Kanst (portrait). Boston. New York Chicago St. Louis Denver. Our spring number W. K. Harris' experience with Jadoo. | . 918 |
| St. Louis                                                                                                                                                                                        | . 918 |
| Denver,                                                                                                                                                                                          | . 918 |
| Our spring number                                                                                                                                                                                | 919   |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                  | . 919 |
| Mr. Craig's experience with Jadoo                                                                                                                                                                | 919   |
| Mr. Craig 8 experience with Ashart About Jadoo, Asters Pittsburg Chrysanthemuns                                                                                                                  | . 919 |
| Asters                                                                                                                                                                                           | . 920 |
| Pittsburg                                                                                                                                                                                        | . 920 |
| Chrysanthemums                                                                                                                                                                                   | . 921 |
| Lenox, Mass                                                                                                                                                                                      | . 924 |
| Report of Park and Out-door Art Associatio                                                                                                                                                       | n 924 |
| Milwaukee                                                                                                                                                                                        | 925   |
| Marketing cut flowers                                                                                                                                                                            | . 926 |
| Musa ensete                                                                                                                                                                                      | 9.27  |
| The seed trade                                                                                                                                                                                   | . 928 |
| Pacific coast, Catalogues received                                                                                                                                                               | . 938 |
| Catalogues received                                                                                                                                                                              | 938   |
| Greenhouse building                                                                                                                                                                              | 938   |
| Canada takes action on marsery stock                                                                                                                                                             | 928   |
| Michigan nursery law                                                                                                                                                                             | 958   |
| Cincinnati                                                                                                                                                                                       | . 931 |
| Cypripedium Garrett A. Hobart                                                                                                                                                                    | . 932 |
| Buffalo.                                                                                                                                                                                         | . 933 |
| Beetles                                                                                                                                                                                          | . 934 |
| Worcester, Mass                                                                                                                                                                                  | . 936 |
| Fort Wayne, Ind                                                                                                                                                                                  | . 936 |
| Cleveland                                                                                                                                                                                        | 938   |
| Indianapolis,                                                                                                                                                                                    | 939   |
| Some new American cannas                                                                                                                                                                         | 940   |
| Cypripedium Garrett A. Hobart Biuffalo. Beetles Worcester, Mass. Fort Wayne, Ind Cleveland Indiampolis, Some new American cannas. Funeral dowers Los Angeles, Cal.                               | 940   |
| Los Angeles, Cal                                                                                                                                                                                 | . 941 |
| Amount of radiation.                                                                                                                                                                             | , 941 |
| The blue marguerite,                                                                                                                                                                             | , 941 |
| Heating queries                                                                                                                                                                                  | . 912 |
| Heating queries                                                                                                                                                                                  | . 943 |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                  |       |

BOONVILLE, IND.—Mrs. J. Hudspeth's greenhouses at this place caught fire February 22, and the steam and smoke ruined most of her plants.

Ornamental Bedding.

PART I.

Although carpet and ornamental bedding is not used as much as formerly, it still has its claim on recognition and its place in ornamental horticulture, and when the design istastcful, the colors well chosen, the planting nicely executed, and the bed well taken care of, these bright bits of color on nature's green carpet seldom fail to win admiration.

The soil in these beds should be rather light and mellow; if too heavy, sand or ashes should be used to mix with it; if too light and sandy, then some soil of a heavier nature. Well rotted manure heavier nature. Well rotted manure should be applied generously in spring, as the great number of plants in proportion to the space require lots of nourishment to insure good results. If the beds are planted with bulbs or pansies for early spring, they should receive an extra manuring before they are planted. In digging the bed and preparing for plant-ing, pulverize the soil finely, and if this cannot be done to satisfaction or if the design is complicated, surface it with one half inch of sifted soil in which to draw; mark all the lines as you proceed with white sand, sawdust, corn meal or similar material to make the lines stand clear and distinct, this is especially advisable, if the planting takes several days, or if it is interrupted by showers, as it is too much trouble to cover the beds except the smaller ones. It is necessary to have a low bench of sufficient length to place across the bed when designing, planting, trimming, or a plank put on a couple of blocks of wood will do. Occasionally when designing or planting one can step in with one or both feet, but this place must then be worked well with the trowel before planting, and it cannot be getting it right is not wasted.

The trimming is of equalimportance for further success and should be carefully and accurately done. It is, however, not so difficult a matter when we only bear in mind that each kind shall occupy its own allotted space, no more and no less. The main thing then is to keep the lines true and to watch that the stronger growing varieties do not press the smaller ones. For this reason it is advisable that one man does or superintends this important work and especially one who has helped to lay out and plant the design, as he then has a better judgment of the details. It is also well to have a sketch of the design at hand for comparison.

done when the soil is damp. The designing and planting, details of which will be given later, must be done as true and careful as possible; it is the making or the spoiling of the bed, and the time spent in First he trims all the lines, clipping sideways with the sheep shears, so that he cuts all the shoots that grow across the line from both sides; all points, small curves and similar details should receive special attention. After this is done, he uses the shears flat on top, trimming nice and even, either level or sloping as the case requires; for instance, if a combination of alternanthera and colcus, then the alternanthera should slope up to the colcus, while these should be trimmed hard at the junction to avoid breaks in the surface. Occasionally certain parts of the beds are raised over the surroundings, and they should then be trimmed accordingly. It is not necessary to pick up the triumings, they wilt and fall to the bottom. This trimming is for alternanthera, pilea, santolina and such small plants. Colcus, achyranthes, acalypha, etc., had better be pinched; it makes a better looking job.

Towards fall when the nights are colder less trimming is needed, as the growth then is slower. Just at this time of the year, when the colors are most brilliant, the beds are often spoiled by an early frost. This can be avoided with a few precautions, covering the beds at night with old carpets, sheets or similar material. The writer knows of a place near littsburg where the lady of the honse every year has a couple of pretty design beds and keeps them till quite late in fall in the manner indicated, in fact so long that their brilliancy almost looks out of place in comparison with the surrounding sombre aspect of nature.

While trimming the bed, the edges of the grass also need attention; as a rule trimming with the shears is sufficient, but once in a while a sharp spade may be used. This trimming often brings the edge a little out of line one way or the other. For this reason the beds should be gone over each spring and corrected; to do this job as easy as possible, I have found it practical to mark all the main points such as centers of circles, foci of ellipses (ovals) corners of squares and diamonds and centers or guide points in the lawn used in outlining the beds with pieces of one-quarter inch gas pipe twelve or eighteen inches long, hammering them in even with the surface-if I cannot mark the center of a circle on account of setting an agave or such plant there, I mark the ends of a diameter. When the digging is done a little carefully these pieces of gas pipe do not interfere with any work, and when small pegs are stuck in the pipes the trimming of edges can be done quickly and precisely, and they also come handy for laying out the design, as they mark the principal points.

After these preliminary remarks when we turn our attention to the designing and laving out of carpet beds, I will say that it is a misconception commonly met that the design should contain lots of scrolls and small details; such a bed is hard to lay out and plant, and as a rule does not give satisfaction for the amount of work spent on it. A neat design, where each color has enough space to assert itself and to show the others to good advantage, no two shades of the same color together, and with the design in proportion to the size of the bed, is much more pleasant to look at.

The implements necessary for laying out the design are tapeline, twine, some wooden pegs about the size and length of a lead pencil, and a few stouter ones for the more important points. Besides these we have, of course, the working sketch on which all the measures necessary for construction are marked; then select a handy man for your helper, and you are ready for the task.

In the next issue I will explain how to proceed and give a few easy examples.

11. Hansen.

Begonia Coronata.

This is a tall, strong, robust growing variety, the stems growing five feet two inches high within fourteen months, from cuttings.

The stems branch very little, unless pinched back. It sends up numerous flowers on erect peduncles, the clusters being nearly evenly cymose, of about fifty male flowers on a truss and nearly as many females. The trusses when cut last a long time in perfection. It requires plenty of room to grow it well. It is said to have been raised by V. Lemoine, France, and is described in his catalogue No. 124 of 1893, as a novelty, and is a cross between B. carolineafolia and B. polyantha. The stems are stout, upright, fleshy, nodose, green when young, russety brown when old, bearing viviparous bads when young, and covered with a russety brown tomentum. Petioles seven inches long, green, red at the apex and covered with tomentum. Leaves ten inches wide by fourteen and one-half inches long, dark by fourteen and one-half mehes long, dark green, intermingled with a yellowish green, glossy, slightly hairy on the midribs. Under surface light green and hairy on the midribs and veins. Pedancles eight unches long, reddish. Flowers one and one-eighth inches across. Males dipetalons. Females with two, three, four and twe divisions. Colora heautiful rose. John Courson.

A New Mushroom Spawn.

It is a well-known fact that selection is the most powerful agency in the improvement of cultivated plants. The slightest variation is contemplated by every horticulturist with the greatest interest, in the hope that a new variety may spring up, which would prove better in one partien lar or another than the types already shown. It is through the agency of selfterulization or of artificial crossing that thoost all the improved plants (sport are to secopted) have been obtained.

But as regard constrtuents these things are tregerher different, no flowers, no even and respondibility of hybridization The plantits of teams is to the thin and subterritions investming upon which now and then appear actes round bodies, these in the stronge or "buttons" which will by old by de el-q into what we com-monly cal acousticour. The mushrooms belong only to the upper classes of fungi, ascomycetes and hasidiomycetes, the common mushroom or Psalliota (Agaricus) campestris belonging to the last named class. Now, the mushroom bears spores, which have the appearance of very small seeds, although they are only asexnal buds, and after all only parts of the mother plant; the spores can germinate and give another mycelium bearing some other stroma with spores, and so on. However, if we consider the Psalliota campestris, we will find among it many varieties, some being much more valuable, heavier and better flavored than the others. These variations should not be called otherwise than asexual or sport variations, if we compare them with what occurs even in much more pertect plants, such as celery or chrysanthe mum. But they have the greatest importance for the mushroom grower, who should always aim to get spawn of a perfeet spriety, a spawif which, up to the present day was not easily found in the

BEGONIA CORONATA.

There are various ways of preparing the spawn for the trade, but all of them start from the same principle, viz., to let maiden spawn, accidentally found on old stable manure, spread itself through a heap of a convenient substratum, stable manure or horse-droppings and cow-dung, and to divide it into bricks. The maiden spawn, it is true, originated from a spore, but a long time always clapses between the germination of the spore and the moment the bricks are ready for use. The small original plant has been allowed to develop into a very great one and then been divided, losing every day part of its energy, and at the same time becoming more easily attacked by various diseases which can completely ruin the crop. Every one who has tried to grow mushrooms knows, how many deceptions and failures occur in that operation.

As we have seen, the maiden spawn is the result of a spore germinating fortu-itously on stable manure. For a long time the attention of hotanists was attached to the fact that it was impossible to grow artificial maiden spawn; the spores could germinate in the laboratory, but the young mycelium, even if placed on stable manure, died soon after. It is only quite recently that a French mycologist, Dr. Repin, succeeded in his endeavors. llis process, of course, is still a secret, but the maiden spawn he produces has been tested by several mushroom growers in the neighborhood of Paris, and always proved quite a success. All that we can know is that Dr. Repin sows the spores in dry and compressed stable manure, cut into small square bricks about 3x3 inches large and onehalf inch thick. These bricks are used in the same way as were the former ones, but they contain much more mycelium under less weight and volume, the spawn, besides being perfectly young and fresh, has a great vitality, is free from diseases, and last, but not least, the spores that are sown are selected from choice varieties only, giving confidence to the grower that he will not spend his time, money not of their kind-keep down the weeds. To scratch over the surface of the soil on the rose benches, at the same time picking off all bad foliage, etc., always gives a house a good appearance and must be beneficial, but the roots are now so near the surface that it must be light indeed, a mere roughing over with the hand.

Plants in good condition will now be producing the finest blooms of the season; if we could only have them continue to bear such flowers until June 1, instead of dwindling down until Bridesmaids are the size of Papa Gontier, and the foliage all crippled with mildew. We do occaan eriphed with mindew. We do occa-sionally see such blooms as late as mid-summer and wonder how ever it is done. What is the secret? Extra good soil? Some particular fertilizer? I think not; the secret of such blooms lies in attention and anticipation on the part of the grower; keeping the plants clean and free from everything that would weaken them or interfere in any way with their growth, such as greenfly, red spider, mildew or or a hot dried-up atmosphere; avoid a chill, plants are liable to the "grip" of mildew.

It is almost too late now to root any more cuttings, except possibly Mrs. Pierpont Morgan, which I have found does better when rooted late and kept in pots only a very short time. Brides and Bridesmaids grow slowly in pots and if propagated late are apt to be too small when flowers are looked for in the fall, the same is true of Meteor and other varieties.

ROBT. SIMPSON.

Soil for Roses and Carnations.

ED. AM. FLORIST.—I should like to have your opinion on filling benches for rose forcing. I have always used sod, but as it is hard to get, would like to use something else, if as good, as sod of the blue grass kind is scarce. Also is the soil we use for roses a good soil for carnations? What should it consist of, etc? J. R. E.

GENERAL VIEW TRANS-MISSISSIPPI AND INTERNATIONAL EXPOSITION, OMAHA, NEB.

Rose Notes.

The rose-grower, in company with all other greenhousemen, will have his hands very full during the next few weeks and will find it very difficult to keep everything moving along as fast and orderly as he would wish. The young stock calls for immediate attention, and the blooming plants will not bear to be neglected. Everything grows now if it has half a chance; plants that may have hung fire all winter will brighten up under the influence of the spring sunshine. They will need to be tied often to insure straight stems; you can't get people to even look at anything crooked. Side growths will need to be removed regularly, and before they are large enough to rob the main bnd. The weeds will grow amazingly if left unmolested for a few weeks, and I have noticed that weeds are like "trusts," they soon starve out everything that is black spot; and by close observation anticipating their wants and supplying the same, whether it be in the shape of a mulch, liquid manure, shading, or even an ample supply of fresh water before there is a possibility of their suffering. It will not do to put off feeding with liquid manure, or giving a mulch until the flowers become small, or the chances are they will remain so.

Changeable weather is likely to be the rule just now. Vigilance must be our watchword. We must transfer our attention from the boiler to the ventilators. It is difficult to make some people understand the difference between an automaton and a being possessed of judgment and reasoning faculties. It needs the latter to properly operate the ventilators in a rose house at all times, and especially during March and April. Ventilate early, increase gradually; avoid a close muggy,

I think there is no question but that turf or sod is the proper thing for growing roses. We hear it said sometimes that it makes little difference what kind of soil roses are planted in, or any other greehouse crop, so long as it is properly composted with manure, etc., and the plants are given the right treatment. Just as well say it does not matter what a man cats provided his stomach is filled, as health depends mainly on the kind and quality of our clothing. Through the processes of digestion and assimilation the food becomes hair, skin, blood, bone, sinew, flesh-the body-so in like manner the various ingredients of the soil enter into and become part of the plant.

I am certain that the very best soil it is possible for us to obtain will inevery case be the most economical in the end. Roses grow naturally in a soil that is suitable, but it is up-hill work trying to produce a good article from a poor soil. Would certainly advise "J. R. E." to plant in a good heavy loam turf if it can be had. If impossible to procure turt, good quality loam may be mixed with rather strawy manure to take the place of turf as regards porousness, and may then give fair, even good satisfaction.

Yes, as a rule the soil that produces the best roses will give the best results with carnations too, though a loam that is inclined to be sandy is perhaps preferable to one of a clayer nature. One part cow manure to four or five parts soil, if laid up in thin layers in the early spring and worked over and thoroughly pulverized during May, will be in prime condition for planting in June and July. One hundred pounds each of bone meal and wood ashes to every 2,000 square feet of glass may be mixed through the soil after it is in the benches, or it the proper quantity can be guessed may be added while turning outdoors. Robt. Simpson.

Carnations.

Last week I had something to say about rusty cuttings, and I want to reiterate what I said then, "Don't throw them away," Most of our best varieties are affected with rust, and grow the best varieties we are compelled to.

If any grower is fortunate enough to have only a very small percentage of rusty entrings in the lot, it is of course advisable to throw the rusted ones out and try and keep the stock clean. If, however, the percentage is small on the clean side of the question, there is no use despairing on that account.

A very good method to keep the stock comparatively clean is to start all rusty cuttings in pots instead of boxes, and after they have become well established and ready for a shift or to plant out, trim all the rusted leaves off the bottom of the plant (where they are usually confined in young stock) knock off about one-half inch of the soil from the top of the pot, to get rid of the spores that have dropped on the pot in handling, and they are ready for a shift or for planting out. After they are ready to top, if it is not too late for propagation, take the clean tops and use them as cuttings, thus often getting perfectly clean stock in that way.

It is not wise to plant rusted stock in the field, as the spores are apt to be carried to clean stock. This applies only to planting them in close proximity to the others. Growers who are fortunate enough to have plenty of land need not be alarmed about planting rusted stock in one part and clean in another, as the danger from carrying rust spores any great distance is practically not to be considered.

Anyone having well ventilated houses, that is, houses that have side ventilation and in which a current of aircan be main tained, will get the best results and have cleaner stock in the fall by planting all rusted stock in the houses direct. If not fortunate enough to have such houses, pretty nearly the same results may be obtained by growing them in pots all summer or until the middle of August, and they should then be planted where they are to bloom

In growing carbations in pots there are everal things to be taken into account, and I will cause arise some of them as fol-

First, from the very day they are potted ease them a place in the house where they am get the best possible ventilation, and beset to be on the point until they are leady for fire nest tall.

Second, see that they do not suffer from an over supply of water or from a lack of it. They should never be allowed to become wilty dry, neither should they be kept so constantly wet as to produce soft wood, as the latter style of plants are always especially liable to diseases of all kinds.

Third, be careful that red spider does not get a hold on this young stock, at the same time do not syringe once more than is actually necessary, or the object of indoor culture will be defeated, which is to keep the foliage as dry as possible, and thus help to eradicate and keep down the rust

Fourth, see that the plants do not become pot bound to any great extent. If in order to avoid this it is necessary to shift them until they get into a 5-inch pot, the extra work will be well repaid by the better health of the plants. Every time they are shifted pull off all rust affected leaves and take a half inch of the soil off from the top of the pot as before directed. Have the soil in the pots rather dry when they are shifted, so as to be able to give it a squeeze and shake out most of the old dirt, so that fresh soilean be put to all of the roots. This will also keep them from forming a hard mass of roots in the center with only a few active and working roots around the outside of the pot, as is usually the case with potted plants.

Use good potting soil, and remember that care and attention are as necessary requisites to good carnation culture as to that of any other plant. It will then be found that rusted cuttings will produce as fine blooms and as much in the way of dollars and cents as the cleanest stock on the place, that is providing the variety is all right. There are many varieties that would not be worth all this care and attention, and would never half pay for it, but any variety that has points of advantage over others in every respect excepting the fact that the stock is rusted, will be worth trying and usually pay.

ALBERT M. HERR.

Carnation Notes.

A light shading on the glass will now be necessary, but avoid getting it too dense. We find a strip, say eight inches wide, down the center of each pane about right.

Do not relax at all in the care of your plants if you wish to prolong their productiveness, for a little neglect at this time, such as letting them dry out too much or not properly attending to the ventilation, will give them a cheek, as well as going a good way to produce a crop of red spider, which will be a hard matter to get rid of now. Some benches will need watering nearly every day, if the weather is bright and warm, as the soil being full of roots they dry out very fast.

Any bed that has the appearance of being worn out, or in which the roots have become exposed on the surface, will be greatly benefited by a thin mulch which will not only protect the young roots from the sun and drying winds, but will help to keep the soil good and cool. Do not discontinue the liquid manne, but give an application say about twice a week when the conditions are favorable It should not he used too strong, however, as the plants will take it up very fast now, and it is an easy matter to overdo it it we are not cautious, always remember not to apply it when the soil is too dry

Give all the ventilation possible on bright days, and in cloudy weather have enough ventilation on to prevent dampness, and we are getting to the time when a little crack may be left on all night unless the temperature outside should get too low. Give the plants the same care in regard to disbudding, tying and cleaning as yon would two months ago, for the increasing supply, from now on, makes it necessary to put the flowers on the market in the best possible condition if returns are to be good. Such varieties as Mayor Pingree, Jubilee and others, with extra long stems, very soon get crooked and brittle if not properly attended to.

C. W. Johnson.

Philadelphia.

TRADE QUIET.—PRICES VERY LOW.—VIO-LETS IN ABUNDANCE.—ROSES PLENTIFUL. —FAILURE OF BERMUDA LILIES.—PER-SONAL.

How's trade? Well things are very quiet with us just at present, if we except the curbstone merchants who are right in it so to speak, for fine mild weather has brought out quantities of flowers and the extreme low prices enables the fakirs to sell at such tempting figures that passers-by cannot resist. Violets are to be had for any price, in fact the growers say they pick all day and then do not get them all. As they are sold on the street it would seem as if the grower did not get enough to pay for the labor of gathering and bunching. Fifty eents is high for double violets with the exception of a few specials, and these are generally bunched so that the price hardly exceeds this figure. Supiot's new violet La France, an improvement on Princess of Wales, being of darker color and with more substance, is a fine thing. The H. A. Dreer Co., thought so well of it that they have taken of Mr. Supiot all the stock he can furnish the coming year. All violet growers should give it a trial, as anything better than Princess of Wales is surely worth having. Roses seem to grow on every bush they are so plentiful: $4 to $6 is the prevailing price for good Brides and Bridesmaids; selected stock all stiff stemmed strives for $8 while for a few specials with a suspicion of the Manetti stock about them, $12 is asked. Beauties are to be had at all prices from $5 to $6 per dozen for the four-footers down to so much a grab, or most anything so you take the lot. Brunners are quite plentiful and of good quality, $3 per dozen is enough for some growers although others are sold as high as $4. Carnations are commencing to drag, $1.50 is the average price for good stock. The past season must have suited the earnationists as the supply has hardly ever exceeded the demand. Lily of the valley is in fair demand at $3 to $4, many growers say it does not pay at less than $4 as so comparatively few pips produce first class flowers in every hundred forced. Plenty of daffodils, but here again the percentage of first class flowers is also small.

With the failure of the Bermuda lilies and the low grading of the other forcing stock, as noted above, the growers of this class of plants are having a hard time of it this season.

Robert Scott & Son's new tract at Sharon Hill, Pa., comprises fourteen acres of land. On this is to be creeted at once three houses for ent flowers 20x200 feet. Fourteen other structures for young roses are to follow, composed in part of the houses now at the old place which will all be removed by Angust. The roses to be forced in the new houses will all be grafted. Mr. Scott finding them much more profitable than roses on their own

Growers having large quantities of Easter stock are now the centers of attraction, and their places are being visited by dealers from all directions. New York, Baltimore, Washington and other cities are drawing on this city for good Easter plants. Robert Craig's Ramblers are a great temptation. A few plants a little in advance of the Easter lot are now a great show being full of flowers and should sell at sight.

John Westcott is happy, he having broken the record of the alleys at the club room last Monday. Two hundred and twenty-eight is the new figure, moved up from 221 where it stood for about a month. There happened to be a few members present when the score was made, and something particularly pleasant opened up. No, it was not a rosebud, but the odor we understand was delightful. May 228 stand for a Visitors in town: W. J. Halliday, Mrs. M. J. Thomas, of Baltimore; J. H. Small and wife and J. H. Loose, of Washington; Alex. McConnell, of New York.

Fred Kanst.

Fred Kanst was born in Germany in 1847. He came to this country with his parents and worked at general gardening in different places.

After passing a satisfactory examination he was appointed to his present position as landscape gardener for the South Park, Chicago, March 20, 1873. His thoroughly practical ideas of growing and handling trees and plants soon came to the notice of the commissioners, who in turn were not slow in offering sufficient inducement for him to remain, and he has successfully filled his position for the long period of twenty-five years.

During his early years at the South Park he gained quite a reputation from the original designs of bedding which were displayed from year to year. He made it a special point to change his designs almost every year, so that for nearly twenty years it could hardly be said that the designs were not different from the the designs were not different from the preceding ones. Many readers will no doubt remember the Gates Ajar, the Globe, Calendar, Sun Dial, and vases, made ont of living plants, all of which were his work. This style of planting was copied in different parts of the United Cates and in different parts of the United States, and in many cases the lack of knowledge as to their proper construction, or not having the varieties of plants required, led to disastrous results. The South Parks being the fountain head for this kind of bedding caused the wrath of the landscape experts and horticultural writers to fall upon it with such force and severity as to compel Mr. Kanst to abandon this style of bedding and resort to planting more for flower effects, using great numbers of herbaceous plants and cannas, which grouped together by an artistic hand have proven as attractive to the public as were the designs of days gone bŷ,

Mr. Kanst was married in 1873 to Miss Elizabeth Youngblood. They have three children, two boys and one girl. The youngest son is following in his father's footsteps and has just been appointed assistant landscape gardener in the South

Mr. Kanst's account of how he first became interested in gardening work is very interesting. He says:
"My first idea of becoming a gardener came from my school teacher in Germany.

At that time (and I suppose it is the same now) the school masters were generally fair horticulturists, florists and nurserymen all combined.

"My teacher owned a nice garden and nursery. One day after I had driven some geese out of his garden as I had seen other boys do before he said to me, 'That's right, my boy, how would you like to be a gardener?' I told him I would like it first rate. 'All right,' he said, 'you may be my gardener and help me take care of my garden, but you must allow neither weeds, lazy boys nor geese to come into the garden.'

FRED KANST.

"After that 1 had the freedom of his garden, which was quite an honor, and 1 have always felt thankful to that teacher who helped me to pick out a profession which has been a very pleasant one for me.

Mr. Kanst possesses the qualities of energy and solid practical knowledge to a marked degree, and it is by merit alone that he has remained at the head of his department for so many years. He has secured the respect and friendship of all who have been associated with him either in a business or professional way.

Boston.

WARM WEATHER AND SURPLUS OF FLOW-ERS.—JACOS GOING CHEAP. — LECTURE IN HORTICULTURAL HALL.—SPRING EXHIBI-TION OPENS MARCH 22.-LOCAL NOTES.

A dearth of news and a surfeit of flowers are the most prominent features of the situation here at present. The weather has been unseasonably warm and the output of bloom from the greenhouses has been greatly augmented thereby. The effect of the warm spell on the crop intended for Easter consumption, if it continues much longer; must be very disastrons. Many growers view the prospect with considerable alarm.

In roses, Bridesmaid and Bridecontinue far in advance as leaders and nothing else seems to have much chance for an existence, although it might be noted that Mrs. Morgan has shown a gratifying advance in popularity within the past year. But the public seem to have tired of Metcor and it goes slowly. As far as Jacqs are concerned there is little to encourage. They are being offered by the street fakirs at the rate of four for a quarter dollar, big fine buds with long stems. It is hardly necessary to remark that no one can grow Jacqs at that price.

Violets are overflowing the show cases and one can get a bunch of them for a nickel. The street stands are fairly carpeted with violets. Carnations are abundant but average high in quality and as they keep better than either roses or violets this warm weather not much fault can be found with the returns realized for them.

Geo. T. Powell gave a lecture at Horticultural Hall on Saturday, March 12, on the relation of the public schools to rural and urban life. The lecture was a scholarly production and was listened to with delight by a very large audience. On the design by a very large authence. On the exhibition tables some interesting cut flowers and plants were displayed. Orchids from J. E. Rothwell and C. G. Roebling, Victoria narcissus from R. & J. Farquhar and a large collection of roses from James Comley were among the attractions.

E. M. Wood and W. J. Stewart have gone to Washington to attend the annual meeting of the executive committee of the Society of American Florists.

The spring exhibition of the Mass. Horticultural Society will open on Tues-day, March 22 and continue for four days.

Very few visitors have favored us recently. Mr. De Forest, of Hitchings & Co., New York was noted last week coming out of the Parker House looking as though the fare there agreed with him exactly.

The gentlemen who visited Westerly, R. I., a few days ago never tire telling of the great courtesy and hospitality of their host and hostess, Mr. and Mrs Reuter.

The committee on cities gave a hearing at the State House on Mayor Quincy's scheme for the consolidation of the Public Grounds and Park Departments of Boston.

Peter Boll is building a convenient office in front of his greenhouses at Malden.
For the best Brunners in market it is difficult to get $25 per hundred.

New York.

BUSINESS DULL AND PRICES AWAY DOWN .-ENTERTAINING LECTURE BY PROF. SMITH. -FINE EXHIBITION. -NOTED VISITORS.

The cut flower market continues as reported last week. Values are demoralized. Customers are only secured by going on the hunt for them and then it is not so much a question of price as it is to get rid of the stock. The Greeks are dic-tators just now and take the fullest advantage of their opportunity.

Prof. J. B. Smith addressed the Florists' Club on the subject of greenhouse pests, at the meeting last Monday evening. There was a good representation of the members, and the lecture was both instructive and entertaining. A straightforward manner, pleasing delivery and a good vocabulary of plain, Anglo-Saxon words of one and two syllables made Prof. Smith a favorite with his audience from the start. His views on the question of the plant inspection legislation which is now being agitated were espe-cially applauded. The various ways in which injurious insects may be accidentally transported from one place to another were alluded to and he said that the quarantine and inspection laws now proposed would not be worth the snap of one's finger in accomplishing the object

Carefulness on the part of growers he declared to be the great duty and the only course that could be expected to yield good permanent results.

The exhibition table was a great bank of beauty, W. A. Manda having contributed a superb collection of orchids in bloom, which included fifteen varieties of dendrobinms, some very rare, also Cœlogyne cristata alba, Angræeum sesquipe-dale, Selenipedium Roeblingii, Cattleva Schroederiana and a new Cattleva intermedia which has been appropriately named Mandaiana. A vasc of the new carnation, Mrs. Thos. W. Lawson, was also on the table and Mr. Fisher who had brought it on from Boston was called upon to say a few words which he did in his usual unassuming manner. The committee gave the carnation a generous endorsement. An adjustable fastener to be attached to greenhouse rafters was exhibited by Thos. W. Weathered's Son and was duly entered and passed upon in competition for the gold medal. It is worth noting that Mr. Weathered, who so vigorously opposed provision allowing manufactured articles to compete for the gold medal is the only exhibitor in this line so far.

Mr. E. M. Wood, of Boston, who was a visitor, being on his way to the S.A. F. executive meeting at Washington, was called on to speak a few words. Mr. Wood paid a high compliment to New York's flower growers and noted the fact that "Boston Roses" are no longer a prized commodity in the New York flower stores. Fourteen new members were admitted to the club and nine more were proposed. Vice-President Logan occupied the chair, the president being absent on account of sickness in his family.

W. H. Siebrecht turned his potting shed at Astoria into a garden Saturday evening with evergreens, hammocks and settees and gave a grand party to sixty young people of the trade. Dancing and collation were indulged in.

Visitors in the city: Harry Eyres, of Albany, and T. J. Totten, of Saratoga.

LATER.-Thursday and Friday markets demoralized. Violets difficult to dispose of at $1 per 1000; roses slow at $7.50 per 1000; fine large Beauties $15 per 100.

Chicago.

DECIDEDLY BETTER BUSINESS, -- GOOD PRICES.-WINTER & GLOVER DISSOLVE PARTNERSHIP. -THE DEATH OF SAMUEL RUBINS.-LOUIS WITTBOLD MARRIED.-VISITORS IN TOWN.

Business has been decidedly better dur ing the past week than it has been before since Lent began, although the fine spring weather for the last few days has brought out an unusually large amount of flowers; still the demand has about kept up with the supply in all lines except lilies, which are now somewhat slow sale except for the very best quality, other bulb stock, such as tulips, narcissus, and hyacinthsof which there was a large stock on hand a work ago is now all cleared out every day.

Bassett & Washburn are bringing in a time lot of long stemed American Beauties and Harrisn libes they expect to have 25,000 lilies in for Easter, the prospect is that there will be plenty of cut lilies in Chicago to supply the demand for Easter, though good pot libes will be scarce

A. L. Fandall has a very brisk demand. for flower, especially when that 9 o'clock shipment arrives, then everything goes.

The firm of Winter & Glover has dissolved. The business will hereafter be carried on by S.B. Winter. During the time the farm has been in business here,

Mr. Winter has made many friends, who Mr. Winter has made many friends who will all wish him continued success. The firm was originally organized as T. J. Corbrey & Co. (T. J. Corbrey and J. T. Anthony) and did business in the Cut Flower Exchange. Mr. Anthony retired and Mr. Corbrey continued the business alone for some time. When the Exchange closed its doors he moved to the southeast corner of Wabash avenue and Randolph street. For some time while at this location Mr. Chas. W. MacKellar was a member of the firm. When he retired Mr. Corbrey became again the sole proprietor, afterwards moving to the northwest corner of the same streets. While here Mr. John T. Glover purchased an interest in the business which was still known as T. J. Corbry & Co., and soon after Mr. S. B. Winter acquired Mr. Corbry's remaining interest. The firm then became Winter & Glover, moving to 19 Randolph street, under which name and at this location they have since done business.

Samuel Rubens, for several years with Kennicott Bros. Co., and subsequently with A. G. Prince, died on the 15th, after a lingering illness.

W. E. Lynch has been testing the Bohn ice box for the past week; he claims he ean reduce the temperature in the box to 4 below zero. He has had wire designs in the box for a week and so far the designs show no symptoms of wilting or going to sleep.

A. L. Vaughan, of Vaughan, McKellar & Winterson, returned Sunday morning after several weeks' absence on a business trip through the east and south. During his absence he took occasion to visit his old home at Monroe, La. Louis Witthold, son of George Witthold, the well known Chicago florist, was married Wednesday evening to Miss Schneider, of Wheeling, 1ll.

W. W. Winterson, father of Ed. Winterson, returned Tuesday from an extended trip to the Pacific coast.

Samuel Pieser has gone to West Baden with his brother E. E. Pieser. E. H. Hunt has opened a retail seed store at his old stand, No. 68 Lake street, near State.

Visiting Chicago: G. V. Van Zanten, Jr., representing Van Zanten Bros., Holland; C. B. Whitnall, Milwaukee, Wis., G. A. Kuhl, Pekin, Ill.; S. W. Pike, St. Charles, Ill; H. M. Sanders, Spokane, Wash., returning home from an eastern trip; Geo. M. Bradt, of Chattanooga, Tenn., publisher and proprietor Southern Florist and Gardener; Mr. J. F. Hicky, of Denver; W. H. Guliett, Lincoln, Ill.

St. Louis.

ANNUAL CARNATION MEETING. - TRADE STEADY,-VIOLETS TAKE A DROP,-CAR-NATIONS HOLDING THEIR OWN.-FRANK BUCKSAHT SUSPENDS BUSINESS. - VISI-TORS

The annual carnation meeting of the st. Louis Florists' Club was held on Thursday, the 10th, and was musually well attended.

Thirty-two members were present when the meeting was called to order, and their number was augmented by late arrivals. The routine business was quickly disposed of so as to give the earnations the floor. The committee having had the "smoker" in charge reported, and the deficit was Shouldered by the club treasury. W. G. Hucke, L. A. Michel and F. H. Weber were elected to membership in the club. A communication from the Trans-

Mississippi Exposition was read relative to the florists of our club and state joining with them in making the exposition a success, a committee consisting of N. C. Young, J. J. Beneke and R. F. Tesson, with the assistance of the secretary of the club, Mr. Emil Schray, were appointed to communicate with the exposition management relative to our making a display at Omaha, and also to make arrangements for clubs going west to pass through St. Louis.

A recess was taken to give the committee appointed time to pass on the earnations shown; they reported as follows; Certificates awarded to White Cloud and Gold Nugget, shown by F. Dorner & Sons Co.; Frances Joost, shown by C. Besold; Empress, shown by Win. Swayne: Kathleen l'antlind, from Hopp & Lemke, and Alba superba from John Burton. These new varieties were all shown in good shape. A plant of Kathleen Pantlind was also shown and the growth very favorably commented upon. Argyle and Evelina were also shown by their growers in fine style, but were not certificated as they had secured the clubs' certificate when shown at the chrysanthemum show. principal interest centered in the whites, and it was a hard matter for the different growers to make a choice. Evelina, however, seemed to have a shade the best of the question.

J. F. Aunnan, of Edwardsville, showed a fine vase of Daybreak and Scott; John Steidle, of St. Louis Co., showed three fine vases of assorted varieties, also a deep colored sport from Daybreak; H. F. Aue, W. Trillow, F. J. Fillmore and H. G. Ude each showed some fine blooms in assorted vases. The meeting was certainly a success, and the men interested enough to forward their flowers for exhibition should reap the benefits of their liberality in orders. Bidding for the stock at the close of the meeting was spirited, the hest price realized being $4.05 for vase of 60 Mrs. Geo. Bradt, shown by Fred Dorner &

Sons Co.

After the meeting most of the members adjourned to the bowling alleys where several lively games were indulged in.

Trade has held its own very well considering the warm weather. Harrisii are plentiful and violets have taken a drop since the frames came into bearing, Californias selling at 10 and 20 cents per 100. Carnations are holding their own remarkably well, and have not been in over supply during the week.

Frank Bucksaht, doing business at 2602 Olive street, closed last Saturday; this makes two suspensions in the past week.

Fred Dorner, Jr., was with us during the past week, and Joe Rolker, of August Rolker & Sons, is in town R. F. T.

Denver.

Daniels & Fisher, a large department store here, have purchased several of the largest greenhouses in Colorado and also the Colorado Florists' Exchange Co. and are doing a large wholesale and retail business. Mr. A. M. Lewis, former manager of the Exchange, has been secured to take charge of the wholesale department.

The death of Harrison H. Given, which occurred at his mother's rooms in the Charles, block, was a very sadending of a useful life. Since last October he has had a continual run of family trouble, and in December his wife secured a divorce from him. He did not resist the application, but from that time has acted strange and has constantly talked of his family affairs.

He had been engaged in the floral business for many years, having purchased the greenhouses and store of J. L. Russell, and establishing his business under the firm name of <sup>a</sup>The Harrison II. Given Floral Co.?

THE AMERICAN FLORIST

Subscription $1.00 a Year. To Europe, $2.00. Subscriptions accepted only from those in the trade.

Advertisements, 10 Cents a Line, Agate; $1.00 per inch. Cash with Order. No Special Position Guaranteed. Discounts, 6 times, 5 per cent; 13 times, 10 per cent; 26 times, 20 per cent; 52 times, 30 per cent.

The Advertising Department of the AMERICAN FLORIST is for Florists, Seedsmen, and dealers in wares pertaining to those lines ONLY.

Orders for less than one-half inch space not accepted.
Advertisements must reach us by Wednesday to secure insertion in the issue for the following Saturday.
Address THE AMERICAN FLORIST CO., Chicago.

Our Spring Number.

April 2 will be the date of the issue of the Easter or spring number of the AMERICAN FLORIST. Nurserymen and seedsmen will be specially represented, and should not fail to place an advertisement in its columns. When it is considered that 13,000 persons directly interested in and connected with the trade will be reached, the advantages of being represented in the advertising pages will be apparent. Copy for advertisements should be sent early, thereby ensuring better attention than can possibly be given at a later date.

W. K. Harris' Experience with Jadoo.

Your request for my experience with Jadoo received.

My first acquaintance with Jadoo was through Mr. Craig, he having had some and used it on some plants. Their root action was so quick and strong in Jadoo that he thought so good a friend as I should not miss this wonderful discovery. So he ordered a ton of Jadoo and one-half barrel of Jadoo liquid for me without consulting me, thus strengthening the already strong friendship I had for my friend; for it is a "true friend" who would give such a supposed discovery to his competitor in business.

So, well provided with this "Plant Elixir," I began operations at once. We potted twenty-five rubbers from 4-inch pots to 6-inch pots, with about 200 in ordinary soil, and set them together. The Jadoo rubbers made the first and best start, but in six weeks they were behind those planted in the ordinary soil. We tried some Pandanus Veitchii in Jadoo and they seemed not to like their diet, and in thirteen months' time were a sad looking lot. We tried two Dracama Baptistii and one in soil. The one in soil grew very fine; the two in Jadoo did not grow at all, and in three months' time were almost dead. We took them out of Jadoo and potted them in soil and they soon recovered.

We potted 100 Areca lutescens from small pots to 4-inch pots in Jadoo. They looked well for about three weeks; they then began to lag, and soon were quite indisposed, and to-day they are the worst looking lot of many thousands of the same age. We planted some Pandanus utilis from 6-inch pots to 8-inch pots without removing the soil from the roots, and they seemed to grow about as well as those potted in soil.

We potted 100 Dracana Sanderiana (five plants in a pot) from small pots into 6-inch pots, with the 6-inch pots half filled with the Jadoo. They at once became sick, and I think they would soon have departed this life if I had not removed them from Jadoo. I tried to force three lots of lily of the valley pips (1000 pips in each lot) in the same Jadoo. The first lot came out fully as well, perhaps a little better, than those forced in sand. The second lot was not quite so good; and the third lot were no good at all. I have tried Jadoo on several other plants with similar results, and in no case have I found it any better than ordinary compost, but very often a decided injury.

To sum up the whole thing, I would say that I never had much faith in Jadoo nor any other particular compost for all plants, for different plants require different soils to thrive in. For instance, if I wanted to grow a cranberry I would go to the bogs for soil, and if I wanted to grow a rose I would go to the pasture fields for soil.

In regard to Jadoo liquid, I have not made enough experiments to give an opinion as to its merits, for I use but little manure water in growing my plants, because it adds expense to apply it. Instead I enrich my soil so that most of my plants need no liquid fertilizers to bring them to maturity.

WM. K. HARRIS.

Philadelphia.

Mr. Craig's Experience with Jadoo.

ED. AM. FLORIST:—Your request for a report on the results of our experiments with Jadoo is received. We first tried it in the summer of 1896, and in response to an inquiry from the Jadoo Company I sent them the following letter on November 30, 1896: "We tried ferns, cyclamens, palms and crotons in Jadoo. We could notice no better growth in the three first named than when grown in our ordinary compost, but the crotons did do surprisingly well, making large vigorous plants in comparatively small pots; I want to try some more of it, if not too expensive. What is it worth by the ton?"

Since that time we have been experimenting almost constantly and have used in all about four tons of Jadoo and more than a cask of the liquid. We have tried them on many kinds of palms and with ferns in variety, pandanus, dracænas, ficus, begonias, cyclamens, etc., and must say that it does not compare with the ordinary good compost, which has the advantage of costing less than one-fifth as much. Some few kinds of plants make roots very freely in it, and grow vigorously for a short time, but its strength seems soon to be exhausted and the rapid growth ceases. In the case of ficus, pandanus in variety, dracanas, latanias, arecas, kentias and other palms, we have made careful comparisons between plants grown in Jadoo and similar plants grown in our ordinary compost, with the advantage, especially after the first three months, entirely in favor of the latter. In the case of crotons, begonias and other quick growing plants, Jadoo is likely to create a favorable impression at first, as plants of this character root freely in it, and for two or three months grow vigorously, but after that length of time I feel sure that compost, such as is used generally by our good growers, will give more permanent good results.

For the purpose of striking cuttings I cannot discoverthat it has any advantage over clean sand, and it is not so convenient to work with as the latter. On the whole, after an extended trial, I consider it of but little use to the commercial grower.

ROBERT CRAIG.

About Iadoo.

Can you give me the experience of those who have used Jadoo? Will it pay to use or does it cost too high? QUERIST. Rochester, N. Y.

Replying to above, I have used the Jadoo on a variety of plants. One of my first experiments with it was with the seed of Areca lutescens. The seed was sown in a variety of composts. Our own mixture is the loam we have here, which is fairly good soil for most plants when well rotted. Cow and horse manure in about equal proportions is added, and also some cocoanut fibre. The Jadoo above referred to and what we call hereabouts Jersey peat, and the latter material proved to be the best, that is to say, the seeds germinated quicker and the plants maintained a richer dark green color all through until they were potted from the seed pots—after which time we did not attempt to keep track of them. I also tried sprouting lima beans in the different mixtures, and in the Jadoo the germination was the most sluggish of any. I have since thought, in trying to account for the difference, that the Jadoo, being very dry when received, possibly needed more water than was given.

In other experiments, notably with Adiantum Farleyense, we found that the difference was against the use of Jadoo, and in favor of our own mixture. I have also tried it on crotons, in comparison with our own soil and a mixture of peat moss—which may be termed the base of Jadoo—and the fine screenings from coal ashes; the sieve used to screen them through was a half-inch mesh, and the crotons grew finely in both the Jadoo and in the peat moss with the coal ashes mixed therein.

Generally speaking, Jadoo is safe to use for most plants. I have been informed, however, that some of the pandanuses do not thrive in it. Since hearing that report I have potted I'andanus Veitchii in peat moss, and so far no deleterious effects are perceptible. Messrs. W. Atlee Burpee & Co.'s new sweet pea, Pink Cupid, was sown in Jadoo, some in peat moss, others in Jersey peat, and some also in our own soil, and the results in all cases were practically the same. Another experiment was made with plain peat moss and Jadoo in comparison; and the plants used were Aglaonema pictum and Curmeria Wallisii, and no difference whatever was noticable. The root action in both cases was excellent.

Jadoo has been spoken of as a good medium for propagating purposes. I do not doubt that it may be, but it cannot be any better for that purpose than is peat moss. Its lumpy unwieldly nature, however, is troublesome to get into the proper condition in which to insert cuttings. We have found it necessary to chop it up with a hatchet and rub it through a screen or sieve before it could be conveniently used for the purpose indicated, and that takes much valuable time, and when good, clean sand may generally be obtainable there can be no advantage in its use for propagating purposes. Its cost is against its use for general purposes, though possibly for some special uses it may be all right.

EDWIN LONSDALE.

Am also asked: "How about Jadoo for earnations and roses? Is it what it is claimed to be?"

I must confess that 1 did not try the material upon either roses or carnations, because I am under the impression that both the classes of plants inquired about need what gardeners and florists know as a stiffer, more loamy soil in which to grow and flower. Others may have tried it, and if so, a report as to the results through your columns would possibly be of interest to others as well as E. L.

Prof. Butz, of State College, Pa., when at the Farmers' Institute recently held in Philadelphia, in answering the question: "What is the difference, it any, between peat moss and Jadoo?" said, "Jadoo is a patented article intended to be used in the place of soil for potting plants, as it is claimed that it supplies all theelements of plant food. In our experiments with it in the greenhouses at State College, some plants did thrive remarkably in it, while others seemed to go backwards. The experiments were not carried very far, as it did not seem to answer very well for growing some plants. An abuti-lon was potted into this material and another in ordinary soil. The one in Jadoo soon turned yellow and the leaves dropped. Nor did it seem to suit coleus, ferns and Rex begonias; whereas some other plants grew very rapidly in it and made a great quantity of roots. Seeds that were planted in this material showed no marked advantage over the same seeds grown in the ordinary potting soil. Crotons are plants that have been highly spoken of as doing well in this material, but in every case, with us, they dropped their leaves. I can hardly realize that Jadoo will ever take the place of soil to be used in the potting of plants." E. L.

Asters.

ED. AM. FLORIST:-Will you please state when is the earliest I can get Victoria asters in bloom? They are in 2-inch pots now and are good plants. Will plant them under glass. E. L. T.

In reply to above question about asters, the experience of the writer in that mat-ter has been somewhat limited. The only time I made an effort to bring them into bloom early was disastrons, for the plants became affected with a rust, similar to that which attacks verbenas, heliotrope and plants of a like nature, and which caused them to be thrown away, ending in a total failure. However, if those grown by "E. L. T." remainhealthy they should bloom not later than the first week in June. The keeping of some classes of plants-of which the aster is one-under glass continuously, with the object in view of bringing them into flower earlier is not always attended with the best results. Some years ago we had to abandon the growing of asters on account of a black beetle, which destroyed the flowers. It was not until the plan was hit upon to lift the plants just as they commenced to show the color of their petals and transplanted them to the greenhouse that we circumvented his beetleship, and produced fine flowers. They lifted very readily with us, having a mass of tibrous roots, and with careful shading and frequent sprinkling in bright sunny weather, they soon commence to develop their flowers, which I have often thought were produced with a better faish to them than were those which bloomed in the dryer atmosphere outdoors.

Pittsburg.

The business situation remains in a quiet condition, the Lenten season having had the usual quieting effect. Stock is very plentiful and of almost uniformly good quality, prices at retail remaining um hanged, and likely to stay at present rates until the Laster advance

The Partsburg and Allegheny Florists' and Cardeners, Club, met. on Thursday, the 10th mst , and changed the time of the meeting to the first Monday of each month after the first of April, instead of the second and fourth Thursday of each month as at present. On the 24th they will have an exhibition of and a discus-sion on carnations. The exhibit promises to be very fine; several of the principal growers outside of Pittsburg will contribute to it.

Mr. David Aten, Toronto, Ont., Wm. Hageman, of Philadelphia, Pa., and J.W. Glenn, of Kittaning, Pa., were visitors this week.

Washington.-John H. Small & Sons Company have been incorporated with a capital stock of $31,500.

LANCASTER, PA.-J. P. Siebold has been sued by Josephine Schilling, from whom he rents his place, for damages caused by the erection of hothouses and digging up the ground.

SITUATIONS, WANTS, FOR SALE.

Advertisements under this head will be inserted at the rate of 10 cents a line (seven words) each lusertion. Cash must accompany order. Plant advs. not admitted under this head.

Every paid subscriber to the AMERICAN FLORIST for the year INS is entitled to a five-line who tady, free to be used at any time during the year.

STUDIATION WANTED—By an experienced gardenet and thorist on private or commercial place; age 33, married. Best of references. Wit, care American Florist.

STUDATION WANTED-Where first-class stock is grown. Best of references from past and present employers; age 24; state wages, etc.

Will, care W. W. Coles, Kokomo, Ind.

GITUATION WANTED—A good place in or about D Chlesgo for a strong, healthy boy of 15 years, to serve as apprentice.

248 Kensington Ave., Chlengo.

STUATION WANTED—A No. 1 grower of roses, carnations, mems, etc.; sober and steady, competent to take charge; prefer the west. Address N N, care American Florist.

OTUATION WANTED-By a first-class, all-round in florist; German, age 80, single; commercial or private place. Address HENRY SCHNEIDER, care C. JACOBS, 610 Chestnut St., Milwaukee, Wis.

SITUATION WANTED - By Brst-class young married dorlst on private grounds; understands fruits, dowers and vegetables. Best references. Address F, 24% Michigan Ave., Chicago.

STUATION WANTED—As private gardener in charge of gentleman's grounds; thoroughly competent in all details of landscape gardening or downstore. E.W. care American Florist.

OTTUATION WANTED-By practical florist, single, in 10 years' experience, good knowledge of florid work, New York state preferred. References. State wages. Address E, care American Florist.

STEUATION WANTED By first-class all-round florist, German, single: 16 years' experience. Good grower of roses, carnations, 'mains, violets, palms, terns and general stock. Address 8, 83 Milwaukee Ave., Chicago.

OTTIATION WANTED By middle used gardener and florist with large experience in this country and Europe, especially in greenbouse culture of all kinds, private place preferred. Address E. M., care American Florist.

OTTEATION WANTED. By an experienced grower of Borlsts' stock, roses and carnations a speciality, as foreman, will invest $500 in place it a live one and near a good market. For particulars address.

BUSINESS PARTNER, care American Florist.

STITATION WANTED. By a well-experienced fore-man, a hindler, good manager, first-class rose and cut flower grower. Best of references. Only first-class parties need apply, open for engagement to suit un-plover. Address. POREMAN. care Am. Florist.

OTTATION WANTED Astoreman; life experience of in growing roses carnations, violets and all kinds of tropic of plants, strictly temperate, married; state wages palled and particulars. Good references on application. Figurest, 28 Oak 8t. Bridgeport, Conn.

STILATION WANTED By young single man, gen-conf commercial place, 13 years experience, all branches England and America; specialities roses and carriations, sober and reliable. References. State particulars and wages. HARGY DONNELLA, 255 Pawticket Ave., Pawticket, R. I.

OTLLATION WANTED By an experienced land of seapougardener, tertinan, it years old, it years at the rousiness grower of flowers vegetables and traits specialty, pleasure grounds and hotlomes, position wanted in park or private residence. Best of reference and reserved and formers.

WANTED AT ONCE-Assistant florist. Address GOOD HOME, care American Florist.

WANTED-Nurserymeu's and florists' wholesale catalogues Audress M D, care Am. Florist.

WANTED—A good tiorist for store and greenhouse. 11 N. BRUNS, 600 W. Van Buren St., Chicago.

WANTED-The address of Carl Jorgensee, Dane. Amager. Address L. JENSEN, South Butte, Mont.

WANTED-The P. O. address of Geo. H. Bond; for-merly in New Jersey. ASHER M. COE, Coe Ridge, O.

WANTED—An all-round good fierlst clerk, Wages $12 per week. Address
A B C, care American Florist.

WANTED—One or two first-class young workmen; good, all-round greenhouse men. Address
Chown HILL GREENHOUSE,
3403 Senate Ave., Indianapolis, Ind.

WANTED—Good, reliable and experienced man as second in greenhouse work, making up designs, bedding, etc. Must furnish references. Single man preferred. Address J. N. Kidd, St. Joseph, Mo.

WANTED AT ONCE—A florist (German and slugle); waves for the first two months $20 and after that $25, board and washing included. Steady work year round.

MRS A. SENFF, Menominee, Mich.

WANTED-Competent foreman on commercial place to grow roses, carnations, violets, mums and general Horists' cut flower stock. State wages expected and give references.

HARVEY & CO., 5 W. Broad, Richmond, Va.

WANTED-A young man accustomed to growing celery, onloss and asparagus, and who is willing and capable of making himself useful around greenhouses. Good place, with chance for promotion.

11. A. LINDSAY, Birmingham, Ala.

FOR SALE—(33) feet 4-inch cast fron pipe; 38 boxes 10x12 double A glass. 175, care Am. Florist.

FOR SALE OR RENT-Seven greenhouses on West Foster Avenue, Chicago. Apply to John Leluan or next door.

FOR SALK-Greenhouses on principal street in the city. For particulars apply to J. H. REBSTOCK, 584 Main St., Buffale, N. Y.

TOR RENT-Klondike here! 8000 feet glass, stocked T with roses and carnations $25 per month; imm diate possession. 1011 N. 5th St., Reading, Pa

FOR SALE—Cheap for cash, an old established florist and seed store drawing good business; owner has two places. 174, care American Florist.

FOR RENT OR SALE—Three greenhouses and residence on lot 100x165 feet at Rogers Park, III. Address or call on P. G., Room 6, 127 Wells St., Chicago.

FOR SALE OR RENT CHEAP—Six well-stocked greenhouses, dwelling, etc. Best R. R. facilities, no competition. Renson, poor health, W. L. Winn, White Hall, Ill.

FOR SALE An old-established florist business. Greenhouses well stocked; residence, outbuildings, 50 acres of land, on the line of R. R.; would sell before Easter for benefit of Easter trado. Death cause of selling A. M., care American Florist.

FOR SALE.

One dwelling house two greenhouses 17xLd, newly hullt, well located and good home trade, on street car line, near city of 300,000 population. For particulars address II S care American Florist.

Greenhouses in one of the best cities in Wisconsin, good investment and a money maker for a hustler, wener must retire on account of poor health.

For particulars write

A. LEUBNER, Wansau, Wis.

Situation Wanted.

A COMPETENT MANACER of therough ability and over 20 years' practical experience desires a position to take eatire charge of private estate, park or first chose commercial place; an experienced cultivator or paims, orehids, florists' stock in general, shrutbery, truit and vegetades; a good floral decorator. Thoroughly reliable, married, with small family, Good wages required. Address

FLORIST, care S. J. Nelson, 206 E. 28th St., New York.

Here is a Rare specified there is a Rare open the stocked consequence of th

$800 will buy com

S, care American Florist.

TT IS GOOD BUSINESS POLICY TO MENTION THE AMERICAN FLORIST WHEN YOU WRITE TO AN ADVERTISER

Chrysanthemums.

Propagation should be now well under way, especially of the varieties which are slow in propagating, or of which stock is scarce.

Every wide awake grower should try a few of the new varieties each year; one or two plants, at least, of a half dozen of the most promising sorts. If these have not been ordered, they should be at once. The tabulated results of the work of the chrysanthemum committees (published in the December 25 issue of the AMERICAN FLORIST) are the most reliable guide in considering the purchase of varieties which the buyer has not seen in flower.

Any variety which has been recommended for a certificate by a number of committees is generally a safe purchase for trial.

The bulk of the stock grown, however, should be of varieties which have been tested successfully by the grower himself. A variety which may succeed under one system of culture may be a failure in the hands of another good grower, and it is much easier to grow those which are adapted to one's methods, than to try and change those methods to suit a particular variety.

In deciding on what to grow three things are to be considered, and they are of about equal importance. Does variety do well with the grower? Does it produce a large proportion of perfect blooms? And does it sell well in his market?

Varieties which throw a large percentage of malformed blooms have to bring a very large price to keep up with the cheaper but surer varieties. The true comparative test of values is the number of perfect blooms which can be had from 100 square feet of bench multiplied by the price which a perfect bloom will bring. Judged on this basis many an apparently valuable variety has made but a sorry showing alongside of its more modest neighbor.

When close planting is practiced and moderate sized blooms desired, varieties with large heavy foliage should not be used.

It has been prophesied for some years that the chrysanthemum craze was on the wane, but facts will hardly justify such prophesies. There will always be a demand, at least in the larger markets for fancy chrysantheniums, at good prices generally. Of course they will have their off seasons, as do all other flowers, and overproduction, as in other lines, will have serious effect on common and medium stock, but this is also the case with roses and carnations, and the careful grower will not be scared out of the chrysanthemum business for some time yet.

Asparagus Plumosus

Strings 8 to 10 feet long.

50 CENTS.

W. H. ELLIOTT, Brighton, Mass.

CONSIGNMENTS CINCINNATI, O SPECIAL ATTENTION GIVEN TO SHIPPING ORDER

BIRMINGHAM, ALA,—Mrs. H. A. Lindsay recently purchased a tract of seven acres of land on which she intends to erect a new and thoroughly modern range of greenhouses, consisting of about 12,000

Wholesale Flower Markets

| CINCINNATI, March 17.                                                                                                         |
|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Roses Resultes select. 25 00@35 00                                                                                            |
| mediam                                                                                                                        |
| " Brides                                                                                                                      |
| Bridesmaids                                                                                                                   |
| Meteora 3.00@ 5.00                                                                                                            |
| reries 4 total 5 to                                                                                                           |
| Carnations 1 50fancy 2,00@ 3 00                                                                                           |
| ## fancy                                                                                                                      |
| Idly of the valley       3.00         Romans       2.00@ 3.00                                                                 |
| Narcissus 3.00                                                                                                                |
| Narcissua         3.00           Daffodils         3.00           Volets         5.00           Harriail         10.00@ 12 50 |
| Violets                                                                                                                       |
| Harriail                                                                                                                      |
| Callas                                                                                                                        |
| Tulips         3.00           Smllax         12 50                                                                            |
| Adiantum                                                                                                                      |
| Asparagus                                                                                                                     |
| St. Louis, March 17.                                                                                                          |
| Roses, Beauties                                                                                                               |
| Roses, Beauties 2 00@35 00Meteors 2.00 a 6 00                                                                             |
| " Brides Bridesmaids 2 (i) or 6 (ii)                                                                                          |
| " Perles 2.00% 4.00                                                                                                           |
|                                                                                                                               |
| " La France                                                                                                                   |
| " Kalserin 2.00@ 6.00                                                                                                         |
| Carnot 2 00% 6 00                                                                                                             |
| Carnations 1.50@ 4 00                                                                                                         |
| Violets, California                                                                                                           |
| Lily of the vailey                                                                                                            |
| Harrisil                                                                                                                      |
| Callas 8 (Ma 10 00                                                                                                            |
| Tulips 3.00 4 5.00 Narclasus. Romans 1 00@ 2 00 Smilax 10.00 2.15.00                                                          |
| Narciaana. Romana 1 00@ 2 00                                                                                                  |
| Smilax 10.00@15.00                                                                                                            |
| Freesia 2.00@ 2.50                                                                                                            |
| MILWAUKEE, March 18.                                                                                                          |
| Roses, Beautiesper dozen 1.0@4.00                                                                                             |
| Brides. Bridesmalds 3 00@ 5 00                                                                                                |
| rene, bene a wa h.w                                                                                                           |
| " Meteors 3 00@ 6 00Carnations 1.00@ 2.50                                                                                 |
| Vlolets                                                                                                                       |
| Vlolets                                                                                                                       |
| Lilvof the valley 3 00% 4 00                                                                                                  |
| Freeslas 2 00@ 3 00                                                                                                           |
| Tulips. 11 yacinths                                                                                                           |
| Von Slons, Jonquila 2 (00@ 3 (0                                                                                               |
| Callas, Harristi                                                                                                              |
|                                                                                                                               |
| BUFFALO, March 17.                                                                                                            |
| Roses, Beautles. 10,00@50 00  Brides, Bridesmalds, Meteors. 3 0.6 6 00  Perles. 2 0.0 3 00                                    |
| Brides, Bridesmaids, Meteors 3 00@ 6 00                                                                                       |
| " Ninhetes 2.00@ 3.00                                                                                                         |
| " Niphetoa 2.00@ 3 00 " Kalserin Mermets 5 00@ 8 00 Carnations extra 2 00@ 3 00                                               |
| Carnations extra 2 00m 3 00                                                                                                   |
| " ordinary 1.00@ 1.50                                                                                                         |
| Ordinary. 1.00@ 1.50 Lily of the valley. 3.00@ 4.00                                                                           |
| Violets 50@ 1 00                                                                                                              |
| Romana 2 Diga 4 Di                                                                                                            |
| Harrisii 6 00@10 00Smilax 12.50@15.00                                                                                     |
| Adjusting 12.50@15.00                                                                                                         |
| Adjantum 1.25@ 1.50                                                                                                           |
| Asparagus                                                                                                                     |

REINBERG BROS. WHOLESALE GROWERS OF CUT FLOWERS.

500,000 FEET OF CLASS. We can fill all orders on abort notice with all leading varieties of Roses and Carnations.

We AR Headquarters for fine AMERICAN BEAUTIES Give us a trial and nonvince yourself.

Salesroom, 51 Wabash Ave., CHICAGO.

PLEASE mention the AMERICAN FLORIST every time you write to an advertiser.

C. A. KUEHN. Wholesale Florist.

1122 PINE STREET,

ST. LOUIS, MO.

A complete line of Wire Designs.

MOUND CITY CUT FLOWER CO.

Wholesale Florists.

Headquarters for the South West ..

When writing mention American Florist

ST. LOUIS CUT FLOWER CO.

Wholesale Florists

E. H. MICHEL

1620 Olive St. ST. LOUIS, MO.

ROSES, CARNATIONS, AND ALL KINDS OF SEASONABLE FLOWERS IN STOCK.

F. KASTING WHOLESALE COMMISSION FLORIST....

495 Washington St., Buffalo. N. Y. Also Dealer in Florists' Supplies and Wire Designs

W. A. MCFADDEN,

NEAVE BUILDING, CINCINNATI.

Producers and Shippers of every description of High Class Floral Supplies.

CATTLEYAS and DENDROBIUM NOBILE.

Quotations issued weekly, forwarded on request.

HOLTON & HUNKEL CO.

The Wisconsin Flower Exchange. Fresh Cut Flowers, Florists' Supplies Manufacturers of WIRE DESIGNS

Consignments Solicited.

Phone Main 874.

457 Milwaukee St., MILWAUKEE.

THE "OLD RELIABLE" FOR

WHOLESALE

Hunt's Flowers Go Everywhere

76 Wabash Ave., CHICAGO.

WHOLESALE CUT FLOWERS WIRE WORK A SPECIALTY, 88 WABASHAVE CHICAGO.

E. C. AMLING, WHOLESALE

CHICAGO. Consignments Solicited. Prompt attention to shipping orders.

A. G. PRINCE & CO. AND FLORISTS' SUPPLIES.

ROOTED GARNATION GUTTINGS

Albertini and Bridesmaid, $2.00 per 100; Daybreak, $1.50 per 100; Lizzie McGowan, Ivory, Lizzie Gilbert, Fred Dorner and Rose Queen, $8.00 per 1000.

88 & 90 Wabesh Avenue,

Telephone Main 3208.

CHICAGO.

S. B. WINTER.

(Successor to WINTER & GLOVER,)

21 Randolph St., Chicago.

GRADE UU

PACKED RIGHT.

so they will reach you in just as good condition as they reach us.

WIRE DESIGNS: A Full Line. Write us for our lilustrated Catalogue.

Vaughan, McKellar & Winterson

FLORISTS SUPPLIES

FLORISTS SEEDS SPRING BULBS

All the leading varieties in Carnation Rooted Cuttings

WHOLESALE lowers

 Best varieties of Young Roses in 2½-in, Pots.

 Fine well cured Pearl Tuberose Bulbs, per 1000.
 $ 7.50

 Extra fine mixed Gladioli Bulbs, per 1000.
 12.50

 Fine mixed Gladioli Bulbs, per 1000.
 7.50

SEND FOR CATALOGUE. 45-47-49 Wabash Ave., Chicago. Vaughan, McKellar & Winterson, -

Wholesale Flower Markets

| CHICAGO, March 18.                            |
|-----------------------------------------------|
| Roses, Beautiesper doz, 1.00@4.00             |
| Brides 3.00@ 5.00                             |
| " Meteors, Bridesmalds, Kaiserin. 3.00 @ 5.00 |
| " Meleora, Bridesmaids, Kaiseriu. 3.00 3.00   |
| " Perle. Gontlers                             |
| " La France. Testout 4.00@ 8.00               |
| Carnations, common 1.10@ 2 00                 |
| fancy                                         |
| Taney                                         |
| Violets                                       |
| Narcissus, Romans 2.00@ 3 00                  |
| Callas 8.00                                   |
| Harrish                                       |
|                                               |
| Lily of the valley 2.00@ 3 00                 |
| Tulips                                        |
| Von Stons 2.00                                |
| Hyncinths                                     |
| Hyucintus                                     |
| Adlantum 1.00                                 |
| Smilsx                                        |
| Asparagus40.00@75.00                          |
| Asparagus                                     |

Consignments Solicited.

All Florists' Supplies.

19 & 21 RANDOLPH STREET, Fine Stock a Specialty. CHICAGO.

Wholesale Florist

DON'T FORGET that we are at the old number, 126 Dearborn St., Chicago.

Write for special quotations on large orders.

Y. CUT FLOWER EXCHANGE

404-412 E. 34th St. Near Farry. Open for Cut Flower Sales at 6 n'clock Every Morning.....

DESIRABLE WALL SPACE TO RENT FOR ADVERTISING.

JOHN DONALDSON, Secretary.

Wholesale Florists یوید

111 West 30th Street, NEW YORK. Telephone, 260 38th St. Consignments Solicited.

Cood Money for your Flowers. Cood Flowers for your Money 49 WEST 29TH ST., NE TELEPHONE 1675 38th St. NEW YORK.

THE NEW YORK CUT FLOWER CO.

II9 and I2I West 23d Street, 112 and 114 West 24th Street,

Telephone 733-18th.

NEW YORK.

CONSIGNMENTS SOLICITED. Special Attention Given to Shipping Orders.

ROGERS PARK FLORAL CO..

Wholesale Growers of

51 WABASH AVENUE,

CHICAGO.

HEADQUARTERS FOR AMERICAN BEAUTIES.

WE HAVE 50,000

American Beauty Plants 10 CUI HOWERS FROM

ashburi

Rooted Guttings

Orders filled in rotation. All Cuttings guaranteed brst-class...

ROSES.

BRIDES BRIDESMAIDS

 $S_{1}, 50$

PER HUNDRED.

CARNATIONS.

| TRIUMPH          | 43 00 per 100. |       |
|------------------|----------------|-------|
| DATBREAK         | 1.50           | 12/50 |
| HARRISON 5 White | 5 (14)         |       |
| MINNIE COOK      | 1 41           | 12.50 |
| ROSE QUEEN       | 1.561          | 1250  |
| SCOTT            | 1 (4)          | 2.349 |

tlowers at Wholesale

ASPARAGUS PEUMOSUS foc a string. SMITAN $2.00 per doz. strings.

All Florists' Supplies.

& WASHBURN, BASSETT

breenhouse and Residence, HINSDALL, III. Long Distance Phone No. 10. Store: 88 Wahash Ave., CHICAGO, ILL.

Long Distance Phone Main 223.

M. A. HART. Commission Pealer Cut Flowers. NEW YORK CITY.

THE BEST MARKET IN NEW YORK. 'Phone 1307 38th St.

TRAENDLY & SCHENCK. Wholesale Florists.

Control the stock of many celebrated growers and are prepared to quote prices on First Grade Cut Flowers. All varieties.

38 West 28th St., and Cut Flower Exchange, Tel. 961 18tb Street. NEW YORK CITY.

FRED. EHRET,

No. 1403 Fairmount Avenue,

Telephone, Long Distance.

PHILADELPHIA.

Wholesale Flower Markets

| New York, March 16.   Roses, Beautles.   6 00@40.00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |
|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| Dunious, Larger transfer to the contract of th |
| BOSTON. March 15.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |
| Roses, Beauties                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| " Perie. Nithretos 3 una 4 un                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |
| Brides, Bridesmaids, Carnot 2 00@ 5.00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |
| MOIGHIA, MELECI 4.00@ 0 00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |
| Carnations                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |
| Lily of the valley, Daffodils 1.00@ 2.00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |
| Viuleta 25@ .40                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| Harriali, Calla 5.00@ 8.00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |
| Tulipa 1.50@ 3.00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |
| PHILADELPHIA March 16.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |
| Roses, Beauties, select                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |
| " medlum 6.00@15.00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |
| " Brunners                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |
| " Teas                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |
| Carnations                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |
| fancy 2 00@ 3.00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |
| Lily of the valley 3 00@ 4.00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |
| Violets                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |
| Narcisaua                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |
| Hyacintha. 2.00@ 3.00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |
| Harrisil                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |
| Smilax                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |
| ршнаа                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |

LUDLOW ST. PHILADELPHIA. PA

John I. Raynor,

49 WEST 28th STREET.

-NEW YORK.

SPECIAL EXTRA STOCK OF

AM. BEAUTY. METEOR. BRIDESMAID, BRIDE.

Record Breaking Carnations ALL THE YEAR ROUND.

THOS. YOUNG, JR.

* * Wholesale Florist

43 West 28th Street, New York.

WALTER F. SHERIDAN. WHOLESALE

ORIST.

39 West 28th Street, NEW YORK.

Roses shipped to all points. Price list on application.

ose Growers

Will find a good market and good returns for their stock at....

JULIUS LANG'S

53 W. 30th Street, - NEW YORK.

Edward C. Horan, 34 W. 29th Street, NEW YORK,

WHOLESALE • FLORIST.

Careful Shipping to all parts of the country.

Price list on application.

WM. C. SMITH, Wholesale Florist,

40 So. 16th St., PHILADELPHIA.

Consignments Solicited. Special attention given to shipping orders Lung Distance Telephone 5008 A.

9 Chapman Place, 15 Province Street, CITY HALL CUT FLOWER MARKET, BOSTON, MASS. BROS., PROPRIETORS.

wers assigned separate space in our market. We guarantee payment for all Flowers sold. Sales reported weekly; payments monthly, or oftener if required.

THE NEW ENGLAND HEADQUARTERS FOR THE BEST GRADE OF FLOWERS AT ALL SEASONS OF THE YEAR.

J. K. ALLEN, Wholesale Florist.

WHITE VIOLETS, finest quality. EXTRA ROSES and other desirable specialties.

57 West 28th Street,

Long Distance Telephone 382-38th St

GALVIN&CO. Wholesale Florists

AND DEALERS IN ALL

FLORISTS' SUPPLIES,

4 Ordway Place, BOSTON, MASS. Cut Flower Consignments Solicited. Best market.

NEW YORK.

GEORGE A. SUTHERLAND, Cut Flowers # Florists' Supplies WHOLESALE.

67 Bromfield St.,

BOSTON, MASS.

Wholesale Florists

JOBBERS IN

Horticultural Auctioneers.

JOHN YOUNG.

and all other choice cut flower stock. NEW YORK. 51 W. 28th Street. Price ilst on application.

FRANK MILLANG, FLOWERS.

WHOLESALE COMMISSION,

408 E. 34th Street.

Cut Flower Exchange,

NEW YORK.

Lenox. Mass.

Lenox is just beginning to emerge from the snowdrifts under which it has been buried deep and the cutters and sleigh-bells will soon go into seclusion once more. The spring season here comes late and lasts but a brief time. Soon all will be hustling at the garden work which is so important a part of the private gardener's profession in a place such as Lenox. Next to the matchless scenery of these beautiful Berkshire hills in interest at the present time is the contents of the many conservatories which are presided over by a community of expert gardeners unexcelled in skill as they are unrivaled unexcelled in skill as they are unrivated in hospitality. No prettier sight can be imagined than the peach houses at Mr. Morgan's and Mr. Lanier's under the charge of Messrs. J. F. Huss and A. H. Wingett, respectively. Mr. Huss' inborn love of the beautiful as exemplified in a house of well trained peaches and nec-tarines in full bloom is put to a severe test this season, however, for there is a budding gardener in the cottage near by, who was not there when the peaches bloomed last year, whose cheeks are like ripe peaches, and in whose bright presence all the peach houses in the world fade into insignificance. Mr. Huss still finds time, notwithstanding, to display his cunning workmanship and ingenuity in many ways. Among the most interesting things to be seen are a number of chrysanthemums grafted on the common marguerite and growing luxuriantly. His method of starting fern seeds in the slight depression on the side of a pressed brick instead of in the fern pans generally used seems good and certainly gives the very best results. Mr. Wingett's peaches are a little later than Mr. Huss'. His stove house is well worthy of a visit, especially for the great anthuriums, many of which are seedlings raised here, which are abundantly furnished with splendid blooms. Strawberries in pots are just beginning to show flower.

If Thos. W. Weathered's Son never erected another greenhouse besides the capacious conservatory at W. D. Sloan's that structure alone would be sufficient on which to base a reputation. The central palm house is twenty-eight feet in height and its contents under the skilful eare of Wm. Griffin are well worthy of their home. In one house there is a superb collection of Begonias Rex and Rex hybrids and Mr. Griffin has been doing a little carnation hybridizing from which he anticipates good results. Carnation Lily Dean is very fine here, strawberries in pots look promising and a house of ferns is grand. Violets, both Marie Louise and Mrs. Campbell are now in excellent condition, although Mr. Griffin states that in the fall they were very sick. His treatment for diseased violets is to keep them cool, give plenty of air but no extreme of temperature and and they will come out all right.

At J. H. Choate's place over the Stock-bridge line, where C. R. Russell presides, there is a bright display of cinerarias, geraniums, cyclamens and other seasonable flowering plants. Princess de Galles violet as grown here is a revelation. No other variety can compare with it. lets are also fine with Geo. Thompson at H. H. Cook's place, and no finer carnations can be found anywhere. The strawberries here are further advanced than elsewhere, being already in fruit, and just reaching the stage where they would tempt one to break a couple of the commandments. Fully astempting are A. H. Loveless' tomatoes which are loaded with luscious ripe fruit. Mignonette, violets, carnations all show up here equal to the best. A batch of fancy pelargoniums give promise of a bright display soon. A lot of swainsonas in 5-inch pots are such as to give much weight to Mr. Loveless' claim that in 5-inch pots is the only way to grow them.

Ernst Lundburg a young man formerly employed on the estate, succeeds James Paul in charge of the A. P. Stokes place.

Report of the Park and Outdoor Art Associa-

The report of the first meeting of this association, held at Louisville, Ky., May 20, 1897, has come to hand. In addition to other data, it contains the valuable papers read at the meeting by leading authorities on park matters. At this meeting the following resolution, on the motion of H. W. Jones was unanimously adopted:

"That it is the sense of this convention, that the successful development of parks throughout this country depends very largely upon the entire elimination of politics from their control and management; and we urge upon the citizens the necessity for the appointment as park commissioners and other officials such persons only as have sympathy, taste and ability in the preservation and culture of nature and art."

The next meeting will be held at Minneapolis, June 23, 1898. The secretary of the association is Warren H. Manning, 1146 Tremont Building, Boston, Mass.

CANNAS

CANNAS

THE FINE NEW BEDDERS

PRESIDENT McKINLEY, PRESIDENT CLEVELAND, DEFENDER, TARRYTOWN. At 60 ets, each; $5.00 per dozen; $40.00 per 100 from 4-inch pots.

> MRS. FAIRMAN ROGERS .....4-inch Pots, $12.00 per 100. MLLE. BERAT.....4-inch Pots, $15.00 per 100. ROBERT CHRISTIE......4-inch Pots, $20.00 per 100.

Also a Fine Stock of Strong Dormant Bulbs.

Oneen Charlotte, Mme. Crozv, Florence Vaughan, Chas. Henderson, A. Bouvier, Egandale, Ami Pichon

At $2.50 per 100; $20.00 per 1000.

M. Mesnier, L. E. Bally, Midway, Admiral Avellan, Prest. Carnot, J. C. Vaughan,

$3.00 per 100.

FLDORADO, Alex. Billard, Chicago, Burbank, Count de Bouchard, Souv. de Prest, Carnot,

$4.00 per 100; $35.00 per 1000.

Souv. d'Antoine Crozy, Papa, John White, Italia,

$5.00 per 100; $40.00 per 1000.

SPECIAL OFFER: 1000 Fine But 500 Strictly our selection of sorts.

1000 Fine Bulbs in 10 named sorts, $15 00 Cash.

THE COTTAGE GARDENS, Queens, N.Y.

Milwaukee.

All florists having some glass of their own, have more or less of a supply of potted stock, principally bulbous plants and azaleas, the demand being a trifle below par since Lent began; they are not purchasing the usual quantity of roses and carnations, the consequence is a surplus of common stock, the choice continues to clean out.

Holton & Hunkle Co. have increased their counter space and are making other improvements.

Duester & Son are receiving many congratulations upon the success they have attained this season in producing roses and carnations. The stock they are sending in to Holton & Ilunkle is very fine.

Ellis & Pollworth's five houses are in very good condition, largely kentias and arecas of moderate size, and the smaller sizes of latanias, with Pandanus Veitchii, ficus and ferns. They are starting a few thousand palm seeds and are cutting a nice lot of bulb stock. They will have a large lot of Spiræa Japonica in for Easter but no Easter lilies.

Mr. Fred Schmelling has his place in good order; a few of his roses are a trifle yellow, as if over-watered, but full of good strong young growth. His carnations all indicate a good continuous crop; his cutting benches are full. The condition of potted plants indicates a careful preparation for spring trade.

Mr. John Dunlop has just started a hotbed for cannas, and has a good assortment of stock for retail plant trade. His carnations are good. He complains like Mr. Schmelling of the Harrisii lilies being diseased; they are for the most part a dismal failure and will be short for Easter.

Robert Currie's three houses are in Robert Currie's three houses are in excellent condition, with carnations and violets.

Whitnall Floral Co, have a nice lot of lilacs and Spiræa Van Houttei which promises well for Easter; Harrisii lilies will be in time; the longiflorums will come in after Easter. Spiræa Anthony Waterer will be on time.

In calling to see Mr. Von Oven we found Mr. Geo. Ringrose in possession. His carnations, as usual, are in good condition. There is a nice assortment of retail stock, and the finest looking bench of sweet peas in this city, which will no doubt be in for Easter.

will no doubt be in for Easter.

Mr. Stapes' place contains about the same proportion of carnations and roses. The carnations are very good, the roses a trifle inferior to what we have been accustomed to see on his place. A small crop of lilies are in fair condition.

Mr. W. M. Brauch, a former employe of Mr. F. Dilger, has leased the old plant on the corner of Vleit and Forty-second streets formerly occupied by Mr. Rights. He took hold of the place very late in the fall, after frost, with the weeds growing out through the roof, rather a discouraging outlook at the time, but has succeeded in getting things in order and will have a fair crop of spring stock.

Mr. Right is located on Western avenue, where he has built two greenhouses of his own, one of which he has planted with carnations and the other contains a general assortment of odds and ends useful in his retail store.

It was a pleasure to call on Mr. Fred. Menger, Twenty-seventh street. The place is not large but almost a model. The office is as convenient and comfortable as if a florist had nothing to do with it. The cyclamens, cinerarias and longiflorum lilies are much finer than are commonly seen.

C. B. W.

Marketing Cut Flowers.

Paper read by J. T. Anthony before the Chicago Florist. Club, February 21, 18.8.

How to dispose of cut flowers to the best advantage is a matter of great importance to every grower in small towns, or where greenhouses are situated in large centers of population. To sell them at retail at the greenhouse is the solution of this question. But in large cities the greenhouses must necessarily be several miles out in the country. In order to reach the retail purchasers or consumers, it has been found most convenient to have retail stores near the business centers and residence portions of the city to dispose of the stock. A few growers have stores in the city and retail the stock they grow, but a majority of the growers prefer to sell their flowers at wholesale, leaving to others who have made a study of that particular line, the business of retailing them. There is therefore two distinct branches of the cut flower business, the grower and the retailer.

Ten or fifteen years ago growers brought flowers in from the greenhouses three or four times a week, some of the larger or more pretentious ones in wagons, the smaller ones in boxes or baskets, and peddled them around from store to store until disposed of. At that time all the stores were concentrated within a radius of less than three miles from the center of the city. Now a radius of twelve miles would hardly cover them on account of the large number of stores and their distance apart, making it impossible to reach more than a limited number of them during the morning hours while flowers are being bought. The peddling of cut flowers is nearly obsolete in all of the large cities. Except a few large growers who have wholesale stores for the sale of their stock, practically all of the flowers grown in this vicinity are sold through commission firms, who have established themselves for the special purpose of selling cut flowers on commission. Whether the commission man has come to stay or is only a passing shadow in the grand panorama of changes that is taking place in the trade, time will determine. The ideal wholesale cut flower market has not yet been established and perhaps never will be. To dispose of cut flowers to the best advantage in the market as at present constituted, is the subject before us. The grower should place his stock in the hands of his agent, the commission man, in the best and most attractmission man, in the best and most activactive form. All flowers should be carefully graded by the grower. At least two grades should be made of all flowers. In many cases more would be necessary Especial care should be taken with all bunched flowers, every individual flower put in a bunch should be salable. Full count should be given in all cases and it would be better to put in twenty-six in place of twenty five, to make up for a possible broken one.

American Beauty roses have sold better and have brought comparatively better prices for the past year or two than other roses. Is not this due in a great measure to the more careful grading of Beauty roses: I think it is. We will suppose you have twelve dirysauthe mums. They may be all good flowers and of the same variety, fait of assorted sizes. The mailest flower, we will sup-pose would go with a grade that would sell readily for 10 cents each, the largest, a fir (cl. s. ) to ver worth 40 cents; the average price could be 25 cents each, or 83 per dozer. Would not 82 per dozen be a good price for such a dozen flowers. One dollar is lost to the grower by not having the flowers properly graded, and perhaps the party purchasing them is not so well satisfied as he would have been with an even grade of flowers that would not be worth over $2 per dozen. I am satisfied that many chrysanthemum growers have lost nearly one-third of the value of their flowers by not grading them in varieties and size of flowers. H these are the facts with the American Beauties and chrysanthemums, why do they not apply to all other flowers?

The grower's agent, the commission man, recognizes the importance of having stock graded, though he may sell the grower's carnations, as put up by him under his nom de plume of Nos. 20, 40 or 80, that is twenty good, salable flowers, two fair flowers, but short stems, three so badly split as to be worthless, for a for a bunch of twenty-five. Still when he ships them out of the city under his own name or firm name, that is entirely different. His own name is at stake. He cannot fall back behind Mr. 20, 40 or 80, so when he packs a box of 100 carnations to ship out of the city, there are 100 good salable flowers put in the box, no matter now many bunches of twenty-five it takes to make up the number.

Roses are scarcely ever sold without being graded, though the work is seldom done by the grower at the greenhouse, as it should have been. Who has not seen several hundred roses piled on a wholesale counter ungraded, and of all kinds and colors, in the rush hours of the morning when flowers are coming in and customers are waiting for them. Everybody is in a hurry. There is no time to take care of stock. Everybody wants select stock. The salesman starts to select roses to fill his orders. By the time one half of the stock has been selected the balance begins to have the appearance of having been run through a threshing machine. When three-fourths has been selected, what is left looks as though it had been run over by a steam roller. This is not the fault of the commission man. He must wait on his customers when he has them, regardless of everything else, and attend to his stock when he gets a chance to do so, which generally is not until the principal sales are over for the day. Then what is left of the wreek of the day's stock is carefully sorted over. All that are still salable are set aside for a later customer, the poorer quality sold to the street fakirs for very little more than they would be worth to the grower for mulching. I have estimated that not over 50% of the flowers grown ever reach the customer. Even fair conditions during times of scarcity, such as we have had for the past twomonths when the retailer has much of hisstock sold before he purchases it, not over 60% of what is sent in by the grower ever reaches the customer in good condition, and 25% of this loss is between the time the flowers leave the greenhouses and reach the retailer's counter. Everyone knows that there must be more or less: waste in handling flowers. I believe that nearly one-half of this waste could beavoided if the growers would grade their stock before sending it to the commission house, and then all that is necessary is tocount out what is sold. The grower would be well paid for his time by the saving in his flowers and the large returns made for those sold. Every grower should take pride in keeping his stock up to grade, so that purchasers would call for stock with his number, or better still, use your own name instead of the heartless and soulless number. Would Harstring send his flour to a commission house with no other brand than No. 9 flour? or the Mogin creamery send their butter tobe sold as No. 15 butter?

Some growers' places are too small to grade their stock, as it would make too many parcels and they would not have enough of any one grade or variety to-cut any figure. If that is so, are they not growing too many varieties? Every one whose place is large enough to be made to pay at all, can cut some figure in the market by confining themselves to one or two varieties that can be done best. No one should attempt to grow American Beauty roses unless they have at least 5,000 feet of glass to devote to that rose, because with less than that amount the stock of cut flowers would be so small that they could not be graded, and without being graded they would bring but very little in the Chicago market.

ASHTABULA, O.—Herbert Tong has purchased the M. E. Fassett estate, for a cash consideration of $4735. Mr. Tong has been head florist at the W. L. Scott private greenhouses in Eric, Pa., for the past fifteen years. He will take possession of his new place at once and the business will be continued without interrup-

The American Florist\ Company's New... The the the Directory

Sixth Edition—1898

Of Florist. Seedsmen and Nurservmen to which are added lists of Parks, Park Superintendents and Cemeteries. A complete list of all persons in the above trades in the United States and Canada by towns, also no complete list of the same maints alphabetis.

PRICE TWO DOLLARS

PRICE TWO DOLLARS

AMERICAN FLORIST COMPANY, 324 Deachorn St CHICAGO.

Musa Ensete.

The highest æsthetic eestasy we ever enjoyed was on our introduction to this beautiful plant seated in the parlor of one of the most unique American homes, Mr. Hunnewell's, at Wellesley, twenty-five or more years ago. With me were Mayor Wallack, of Washington, and General Michler, engineer in charge of public buildings and grounds. We were on a trip north in search of rare and heautiful plants to decorate the president's conservatories. A messenger had gone to find the princely owner that we might obtain permission to inspect the rare gens of nature collected there. My enthusiastic anxiety for a closer inspection of the rich mahogany mid-rib, and fine contrasting green of the majestic leaves amused Mr. Hunnewell and my traveling companions very much. It was growing in the cool conservatory adjoining the residence. The scene has left a delicious impression on my mind never to be removed. We were delighted to see, in the catalogue of one of the most reliable seedsmen of this country, that the seeds could be bought for a penny a piece, thus putting it within the reach of the millions, a much to be desired result rarely considered by the average ornamental horticulturist or florist. Its ornamental value may be eclipsed by its usefulness as an esculent, and its name be the "Cabbage banana." We are the fortunate owners of a rare, first edition of James Bruce's travels to discover the source of the Nile in Egypt, Arabia, Abyssinia and Nubia, in five large quarto volumes, published in Edinburgh, 1790. No author was ever more traduced, abused and vilified than Bruce; the Grub street backs, the penny-a-liners, and even old gruff but honest Sam Johnson took a hand at it, and yet all he wrote, with a few unimportant exceptions, has been verified by subsequent travelers. There are two plates of ensete in volume five, page thirty-five, accurate and interesting. The following extract from the text may lead to the adoption of a new vegetable: "It is said that the Galla, when transplanted into Abyssinia, brought for their particular use the coffee-tree and the belore known. However, the general opinion is that both are naturally produced in Abyssinia provided there is heat and moisture. It grows and comes to great perfection at Gondar, but it most abounds in that part of Maitsha and Goutto west of the Nile, where there are large plantations of it, and is there, almost exclusive of anything else, the food of the Galla inhabiting that province; Maitsha is nearly upon a dead level, and the rains have no slope to get off easily, but stagnate and prevent the sowing of grain. Vegetable food would, therefore, grain. Vegetable food would, therefore, be very scarce in Maitsha were it not for this plant.

"As soon as the stalk of the ensete appears perfect and full of leaves the body of the plant turns hard and fibrous and is no longer eatable, before it is the best of all vegetables.

"When you make use of the ensete for eating you cut it immediately above the small detached roots, and perhaps a foot or two higher, as the plant is of age. You strip the green from the upper part till it becomes white; when soft like a turnip well-boiled, if eaten with milk or butter, it is the best of all foods, nourishing and easily digested.'

We do not doubt but that this plant willere long becultivated for its usefulness as an esculent in the south. In the north its ornamental character needs no hoom.

Wм. R. Sмітн.

Palmer's Hot Bed Mats FROST PROOF

Made expressly for winter covering of hotbeds, cold frames, plants and seeds of all kinds.

Indestructible, Cheap and Warm

WILL not harbor mice or vermin. Easily handled. Dry out quickly after rain. Have now been in practical use three years. Cost less than old-fashioned straw mats and entirely take their place.

MADE IN FOLLOWING GRADES:

No. 1—Burlap Cloth, filled with combination wool and quilted, seams 3 inches a part and edges firmly bound.

Size 40x76 inches, 50 cents each. 76x76 ... 75 ... ...

Made any length, 76 inches wide, at 12 cents per running foot. ×

No. 2-Duck Cloth outside, filled and quilted No. 2—Duck Cloth outside, filled and quilted same as No. 1.

Size 40x76 inches, $0.75 each.

76x76 ... 1.00 ...

Made any length, 76 inches wide, at 16 cents per running foot.

No. 3—Waterproof, made of oil duck, filled and quilted same as Nos. 1 and 2.
Size 40x76 inches, $1.00 each.
'' 76x76' $1.25 to $1.50 each.
Made any length, 76 inches wide, at 20 cents per running foot. پو That these mats are a much needed improvement over anything heretofore used for the same purpose, is demonstrated by the large demand and many testimonials from prominent men in the trade. Everyone using Hot Bed Mats should give them a trial.

×

PATENT APPLIED FOR.

WE ALSO MAKE

QUILTED HORSE BLANKETS the Cheapest, Warmest and Strongest in the World....

The R. T. Palmer Co.

Or New London, Conn.

113 Worth Street, NEW YORK

و بالراب المالية المالية المالية

Address all correspondence to The R. T. Palmer Co., New London, Conn. Agents wanted—pay good commission. Mention American Florist

Special Easter Number

THE issue of the American APRIL 2 Florist for . will be the annual Easter or Spring Number, and will be sent to all the new names obtained for the 1898 Directory.

THIS IMPRINT ON AN ENGRAVING

CHICAGO

IS A CUARANTEE OF SATISFACTORY QUALITY....

Manz makes illustrations for this paper.

THE Regan Printing House NURSERY SEED FLORISTS

87-91 Plymouth Place, J.J. CHICAGO J.J.

GEO. E. COLE & CO. Blank Book Makers. Stationers and Printers

> 86 and 88 Dearborn Street, CHICAGO.

... THE ... "Lyon=Horticole"

is an interesting review of French horticulture. Issued semi-monthly. 20 8-vo. pages illustrated. Subscriptions to the United States, 1 year, $2.00; 6 months, $1.00. Address

DIRECTEUR LYON-HORTICOLE. Lyon-Villeurbanne, France.

FLORISTS' MUTUAL

Application Blanks and Prospectus Ready.... Write now. Delays are dangerous.

W. J. VESEY, Sec'y, - Ft. Wayne, Ind.

For Insurance against damage by hail, Address

JOHN G. ESLER. Sec'y, F. H. A., Saddle River. N. J

THE NATIONAL Florists Board of Trade

C. S. LODER, Sec'y, 271 Broadway, New York.

THE WABASH R. R. COMPANY

The Short and Quick Line between the East and West connecting Buffalo. Detroit and Toledo with Chicago, St. Louis, Kansas City and Omaha.

The Wabash is the Only Line running sleeping cars and chair ears (free) between Buffalo and St. Louis and Kansas City.

Through sleeping cars between New York and Boston and St. Louis and Chicago run every day.

For further information apply to the nearest Railroad Ticket Agent, or to

H. B. McCLELLAN, G. E. A.,

387 Broadway, New York City,

J. D. McBEATH, N. E. P. A., 5 State Street, Boston, Mass.

C. S. CRANE, Gen. Pass. & Tkt. Agt., St. Louis, Mo.

Do the American Florist a small favor. Mention the paper when writing to advertisers.

THE SEED TRADE.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

JEROME B. RICE, Pres.; E. B. CLARK, 1st Vice-res. S. F. Willard, Wethersfield, Conn., Sec'y

Mr. J. Hogg, formerly with Steel Bros. Co., Toronto, is now with S. G. Courteen. Milwaukee.

NETTED GEM MUSK MELON, Refugee beans, Hubbard squash and Evergreen sweet corn are common standard items, but already scarce.

CONTINUED FINE weather the past week has increased mail trade everywhere and receipts compare favorably with those of 1894 and 1895. It is believed that this will result in making the mail trade season a short one.

VISITED CHICAGO: A. L. Rogers, W. H. Grennell.

Pacific Coast.

The Examiner, San Francisco, says: "A comparison of the rainfall figures in this city shows that the season of 1897-98 up to March I has been the dryest since up to March I has been the dryest since 1864. In the latter year the rainfall was 6.21 inches, as against 7.32 inches for this year. In 1851 the rainfall up to March I was 3.56 inches. Last year the rainfall in this city up to March I amounted to 20.55 inches. Mr. Hammond, of the Weather Bureau, has present a comparative statement showing pared a comparative statement showing the rainfall in Sacramento during the years that it was unusually dry, so that farmers can draw their own conclusions regarding can draw their own conclusions regarding a dry season for 1898. The rainfall up to date at Sacramento amounts to 8.54 inches. The other dry years up to March were as follows: 1851, 1 inch; 1863, 7.17 inches. 1864, 4.58 inches; 1871, 5.57 inches; 1877, 7.79 inches.

Catalogues Received.

Catalogues Received.

The Cottage Gardens, Queens, Long Island, N. V., plants; Thos. Mechan & Sons, Philadelphia, Pa., trees, shrubs, fruits and plants; James J. H. Gregory & Sons, Marblehead, Mass., seeds; Samuel C. Moon, Morrisville, Pa., trees, shrubs, truits and plants; F. R. Pierson Co., Tarrytown-on-Hudson, N. V., trees, shrubs, plants and seeds; C. J. Pennock, Kennett Square, Pa., rooted cuttings; Western Seed & Irrigation Co., Waterloo, Neb., seeds; L. Palmer Gordon, Ashland, Va., seeds; J. Palmer Gordon, Ashland, Va., plants James M. Lamb, Fayetteville, X. C, trees, shrubs and plants; I. N. Kramer & Son, Cedar Rapids, Iowa, seeds and plants, Wm. H. Spooner, Jamaica Plain, Mass., plants, Syndicat des Cultivateurs d'Oignons a Fleurs, Ollioules (Var) France, bulbs; Louis Vieweg, Quedlinburg, Germany, seeds and plants.

Cut Flower Price Lists Received.

Bassett & Washburn, Chicago; Kennicott Bros Company, Chicago, Kenni-cott Bros Company, Chicago, W. A. McLadden, Cucumati, H. L. Sunder bruch Cucumati, St. Louis Cut Flower Co., St. Louis, Samuel S. Pennock, Phila-delphia Wm. F. Lasting, Buttalo, Holton & Hunkel Co., Milwauker.

Greenhouse Building.

New York S. Y. Goo. Bets, Twenty third street and Webster avenue, one con-

Holidaysburg Pa Bender Brossoni forcing house 25-100 Familield, Cons. O. G. Jennings, one Philadelphia, Pa.-Carl Guckert, Ridge avenue, one greenhouse.

Plain City, O.-Cyrus Converse, two greenhouses 16x70.

Marinette, Wis. - Geo. Vatter, State street, five greenhouses.

Canada Takes Action on Nursery Stock.

The minister of agriculture introduced in the house of commons a bill to protect Canada from the rayages of the San Jose scale, on Wednesday, March 16. The bill absolutely prohibits the importation of all kinds of nursery stock from countries where the insect prevails, and will apply at once to the United States, Japan and Hawaii. By general consent the bill was put through all its stages at one sitting, and therefore became alaw March 17.

HOMER, N. V.—D. C. Coon has bought a half interest in the florist and market gardening business of D. Hobart.

WICKFORD, R. I.-Peter S. Byrnes, of the Homoganset Greenhouses, has been chosen president of the Business Men's Association of Wickford.

CLINTON HEIGHTS, N. Y.—James Brooksbee, for many years a florist here, died on the morning of March 1.

Seed Stores and Flower Stores Can profitably handle our Packages of Plant Food. Attractive, take little & shelf room. Valuable booklet free. Good profits.

The WALKER FERTILIZER CO. Clifton Springs, N. Y.

TRY DREER'S GARDEN SEEDS.

Plants, Bulbs & Requisites.
They are the best at the lowest prices. Trade List issued quarterly, mailed free to the trade only.

HENRY A. DREER, Philadelphia, Pa

Mention American Florist.

NEW . GIANT . ESCHSCHOLTZIAS.

"THE GOLDEN WEST."

New Grant Francy Cosmos, say splendid varieties, separate, $1 oz.; Grant Cosmos, splendid varieties, separate, $1 oz.; Grant Cosmos, splendid mixed, osc. oz., Calhopsis "California Sambeans," $1 oz. Special rates given on Cosmos in quantity; Apple Geranium fresh, $1 per 1000 seeds; New Large Flowering Zonale Geranium, $2.50 oz.; Ipomea, "Heavenly Blue," $1 per 1000 seeds; New Carled and Grested, 50c oz., $5 lb.; Nasturtium Good Venture Gle ib.; $8 per 15 lbs.; Seaforthia elegans (Palm) 30c per 100 seeds, $5 per 15 lbs.; Seaforthia elegans (Palm) 30c per 100 seeds, $1 per 1000 seeds. Send for trade list of Seeds, Plants, Bulbs and Cacti.

MRS. THEODOSIA B. SHEPHERD.
Venturn-by-the-Sea, Cal.

SEEDS LAWN GRASS $12 00 per 100 lba. ment Quality Ever Offered Retails of BOc 1b.)

J. CHAS. MCCULLOUGH, SEEDSMAN, RECLEANER AND JOHNER GRANN REEDS

North Second & Walnut Sts., Cincinnati, O. Soud for Hilostrated Catalogues.

E. F. C. YOUNG, Pres. V. P. SNYDER, Vice-Pres. Jos. D. Bedle, Sec'y. R. S. Fowler, Treas. S. M. Pease, Gen'l Mgr.

The Cleveland Seed Co.

Contract Growers of

Peas ∞ Beans

and General

IOBBERS IN SEEDS.

Cape Vincent, N. Y.

THE ALBERT DICKINSON CO. GRASS SEEDS

Parks, Tennis Courts, Lawns, &c. In fancy I and 2 pound packages and bulk. SPECIAL PRICES TO THE TRADE. CHICAGO, ILL.

BEST OF ALL<sup>33</sup> TOMATO
(FOR FORCING)
"ENGLISH" MELONS
(FOR FORCING)

FLOWER SEEDS FOR FLORISTS Catalogues on application

WEEBER & DON, Seed Merchants and Growers, 114 Chambers St., NEW YORK, N. Y.

CLUCAS & BODDINGTON CO.

Importers and Exporters of

Seeds, Bulbs Plants, 501 TO 503 W. 13TH ST.,

Send for quotations on all Florists' Bulb Stock.

Always mention the .......

American Florist

when writing advertisers.

1878

NIW Price List for If you have not re-Will mult you list illustrated descrip-

SILEMI SPRING and SUMMER ceived, send Postal, and beautifully five Catalogue.....

H. H. BERGER & CO., 220 Broadway, NEW YORK.

ESTABLISHED 1878.

(Branch for Pacific Coast, San Francisco, Cal.)

Horticultural Imports and Exports from Europe, China, Japan, Australia, Mexico, etc.

BURPEE'S SEEDS PHILADELPHIA.

Wholesale Price List for Florists and Market Gardeners

August Rölker & Sons, Spring Bulbs, Florists' Supplies, 3

ITPORT ORDERS booked now for foreing finds. Azuleas, lalv of the Vulley, etc., for full delivery, send for terms to 52 Dey Street, NEW YORK.

Michigan Nursery Law.

NATIONAL EXPRESS COMPANY.

ED. AM. FLORIST:-I am in receipt of your favor of the 8th inst. attached to which is a clipping from the AMERICAN FLORIST in reference to the Michigan nursery law.

, This matter has been referred to our traffic manager and instructions will be amended at once in accord therewith.

J. A. D. Vickers, Supt.

ELMWOOD, N. Y.-I. D. Clift and W. W. Norris have formed a partnership to conduct the business of flower growing here. They will soon erect one large green-

Jackson & Perkins Co.

Growers of Choice Specialties for Nurserymen and Florists.....

NEWARK, NEW YORK. ROSES, NOVELTIES, Strong, field-grown, dormant plants......

THREE NEW RAMBLERS, $1.75 per 10: $16.00 per 100.

Yellow Rambler (Aglaia)
The only hardy yellow climbing rose.
Pink Rambler (Euphrosyne)
Clear light red.
Pure white.

Lord Penzance's Hybrid Sweet Briars.

Lord Penzance's Hybrid Sweet Briars, $1.75 per 10: $15 00 per 100. Extra strong field-grown, dormant plants.

Amy Robsart-lovely deep rose. Anne of Ceierstein-Oark crimson. Brenda-maiden's bush or beach. Flora M'lvor-pure white, blushed rose, Lady Penzance-(b) beautiful, seft that of copper with a peculiar metalle lustre. Lord Penzance-(b) soft shade of fawn or cerue passing to a lovely emerald yellow. Meg Merrilees, gorgeous crimson. Rose Bradwardine-beautiful clear rose.

ROSES, COMMON SORTS.

Strong, field-grown dormant plants, $10 per 100 We can still offer, in nice assortment, some extra flue plants at the above price. List of varieties upon application upon application.

Madame Plantier, Russell's Cottage, climbing, crimson: Ienn. Belle, climbing, blush; extra heavy-dormant plants, on own roots, two years old, $5 per 100.

TREE ROSES.

5 to 7 ft., extra fine, $3.60 per 10; $25 per 100, Crimson, Pink, Rose Red, White, Yellow.

ORNAMENTAL SHRUBS, Per 100

Roses and Shrubs, Clematis, Ornamental Trees, Conders. Small-Fruit Plan's and Fruit Trees sent upon application. A postal eard will bring it if you mention this paper.

JACKSON & PERKINS CO. NEWARK, NEW YORK.

Surplus Stock

Can be disposed of by advertising. Try it .....

This Size "Ad." Costs Only $1.00.

AMERICAN FLORIST Co., CHICAGO.

NURSERIES SPRINGFIELD, N. J.

****

New Fruits and rare Ornamentals. Shade Trees. Shrubbery, river. Specialities. 100 000 Peach at lowest prices. Catalogue free. Agents wanted.

100 ACRES IN TREES AND Deciduous Evergreen, Hedging,

Vines, Bulbs, Tubers, Etc.

NEW 1898 CATALOGUE, 40 PAGES, FREE.

The. Wm H. Moon Co., MORRISVILLE, PENNA.

Mention American Florist.

EVERGREENS

FLORISTS AS WELL AS NURSERYMEN HANDLE MY NURSERY-GROWN EVERGREENS AT A BIG PROFIT

Leaders for this season. 300,000 transplanted Hemlocks. Over 1,000,000 of the beautiful Rocky Mountain Evergreens. 200,000 Red Cedar from northern seed and millions of the old standard sorts, such as Spruces, Pines, Balsams and Arbor Vitæs. My trade list costs you nothing but a postal card.

D. HILL, Evergreen Specialist, Dundee, III.

Nursery Stock Cheap

10,000 Ampelopsis Veitchii, strong field-

Grasses, $3.00 to $6.00 per 100. Hollyho Yards of Dwarf Box. Rocky Mountain Cherry, strong, 7e each. Samples sent on receipt of price. Surplus List Free.

THE ELIZABETH NURSERY CO., ELIZABETH.

Mention American Florist.

STRAWBERRIES

NEW

Lloyd's Favorite

A new variety that has been recommended very highly. Also Lady Thompson and Tennessee Prol fic. $200 per 100; $18.00 per 1000. We have ten more good varieties.

Wonderful Triumph or Philadelphia. Of a very large size: best quality and hardiest; $1.00 per doz.; $7.00 per 100. We bave a good stock.

RUDOLPH BARTH, Florist,

1540 No. 27th Street, - PHILADELPHIA, PA.

Please mention American Florist.

ZŸP & UITGEEST,

BULB GROWERS AND NURSERYMEN

(Nurseries in Holland and Begium)

HEREBY give notice to the American Trade that their representative, Mr. H. Zyp, will arrive in New York on March 16th per S. S. Teutonic. All mail matter for them may be addressed to him

Care of KNAUTH, NACHOD & KUHNE, NEW YORK.

Rhododendrons.

Not imported and therefore hardy. Hardy Azaleas, Japanese Maples, Magnolias, (living guaranteed)

Rare Evergreens. other Trees, new Shrubs, Hedge Plants. Parsons & Sons Co. LIMITED, Flushing, New York.

OWN ROOTS. DORMANT & & FIELD GROWN

No. I. 2 to 4 feet, cut back to 2 feet.

Yellow Rambler (Aglaia), Hybrid Perpetuals, Mosses, Hardy Climbers and Madame Plantier. These plants are very strong and well shaped. Prices on application. Address

W. F. HEIKES, Manager, Room 1308 Unity Bldg., - CHICAGO, ILLS.

HARDY

Herbaceous Perennials THE MOST COMPLETE STOCK IN AMERICA.

PÆONIES, PHLOX, IRIS, DELPHINIUMS, ETC., ETC. JACOB W. MANNING

The Reading Nursery, READING, MASS. ESTABLISHED 1854.

When writing meotion the American Florist.

Assorted in 25 Varieties.

My selection $50 per 1000. Descriptive catalogue and price lists for the trade.

SAMUEL C. MOON, MORRISVILLE. Bucks Co., PA.

CLEMATIS

Large flowering varieties—Rhododendrons, Ampelopsis, Azalea, H. P. Roses, Tree Roses, etc., etc. Lalies, Tuberoses, Begonias and Glovinias.....

Branch of The Horticultural Co. Boskoop, Holland. Rutherford, N. J.

Varieties of Begonia Semperflorens

of which "Vernon" is perhaps the best known are gaining new friends every year; and are holding on to the old ones.

EXCELLENT FOR BEDDING

Try CRIMSON GEM. CORAL GEM and DUCHESSOF EDINBURG in comparison with Gerantums

SOW NOW

Send one dollar and receive a 16 trade packet of each of the above three varieties in return. Cash with order.

A. H. LONSDALE CO., Specialists. Station II Philadelphia, Pa.

Flower Seeds...

... For the Trade.

NEW CROP.⁴ CHOICEST STRAINS . CLOSE PRICES

Vaughan's Seed Store,

1898 SEEDS...

Mammoth Verbena Seeds only $1 (0 per oz. Aster Seeds only 1,00 per oz. Pausy Seeds only 1 00 per oz.

THE MORRIS FLORAL CO., Morris, III.

Aster Seed

Semple's be, ebrated strain of Asters. Finest in the World. Mixed colors, pink, white and layen-der. A.so a small quantity of pink separate.

JAMES SEMPLE,

BOX 2. ..

BELLEVUE, PA.

ROBAER'S Prize Pansies; extra fine stock plants from cold frames, in bad and bloom; transplanted in September; plants measure from 2 to 1 inches in diameter; by express $1.50 cm 100 st200 per 1000, medium size plants transplanted in October, 75c per 100 $5.00 per 1000, Cash vith order, sample plants diets.

PETER BROWN,

Lancaster, Pa.

Pansy Plants.

The denning strate of Panales for safe, 60 cents per 100, in bad and bloom; September sown.

MRS. H. COLCLOUCH,

Boston Florist Letter Co.

FLORISTS' LETTERS.

This wooden hox afterly stained and var-ulshed, 18x30x12 made in two sections, one for each size letter, given lowey with first order of 500 letters.

Block Letters [5] or 2 inch size per (0.4% ft) Script Letters [4] Fastic or with each outer or word 1 sector, each of inchase servey where and for sale by an who can effect at and supply designs.

N. F. McCARTHY, Treas, and Manager, 84 Hawley St., BOSTON, MASS.

WOODEN LABELS for FLORISTS and NURSERYMEN

Being located at the head center of this country for White Pine Lumber we are able to buy our stock right and turnish our customers with goods of the best quality and at prices which will put them at your station lower than the lowest. Our factory is thoroughly equipped and turning out promptly the most uniform, smooth and best painted goods made in this country, put up in neat packages, guaranteed full count and nicely crated.

SEND FOR SAMPLES AND PRICES.

WOODEN GOODS COMPANY, 83 Western Ave., MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.

Folding Boxes and Wax Paper

The Aull Bros. Paper & Box 60.

بريد DAYTON, OHIO. بريديد

HARDY CUT FERNS

FANCY

DAGGER

Do not order any ferns unless you are willing to pay this price as my stock is very limited and I have hardly enough now to carry my old stand-by customers to Laster

L. B. BRAGUE, Hinsdale, Mess.

AND

LEUGOTHE of all wholesahe thouse

SPRAYS... HARLAN P. KELSEY,

160 Tremont Building.

BOSTON, MASS.

BRILLIANT GREEN AND BRONZE GALAX LEAVES,

For Decorating and all Florists Designs. CHAS. H. RICKSECKER, Linville, Mitchall Co., N. C.

FIRST-CLASS GOODS and CORRECT PRICES

have forced us to the front and today we are the largest manufact-mers of ...

IRON RESERVOIR VASES

and Lawn Settees in America. . A 10-page catalogue for the asking.

McDonald Bros.

108-114 Liberty St., COLUMBUS, O.

H. BAYERSDORFER & CO.

Cycas Wreaths, Moss Wreaths, Ferneries and Jardinieres, Wheat Sheaves and Immortelles.

New Catalogue of all FilalSTS SUPPLIES on application 22°For the trade only.

H. BAYERSDORFER & CO.

50, 52, 54 and 56 N. 4th St., PHILAGELPHIA, PA.

John Conley & Son,

2 AND 4 DOMINICK STREET,

__New York.

Cincinnati.

GOOD TRANSIENT TRADE. - SOCIETY MEET-ING.—SNAP SHOTS OF THE SHOW.—PER-SONAL.

Business has been keeping upfairly well for the Lenten season; in fact store men report good transient trade, much better than was expected. The weather being warm and pleasant has brought out the shopping public in great numbers.

Roses and carnations find a ready sale while tulips and violets are moving slowly.

Wholesale houses report a good shipping trade.

The regular monthly meeting of the Cincinnati Florists' Society was held March 12 and called to order by President Wit-terstaetter. The meeting was fairly well attended and the rose and carnation show brought out a goodly number of visitors in the afternoon. There were on exhibition over 100 vases of cut flowers, roses and carnations predominating. Mr. Theo. Bock—his judgeship— was on hand and brought with him Mr. John Boehner of Dayton, Ohio. Mr. Boehner spoke very flatteringly of the Cincinnati monthly show and of the way Mr. Bock hands down decisions. When will Theo, bring his better half around? We are waiting patiently. Snap shots of the show: A vase of 100 Mrs. Geo. Bradt from Fred. Dorner & Sons Co., was magnificent, and I doubt whether this carnation was ever shown in better shape at any of the previous meetings. A vase of Gold Nugget from the same firm was well done and much admired. Mr. Hill showed Psyche and J. Whitcomb Riley; both made a grand showing. Stollery Bros., of Chicago, sent a vase of their new bread-winner, Argyle: everybody seems to like it. A. Sunderbruch's Sons made the largest display in cut flowers as well as pot plants, and received in turn the largest amount of points. City Greenhouses were second with a creditable display of decorative and blooming plants. Messrs. George & Allen were easily first with roses and bulbous flowers, while Mr. Will Murphy made the best general display of standard carnations. A vase of seedling cannas from Fred Walz were very fine, and his vase of chrysanthemums satisfied all curiosity seekers. Mr. Walz says this 'mum can be had almost any time of the year. Evelina was the grandest white on the exhibition table. A new feature at the last show was the mushroom and eucumber display made by Mr. J. Robertson, gardener to Mr. Schmittlapp.

It was decided to hold the next regular meeting on the third Saturday of April, instead of the second.

Mr. E. G. Hill, of Richmond, Ind., and Mr. J. Boehner, of Dayton, Ohio, were visitors at the show.

Mr. Jac. Wezelenburg, of Sassenheim, Holland, carried off several large orders from this city and went to Chicago much H. SCHWARZ. encouraged.

reca Lutescens

LARGE HEALTHY STOCK

| 3   | Plants. | 6-in.  | Pot. | 24 to | 32-in. | high, | very | bushy. | each |         | 1 00  |
|-----|---------|--------|------|-------|--------|-------|------|--------|------|-------------|-------|
| - 3 | 4+      | 7-in.  | 6.4  | 32 to | 36     | .,    | + 6  |        | • •  |         | 1.50  |
| - 3 |         | 8-in   | * *  | 36 to | 42     | 0 +   | 4.4  | 6.6    | 6.4  |         | 2 (0) |
|     |         |        |      |       |        |       | 6.6  | 6.6    | 6.6  |         | 2.50  |
| 1   |         | 10-in. | 6.6  | 4 to  | 5-ft.  | high, | 4.6  | 6.4    | * *  |  | 5.00  |

ALL MEASUREMENTS FROM TOP OF POT.

JOSEPH HEAGOGK, WYNCOTE,

JOHN H. LEY, Good Hope, D. C.

Solicits early orders for following fine stock: NEPHROLFPIS, D. Furcans Each. Doz. 3 to 4 feet over, full, spleodid plants 50 or more froods (in page)....... $2.00 $18.00 NEPHROLEP S. D. Furcans Very large, full of fronds, 3 feet over (6-luch pots, fit for 8-luch)...... 1.00 9.00 NEPHROLEPIS, Bustoniensis

ROBERT CRAIG ROBERT CRAIG

Roses, Palms

and Novelties in Decorative Plants.

Market and 49th Street, PHILADELPHIA, PA.

EEEEEEEEEEEEE

The most showy semi-climber of recent lotroduction. Strong 3-hech plants now ready. Also Little Cem Callas, 2½ heches Logan Berries. Strawberry Raspberries. Mayberries. Write for list and prices.

The Conard & Jones Co. WEST GROVE.

Crowing and Importing of

ORCHIDS

Our Specialty. Correspondence Solicited.

LAGER & HURRELL, - Summit, N. J. Mention American Florist.

MALL

IN ANY QUANTITY.

Palms, Pandanus and Araucarias

JOHN SCOTT, Keap Street Greenhouses, BROOKLYN, N. Y.

Rose Hill Nurseries

LARGEST Growers of Palms, Orchids, Stove and Greenhouse plants, Ferns, Araucarias, Paudanus, New wholesale price list will be ready March 20th.

SIEBRECHT & SON, New Rochelle, N. Y. New York Office, 409 Fifth Ave.

MOST magnificent bedding and decorative plant known. Equal to a palm in beauty and manner of growth; grows with the ease of the Ricinus and endures drought with impunity. Plan s from 4-in. pots set out June 1st attained a height of 10 feet and though not watered once, remained fresh and vigorous throughout the extreme drought. Also produces a delicious fruit; as easily grown as a tomato. Our plants are propagated from a tree which has produced this winter 192 lbs. of fruit, the largest weighing 12 lbs. Send for half-tone illustration from photo showing bed of these plants. Every florist needs it. Price $2.25 per 12 for 3-in, pots, ready May 1st. We are headquarters for tropical plants. Send for list.

Martin Benson, ILLINOIS. DONGOLA,

LARGE FOLIAGE PLANTS

Areca Lute-cens, 8-inch, $2,00; 9-inch, $3,00 each, Latania Borbonica, 8-inch, $2,00; 9-inch, $3,00; 10-inch, $4,00, and 12-inch, $5,00 each, Pandanus Vettehit, 6-inch, $1,00; 7-inch, $1,50; 8-inch, $2,00, and 10-inch, $4,00 each.

COOD STOCK. JOHN WELSH YOUNG, - Germantown, Pa.

tems, small size, $12 50 per 100 lbs Stems, larger " 10.00 per 100 lbs.

J. L. SCHILLER, 404 E. 34th St., NEW YORK.

| Single separate colors...$3,00 | Per 1000
J. L. SCHILLER, 404 E. 34th St., NEW YORK, Sole Agent for Louis V. Driessche, Ghent.

J. L. SCHILLER, 404 E. 34th St., NEW YORK CITY. Cypripedium Garrett A. Hobart.

NEW HYBRID.

Cypripedium Lathamianum X C. insigne Chantini. Foliage deep glossy green, spotted and streaked at the base and partaking much of the character of C. villosum. Scape stout, greenish of C. vinosum. Scape scout, greenish brown, very hirsute; flower very large, dorsal sepal entirely white save a small yellowish green base, and fifteen well defined lines of large lilac purple spots which spread outward from the base, recurving crescent-like toward the top, having a decidedly pretty effect on the pure white field, which is enhanced by a broad border of snowy white. In place of the median line which is in Lathamianum, there is here a commingling of large spots and blotches, lateral sepals crystal green tipped with white and very broad, petals yellow, veined with bronze, sparsely spotted at base, very broad, recurving as in C. villosum, lip shining orange bronze with a yellow band round the orifice, staminode yellow with a conspicuous and very rich egg yolk colored base. This is a noble flower in its proportions, and quite fascinating to look upon, the blooms appearing together. Mr. Roebling desires it named as above in compliment to Vice-president Hobart.

HENRY T. CLINKABERRY.

MOUNT GREENWOOD, 11.1.

MOUNT GREENWOOD, ILL.

MR. FRED BREITMEYER,
Mt. Clemens, Mich.,
DEAR SIR'—In reply to yours for our experience of Cerise Queen, will say that under our treatment the color, form and substance is all that can be desired; we have also found it a very free and continuous bloomer and have never found a bursted cally the whole season; it is a little weak in the stem, but we lay that to the poor place in which it is growing, also we think one should be careful and not overfeed it, as it does not need it, but produces a fine flower under ordinary care.

Yours truly, C. W. JOHNSON.

H DALE, Cut Flower Grower, Brampton, Ontario,

MESSRS, J. BREITMEYER A SONS,
Mt. Clemens, Mich.,
Gents.—The plants of Cerise Queen which you sent me last spring for trail have done well; the flower is of very pleasing color, stem medium length, 15 to 18 inches; habit of plant good. I shall plant it again next year
Your truly.—H. DALE.

DAILLEDOUZE BROS

DAILLEDOUZE BROS., FLATBUSH, BROOKLYN, N. Y.
JOHN BREITMEYER & SONS.
Mt. Clemens, Mich..
GENTS:—We have a few plants of your No. 16,
Cerise Queen. on trial; the flower is medium size,
but fine color, in fact the only fault we find is its dwarf habit; we should like to grow some for side benches, as we believe it far superior to Tidal Wave
for that purpose, and should make a commercial variety, but not high priced. Please give us your best price on 1000 rooted entitings.

Very truly yours,

DAILLEDOUZE BROS.

GEO, A. RACKHAM, Wholesale Grower, Detroit, Mich.

DETROIT, MICH.

J. BREITMEYER & SONS,
Mt. Clemens, Mich..

DEARSIRS:-In reply to yours asking as to my success with your No. 16, Cerise Queen, will say that I consider it the ideal Carnation of its type, very productive, continuous, stiff stem, of medium length, and holds its color longer on the plant than any Tidal Wave ever grown. I shall plant a house of it, if I am able to procure the stock.

Yours, GLO, A. RACKHAM.

We predict CERISE QUEEN is the coming Dark Pink Commercial Carnation. Orders booked and filled in rotation. Price, $2 per doz.; $10 per 100; $75 per 1000. Mexor Plugree—the best of all yellows. Buy your stock from the Originators. Our stock is in excellent condition; $5 per 100; $40 per 1000, R. C.

JOHN BREITMEYER & SONS, Cor. Gratiot and Miami Aves DETROIT, MICH.

Flora Hill CARNATION It sells because there is nothing in sight to at all equal it. It speaks for itself wherever grown. It is fragrant. It is the largest bloom. It puts all others in the shade. Nothing past or present to equal it. We have four thousand plants exclusively for propagating from; don't allow them to bloom. Send at once and get the best stock ever offered. $5.00 per 100; $40,00 per 1000.

Our trade list is issued. If you have not received one send for it.

E. G. HILL & CO., = Richmond, Ind.

|                    | Per 100 | Per 1000 |
|--------------------|---------|----------|
| Flora Hill         | $ 5.00 | $40     |
| Evelina            | 10.00   | 7        |
| Mrs. Frances Joost |         |          |
| Empress            | 10.00   |          |
| Jubilee            | 3.50    |          |
| Painted Lady       | . 10.00 |          |
| Meteor             | . 1.50  |          |
| Mangold            | 3.00    |          |
| Bridesmaid         | 1.50    |          |
| Pingree            | 5.00    |          |
| Victor             | 4.00    |          |
| Alaska             | 1.50    | $12     |
| Scott              | 1.50    | 12       |
| Triumph            | 2.50    |          |
| Armazindy          | 2.00    |          |
| 25 at 100 Rat      |         |          |

NEW ROSE MRS. ROBT. GARRETT

$3.50 per doz.; $25.00 per 100.

SAMPLE OF LETTERS RECE'VED DAILY.

PERTH, ONTARIO, CANADA. March IO, '98,

H. F. LITTLEFIELD.

DEAR SIR: The csrnation cuttings arrived lo first class condition I must say they were floe healthy cuttings. Thanks for attention you paid in packing.

Yours truly, Thos. GOUGH.

H. F. LITTLEFIELD.

WORCESTER, MASS.

NATHAN SMITH & SON

Wholesale Florists

Specialties & ADRIAN, MICH.

CHRYSANTEMUMS CARNATIONS .*.*.* AND VIOLETS.

· · · CORRESPONDENCE SOLICITED · ·

Carnations Chrysanthemums

NEW AND STANDARD VARIETIES

Our new Trade List will embrace the lead-ing novelties of 1898 and 1897 as well as the best standard sorts. Address

H. WEBER & SONS. Oakland, Md.

Mention the American Florist when writing to advertisers on this page.

arnation

Order now and get stock which will make GOOD plants by the fall. 91 points at the recent Convention C.S.A.

$2.00 per doz.; $10.00 per 100; $75.00 per 1000.

Stollery Bros.

ARGYLE PARK.

CHICAGO.

Buffalo.

The Florists' Club held its annual meeting on Thursday evening and elected officers for the coming year. The voting officers for the coming year. The voting resulted as follows: For president, Wm. Scott; vice-president, Wm. Beuchi; secretary, Wm. Legg; financial secretary, Phillip Scott; treasurer, W. F. Kasting; executive committee, John F. Cowell, D. B. Long, A. H. Wise, W. A. Adams, S. A. Anderson.

It seemed to be the unanimous opinion of the members present that a flower show should be held this fall, and it was so decided. The executive committee will proceed to arrange the preliminaries and report at the next meeting.

After the business meeting adjourned the members of the club and their friends proceeded to the Hotel Ontario, where the annual banquet was served. Of course the decorations were most artistic and the tables were groaning under the weight of the roses sent by Peter Crowe, of Utica. Wm. Scott acted as toastmaster, and his ability in that line is too well known to need any comment here—suffice it to say that he was, on this occasion, at his best. Everybody had something to say, and had no difficulty in saying it and it was really late before "Auld Lang Syne" was sung, and the usual benedic-tion pronounced. Among the visitors present were Mr. Max Beatus, of Cleveland, Mr. Henry Niemeyer, of Erie, and Mr. E. B. Sage, of Redrock, Pa.

Where was George Fancourt? The weather continues really spring-like, robins, bluebirds, song sparrows, meadow-larks, blackbirds, etc., are with us and crocuses, scillas, eranthis, violas, etc., are blooming in the borders, and the white maple, alder and willow are in full blossom.

Callers during the week were, Walter Mott, and D. MacRorie.

<sub>g</sub>e ee e THE BEST OF THE NEW PINK CARNATIONS

Mrs. Frances

A WINNER EVERYWHERE.

$2.00 per dozen; $10.00 per 100; $75.00 per 1000 Cash with order.

C. BESOLD, Mineola, L. I., N. Y. n Verererererererererere

Experiences

. . . with . . .

CARNATIONS

The next number ready March I. will be cultural as we'l as descriptive, and sent free to all applicants. I Guarantee all cuttings sent out and offer a Special Guarantee to all buyers of Flora Hill and Triumph.

ALBERT M. HERR,

.... LANCASTER, PA.  $\widehat{A}$   $\widehat{m}$   $\widehat{m}$

It will be better for everybody if you mention the American Florist when writing advertisers on this page.

NEW GARNATION

"Mrs.S.A. Northway"

A soft shell pink, developing to nearly pure white.

OUR MASTERPIECE.

We shall commence shipping soon.

Orders booked now and filled in rotation....

PRICE: PER 100, $10.00.

Newer Geraniums.

Mme. Bruant, Mme. Jaulen, Fleure Poitevine, J. Sallier and J. Ricaud. Fine stock from 2<sup>1</sup>4-inch pots, $5.00 per 100% & & ROOTED CUTTINGS, $3.00 per 100; $25.00 per 1000. Net cash. & & &

GENERAL LIST OF GERANIUMS.

A superb stock in quality and variety of all the finest sorts, from 21/4-in. pots, named. $25 per 1000; unnamed, $20 per 1000. ROOTED CUTTING, $12.50 per 1000. Net cash. & & & & & &

Fuchsias.

A grand lot of summered-over stock in small pots that will make early blooming plants, $3 per 100. 3 3 3

W. P. SIMMONS & CO.

Make the following statement to the readers of the American Florist&&&&&

> As originators and introducers of

"Silver Spray,"

"Tidal Wave,"

"Daybreak,"

and "Rose Queen,"

each of which has, we believe, proven even better than we claimed for them. We NOW say for 1898 that possesses all the good points that go to make up a first-class and profitable cut flower sort, and that we introduce it with even more confidence than we did the others.

"Mrs. S. A. Northway"

It is an extra strong grower.

It is free from rust or disease. It is a profuse bloomer.

It has excedingly strong stiff stems.

It is of exquisite form full and double.

The flower is high built. petals serrated.

The calyx does not burst.

It is delightfully fragrant (a quality lacking in many new ones.)

OUR PRICE LIST now ready, contains prices on many other plants.

SEND FOR

W. P. SIMMONS & CO., Geneva, Ohio.

PRICE LIST of rooted cuttings of New Carnation

| 1  | doze | n or  | up, prepaid | l by ma | il or exp | ress      |        |
|----|------|-------|-------------|---------|-----------|-----------|--------|
|    | 25 ( | or up | (to 100) "  | 66      | •         | ' 10 00 p | r 100  |
|    | 100  | "     | purchaser   | paying  | charges   | 8.00 p    | r 100  |
|    | 250  | "     | "           | 44      |           | 7.00 p    |        |
|    | 500  |       | 44          | 44      |           | 675 p     |        |
| 1, | 000  | 44    | 66          | 44      | 66        |           | r 1000 |

Descriptive illustrated and priced circular free.

DAN'L B. LONG. Sales Agent, Buffalo, N. Y.

Kathleen Pantlind

Is a much more substantial flower than Daybreak; color a shade or two darker and entirely rust proof. Can be seen at Vaughan, McKeller & Winterson's every Wednesday and Saturday.

Price $1.50 per 12; $10.00 per 100; $75.00 per 1000.

Kathleen Pantlind.

Premium—5 Red Wave with every 100 HOPP & LEMKE. Paul P. O., E. GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.

Beetles.

ED. AM. FLORIST: Enclosed find specimen of an insect that is very trouble-some in my greenhouses. It comes out of the ground in the morning and alights on the window sashes where it stays until sundown, when it goes into the ground again. I have tried fumigating with tobacco and nicotine, but it has not proved successful. Please let me know through the columns of your paper what these insects are and how they can be exterminated.

E. R. Lowe.

I have your letter of March 8, with accompanying beetles, which one of your subscribers states come out of the ground in the morning and alight on the glass of his greenhouse. The insect which you send is one of the smaller dung beetles of the family Scarabæidæ and known to science as Aphodius granarius. It is an imported insect, having been brought to this country from Europe many years ago, and is, so far as we know, not in any way injurious. There is, it must be admitted, one record of injuries by this species to the seed of grain in the earth, but this is probably an extremely exceptional case. Everything considered, I would advise your correspondent not to worry about the insect, as in time it will probably disappear.

L. O. Howard, Entomologist.

20,000 CHRYSANTHEMUMS.

2\circle pots.

Major Bonnaffon, $2 (0 per 100 or $15 00 per 1000; President Smith, Eda Prass, $1.50 per 100 or $12 00 per 1000; Ceraniume—the best mixed warlettes for bedding, $\frac{1}{2}\circle pots, showing buds $2.50 per 100 or $15 (0) per 1000; 2\circle pots, $2.50 per 100 or $15.00 per 1000. Cash with order or satisfactory reference.

PAXTON GREENHOUSES, Harrisburg, Pa. C. E. Taube, Prop.

CARNATIONS. New

WHITE CLOUD—White.
GOLD NUGGET—Yellow.
NEW YORK (Ward)—Bright cerise pink.
MRS. JAMES DEAN (Ward)—Clear silvery pink.
JOHN YOUNG (Ward)—White.
BON TON (Ward)—Scarlet.
Prices for above varieties: $2.00 per doz., $10.00
per 100, $75.00 per 1000.

We will also have Cerise Queen (Breitmeyer),
Argyle (Stollery), Jack Frost (Swayne), Empress (Swayne), Evelina (Witterstaetter), Firefy (Hancock), Psyche (Hill), Painted Lady (Hill), and Mrs. S. A. Northway (Simmons).

All good 1887 novelties and other standard varieties at reasonable prices.

New Chrysanthemums.

MRS. C. II. PEIRCE—Yellow.

3 ic each, $3.50 per doz., $25.00 per 100.

SNOW QUEEN—White.

500 per doz., $35.00 per 100.

MERRY CHRISTMAS—Late White.

35c each, $3.50 per doz., $25.00 per 100.

Sciel for Descriptive Price List. Ready January, 1998.

F. DORNER & SONS CO. LAFAYETTE, IND.

STRONG, HEALTHY ROOTED CUITINGS Ready Feb. 1st and Later

In M. W. W. H. Hi Daybreak Win Service W. Gerrari, i. f. in verspray Limity Per Goodneh I levels and others. Send me at distant on action 2st prices before the results of another set of communications.

CHAS. CHADWICK.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH. Lock Box II.

New CARNATIONS

FOR SPRING OF '98 NOW READY.

EVELINA, per 1000. $80. MRS. S. A. NORTHWAY.

WHITE CLOUD. ARGYLE.

GOLD NUGGET. BON TON.

Price for strong, well-rooted cuttings, per doz., $2.00; per 100, $10.00; per 1000, $75.00.

VARIETIES OF 1897

VICTOR

STANDARD VARIETIES

ALASKA.....

DAYBREAK Transplanted plants from flats, per doz., 30c; per WILLIAM SCOTT 100, $2; per 1000, $15.

CALADIUMS, Fancy Leaved, choice bulbs in named sorts, per doz., 75c; per 100, $12.00.

VAUGHAN'S SEED STORE,

NEW YORK, 14 Barclay St.

84-86 Randolph St., CHICACO.

ARNATIONS! UP-TO-DATE

No one can afford to grow poor varieties, or poor stock of good varieties. We have as fine a stock as can be found of all the Novelties and Standard Sorts and they are Ready Now. Do not delay, order now while stock is complete. Catalogue and samples on application.

GEO. HANCOCK & SON. GRAND MAYEN. MICH

will be paid for any RUST found in our Carnations. All pure and healthy. Throw out that old RUSTY Stock, begin anew with clean stock. WE HAVE NICE PLANTS IN 2-INCH POTS.

| Stuart                     |            |
|----------------------------|------------|
| Goldfløch                  |            |
| Albertini                  | 200 9.2    |
| Bridesmald.Uncle John. |            |
| Uncle John                 | 1000 18.00 |
| Storm King                 |            |
| Daybreak                   |            |
| William Scott              |            |
|                            |            |

McDONALD & STEELE.

109 So. Washington St.,

_CRAWFORDSVILLE, IND.

ORDERS PLEASE

| All the Leading Carnations Now Ready, 3       | 2e | r 100  |
|-----------------------------------------------|----|--------|
| Geraniums named our selection only, 214-in    |    | $2.00 |
| Salvias, Clara Bedman, 24-in                  |    | 2.00   |
| Little Gem Feverfew, 24-in                    |    |        |
| Coleus, 20 best bedders. 24-In                |    |        |
| Lycopodium Denticulatum, 24-1c                |    |        |
| Tradescantla Multicolor, 25/-in               |    | -2.00  |
| Alternanthera Aurea Nana and P. Major, 214-10 | 1  | -2.00  |

THE MORRIS FLORAL CO., Morris, III.

ou galerou

The Gardenia Carnation.

Plants Now Ready 3 $10,00 per 100 00.00 per 1000

JOHN BURTON, PHILADELPHIA, PA. Chestnut Hill.

50,000 Flat-Grown GARNATIONS

| STRONC STOCK.                       | per 100 | per 1000 |
|-------------------------------------|---------|----------|
| Daybreak                            | $2.00  | £15 ti0  |
| Scott                               | 2 00    | 15.00    |
| Rose Queen                          | 2 00    | 15 00    |
| Tidal Wave.                         | 1.50    | 12.00    |
| Portia                              |         |          |
| Rob Roy (new)                       |         |          |
| Jubilee.                            |         |          |
| Snow Queen                          |         |          |
| Sliver Spray                        |         | 12.00    |
| L McGowan                           | 1.50    | 12 00    |
| Eldurado, Meteor                    |         |          |
| Flora Hill                          |         |          |
| Triumph, Armazindy                  | 3.00    |          |
| Pluto, new, and Uncle Sam, new, bot | th      |          |
| www.latlan                          | 10.00   |          |

Cash with order. HENRY A NIEMEYER, Erie, Pa.

CARNATION

STRONG ROOTED CUITINGS

... $7.50 per 1000 ... 6,50 per 1000 Lastehance Cash with order, this no will not appear again.

Lake Geneva Floral Co., LAKE GENEVA.

CARNATIONS.

Rooted Cuttings I have aline stock of this peerless variety also most of the leading standard sorts

MARIE FOLISE rooted runners at special low rates, Write for priors - Will exchange for fruit

W. W. COLES, -Kokomo, Ind.

CARNATIONS Rooted Cuttings

|     | Per                           |             |
|-----|-------------------------------|-------------|
|     | Daybreak$1Lizzie McGowan | .25         |
|     |                               | . 10.75 |
| - 1 |                               | .75         |
|     | Brides                        |             |
| 40  | Pridomaida                    |             |

ROSES 2-in. Pots.... Bridesmaids Vinea Major, 2-in. pots @ $2.00 per 100.

R. ROY DAVIS, - Morrison, 111.

NEW CARNATION....

The largest, bright rich crimson yet introduced...

Empress

Send for price list of above, New and Standard Sorts....

WM. SWAYNE, Box 226, Kennett Square, Pa.

REDUCED PRICES

- Very Line Rooted-

Carnation Cuttings

laken from our "Prize" Stock.

ALBERTINI McCOWAN ALASKA HELEN KELLER ARMAZINDY DAYBREAK

$2 00 per 100; $15 00 per 1000.

SOUTH PARK FLORAL CO., New Castle, Ind.

ROOTED CUTTINGS

|                |      |     |        |      |       | _      |      |
|----------------|------|-----|--------|------|-------|--------|------|
| Armazinds      |      |     |        |  |       | 50 per | 100  |
| Mrs Fisher, 🤧  | (N)  | per | TINNI, |      | 1 | DO per | 100  |
| Wm. Scott ±10  | 1)() | per | TORRI, |      | 1 | 10 jer | 100  |
| Sweet Alyssum. |      |     |        |  |   | 75 per | .100 |

UASH WITH ORDER.

FRANK W. POORE, - Haverhill, Mass.

WEST ISLIP GREENHOUSES.

CARNATIONS. Rooted Unitings
Scott, Porlin, McGowan, 81 to per 100 - 8800 per 1000.
Daybrenk, 41 - 40 per 100 - Milved Germiliums, from tata, strong pilonts 81600 per 1000. Milved Chanima, dry roots of the Indiowing sorts - Alphonso Bonvier, Mmc, Croy, Clins, Henderson, Queen Charlotte, Burbank, John White, etc., 82/0 per 100 - Cash with order,

E. B. SUTTON, Jr., Babylon, L. I.

5000 GARDENIA FLORIDA

-3-inch pots, 8 10 inches bigh, $8 per 100; $70 per 1000. 25 000 Cannas, dermant roots, in 20 hest sorts, $20 per 1000.

Lacania Borbonica, 4-Inch pots, 1-2 choica leaves, 12-15 lc., $15 per 100. Latanla Borbonica, 4-loch pots, 2-3 choice leaves, 15-18 in., $20 per 100.

Phoenix Reclinaia, 4 inch pota, 12-15 in., $15 per 100. Phoenix Reclinata, 4-inch pota, 15-18 in., $25 per 100. Oranges, heat sorts, grafted, 4-inch pots, 10-12 in., $20 per 100; 5-loch pets, 18-20 la., $30 per 100.

P. J. BERCKMANS, Augusta, Ga.

out of 21/2-inch Pots; good strain; strong plants ready for cutting, $2 50 per 100. Cash with order.

ED. QUINN, Springfield, Mo.

GERANIUMS that will please you and prices that will suit you

S. A. Nutt, LaFavorito, Heteranthe, $2.50 per 100; $20.00 per 1000; Beaute Poitevine, Mary Hill, $3.00 per 100; Mme. Bruant, Frances Perkins, $5.00 per 100. 10 varieties Coleus, 4 varieties Carnations, 2 varieties Agenatus. Prices upon application. Ageratum. Prices upon application.

H. R. CARLTON, Willoughby, O.

GERANIUMS.

Extra strong and robust plants in bud, 312-inch pots. Double Grant. Nutt, and finest varieties to be had, $3.50 per 100; extras added. Adams and U. S. express. Order early.

JOHN F. RUPP, Shiremanstown, Pa.

Vinca Variegata...

ROOTED CUTTINGS unde last fall, $1.50 per 100; 3½-inch pots, $3.50 per 100; or will evelange for some rooted cuttings of Double Petunia, Fuchsias, two year old; La France, Beauties and Mme.

GUST. OBERMEYER, Parkersburg, W. Va.

The Cottage Gardens ->- OUEENS. L.I.

Specialties in CARNATIONS. CHRYSANTHEMUMS. (CHOORS, GERADIUMS, DAHLIAS, SEND FOR OUR PRICE LIST

PANSIES
THE JENNINGS STRAIN.
THEY ARE GRAND.
Fine stocky plants in bud
and bloom, $10 and $15 per to by mail. Pansy seed, $1.00 per pkt. Aster seed, Semple's pink, $1 00 per oz. Cash with order.

E. B. JENNINGS,

SOUTHPORT, CONN. Lock Box 254. Crower of the Finest Pansies.

MARCH OFFER

JOS. H. CUNNINGHAM, - Delaware, Ohio.

Say "saw your ad. in the Florist" when you write advertisers.

100,000 VERBENAS. THE CHOICEST VARIETIES IN CULTIVATION

Fine pot plants, $2.50 per 100; $20 per 1000. Rooted Cultings, 75c per 100; $6.00 per 1000; $50 per 10000. NO RUST OR MILDEW.

PACKED LIGHT, AND SATISFACTION GUARANTEED. SEND FOR CIRCULAR. We are the Largest Growers of Verbenas in the country. Onr plants cannot be surpassed.

J. L. DILLON, Bloomsburg, Pa.

***VERBENAS.

The finest collection in America, 35 varieties, every one a gem—mammoth size, striking colors, green as grass. Strong rooted cuttings, 60e per hundred; $5.00 per thousand; five thousand, $20.00. New Yellow Marguerite finest variety, strong 2-in, pot plants, 3e; rooted cuttings, 2e.

STRICTLY CASH WITH ORDER.

SOUTH SIDE FLORAL CO., Springfield, III.

Rooted Cuttings CARNATIONS And Other Stock

DOUBLE HOLLYHOCKS

Fine plants, one-year-old. Pansies, Verbenas, &c. Send for Price List.

W. PIKE. ST. CHARLES, ILL.

GREEN AS GRASS.

MAMMOTH VERBENAS

Fine selected stock in separate colors. Rooted cuttings, per 100, 75c; per 1000, $6.00. Cash with order.

FRANK S. PAYNE, Barnard Crossing, N. Y.

AZALEA INDICA

We have an immense stock of all the best varieties; well set with buds; large plants, 12 to 15-inch, $6.00 per doz.; $45 per 100.

PANSIES

We grow over a million from the choicest seed of Bugnot. Cassier. Odier and Tri-mardeau: transplanted in cold frames; 60e per 100; $4.00 per 1000.

HARRISII LILIES

In bud, guaranteed right for Easter; 10c per bud.

CINERARIAS

In bud and bloom, $1.00 per doz.

| ROOTED CUTTINGS 100                        | 1000   |
|--------------------------------------------|--------|
| Mammoth Verbenas $ .70                    | $5,50 |
| Double Petunia 1.00                        |        |
| Heliotrope                                 |        |
| Ageratum                                   |        |
| Double Golden Dwarf Marguerite, $1.00 per | 100.   |

PLANTS 214-inch.

WHITTON & SONS.

Wholesale Florists,

UTICA, N. Y. City and Creen Sts., -

FAXON'S "WHITE" PANSIES.

The best mixture in cultivation, flowers very tree, thick and velvety; of superb colors and tarkings. The perfection of form and texture. markings.

In Trade Packets at $1.00 each.

M. B. FAXON,

1528. BOSTON, MASS. Correspondence solicited. Lock Box 1528,

SPECIALTIES IN BEST VARIETIES.

ROSES, from 3-inch pets.

CARNATIONS, for fall delivery. CHRYSANTHEMUMS, SMILAX,

VIOLETS. Prices low. Send for list.

WOOD BROTHERS, FISHKILL, N.Y.

CLEMATIS Jackmanni, Henryli doz. 100 and others......$3.00 $20.00

H. P. ROSES Strong, 2 and 3 years own roots. $1.50 $10.00 RED JACKET GOOSEBERRY, only large

DOWNING, best for general crop, special

F. A. BALLER, Bloomington, III.

KLONDIKE

Cold Fields at Your Door.

Cold Fields at Your Door.

COLEUS—All kinds, all grades and all prices.
Verschaffeltil and Queen. 75c per 100: $8.00 per 1000; 25c-inch pota. $15 00 per 1000; $1.75 per 100. Coleux in variety, 55c per 100; 24 50 per 1000; $1.50 per 100. $12 00 per 1000; $1.50 per 100. Agratum dwarf blue. 60c per 100; $3.00 per 1000. Fuchsias, atandard sorta. $12 00 per 1000; $1.50 per 100. Double Petunias. extra fine atrain for flats. $1.50 per 100. S12.00 per 1000. Anthemis Coronaria. Goiden Marquerite. $1.50 per 100: $12.00 per 100. Salvia splendens, $1.00 per 100. Vinca variegata, $1.50 per 100; $1.00 per 100. Salvia splendens, $1.00 per 100. Heliotrope. 6 varieties. $1.00 per 100; $1.00 per 100; $1.00 per 100. Alternathera Paronychioldes. Major and Aurea Nana. 60c per 100. Heliotrope. 6 varieties. $1.00 per 100; $1.00 per 100. Shot per 100. Sh

J. E. FELTHOUSEN, Schenectady, N. Y.

CARNATIONS AND COLEUS

ROOTED CUTTINGS

THE 1898 INTRODUCTIONS THE 1897 INTRODUCTIONS

DAYBREAK of special quality.

ROOTED COLEUS in variety.

Cood stock only. Price list free.

DAN'L B. LONG, Growers' Agent, BUFFALO.

5,000 SMILAX...

From flats, by mall, 50c per 180, $4.00 per 1000 From 2-Inch pots, $2.25 per 100, $13.00 per 1000 Gerantums from 2-Inch pots, $2.25 per 100; $20.00 per 1000. Cash with the order. Send for aamples. Fred Boerner, CAPE MAY CITY, N.J.

Marie Louise Violet Runner*s*

Good plants, healthy stock, $5.00 per 1000,

A. WASHBURN & SON BLOOMINGTON, ILL.

LETTUCE AND OTHER... VEGETABLE PLANTS

LETTUCE-Big Boston, Boston Market, Tenn.; Ball, Grand Rapids and Reichner's Forcing. 15 etc. per 100; $1,00 per 1000

TOMATO, CABBAGE and CELERY-Small plants for transplanting now ready. 15 cts. per 100;

81 00 per 1000. Pepperand Egg Plaots—25 cts per 100; $2,00 per 1000. CAULIFLOWER, Snowbail-35 cts per 100; $2.5 per 1000; If by mall add 10 cts per 100 for small plants, and 50 cts. per 1000. Send for price list. Cash with order.

R. VINCENT, Jr. & SON, White Marsh, Md. Mantion American Florist.

Worcester, Mass.

Although Lent has been responsible for some falling off in trade, it was not felt as much as was anticipated. There has been no surplus to speak of; and though business is not brisk florists are doing something most of the time.

Lilies will not be plentiful in this vicinity for Easter, though it has been an exceptionally easy season to get them in on time. The shortage can be laid almost wholly to the lily disease, which has made sad inroads on the stock of some growers. One whom I visited today has thrown out about 800 pots, and there are a good many left that have the same fate in store for them.

It is becoming a difficult matter to hold azaleas for Easter with the thermometer outside registering 65°, and most of the azaleas will be numbered among the "has beens" by the time Easter gets around.

Of other stock there will be a goodly quantity. I should say more perhaps than usual. There is a large crop of roses and carnations in sight; and bulbous stock, There is a large crop of roses and like the poor, is always with us,

Hot weather is playing havoe with the violets inside, but some growers are getting good blooms from the frames outdoors.

Fisher & Son have been leased out of their present location, and have secured a commodious store a few doors south of A. H. L. their present location.

Fort Wayne, Ind.

Mr. Vesey's seedling carnation Fort Wayne, which he is likely to put on the market next season, is unquestionably one of the best red ones 1 have yet seen, both flower and stem being perfect; the average size of the flower, by actual measurement, being three inches in diam-A houseful of this variety presents a sight well worth seeing. As to Mr. Vesey's general stock, including both his roses and carnations—superbis the word.

At Miss Flick's greenhouses, but a short distance from Vescy's place, the sight was equally attractive. Jubilee, Scott, and Mrs. Geo. Bradt looked fine. Albertini, however, is an especial favorite with Miss Flick. Besides the varieties mentioned and a few other standard sorts, Miss Flick is experimenting upon two seedlings, one white, being a cross between Uncle John and Daybreak, and the other one, a pretty rose pink, is a cross between Uncle John and Bridesmaid.

Mr. Vesey contemplates adding six good sized, well equipped houses to his own plant. "How do you find the greenhouse insurance business?" I ventured to Vesey contemplates adding six "Quite encouraging, indeed, and the more so because our plan seems to be gaming more and more favor." Homo,

Special Easter Number

T'III. . ie of the American APRIL 2 A. . be the unding Easter or Spring Num-ber and by to be sent to all the new names other rod for the 1888 Directory

Peacock's 26 First Prizes out of 39 entries in 1896 and 1897 Prize Winning Dahlias

IMPORTERS

JAPANESE PLANTS. BULBS, ETC.

At lowest prices. Small orders filled from experimental garden Columbia Road, Dorchester, Mass. Wholesale catalogue, 1898 free to the trade.

JAPANESE NURSERY,

Office: 272 Boylston St., .

BOSTON, MASS.

Field-Grown Roots in all the Leading Varieties $5.00 to $7.00 per 100.

30,000 DAHLIAS

Before ordering your Dahlla stock be sure and send for my catalogue of noveitles and atandards of the best quality and at the lowest prices. All stock guaranteed true to name.

W. W. WILMORE, Dahlia Specialist, Box 382, Denver, Colo.

Chrysanthemums for 1898

Alice F. Carey, Chempwec, Dolores, Minnewaska, Miss Gladys Vanderbilt, Robt. G. Carey, Spotswood.

All good commercial varieties at $3 50 per doz.; $25.00 per 100. Also all the new varieties of other raisers at advertised prices. And all the best Standard Varieties of former years for all purposes at prices to suit the times.

JOHN N. MAY, Summit, New Jersey.

Two Great Sports

CARNATION

VICTOR

Undoubtedly the best Pink Carnation in commerce and certainly the most prollife bloomer, perfectly healthy and of vigorous growth. Rooted cuttings now ready. $4.00 per 100; $3.00 per 100. Cune and see this carnation growing.

CHRYSANTHEMUM PENNSYLVANIA

The finest yellow for cut blooms or exhibition purposes ever produced. Plants ready March 15, $5.00 per doz.; $55.00 per 100; $250.00 per 1000.

HUGH GRAHAM, 104 South 13th Street, PHILADELPHIA.

Mention this paper.

"IBOSS" Chrysanthemums WM. H. CHADWICK—the grandest white novelty of the season. THE YELLOW FELLOW —Winner of $100 Stearns bleyele prize. MADELINE PRATT—"As pretty as her picture."

Distributed March 1st by leading firms and the grower...... Grove P. Rawson, Elmira, N. Y.

Jardinieres, Pots@Pedestals

Florists' Use.

Artistic Shapes and Decorations.

100100100000000000000

Write us for Illustrations

W. P. PEACOSK, - Atco, N. J. BURLEY & TYRRELL, 42=44 Lake St., CHICAGO.

Provo, UTAH.—The articles of incorporation of the Nebo Nursery Company have been filed for record. The nursery will be located on the land lately brought into cultivation by the construction of the Nebo canal. Forty thousand young trees have been purchased by the company and will be replanted as soon as the weather permits.

Toledo, Iowa.-The contract for planting the trees and shrubbery at the Indian school has been let to M. L. Tibbetts, of the Toledo nursery.

Down to War Prices...

Tuberose Pearl, 4 to 6 inches, per 1000...$5.00
Spirae Japonica clumps, per 100.....3.00
Iris Germanica, fine field roots, mixed, per 1000......8.00
Iris Kæmpferi, fine field roots, mixed, per 1000......8.00

Send cash with orders.

HULSEBOSCH BROS.

ENGLEWOOD, N. J.

A NEW departure in Tuberose growth.

A New departure in Tuberose growth.

Flower bearing birds continue to form around the old flower stock indefinitely.

Flowers greatly superior to those of all other single Tuberoses. A warded Certificate of Merit by the S. A. F. at Providence last Angust, and the Shaw Gold Medal at St. Louis in November.

For Prices and Particulars ...Address...

LUTHER ARMSTRONG,

3720 Olive St., ST. LOUIS MO.

For FLORISTS.. For SEEDSMEN.

VAN ZANTEN BROTHERS,

HILLEGOM,

HOLLAND.

Gladiolus Bulbs FOR FLORISTS.

WE HAVE THEM! WE HAVE THEM!

> Columbian Medal. S. A. F. Certificate of Merit. First prizes wherever shown. Cushman's Celebrated Seedlings. A light mixture. No. 1, $1.25 per 100; $10.00 per 1000. No. 2, $1.00 per 100, $8.00 per 1000. Our No. 2 are fine bulbs, 1½-in. and over.

Euclid, O. CUSHMAN GLADIOLUS CO.,

SPRING

AURATUM.

L. RUBRUM (Speciosum) 60.00

LILIUM ALBUM (Speciosum) Per 100 Per 1000 7-9 inch. 6.50 9-11 inch. 7.50  $55.00 \\ 65.00$

30.00

TUBEROSES....

True Excelsior Pearl.
"Hallock strain" First size..... 1.00 7.50

GLOXINIAS ..... Per doz., 85c; per 100, $5.00

CALADIUMS.....

Fancy leaved choice bulbs, per doz., $1.75; per 100, $12.00.

CALADIUM ESCULENTUM

Cured and sound bulbs with live center
Doz. 100

GLADIOLUS XXX Florists Mixture

Per 100.....$1.75 Per 1000.....$15.00

VAUGHAN'S SEED STORE

NEW YORK 14 Barclay St. CHICACO 84-86 Randolph St.

CANNAS NEW AMERICAN Finest in the World Our Novelties for 1898

OUR CANNAS IN FRANCE.

To Mesers. A. Blanc & Co.
Your new cannas of last year gave me much satisfaction. Please send me a complete set of your novelties for 1898 as soon as ready. Also 12
Glant Crimson, etc.
Signed CH. MOLIN,
Lyon, France, Jan. 3, 188.

ASPARAGUS SPRENGERI

Fine plants in 6-inch pots, ready for 8-inch, $5 per 12.

AMARYLLIS.....
Veitch's Hybrids. $4 per 12; Equestra, $4 per 100; Formoslesima, $3 per 100.

CALLAS

Spotted Leaf, $3; Black, $5; Yellow, $30; all per 100. Golden, $2 each.

DAHLIAS

11 prizes out of 22 at the last Dahlia exhibition. First prize Dahlia, GILT EDGE, $15 per 100 Send for special fist.

A. BLANC & CO., Philadelphia, Pa.

Cablegram

<sup>7</sup>okohama

WE received the above Cablegram from our Yokohama house stating that again we control the largest part of Lilium longillorum for next season. Prices will be quoted upon arrival

SUZUKI & IIDA,

No. 15 Broadway. NEW YORK.

No. 3 Nakamura. YOKOHAMA, JAPAN.

It is good business policy to mention the American Florist when you write to our advertisers.

100,000 CANNAS

THE STORRS & HARRISON CO., Painesville,

Cleveland.

WARM WEATHER, -- SMALL WAR ON PRICES. NOTES ON EASTER STOCK.—VISITORS,

The long continued and rather unseasonable warm spell that we have been having has begun to affect the supply of stock coming in, although the quality has not at all deteriorated. Lenten duliness, too, contributes its share toward diminishing the demand. About the only striking result so far developed by the situation has been a small war of prices on carnations and tulips between a couple of stores on Erie street. Things got lively enough to reduce prices to 15 cents a dozen for carnations and 25 cents for tulips, rates highly satisfactory to the buyer no doubt, however they may suit others.

Easter stock is beginning to be somewhat discussed, although the length of time still to elapse precludes anything very definite in the way of information, especially in cut flowers. There promises to be the usual supply of everything, with apparently an increase in the stock of azaleas offered. In some eases these are showing a tendency toward undue earliness that threatens to prove disastrous to the owner's chances for holding them until Easter. Aside from azaleas, blies occupy a prominent place in every florist's calculations for Easter stock. It would seem that, owing to the rayages of disease, there will be less of these in the hands of a good many growers than has been the ease for some years previous. Some of the batches on hand look rather late as well as showing considerable disease, nevertheless, the sources of supply being so varied, there may be no shortage to amount to anything. Other stock looks about the same as in other years, even to hydrangeas, which are as usual rather tardy in many cases. Bulb stock of all kinds is still outside, so that it is not easy to tell just what may be offered.

Messrs, Graham and Cushman left Washington, afternoon for Monday.

where they attend the Society of American Florists' Executive Committee meet-

The regular club meeting brought out a good attendance Monday night, but as there was little or no business to transact the time was put in at ten-pins and eards. In town lately were Messrs, Joseph Rolker, MacRorie and Van Lieuwen, representing respectively A. Rolker & Sons, W. A. Manda and Beerhorst & Van Lieuwen.

NEW FORCING ROSE MRS. ROBT. GARRETT

Hybrid tea, rich soft pink, buds very long, flower extra large, delightfully fragrant, rivaling Bridesmaid in color, but larger and much more productive. A sturdy, vigorous grower, a money maker and a triumph of American skill. The best firms in the country are investing in it. It has won numerous prizes and has elicited the most favorable comment from critical judges. Price strong plants from  $2\frac{7}{2}$ -inch pots, \$25.00 per 100 in lots less than 1000; \$225.00 per 1000. Orders booked now, delivery March 15, 1898. Correspondence solicited. Address

H. WEBER & SONS. Oakland. Md.

ROSES

Guaranteed first-class. Stock grown in low temperature.

THE E. HIPPARD CO., Youngstown, Ohio.

Also of Carnations

Send 50c for samples and prices. Fine Smilax in 2-inch pots. Geraniums in 2 and 3-inch pots,

GEO. A. KUHL. Pekin. III.

New American Rose_

MRS. ROBERT GARRETT

As one of the syndicate boildog stock to this rose we offer first class plants, from 25-inch pots, to be de-livered on and after March 15, 188, at the agreed price of $3.50 per doz., $25.00 per 100, $225.00 per 1000.

AMERICAN ROSE CO.

YOUNG ROSES 300,000 300.000

Ramblers, Climb. Malmaison, Climb. White Pet, Climb. Wootton, Pres. Carnot and too other leaders in Teas, H. Teas and Climbers.

Send for prices.

The National Plant Company, Dayton, Ohio.

CUTTINGS ...ROOTED

No scrub wood used. All stock thoroughly rooted and From 21/2-Inch Puts carefully packed when sent out. Send for samples... Per 100 Per 1000 Per 100 Per 1000 AMERICAN BEAUTIES, Rooted Cuttings, $2.50
BRIDES. 1.50
BRIDESMAID. 1.50
METEOR. 1.50 $22.00.... ....$4.00 $35.00 12.50 12.50 12.50 20.00 12.50.

Terms cash with order. Plants from 21/2-inch pots ready now

J. A. BUDLONG.

STATION X. CHICAGO. ILL.

The Easter Number..

OF THE AMERICAN FLORIST . . . . . ISSUED

APRIL 2

Send us a *s*easonable adv. early and we will give it a Pulling Display.

Will be mailed to all names in the New Directory Florists, Seedsmen, Nurserymen, Parks, Cemeteries.

بى بى بى WILL REACH بى بى بى

EVERY ONE OF THEM—OVER 13,000

Indianapolis.

Business continues good, the influence of Lent being felt less than in former years. Good roses and carnations are not too plentiful in this city. There is an abundance of fine violets, however, and much to the regret of growers, they are less in demand than during Lent in former

The Florists' Club held a well attended meeting March 1, at which E. A. Parker read a paper, prepared by Mr. Haugh of Anderson. Mr. Haugh made commenda-ble suggestions as to how florists' places should be kept. He thinks that neat and clean outside appearance of a place, with well kept lawns and some choice flower beds, smooth walks and nicely painted houses, is a paying advertisement for the business. The inside, too, should be in harmony with the outside. The paper also stated that the florist in order to be successful, could not afford to devote part of his time to some sport. This brought forth emphatic objections from several members, especially from our florist fishermen, and a humorous dispute on the subject resulted.

Mr. Hatfield tried in vain to have a resolution passed that the reading of Mr. Haugh's paper should be repeated at every meeting until all members had complied with suggestions made.

H. W. Rieman exhibited some fine roscs; Mr. Schreiber, of the Bertermann Floral Co., showed some seedling carnations and a red sport of Mrs. Bradt, which looked very promising.

Frank Waidele was elected a member of the club.

Originated by M. Lynch, Menlo Park, Calif.

M. Lynch, Menlo Park, Calif.

THE BRIDE This beautiful large, white-seeded variety is the best White Sweet Pea to date. It is a pure white selection from Mrs. Eckford and is the strongest germinator among all the white-seeded varieties—so often poor growers. Grown for the cut-flower market of San Francisco in competition with the other high class whites, it has brought the highest figures over them all, taking first rank among all the whites. The flowers are pure white of fine substance, large and of true grandilora type. Beside this every seed will grow. Perfect flowers were cut as early as April 16 last year. Price, per lb., $2.00; 1-4 lb., 60c; oz., 20c; pkt., 10c.

THIS IS THE BEST FLORISTS' WHITE TO DATE

Prof. Tracy, in a recent review of some of the newer Sweet Peas says: "The especial merit of this variety (7the Bride) is in its length, strength and grace of flower stem, and the disposition of the blooms thereon, heling one of our best sorts in these respects, and forming an exceedingly graceful hunch."

Price, pkt. (35 seeds), 10c; ½ oz., 20c; oz., 30c.

Mr. Lynch has sent us his entire stock which we offer to the trade as above.

14 Barclay St.. NEW YORK. 84 & 86 Randolph St., CHICACO.

When writing please mention American Florist.

GERANIUMS

READY FOR IMMEDIATE SHIPMENT

25,000 from 2-in. pots......$3 00 per 100; $25.00 per 1000 25,000 rooted cuttings....... 150 per 100; 12.50 per 1000 (Our selection of sorts.)

OUR LIST COMPRISES

S. A. Nutt, Mrs. A. Blanc, Mme. Jones, Mrs. Ch. Molin, Mrs. J. M. Gaar, Marvel, W. A. Chalfant, Madonna, Rev. Atkinson, Leonard Kelway, Mrs. E. G. Hill, Comtesse de Danne, Wm. Pfitzer, La Favorite, Gloire de France, H. de Bornin, Mme. Buchner, Gettysburg, Beaute Poitevine, Comtesse de Harcourt and many others.

Alphonse Riccard, J. J. Harrison and Mme de La Roux, IVY GERANIUMS, a fine lot of 2-in stock in 10 varieties, at.....$2 50 per 100

SPECIAL OFFER:

THE GOTTAGE GARDENS.

QUEENS, L. Y.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS

READY FOR IMMEDIATE DELIVERY.

Mrs. C. H. Pierce and T. H. Spaulding......35c each, $3 50 per doz. Frank Hardy and The Yellow Fellow.......50c each, $3.00 per doz. Pennsylvania and Snow Queen.......50c each, $5.00 per doz.

> T. B Morse, Marcia Jones, Mrs. R. McArthur, Mrs. H. Wright, J. H. Woodford, Western King, Mrs. M. Ryerson, Elvena, Dorothy Devens and many others of last years introduction.

2-inch pots, - 75 cents per dozen, $5.00 per 100. Rooted Cuttings, 50 cents per dozen, $4.00 per 100.

. . . ALSO . . .

Lenawee, Maud Dean, Golden Wonder, Pride of Castlewood, Glory of Pacific, Mrs. H. Robinson, Golden Trophy, Ivory, Yellow Queen, Mrs. R. Crawford, Invincible and many others.

2-inch pots, - 50 cents per dozen, $3.00 per 100. Rooted Cuttings, 40 cents per dozen, $2.00 per 100.

THE GOTTAGE GARDENS,

QUEENS, N. I.

Some New American Cannas.

Everybody admires the grand additions to the canna family, by M. Crozy; flowers with large broad petals, full large heads and beautiful colors, but when some of the new American cannas become better known their desirable qualities and new colors will be appreciated. The following are a few striking varieties:

Klondike is a true pure orange with a glisten and sheen that cannot be described or reproduced, very large full heads with many trusses; the petals are two inches wide, rounded at the apex and incurved, foliage large and handsome. It is an early and profuse bloomer, and in the winter the flowers last a long time; one head was in bloom from the middle of becember until March 1. Whilethere are a few good orange varieties of foreign origin there is not one that approaches Klondike in size and clearness of color.

Champion is a very fine red. There are scores of red cannas, and many are little different one from another, but this variety has several very decided characteristic features. It is immense in individual flowers, and the spikes are massive, each having four and five trusses; the petals are broad (two and one-fourth inches) and rounding. The ground color is a dazzling crimson-scarlet overlaid with a rich golden lustre, which gives the flower a very brilliant appearance. Duchess of Marlborough is a pure pink. This is a color that has been sought after by specialists. While we have several varieties of a pink shade there is only one that is the exact shade of pure pink of Mr. Schuyler Mathew's color chart, published by the American Florist Co., and this is Duchess of Marlborough. Mile. Berat is one of the finest varieties of a pink color, but it is a darker shade than pure pink. The petals of the Duchess are pure pink. The petals of the Duchess are long and gracefully curved, making a very wide flower; each spike produces four to five trusses and each truss enormous quantities of flowers, making a very floriferous variety. The foliage is long and a bright green color. The above varieties grow to a height of four or five feet. Duke of Marlborough is a dark velvety maroon, shading towards purplish black, the color heightened by the contrast of the bluish, metallic green foliage; compact erect spikes, branching and very floriferous. A bed of the Duke on a bright day looks almost black, the color is so velvety and rich; height three and one-half to four

Cuba is a new variety of the Queen Charlette type, which bears immense flowers of a deep chrome yellow color with a blotch of deepest vermilion covering more than half the center; obtuse petals, flowers of fine form and good substance; large branching spikes.

Lorranic is a lancy variety with bright pink petals broadly edged with creamy white which changes to white as the flower develops.

Philadelphia is one of the best bedding cannas grown to day, the bright glowing runson scarlet flowers are borne on large dense spikes, well above the bright green tohage, the flowers as they tade drop from the spake, leaving the plant clean and tresh. The growth is very even, about three and one half feet. A large bed of Philadelphia at Mr. Craig's place last sundmer was an attractive sight.

HAROLD OTTER.

Funeral Flowers.

Verdy looking man walked into the the ser shop of Potert Pullman, 30 Columbus avenue, last night, and seizing a pot of daisies, lay down on the floor and began to strew the blossoms over his hody. The proprietor ran for a policeman, and the intruder was taken to the station house. He was arraigned in the West Side Police Court this morning on a charge of disorderly conduct and intoxication. The magistrate asked him what was the matter and he said: "I wanted to be buried under the daisies."

"Five dollars for funeral expenses," said Magistrate Olmsted.—N Y Com'l Adv

Boilers

OF HIGH

For GREENHOUSES.

See our Catalogue. . . .

Giblin & Co., Utica. N. Y. tw Steam and tr Hot Water.

Say "saw your ad. in the Florist" when you write advertisers.

ESTABLISHED 1859

THOS. W. WEATHERED'S SON,

Get my prices on everything needful for creeting or repairing of Greenhouses

Horticultural Architect and Builder.

Awarded 90 per cent on Creenhouse Construction at last meeting of the New York Florists' Club...

Model of Greenhouse combining many good qualities and the committee consider the same to be worthy of special mention.....

Utility tunty.... Durability.... Simplicity.... Cheapness.... Total......90

Signed by the following committee:

THOS. W. WEATHERED'S SON.

141 Center Sf., NEW YORK.

KROESCHELL BROS. CO. nhouse * Boiler.

Bolters made of the best of material, shell, firebox sheets and heads of steel, water space all around (tront, sides and back). Write for information.

NEW & SECOND-HAND MATERIAL,

purchased from Sherii, Receiver, and Assignee, sales at less than one-half prices. Pipe and Fittings Hose, Florists Wire, Hot Water Heaters, Greenhouse Bollers and Englises, Rope, Light Wrought from Pipe. Glass Sash, and thousands of other articles, for sale by

CHICAGO HOUSE WRECKING CO. Largest Mail Order Depot for New and Second-Hand Material in the World. W. 35TH & IRON STS., CHICACO. Write for our free Illustrated enthlogues

EVANS' IMPROVED CHALLENGE VENTILATING APPARATUS

OT BED SASH

of Red Cedar, Cypress and Pine. A. DIETSCH & CO.

Manufacturers of Greenhouse Material,

615-621 SHEFFIELD AVE., CHICAGO, ILL.

When writing mention American Florist.

Are impossible if you follow the narmonlous combinations of colors for house painting, which you can see on the sample cards of LUCAS PAINT. Send for them. They are practical.

Los Angeles, Cal.

Southern California is to-day rejoieing in the finest rain of the year. All vegetation has been suffering for a lack of moisture. Outside the lack of rain, the weather has been all that could be desired, and everything is making rapid growth. Spring flowers are abundant and the florists have orders to use up all stock that comes in The growers are hunting up their old works on mathematics in an endeavor to hold back such stock as they can not get in for Easter, so it will be in proper condition for the Fiesta.

Mr. Jas. A. Summers, manager of the Central Park Floral Company, recently met with a bicycle accident which at first it was feared would prove fatal. Laterreports show Mr. Summers was not quite so badly injured, but he will be confined to his bed for a week or more.

The South California Floral Company are now at home in their new store at the corner of Fourth and Spring streets, and are making a nice show of all seasonable flowers. Morris Golderson, the manager, has fitted the room nicely and is kept busy.

B. F. Collins has just completed one of the finest floral stores in the city at 339 South Spring street. Mr. Collins is well known, and now has an opportunity to display his stock to the best advantage.

E. R. Meserve, 635 Broadway, reports a very good trade in nursery stock. He has recently filled orders for 15,000 orange trees to be sent to Porterville, in the so-called northerneitrus belt.

Advices from Washington, D. C., indicate that the Secretary of Agriculture, Ilon. Jas. Wilson, will shortly visit Los Angeles. It is hoped his visit will lead to experiments that will bear practical results in advancing American horticulture.

The reports of the horticultural commissioners of Riverside county show that on an inspection of almost 1000 acres last month the average is but one tree per acre infected with scale or any other parasite.

News from surrounding counties show that extensive plantings of citrus trees are being made at Redlands and North Pomona; but demand for deciduous fruit trees is very much below the average.

On the morning of March 7 John Hannay, a pioneer nurseryman, was found dead in his bed. Death is said to have resulted from paralysis of the heart. D. R. W.

Amount of Radiation.

ED. AM. FLORIST:—Please tell us the number of feet radiation per horse-power boiler, both steam and hot water.

As a rule it is estimated that one horse-power will takecare of one hundred square feet of steam radiation. In the smaller boilers that are not fired regularly fifteen square feet of heating surface and three-fourths, of a foot of grate surface are reckoned as equal to a horse-power, but in larger boilers the amount required is considerably less. When using hot water the amount of radiation is about 160 feet for each horse-power, or from 200 to 250 times the grate area.

1. R. Taft.

The Blue Marguerite.

Answering A. A. P., G. C. B. and "Reader"; write to any of the seedsmen advertising in the columns of the American Florist or to the wholesale plantsmen.

(Copyrighted)

Kraft's Plant Tonic

For PLANTS, PALMS and FLOWERS

... A Wonderful Preparation for the Promotion of Plant Life, Destruction of Insects and Scale..

This is one of the greatest preparations for the use of Florists and Plant Growers ever compounded. It gives to the foliage of plants treated the bright, fresh color of healthy, growing vegetation. It destroys all insect life infecting the plant and eradicates scale.

Besides improving the color of the plant, it effects a general betterment of its condition, aiding nature in disseminating and retaining the sap and life of the plant. The Tonic makes the foliage of the plant soit and pliable, and a beautiful bright green.

For sale at_

Price per bottle, 25 cents.

84 & 86 RANDOLPH STREET, CHICAGO.

VAUGHAN'S SEED STORE,

14 BARCLAY STREET, NEW YORK.

Jadoo Fibre and Jadoo Liquid

are to-day being sold by the leading SEED HOUSES and are used by prominent GROWERS and FLORISTS.

You Cannot Afford to Grow

Plants Without Them

)))))))))

Send for particulars and be convinced

The American Jadoo Co.

...PHILADELPHIA, PA.

When writing mention American Florist.

STEMS

DUST

Tobacco

POTTOM PRICES

VAUGHAN'S SEED STORE,

Chicago. New York.

NATIVE GUANO A COMPLETE AND NATURAL FERTILIZER

(Desiccated Night Soll) FOR . . .

Gardeners and Florists.
SOLUBLE, QUICK TO ACT. PLEASANT TO HANDLE.

STANDARD FERTILIZER CO. Inc.

1822 Filbert Street, Philadelphia.

Special Easter Number

THE issue of the American APRIL 2 will be the annual Easter or Spring Non-ber, and will be sent to all the new names obtained for the 1898 Directory.

Scollay

Sprinkler...

INDISPENSABLE
J. A. Scollay, Maker,
74 Myrtle Ave.

Brooklyn. N. Y.
VAUGHAN'S SEED STORE, Gen'l Weslern Agenis,
84 Randolph St., CHICACO.

Heating Queries.

ED. AM. FLORIST:-There are some questions I would like to ask through your paper in regard to heating a greenhouse 20x75 feet, even span house. How large a boiler will it take, and if a horizontal or an upright would be the best one to maintain a temperature of 65%. How many rows of pipe, and how large a pipe, will it take? D. HÜGGETT.

If the house is well built and has no glass in the side walls, from four to five square feet of grate surface, and from eighty to one hundred and twenty square ject of heating surface will be necessary to maintain a temperature of 65 . If to he heated by steam, as I infer from the question, a six-horse power upright boiler would be desirable. For radiating surface use a 212-inch main and twelve 114-inch returns For a house of this kind, however, I should prefer to use hot water and for a heater would scenre some of the east iron kinds advertised in the AMERI CAN FLORIST, that are rated to supply from 1000 to 1000 squarefeet of radiation. Of course steam boilers or box coils may be used, but they will be less durable. The heating pipes for water may be either  $11_2$  or 2-inch, the latter being preferable for the house described; about 1200 linear feet or lifteen runs being required. Some would prefer to use three 212 inch overhead flows and eleven 2-inch returns.

L. R. TAFT.

LONDON, ONT.-William Gammage, florist, of this city, lectured before the Wood stock Horticultural Society, on Tuesday, March 15.

Standard Made by

KELLER BROS.

a Al Artentistic Control Control
Special
And Marke to Grober NORRISTOWN, PA

Price Lists Furnished on Application.

STANDARD ...FLOWER

HILFINGER BROTHERS POTTERY FORT EDWARD, N. Y.

EY HEATER MFG. CO.

SYRACUSE POTTERY CO. Flower Pot

Bulb Pans, Hanging Baskets and Saucers

OUR FLOWER POTS are standard measure and all first-class and we assure you they will give good satisfaction. We call your attention to our new pots, 6, 7, 8 and 9-inch, called the Poro Pot." They are more Porous than any pots, smoother inside and outside, perfect drainage, and are easily washed and cleaned. Give them a trial and you will not want any other. Remember these Pots are as cheap as any other Pot on the market. Write for price list.

SYRACUSE POTTERY CO.

SYRACUSE, N Y.

THE BEST STANDARD FLOWER POTS

WE make the best flower pot for Florists and general use made in America, as many dealers in Mich. III. Wis and Ind. can testify. We invite a trial order and will be pleased to send price list. Our business demanded a Western Office and we have recently established a Chicago office at 115 Dearborn St. MR. M. L. PARRINITAU, Aqt. Give him a call.

Manufacturers of Standard Flower Pots.

THE IONIA POTTERY CO., Ionia, Mich.

Standard Flower

OUR POTS ARE OF THE BEST QUALITY.

We ship all goods from Cincinnati, guaranteeing lowest treight rates and prompt delivery.

12"Write us before placing your orders elsewhere......

CAMBRIDGE TILE MFG. CO., Covington, Ky.

old reliable make of Elverson, Sherwood & Barker.

Write for price list. Address

PITTSBURG CLAY MFG. CO.,

New Brighton, Pa.

FLOWER POTS

STANDARD POTS

List and SAMPLES FREE.

J. G. SWAHN'S SONS, MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.

ake Your Own

🛌 GEO. KELLER & SON.

FERN PANS and

AZALEA POTS...

Flower Pots.

Before buying write for prices. 361-363 Hernden Streef, near Wrightwood Ave., CHICAGO, ILL.

Mention American Florist

FILE SIZE AND WIDE BUTTOMS. BUEB PANS AND AZALKA FOTS.

DETROIT FLOWER POT M'F'Y.

HARRY BALSLEY.

DETROIT, MICH., 490 HOWARD ST.

Standard 🤏 🦋 FLOWER

If your greenhouses are within goo miles of the Capitol, write us, we can save you money.

W. H. ERNEST,

Station M. N. E.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

Pots The Cow Manure Pot is the best for young plants. For bedding and sending of plants it is also dutely the best thing ever invented. The cow manure forces the plant and makes it he alther. In the clay pots the routs are distorted in getting them out or sending them but in the separation of the pot and set it in the bed. It never stays the growth of the plant It holds the noisture better especially it von have odry animer. The pots stend perfectly watering in green house and butted. Livery gardener should have one of the semachine of pots sent flywarded, slogle Machine's Sample sof pots sent if wanted.

Northampton, Mass.

Flowers are plentiful and the high prices of a fortnight past are no more. Roses are fine, Maids and Morgans being extra good. Carnations are not quite up to the mark yet, there being a large per-centage of split calvxes, probably due to the long spell ofdark weather last month. Bulbous stock sells very well and not much goes to waste.

In potted plants azaleas seem to have the lead, with cinerarias a close second; Asparagus Sprengerii also meets with popular favor, and a limited number of Latania rotundifolia have been much admired.

Indications for Easter point to a good supply and of excellent quality.

April 5 and 6 are the dates for the spring exhibition, and the boys are all nursing some fine pets for that occasion.

A visit to Alex. Park's houses found everything looking well.

G. W. THORNILEY

Hot=Bed

Tenons white-leaded Corners secured with iron dowel pins. Every detail of construction pertect.
Made of Clear Cypress Lumber.

Quick Shipments.

We have in stock and can ship immediately:

ft x 6 ft, 3 rows 10 in. glass. 3 ft.3 in. x 6 ft.4 " 4 lt. x 6 ft., 5 " S in. 8 in.

Not glazed, 134 in, thick.

Delivered Prices

Quoted on application. State size and quantity wanted. No order too small to receive careful attention, and none too large for our facilities.

LOCKLAND LUMBER CO.,

Lockland, Ohio.

NEW DEPARTURE VENTILATING APPLIANCE

You can not get a GOOD THING for nothing. But the price of this apparatus is next to nothing. Send for price and description to

J. D. CARMODY, Evansville, Ind.

Cypress Greenhouse Material.

We are the pioneers in Clear Cypress Greenhouse Material. discovered that Cypress is better than any other wood for greenhouses from top of posts up and we introduced it, and fought for it against many prejudices, and finally succeeded in bringing it into general use.

Others have attempted to follow where we lead, others are trying to reap what we sowed, but we have the experience and are recognized as experts in greenhouse construction.

Write for Circulars or Estimates.

Lockland Lumber Co.

LOCKLAND, OHIO.

STANDARD MACHINE. VENTILATING

NONE EQUAL IT Strength Durability

Send for Catalogue.

NOTHING Flimsv Complicated about it.

CALIFORNIA RED CEDAR

NEVER DECAYS.

A. DIETSCH & CO., 619 Sheffield Ave., MFR'S OF RED CEDAR AND CYPRESS
GREENH JUSE MATERIAL

CHICAGO.

YOU CAN SAVE MONEY BY HAVING ME

BUILD AND HEAT YOUR GREENHOUSES HENRY W. GIBBONS 134-136-138 LIBERTY STREET, EXPERT ADVICE AND PLANS FURNISHED.

ESTIMATES FREE.

Copy for Advertisements......

TO APPEAR IN THE EASTER NUMBER OF THE AMERICAN FLORIST SHOULD BE SENT AT ONCE.

FOR SALE CHEAP. GLASS for Greenhouses, Conservatories, Hother Bashes and Mats. Paints, Oils, etc. THE REED GLASS & PAINT CO., 456 W. Broadway, NEW YORK.

Everybody is more pleased if you say "saw your ad. in the American Florist" when writing.

Index to Advertisers. MonInger J C Co.
Moon Samuel C.
Moon Wm H Co.
Mortls Floral Co. (20)
Monnd City Flo Co.
National Flo Board of Trade.
Sational Plant Co.
Niemeyer H A.
Y Cut Flower Ex.
N Y Cut Flower Co.. N Y Cut Flower Co. 972
obermeyer Gust. 953
Palmer The R T Co. 977
Parsons A Sons Co. 973
Paxton Greenhouses 944
Payne Frank S 953
Pencuck W P 953
Pencuck Sam'l S 953
Plke S W 971
Putsburg Chy Mfx Co 942
Poore Frank W 951
Prince A G & Co. 922
Ouaker City Mc b Wks. 940
Oulnn Ed 953 Ouager (try Mc n Wks. 190
Oulnin Ed. 192
Kandall A L 222
Rawson Grove P. 100
Kaynor J I. 200
Kaynor J I. 200
Kaynor J I. 200
Kegan Printing House 187
Reed Glass & Paint Co 193
Regan Printing House 187
Reed Glass & Paint Co 193
Rogers P'k Floral Co 192
Rice M & Co. 103
Rogers P'k Floral Co 192
Rogers P'k Floral Co 193
Scotlay Jno A 194
Scotl y Jn borners real assons Colorers in A
Ebret F
Ebrateth Nurseries
Elliott W th
Elizabeth Nurseries
Elliot Colorers
Elliot Colorers
Elliot Colorers
Ebrate S
Felthausen J E
Felthausen J E
Follo Mut Fire Ins Co.
Ford Brus
Galvin & Co.
Globons II W
Globin & Co.
Globons II W
Globin & Co.
Grabam Hugh Corners Heater Co.
Hall Assin.
Hart M A
Heater Co.
Hall Assin.
Heater M Ferr Albert M
Hillinger Brus
Hill E G
Hill D
Hippard E.
Hitchings & Co.
Hotton & Hunkel Co.
Hotton & Hunkel Co.
Hopp & Lemke
Horan Edw C
Hulledensch Brus
Hillinger Co.
Hillinger Co.
Hillinger Co.
Hillinger Co.
Hopp & Lemke
Horan Edw C
Hulledensch Brus
Hillinger Co.
Honda Pottery Co. Innoia Cut Flower Co.

1001a Pottery Co. 942

Jackwot A Perkins Co 922

Impinese Nursery 506

Jennings E B. 935

Kasting W F. 921

Kelter Bross 42

Kelter Geo A Sons 942

Kelnicy Harian P. 661

Kennlovit Bros Co. 922

King J M.

Kratis Plant Tonic 941

Krosschell Bros Co. 342

Koehn C A. 221 Kroeschell Broz Co... Kuchn C A.... Kuhi Geo A Langer & Hurrell Lang Julius Lanke Genews Flo Co Ley John H

Always mention the American Florist when writing to advertisers.

Hitchings & Co.

ESTABLISHED 50 YEARS.

KORTICULTURAL ARCHITECTS AND BUILDERS

AND LARGEST MANUFACTURERS OF

GREENHOUSE HEATING AND VENTILATING APPARATUS.

THE HIGHEST AWARDS RECEIVED AT THE WORLD'S FAIR FOR HORTICULTURAL ARCHITECTURE.
GREENHOUSE CONSTRUCTION AND HEATING APPARATUS.

Conservatories, Greenhouses, Palm Houses, etc., erected complete, with our patent Iron Frame Construction. Send tour cents postage for illustrated catalogue.

233 Mercer Street, NEW YORK.

LORD & BURNHAM CO.

HORTICULTURAL ARCHITECTS AND BUILDERS.

LARGEST BUILDERS OF GREENHOUSE STRUCTURES.

Red Gulf Greenhouse

Strictly Free

98

Write to New York Office for circular and estimates.

Send 5 cts. postage for latest catalogue of Greenhouse Heating and Ventilating Apparatus.

New York Office:

160 Fifth Ave., Cor. 21st St.

36

Send 4 cts. postage for catalogue of "Patent Iron Construction."

Write for circular of Hot Bed Sash and Frames.

General Office and Works :

Irvington-on-Hudson, - N. Y.

Cypress Green House Material.

RED CEDAR

Write for Estimates.

Wheeler-Stenzel Co.

IMPORTERS AND JOBBERS OF.

1)) 554 54 546 555 5776

Make your contracts for next senson now. We can deaver to any part of the country and save You Money.

111333333666666666

Greenhouse Glass

72 Sudbury St., BOSTON, MASS.

THE AMERICAN FLORIST

America is "the Prow of the Eessel; there may be more comfort Amidships, but we are the first to touch Unknown Seas."

Vol. XIII.

CHICAGO AND NEW YORK, MARCH 26, 1898.

No. 512.

THE AMERICAN FLORIST

Copyright 1898, by American Florist Company, Entered as Second-Class Mail Matter,

Published every Saturday by AMERICAN FLORIST COMPANY, 324 Dearborn Street, Chicago.

Eastern Office: 67 Bromfield St., Boston.

Subscription, $1.00 a year. To Europe, $2.00. Subscriptions accepted only from the trade.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS AND ORNAMENTAL HORTICULTURISTS.

OFFICER-WM. F. GUDE, Washington, D. C., president: A. DONAGHUE. Omaha, Neb., vice-president: W. J. STEWART. 67 Bromfield St. Boston, Mass., secretary: H. B. BEATTY, Oll City, Pa., treasurer. The fourteenth amual meeting will be held at Omaha, Neb., August, 1898.

THE AMERICAN CARNATION SOCIETY.

Annual Convention at Philadelphia. February, 1899. ALBERT M. HERR, Lancaster Pa., Secretary.

CONTENTS

| Washington                                                                                                                                                                                      | 945    |
|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|--------|
| WashingtonOrnamental bedding.—Part II (5 illus.)                                                                                                                                            | 946    |
| Describes a propriette S. A. F. (illus.)                                                                                                                                                        | 947    |
| Excentive committee S. A. F. (illus.)Greenhouse pests, San Jose scale and legisla                                                                                                           |        |
| Greenhouse pests, oan Jose scale and regista                                                                                                                                                    | 948    |
| tion versus insects. Antirrbinum majus (illus.)                                                                                                                                                 | 1149   |
| Antirrhinum majus (IIIus.)                                                                                                                                                                      | 31431  |
| Boston.                                                                                                                                                                                         | 949    |
| New York                                                                                                                                                                                        | 950    |
| Antirrhium majus (mus.) Roston. New York Chicago Rose leaf blight (2 illus.) St. Louis No politics in the Paterson, N. J., park man-                                                            | 950    |
| Rose leaf blight (2 illus.)                                                                                                                                                                     | 954    |
| St. Louis                                                                                                                                                                                       | 951    |
| No polities in the Paterson, N. J., park man-                                                                                                                                                   |        |
| agement.                                                                                                                                                                                        | 952    |
| Early white also conthemum (illus)                                                                                                                                                              | 950    |
| Di Dadalahia motos                                                                                                                                                                              | 952    |
| D. M. (Initaballia Cons                                                                                                                                                                         | 053    |
| B. P. Criterien's Sons                                                                                                                                                                          | 059    |
| Philadelphia notes. B. P. Critchell's Sons "Experience with carnations". Greenhouse building. E. G. Hill's experience with Jadoo.                                                               | (17.13 |
| Greenhouse building.                                                                                                                                                                            | 200    |
| E. G. Hill's experience with Jadoo                                                                                                                                                              | 203    |
| Society of American Florists                                                                                                                                                                    | 953    |
| Philadelphia                                                                                                                                                                                    | 954    |
| Cincinnati,                                                                                                                                                                                     | 954    |
| Worcester, Mass.                                                                                                                                                                                | 954    |
| Diseased callas                                                                                                                                                                                 | 955    |
| E. G. Hill's experience with Jadoo Society of American Florists Philadelphia Cincinnati Worcester, Mass, Diseased callas Cure for the rotting of bulbs, Dahlia 'notes, Why some carnations fail | 956    |
| Dablig 'notes                                                                                                                                                                                   | 958    |
| Why some corrections fail                                                                                                                                                                       | 961    |
| Windsmood Ma                                                                                                                                                                                    | 961    |
| Kirkwood. Mo.Cypripedium William McKinley                                                                                                                                                   | 963    |
| cyperpedium withiam arcking                                                                                                                                                                     | 964    |
| The seed tradeBuffalo.Santa Barbara, CalBench culture of adjantum cuncatum                                                                                                          | 965    |
| Винаю.                                                                                                                                                                                          | 915    |
| Santa Bartura, Cal                                                                                                                                                                              | 9817   |
| Bench culture of adjantum cuneatum                                                                                                                                                              | 3814   |
| Bench chuture of adminting chineatum Little beauty fuchsia _ Helpful reminders. Rochester, N. Y Cleveland Baltimore Catalogues received.                                                        | 967    |
| Helpful reminders                                                                                                                                                                               | SHE    |
| Rochester, N. Y                                                                                                                                                                                 | 5038   |
| Cleveland                                                                                                                                                                                       | 970    |
| Baltimore                                                                                                                                                                                       | 971    |
| Catalogues received.                                                                                                                                                                            | 973    |
| Sub-watering                                                                                                                                                                                    | 974    |
| Mansfield Ohio                                                                                                                                                                                  | 974    |
| Mansfield, Ohio San Francisco Los Angeles, Cal. New Haven, Conn.                                                                                                                                | 973    |
| Los Angeles Cal                                                                                                                                                                                 | 971    |
| Nau Hayan Conu                                                                                                                                                                                  | 971    |
| Count Daniel Mich                                                                                                                                                                               | 073    |
| Grand Rapids, Mich.Uncle Sam and the Washington florists                                                                                                                                    | 00%    |
| t neie Sam and the washington norists                                                                                                                                                           | 971    |
| Brick or wooden greenhouse wallsConcrete greenhouse walls                                                                                                                                   | 1913   |
| Concrete greenhouse walls                                                                                                                                                                       | 979    |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                 |        |

ISHPEMING, MICH.—The Ishpeming Floral Company have just completed an addition to their greenhouses.

Washington.

The 1898 meeting of the executive committee of the Society of American Florists and Ornamental Horticulturists is now a pleasant memory. Much was accomplished and the Omaha convention bids fair to be one of the most useful in the history of the society.

The final adjournment of the committee was quickly taken advantage of by prominent local men of the craft to give the visiting members a social season of feasting and sight seeing, and the Messrs. Gude brothers, Mr. Small, Mr. Durfee, Mr. Smith, Mr. Clark and others were untiring in their efforts to make their visit a memorable one.

visit a memorable one.

The banquet at the Ebbit House was one of the most select and enjoyable it has ever been our lot to attend. Hon, James Wilson, Secretary of Agriculture was one of the honored guests. In speaking of his love for flowers he said he hoped always to be surrounded with them both here below and in that future land, which he knew would be found full of flowers and florists.

The patriotic address of the Rev. Thos. Easton, one of Washington's celebrated divines, was soul stirring and inspiring to a degree, and made all present feel glad that they were American citizens either by birth or adoption. Mr. Edward Hay a prominent member of the bar claimed a sort of second cousin relation to the craft on account of his name. His address in answer to the toast, the ladies, was both flowery and witty and much enjoyed by all present. All the gentlemen present were called on by Mr. Small, the very efficient toastmaster, and with but few exceptions the subject of patriotism was dwelt on to some extent; it seemed to be in the air, and one couldn't stay long in such an atmosphere without feeling proud of his nation and all rose simultaneously and drank to the toast "Our Country," proposed by Mr. Durfee.

The next morning earriages were taken and the party were driven to the establishment of the American Rose Co. of which Mr. Durfee is president. They have an immense range of glass-about 200,000 feet-and all in good working order, in fact there was not an idle house on the place, while those filled with roses and carnations looked particularly fine. In fact but little else is grown except some odds and ends for their retail store. Their roses were looking splendidly, Mme. Chatenay and Golden Gate are the principal varieties grown. Mr. Durfee has great faith in Mme. Chatenay. Some 12,000 plants were forced this season and half as many more will be planted for next year's demands; it is very free and a vigorous, healthy grower; it resembles La France more than any other rose now generally cultivated, only being somewhat brighter in color, and we should judge much casier for the average florist to grow. Golden Gate is claimed to be the most prolific of all forcing teas, and it certainly seemed to be able to sustain its reputation, being literally covered with buds. In color and shape it resembles Mme. de Watteville, being somewhat lighter than this variety and with much larger flowers and longer stems. Two new roses are being tried, one is Princess Bonnie a red, a shade darker than Wootton, apparently a cross between the latter and Bennett, judging from the foliage, shape of flower and the delightful fragrance, which is much the same as Bennett. Mr. Durfee says they put a few in a box with Metcors to sweeten them. As a commercial rose it is not likely to succeed, being too single. Mrs. Robert Garrett, the other, is a good grower but many of the flowers appear to come deformed, and the outside petals have to be taken off to make the bud presentable.

The carnation appears to be at home here, and all the houses devoted to the divine flower were, if we may say it, in the pink of perfection. The cream of the lot was Victor; it seemed as if the plants would soon exhaust themselves with the load of flowers and buds they were earrying, but we were told that ever since they had commenced to bloom this was their normal condition, and they seemed to be getting stronger if anything. Several houses were devoted to seedlings and all looked fine, a large scarlet was very fine and certainly as good as the best now in the market. A number of others of various colors, apparently quite the equal of standard sorts, were being tried the second year before being named. A large lot of young seedlings, 10,000, all hand fertilized from the best standard varieties are coming on; these are all potted separately, and are to be put on the market soon at $15 per hundred. The eompany will offer a premium of $300 for the best seedling from this lot to be exhibited before the Carnation Society at its meeting in Philadelphia next February, the selection to be made by its judges. It is also required that the winner of the prize must give the company an option to purchase the variety for $1000 if they so desire. This price may appear high but we question if twice that amount would have purchased the stock of Flora Hill or Victor, and we understand that over $2000 has been refused for Mr. Fisher's new variety, Mrs. Lawson. . long house of Scotts and the reputed sport Harrison's White, each on a White, each on a separate table, look well, with the exception that one table has been furnishing flowers all season while the other is just commencing to bloom.

The large steam boiler which takes 5,500 gallons of water to steam it, is a monster, but is most economical. The heat passes through and about the boiler four times, and all through the winter four tons of coal each twenty-four hours keep up twenty pounds pressure of steam. After a pleasant chat in the office and refreshments, the journey was continued. Mr. Clark's place adjoining was visited. Black Beauty cannot a second dwarf dark leaved kind, was seen; it is said to be a capital bedder.

After a pleasant drive the Gude Brothers place was reached. Everything was in apple-pic order. A house of Meteors was very fine, and two houses of La France were seen as good as they used to be grown, which is a fact worth recording. A bull storage warehouse for keeping tulips and other like stock is a feature here; it is partly under ground, and having a double roof the temperature is very even. tulips are planted in boxes and packed on shelves from the ground to the roof, and brought out to be forced as required.

Again the carriages and the next stop was Mr. Durfee's office in the Malthy building, where a delightful lunch was served and an hour passed in discussing the same and other interesting fixings.

The new Congressional Library was next visited and the beauties of the building almost brought the party to a standstill. Any description of ours would do so little towards giving an idea of its great beauty that we will desist and only say, embrace the first opportunity and spend half a day within its walls. The Senate half a day within its walls. chamber was next visited and Senators Morrill, of Vermont, Teller, of Colorado, Foraker, of Ohio and Perkins, of California introduced to the visitors. We must not forget a very pleasant visit to the White House conservatories where the party were kindly shown through by Mr. Pfister. It being the time of the President's public reception, the opportunity was embraced and all shook hands with him.

Ornamental Bedding.

PART II.

If the bed is not already outlined, put a stont peg where you want the center a to be, and lay out the circle with a radius of four feet six inches, making an eye on the twine big enough to slip around easily on the peg, measure the distance on the twine with the tape line, at the desired point wind the twine a couple of times around another peg and with this make the circle, while your helper holds the center peg steady. Then prepare the bed as formerly directed and the work can go on again, draw the circles b and cwith radius four feet two inches and three feet ten inches respectively, mark these circles with sand or whatever you After this draw circles d and e with radu three feet four inches and two feet ten mehes, divide the outline (circle a) in four equal parts try with tape line and pegs until con get it right, place a peg in cach of these points, b b and bi bi, tie a piece of twine from b to b and a piece from brita brithese two pieces of twine should then cross each other at the cenver, from this, a, measure to each side one that two inches and put pegs exactly in the aimes, this gives the centerse, from these draw circles f with seven inches and g or points where the twine crosses circle easing to cach side three imbes and where it crosses e to each side nine inches and put pegs in these sixteen points, tie twine between the opposite and corresponding points as dotted lines indicate, and draw the parts of these straight lines that are drawn full on the plan. Now mark all the full lines and the bed is ready for planting. These directions as well as the following ones will best be understood if you get pegs, twine and tape line and try the construction step by step according to directions on a piece of level ground. With a little practice it is not so difficult. The writer learned by self-study only, having no directions to go by, but having a good knowledge of practical mathematies.

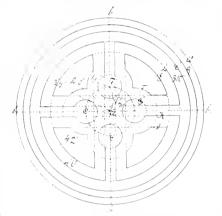

Fig. 1.—A circle, diameter nine feet.

Such a bed as it is usually drawn would look like Fig. 2.

1, Santolina incana; 2, Alternanthera amorna spectabilis; 3, A. aurea nana; 4, A. paronychioides major; 5, Santolina incana.

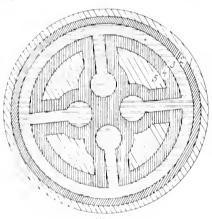

Fig. 2.

A working sketch such as you use for laying out a design would look something like this:

Fig 3

While the corresponding design would look like Fig. 4

1. Echeveria rosca, 2, Alternauthera amo na spectabilis; 3, A, aurea nana; 4, Pilen nama 5, Alternauthera spatulata.

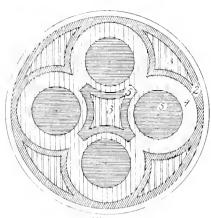

Fig. 4.

Other color combinations than these can of course be used, it depends largely on the stock on hand, and the effect can often be heightened by setting a plant as agave, vucca, Draciena indivisa or some ornamental grass in the middle and smaller plants of the same kinds or Echeveria metallica, etc. In other suitable places, and in many cases the middle of the bed can be raised, sloping evenly to the edge:

1, Alternanthera paronychioides major; , Coleus Golden Bedder; 3, C. Hero; 4, C.

Verschaffeltii.

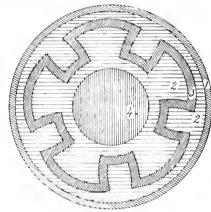

Fig. 5.

This is a bed of strongly contrasting colors for a twelve foot circle; it is easily laid out, the main difference from the former two being that the circle must be divided in five parts to find the centers. Symmetrical designs like these are easily laid out, as the corresponding centers always are equally far from the main center and equally far from each other. the designs 2, 4 and 5 we have to divide the circles in four and five parts. Fig. 6 we must divide in ten parts to find the centers, first dividing in five parts and then each of these in two. The radius divides the circle in exactly six parts, take every other point of these and it is divided in three. To divide in eight parts first divide in four and then each of these in two, to divide in nine parts first divide in three and then each of these in three,

m three and then each of these in three, etc. Fig. 6 will appear in part III

1. Alternanthera ameena spectabilis;
2. A. aurea mana; 3. A. paronychioides major; 4. Santolina incana; 5. Achyranthes Lindeni.

[TO BE CONTINUED.]

West Chester, Pa.—Josiah Hoopes and Miss Ellic A. Morgan were united in marriage on the morning of March 17. The groom is one of the old established mirsery firm known as Hoopes, Bro. & Thomas.

Members of the Executive Committee of the S. A. F. present at the Washington meeting March, 1898.

my Harris Sumaltelless Chuing wart

Greenhouse Pests San Jose Scale and Legislation versus Insects.

Read by Protector John B. Smith before the New re-Florists' Club.

The topics are wide, and either would furnish a text for a sermon if treated at large; but I will content myself with making suggestions rather than exhaustive and exhausting descriptions.

All rational methods for the destruction of insects, indoors or in the fields, must be based upon a knowledge of the character of the insect to be dealt with, of its life history and of the way in which the destructive agent is expected to work.

In the greenhouse where leaves and flowers are the desired products, many nowers are the desired products, many methods that are available in the field, become useless. The plants are more del-icate, the foliage is more tender and the flowers must be guarded from anything that will tend to discolor or in any way injure their perfection.

We must attempt to arrange our practice so as to destroy the insects without harming our plants, and the selection of a proper agent is sometimes difficult. irst, it is important to know how we kill insects. Of course in those cases where the creatures eat the leaf tissue and we use arsenicals, the matter is sim-The poison acts through the stomach exactly as if some higher animal were the victim. But stomach poisons, especially arsenicals, are rarely desirable in a greenhouse, and the insects against which they are necessary are not among those that are most destructive.

Most of the greenhouse pests are suckers and creatures that live on the plant juices and merely puncture the outer tissue to get at the liquid within. Creatures like that cannot be reached by stomach poisons until we learn how to poison the plant circulation itself.

Of course the damage caused is in direct proportion to the number of insects present. A single plant louse, for instance, can do little harm; on a carnation leaf, for example-it makes a puncture or two, exhausts a few cells and dies. The amount of sap taken is insignificant, and not in the least a drawback to the plant. Locally we see a minute yellow spot, and if the leaf be held up toward the light and examined with a glass, a thin spot of exhausted plant cells is seen. With a higher magnification we may see the minute puncture itself. But this is not all, unfortunately. Bacteria and other disease germs are constantly present in the air and on the plant surface; so long as this surface remains unbroken they are harmless, but so minute are they that even the slightest wound gives them entrance and the puncture made by a plant louse is more than sufficient. The exhausted and partly decaying cells injured by the insects form an excellent culture medium for the micro organism and soon the minute spot begins to grow. Then we find a bacteriosis of carnations fully established and now a germ disease instead of an insect must be fought

I do not mean to assert that all cases ad bacteriosis are started in this way, for ary skin wound will serve equally well, but it cannot be doubted that in a large percentage of cases the origin of the dis case is from an insect panieture. As the mseets increase in number, their injury secomes more select. Yellow spots multiply and the plant lagins to technot only the loss of ap, but the failure of the lear esteric crise their proper function. The discusse enters are equally multiplied and the print becomes physically undit to perfore its work of producing perfect flowers its visitations quantity.

We get then one very important suggestion here—keep plants as sound as possible and deal with insects at once, when they are few in number, not when they have become so numerous that the plants are practically unable to recover. We must always remember that plants are living beings and responsive to both good and bad treatment. They are as variable in their resisting powers to outside influence as are the members of the animal kingdom, and the one in the best physical health in either case, stands the best chance of altogether avoiding injury.

To understand just how contact poisons work on insects we must consider for an instant the general anatomy, and particularly their mode of breathing. Insects have no closed system of blood circulation such as we find in higher animals. There is only one long tube more or less divided into chambers and this acts as a pump, forcing the blood into the head cavity and from there it makes its way through the body among the muscles and viscera until it finds its way back into the pump.

Neither do insects have lungs and yet they require air to purify the blood, for life is essentially the same in them as in man. Therefore a modification in structure has occurred and the air is carried in flexible tubes to all parts of the body. These tubes go everywhere where the blood goes, and they open along the sides of the body-never on the head. An insect breathes, then, along the entire length of each side and there may be as many as twenty openings, although there are usually less. Ordinarily contact poisons act through these spiracles or breathing pores, though sometimes, on soft-bodied slugs we can use caustics. In the greenhouse, however, these caustics would be almost as dangerons to the plants as to the insects, hence the safer materials which act through the spiracles must be employed.

These may be soaps of various kinds, tobacco decoctions, oils, dry powders or gases, and each of these acts in a different

One of the simplest of the remedies usually employed is sulphur, either dry or in the shape of sulphur water. In either case the result is due to the decomposition of the sulphur producing a vapor which is deadly to insect life. Against creatures like the red mite or spider so often found on violets and other plants, dry sulphur spread on the soil and allowed to decompose slowly by the warmth and moisture often acts like a charm. Sulphur, indeed, is almost a specific against mites or similar minute spider-like creatures. The gases given off by its decomposition seem to be deadly to them. To the plants it is harmless unless used in unreasonable quantity. Exactly where the reasonable line ends is a question which the experience of the gardener must ascertain for each line of plants, but ordinarily there is no risk in sowing the sulphur so as to yellow the soil very perceptibly.

The sulphur acts only when the insects are in the active stage, and does not injure the eggs, hence infestation may continue for some time after the sulphur is applied, and so long as any unhatched eggs remain.

Against plant-lice sulphur is of little use as compared with tobacco. Tobacco mall forms is a good thing. It is a fer-tilizer, the nicotine as it is gradually extracted by the moisture of the soil kills almost all insect life contained in it, and when vaporized it is death to plant lice. The mere smell of the tobacco while appa rently impleasant to many insects is not poisonous to them. But an extract in water so applied that the insects become covered, is rapidly fatal. So tobacco smoke when breathed by insects is fatal to many, while it stupefies a yet greater number. I need not speak on this point to practical florists, all of whom have probably had experience in this direction. A very good way to use tobacco where pipes are sufficiently hot is to smear them with a tobacco extract and moisten from time to time until it has all evaporated. This will penetrate everywhere and will settle on everything in almost invisible globules, killing all theaphides that come under its influence.

This leads naturally to another very important point that must be considered and whose neglect accounts for many failures. Most insects have the bodies either pubescent, very polished, or powdery or somewhat waxy on the surface, so that they shed water quite readily and any application of a coarse spray simply rolls off without effect. So also the spiracles or breathing pores are furnished with protecting screens of hair or bristles which serve to keep out foreign material. A large drop of water or watery decoction has not the least chance of penetrating through this protection and the application is useless as an insecticide. Use the same mixture with an atomizer and the result will be quite different. The minute globules adhere readily to the insect because they are not heavy enough to roll off; they penetrate between the protecting screen or under it, and enter the body with the in-breathing. Therefore when tobaccoor any other watery mixture is to be applied it should be put on in as fine a spray as can be secured.

For cleaning house plants of all save seale insects, a tobacco soap-suds put on with an atomizer, is almost perfect. This brings me to soaps as insecticides and they act in a somewhat different way. When put on very strong they are of course very caustic and as dangerous to plants as to insects. Put on at a strength safe to the plants they clog the spiracles and thus choke the insects to death.

Some of you in days gone by may have made soap-bubbles, and if you did not you have probably seen others make them. This is a good example of the tenacity of a soap film, and if such a one forms over the spiracles of an insect the creature simply chokes to death. That explains how soaps act and the one that forms the stickiest film is the best. Tar soaps, or fir-tree oil soaps are particularly good for that reason, and fish oil soaps come next. You can readily test the difference between these and the common hard soap-suds if you make a solu-tion of equal strength. The common soap-suds will feel clean and smooth and crisp to the hand, while the others will feel more or less slimy. These soapy mixtures should also be put on in a line spray and from what I have said you will realize that thoroughness is essential, for no insect not actually hit by an application will be in the least affected by it. Soap-suds have an advantage over more watery mixtures, because they adhere better. The insect surface that will shed a droplet of water will retain and become covered by one of soap-suds-hence a tobacco soap is better than a tobacco tea, though neither is equal to a tobacco

There is another point worthy of attention in the greenhouse. If soaps are to be used, those made with potash rather than with soda should be selected.

ash is a plant food and when washed into the soil acts as a fertilizer and is taken up and removed by the vegetable growth. Soda on the contrary in the form used in soaps is actually deleterious to the plants when present in any quantity, and a frequent use of suds made with a soda soap may easily impair the value of the soil for plant growth. In general, hard soaps are soda soaps, while soft soaps are potash soaps.

Dry powders are rarely used in the greenhouse, but whenever they are to be employed the reasons that call for a fine spray, call for the finest possible dust. The finer the dust, the more effective the application. Coarse particles are readily sifted out, but fine fragments penetrate and get into the body cavity where they can produce their characteristic effect.

Of the oils, kerosene only has been used to any extent, and this is a most valuable insecticide where its use is allowable. It is very effective even when greatly diluted, but it must be first emulsified before it can be mixed with water. This emulsion is prepared as follows:

Hard soap shaved fine, 12 pound. Water, 1 gallon. Kerosene, 2 gallons.

Dissolve the soap in boiling water and pour the kerosene, which should also be slightly warm, into the boiling hot suds—churn rapidly with a force pump for a few minutes, and you will get a beautiful, snow-white butter which will keep in a cool place for weeks, and will dissolve readily in water to any extent.

Thus much for insecticides in general, and now a few words concerning a very few kinds of insects. Of course the same conditions that tayor the growth of plants also favor the development of certain kinds of insects, and particularly plant lice or aphides, commonly called "greenfly" or "blackfly" according as they vary in color.

[TO BE CONTINUED.]

Antirrhinum Majus.

One of the best things to follow chrysanthemums for the florist who retails his own stock, and who does not require all of his space for bedding plants, is Antirrhinum majus. It is easily managed, and not at all fussy, as regards situation or temperature. It is a very useful flower, and helps greatly to relieve the monotony of the general line carried by the florist, who does not have access to the larger trade markets, and is very satisfactory to customers as it will keep nearly two weeks, with ordinary care, and every bud will open in the usual house temperature. The white and yellow varieties have proven to be the most useful, though a light pink variety that we are growing this season seems to sell fairly well. Many beautiful colors can be obtained from seed, but the better way to propagate is by cuttings, which should be inserted by the latter part of March, and if kept well shaded and not allowed to wilt, they will root very quickly.

After becoming established in 212-inch

After becoming established in 2½ inch pots and danger of frost is past, they can be treated in various ways to suit the general requirements. Where the plants are housed early in October, field culture has been very satisfactory with us, being careful to lift with as good balls as possible and keeping them well syringed after planting. A few degrees of frost in the field will not hurt them.

Where it is desired to get a goodcut for Christmas we find the best way to grow them is in pots, plunged in some sheltered place outside, and not allowed to get pot bound or to suffer from want of water, and kept well pinched back until the latter part of August. When grown in this way they can be housed early, and will not receive the slightest check when planted in the benches. About 50° temperature at night suits them very well, and at no time should they suffer from want of water; they are great feeders and will appreciate an application of liquid manure once a week after the first of Janzaron.

ANTIRRHINUM MAJUS.

The plants from which the spikes in the illustration were cut were not benched until the last of November and have been blooming steadily since New Year's, and are retailing for $1 to $3 per dozen.

λ. II. L.

Boston.

SPRING EXHIBITION OF MASSACHUSETTS HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY. — IMPROVED CONDITIONS IN CUT FLOWER MARKET.— NOTES AND NEWS.—VISITORS.

The spring exhibition of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society opened on Tuesday, March 22, with rather unpropitious weather which continued lowering and rainy through Tuesday and Wednesday with a light attendance of visitors but a prospect of better encouragement on the two remaining days. The lower hall was devoted mainly to the cut flower displays, which were not up to expectations in number but were superlative as to quality. Out of $325 appropriated to roses on the schedule, which was arranged with liberality, less than $100 was awarded, the only exhibitors being Wm. H. Elliott and Robert McGorum on Brides and Bridesmaids and C. H. Souther (R. Sandiford, gardener) and David Nevins (Alex McKay, gardener) on hybrid roses. All these were very fine.

on Brides and Bridesmaids and C. H. Souther (R. Sandiford, gardener) and David Nevins (Alex McKay, gardener) on hybrid roses. All these were very fine.
M. A. Patten, E. A. and W. K. Wood, Wim. Nicholson, F. A. Blake (Bon Ton) and J. Tailby & Son (Wellesley) were the main earnation exhibitors. The sensation in this section was a vase of one hundred blooms of Mrs. Thos. W. Lawson, from Peter Fisher, which received a silver medal and attracted no end of attention from visitors. Patten's vase of 100 assorted carnations was fine. Maud Adams from Frank Niquet was given honorable mention. Alex McKay, as usual, carried off most of the honors on violets, H. S. Rand being second. Pansies from J. S. Fay estate (M. H. Walsh, gardener) and from Robt. Sandiford were up to the standard. Jas. Comley showed a fine promiscous collection of roses, camellias, etc.

The upper hall, which was devoted to the plant groups appeared somewhat thin as compared with former spring exhibitions. As in the cut flower department many classes were not competed for, such as ericas, orchids, hardy tlowering evergreen shrubs, cannas, ranunculuses and novelties in tulips and narcissi. The bulbous classes brought out the fullest competition, tulips being uniformly fine, hyacinths limited in number but good, and narcissi showing a good advance in and narciss slowing a good advance in number of varieties as compared with previous exhibitions. John L. Gardner, Bussey Institution, Dr. C. G. Weld and E. S. Converse were all well represented in the hyacinth classes, the same parties with the addition of W. S. Ewell & Son in tulips, jonquils, nareissuses, etc. J. W. Howard took both Harrisii prizes, and the Bussey Institution both anemone prizes. Dr. Weld's ixias and tritonias were the best seen here for a long time. Ewell beat the Bussey Institution on general display of spring bulbs with a superh

The finest azalea plant seen here for many years was Edw. Butler's specimen of Carl Enke. Three specimens of Acacias cultriformis, Drummondi and pubescens from Dr. Weld were grandly flowered. In Dr. Weld's collection were many handsome stove and greenhouse flowering plants, one of the prettiest, comparatively unknown here, being the little lilac flowered gem, Exacum affine.

The Botanic Garden was represented by some interesting things among which were Pendrobium nobile nobilius and D. Fitchianum. A plant of Cattleya Schroderiana from Bayard Thayer bore twenty-five blooms and was said to be the largest piece of this species in the country. C. II. Souther showed a pretty specimen of Crimson Rambler and in J. L. Gardner's group of orchids were some nicely flowered plants of sophronites.

The cyclamens were, as heretofore, one of the leading features of the show. The principal contributors were J. S. Bailey (Wm. Donald, gardener), and Mrs. B. P. Cheney (John Barr, gardener), Mr. Donald coming out first on the large plants and Mr. Barr first on those limited to 7 inch pats. On cinerarias C. H. Souther, James Garthley, John L. Gardner, C. G. Weld and E. S. Converse competed with results in order as named. John L. Gardner showed a good collection of hardy primulas and polyanthuses.

There are evidences of better feeling and improved conditions in the cut flower market. The overstock is not so pro-nounced and the demand seems better able to take care of the supply. In this statement violets are, however, excepted, an avalanche of them descends on the market every day and a goodly propor tion of them are on hand to greet the nest day's product. Quality is high on Roses and carnations have never been better in this market. In the florists' windows, plants such as hereto-fore have been Laster specialties are a prominent feature. Cyclamens, prim-roses, azaleas, lilies and quantities of spring flowering bulbs are leaders. Cruuson Rambler rose is seen occasionally and seems to have taken a place as a permanent attraction in the list of forcing plants for decorative purposes.

On Saturday, March 19, W. W. Lunt exhibited at Horticultural Hall a plant of Lælia-Cattleya "Mrs. John D. Long," a hybrid between Lælia elegans Warnerii and Cattleya superbasplendens, and was awarded a silver medal. Edward Butler, who has presided over the greenhouses of Wellesley College, where the young ladies do congregate, for nearly a quarter of a century, exhibited a plant of Dendrobium nobile with 1500 blooms, that showed conclusively that "Ted," as his friends call him, had not allowed his horticultural propensities to be interfered with by any extraneous distractions. A vase of Epi-Cattleya Guatemalense from C. G. Roebling attracted much attraction.

John Walsh has taken the position of superintendent of the Cut Flower Market,

Mr. Kennedy having resigned

Lawrence Cotter's smile has returned; all on account of a young Miss just added to his family circle.

It is reported in the "down east" papers that large shipments of flowers are arriving from New York on sale. The Boston growers are wondering "where they are at.

The will of the late E. C. R. Walker provides for the bequest of $20,000 to he Massachusetts Horticultural Society, the income to be used for prizes. Frank Becker has been dangerously sick with pneumonia.

Visitors. H. A. Siebrecht, New York; Geo. McWilliam, Whitinsville, Mass.; P. J. Donohue, Lenox, Mass.; E. O. Orpet and J. T. Clarke; C. B. Knickman and A. T. Boddington, New York.

New York.

FLOWERS STILL IN EXCESS OF DEMAND. LILIES MAY BE SCARCE FOR EASTER.-VIOLET PLANTS ARE GOOD,—THE TRIP TO OMAHA.—FINE ORCHIDS.—MR. LODER'S NEW OFFICES.—MR. O'MARA TO SAIL ON JULY 2.

The receipts of flowers continue heavy but not quite so unweildy as at this time last week, owing to darker and colder As to the Easter prospects weather. all are still in the dark. It is generally accepted, however, that lilies will be scarce as compared with former years, and that for good material in this line better prices will be realized than for a number of years. Louis Schmutz who has always on tap a vast amount of logic of his own peculiar brand says that if we have war with Spain we can make sauerkrant of our flowers.

Plants are of fine quality, as seen in the shop windows. Azaleas are well flowered, lilies short and stocky, cricas well feathered and violets never looked better. The Campbell, not equal to the Marie Louise as a cut flower, makes a much prettier pot plant. The flowers are larger at this season of the year and the color shows up more effectively.

The Market Florists' Association met March 22, and adjusted matters with the city anthorities, and Clinton Market will he open for the plant business at I a. m. Match 28. Forty two stands are already taken and the enterprise starts off with brilliant prospects. An executive committee has been elected, with John Birnic as chairman, and the next meeting will be held April 12. The rent of stands is 81 to 81 25 per week in advance. The florists' favorite Fall River Line is now fully settled in its magnificent new pier at the foot of Warren street. It is banch to be regretted that these boats on which the boys have enjoyed themselves so much on past occasions, cannot run direct to Omaha. If that were possible, a full delegation would be assured. Efforts are being made, however, to plan some way whereby as many as possible may be able to travel together and thus make the long ride pleasanter.

MacDonald & McManus are receiving quantities of Cattleya Trianæ daily and expect to have them until after Easter. They filled one order for 600 blooms one day last week.

The National Florists' Board of Trade has secured larger offices on a lower floor in the building they have been occupying heretofore at 271 Broadway, and Mr. Loder has arranged for many improvements in his facilities for prompt work in the special line in which they are employed.

Patrick O'Mara is booked to sail for Europe on July 2. We shall miss him greatly at the convention.

Chicago.

TRADE OUIET. - STOCK ACCUMULATING. -PRICES DEMORALIZED. - MEETING OF THE FLORIST CLUB.—DEATHS.—PERSONAL.

Business during the past week has been quiet. Sales have not been as large as they were the previous week, while the cut of flowers has been larger. Stock has accumulated in the wholesale stores, and as a result prices have been somewhat demoralized, buyers being able to dictate prices in most cases, especially on large lots. The very bright warm weather we have experienced for the past five or six weeks is having a very beneficial effect upon the crop of Easter lilies; many growers that were doubtful about getting their crop of flowers open for Easter five or six weeks ago now have their plants so far forward as to feel safe in taking orders for them.

W. W. Barnard & Co. have leased the new six-story building, Xos. 161 and 163 East Kinzie street, and will move their office into the new location May 1. W. W. Barnard & Co. are successors to Hiram Sibley, who started a seed business in Chicago in 1878 and sold out to W. W. Barnard & Co. in 1888. Mr. W. W. Barnard, the proprietor, was formerly connected with the old Sibley business. He was born in Chicago in 1856.

The Florist Club met Thursday evening. Edgar Sanders reported for the trustees that they had seemed an option on a hall in the Lemoyne building at about one-half the rental the club is now paving. The trustees were instructed to go ahead and make the lease. The special order of the evening was the Harrisii lily disease. Mr. Buettner lead in an informal discussion of the lily disease and diseased bulbs generally. Mr. Buettner claims that the same mite that causes the disease may be found on nearly all flowering bulbs, including all varieties of filies, hyacinths, tulips, narcissus, iris, and tuberoses. The consensus of opinion among those present was that until sounder bulbs could be procured it would not pay the average grower to force Harrisii. Van Teylingen, representing Van Zandten & Co., of Holland, was present at the the meeting.

Mrs. 1 re, wife of John C. 1 re, died at Chiengo on Saturday, March 19. Mr. tre in this breavement will have the sympathy of his many friends and acquaintances throughout the northwest. Mrs. Tre was the mother of Mrs. James Hartshorne.

Carl A. Lundstrom, of School street, died on Saturday, March 19, aged 65 years; there was a largely-attended funeral, the interment being at Graceland cemetery. He had been in the florist business at the above address for the past fourteen years, and was well known and respected by many people both in and out of the trade. His wife and four sons survive him. Robert Lundstrom, a son, is connected with the Lincoln Park conservatories

Arnold Ringier is a firm believer in Bradstreet's and Dun's commercial reports. Burglars entered the flat building where he resides and robbed the flat above and next to his of jewelry and silverware to the amount of $600 or $700, but never took the trouble to open the door leading to his apartments. The police claim it to be the work of experts.

Frank T. Emerson, of Omaha, Neb., stopped in Chicago last Saturday. He is on his way east.

A. L. Vaughan started west on a business trip Tuesday.

ness trip Tuesday.
L. G. Grensenz, salesman for Bassett & Washburn, was married on Wednesday evening to Julia Reig.
Visitors: Jac. Wezelenburg, Sassenhiem, Holland; N. Dames, representing Van der Horst & Dames, Holland; Robert Craig and John Burton, Dislocativities and John Burton, Philadelphia.

Rose Leaf Blight.

There is a leaf trouble of the rose that is becoming quite common in parts of the country. It was about five years ago that the writer first met with this fungus. This was in a large house of various sorts of roses some of which, worse than others, were looking badly from the disease. The effect of this fungus, Sphaerella rosigena E. & E., is that of irregular spots of a gray color and often surrounded by a purple or red border.

Figure 1 shows three rose leaves with some of the leaflets already fallen, and the remaining ones are more or less blighted. The largest leaflet, the terminal one upon the left hand, has the blight in its center. Figure 2 shows this same leaflet as seen under a magnifying lens and the blighted part is fully three times the natural size. With this enlargement the fruiting of the fungus is shown as minute dark pimples. This is not the place to discuss the method of spore formation, but it goes without lengthy statement that when this blight gets so firmly seated in the leaf as shown in figure 2 there is not much more hope of usefulness for that leaf. In fact instead of being an organ for the making of substance for the growth of the plant it has degenerated into a propagating place for the fungus that has brought its ruin. And this leads naturally to a consideration of the importance of removing all such leaves and burning them, or better still of treating the foliage so that such blotches do not get started in the rose foliage. Such troubles cannot be cured, but it does not follow that they need to be suffered.

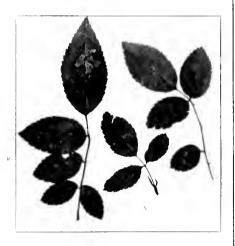

FIG. I. THE ROSE LEAF BLIGHT.

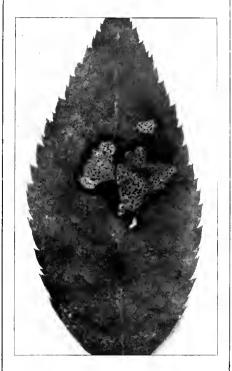

FIG. 2. THE ROSE LEAF BLIGHT

It is as essential for the marketing of the blooms as for their production that the foliage be kept in a healthy condition. This means healthy stock to start with, the best of soil with fertilizer in right amount and judicious watering and ventilation. Probably the best spray for fungous diseases is the cupram, as it has no lime, and therefore gives no objectionable coating to the foliage. Flowers of sulphur will do some good, and has the great point in its favor of doing no injury to the rose plants.

BYRON D. HALSTED.

St. Louis.

BAD WEATHER MAKES BUSINESS QUIET .-SOME GROWERS VISITED.-J. J. BENEKE CHANGES QUARTERS.-PERSONAL.

The past week has been one of the worst on record so far as the weather goes.

Business the past week has been quiet, painfully so for those depending upon transient trade, owing to the wet weather. Those doing a custom trade, however, report better business, principally lunches and funeral work, but not nearly enough demand to move stock. The wholesalers have quantities of stock on hand in all varieties which they can't dispose of; the glut is caused not by heavy receipts, but by the absolute lack of demand for stock; the only thing selling are the selected grades of roses and some fancy carnations. Owing to the peculiar state of trade, the wholesalers have seen no benefit to come from a lowering of prices, and con-sequently they have held them up to last week's figures. Carnations running 1 to 3 cents; roses, 1 to 6 cents; Beauties, 2 to 35 cents; violets, 10 to 30 cents, smilax has been cleaned up better than anything coming into the market, selling from 10 to 15 cents. Fancy ferns have been very scarce, some wholesalers reporting them to be over for the season.

Several bright days following the present cool spell will put the market in good shape to last until after Easter.

A visit was paid to several of our St. Louis county growers last Sunday by your correspondent. Mr. J. W. Dunford's place at Lockland was first visited; the carnations were in good shape, especially Scott and Daybreak; we found here another system of staking carnations or rather supporting them and like most all the systems written of, considered the best by its inventor. The support used is 12-inch chicken netting; it is run across the bench and back between each row of carnations on its edge; it is not cut but is continuous and passes around the front plant of a row, and starts down the other side; it is spaced and held in shape by short cross wires that are clamped to its edges, three cross wires being put on the upper edge and two on the lower edge in each row. It is the intention of Mr. Dun-ford to lift and hang the whole thing to the roof when removing the plants and drop it in place again as soon as the plants are in the benches for the following season. Although successful in growing roses Mr. Dunford expects to put his three large houses entirely in carnations next season; his violet house will contain as it did this season small single violets; when asked about California for single, he said the returns from the smaller violet were enough to satisfy him. After trying Farquhar and Marie Louise side by side, the results are against the older variety and it will be discarded in favor of its newer competitor.

Our next stop was at John Steidle's place; his carnation house was worth a long trip to see; if any of our growers want to see or find out anything about red carnations, they would be wise to examine his bench of Jubilee; they were simply magnificent, without doubt the best of that variety the writer has ever seen. Daybreaks also were fit companions for Jubilee, being in just as good shape, they, however, being more universally grown do not make the impression that well grown Jubilee do. In white, Alaska is grown principally; several panels of Flora Hill have been tried this season but will be discarded and Alaska held to for the main white; Evelina will be tried the coming season just as Flora Hill was the present. Mr. Steidle believes in holding fast to tried varieties, and make the newer ones prove their superiority before giving them any amount of bench room. Scott has proven unsatisfactory this year, Scott has proven unsatisfactory this year, fully 50% of the flowers having split their calyx, he will grow in its place a deep colored sport from Daybreak, which he has succeeded in fixing, and of which there is quite a stock. Violets are also quite extensively grown by Mr. Steidle, small extensively grown by Mr. Steinle, small single, California and Farquhar. Here, as at Mr. Dunford's, Farquhar is most highly spoken of; it appears to be the coming double variety for profit. I am afraid to state Mr. Steidle's estimate of flowers cut to a plant for fear that there would be nothing grown next season but Farquhar. The place all through was in excellent shape and is a credit to Mr. Steidle's ability as a grower.

J. J. Beneke has moved his store one door west from his former location at 1220 Olive street. The store vacated was about the fifth flower store opened in St. Louis, and has been used continually as a flower store for more than twenty-five years. The new store is much larger and better adapted for the needs of the business, besides containing two fine show windows.

Mr. Kellogg, of Pleasant Hill, Mo., passed through town last week on his return from the meeting of the executive committee of the S. A. F. in Washington. He reports stock looking well around Washington: he was also impressed with the appearance of Mrs. Robt. Garrett and reports growers as being of the opinion that it will prove a good winter flowerer. The report he brought back of the entertainment by the Washingtonians need not be mentioned as all can imagine it who know what wholesouled fellows the Washington brethren are.

Visitors: Harry C. Sim, representing Henry A. Dreer, of Philadelphia.

R. F. T.

No Politics in the Paterson, N. J., Park Management.

ED. AM. PLORIST:—In a recent issue of your excellent journal, in an article referring to change of park superintendent in this city, you make certain derogatory strictures on the park commissioners, attributing the resignation of Otto Buseek, our former superintendent, to a political deal, and alleging that a change was made for the purpose of making room for a man with a political "pull."

As there are always two sides to a story we trust that you will give the same prominence to a contradiction of the allegations alluded to. We emphatically deny that Mr. Buseck's resignation was entorced through any political influence governing the action of the park com-missioners of this city. Politics have never at any time entered into the business or deliberations of this body since its organization in 1889. The commissioners to a man have jealously sought to keep out everything bordering on politics, and in this the citizens of l'aterson have had a source of much pride. No man applying for a position as superintendent has ever been asked his politics. Mr. Buseck was not. He was not a citizen of the United States when he was engaged, and it is doubtful if he is at the present time. Our late lamented superintendent, Henry McCrowe, who died in the service of the commission after serving three years, was not a citizen at the time he was engaged, but became one later, instances are cited to show how little at tention is given to polities. The engagmg of the workmen for the parks is entirely in the charge of the superintendent, who discharges and hires as he sees ht those men that he requires for the work, and he has instructions not to keep any man in the employ of the department that is not able to do a fair day's work. So much for politics.

When the commission engaged Mr. Buseck, after the death of Mr. McCrowe, he was engaged on the strength of his recommendations and his own claims as to his fitness for filling the position. It was made mainlest very shortly after his engagement that he lacked executive and professional ability to fit him for the position, but rather than dismiss him the commission decided to allow him to remain in the employ of the commission and this spring. Mr. Buseck was informed that a change was to be made so as to all whim to retrie from the commission with the prestige of having resigned. This is all there was to his enforced resignation. Six out of seven commissioners favored a change, deeming it for the best interests of the parks of this city. If there were "politics" in the commission Mr. Buseck ought certainly to have had more than one friend in the commission. So much for the change.

NEW CHRYSANTHEMUM MRS. A. F. WIENOLD.

Mr. John M. Hunter, who was unknown to the commission one week previous to his engagement, applied for the position and has been appointed Mr. Buseck's successor. Mr. Huntercomes to Paterson from Hempstead, Long Island, and is an entire stranger in Paterson. He came highly recommended and was engaged. He certainly had no "political pull" get the position. The park commissioners of Paterson are all influential and representative business men working for the best interests of the parks. They serve without remuneration and are not dependent upon their appointment in any way to politics. When Mr. Buseck makes the statement, or any one else, that, his removal was due to polities he chætges what he knows to be not so

Very respectfully yours,
The Pyrk Commissioners.

We publish the above abstract of a letter received from the park commissioners at Paterson, N. J., with pleasure. The Aviriac vs.1 rousers always desirons to publishing facts, and it would appear from the foregoing very clear and definite statement that a serious injustice had been done the estimable gentlemen who have charge of the Paterson parks,—ED.]

Early White Chrysanthemum.

MRS. A. F. WIENOLD.

The blooms in the illustration were all cut from one plant on October 7 last, the photo being taken after they had been kept two weeks. The color is a creamy white, the form of the flower being very similar to Golden Wedding. It is a strong, rather tall grower and said to be very easy to do.

It is being introduced by McDonald & Steele, Crawfordsville, Ind.

Philadelphia Notes.

The Spring exhibition of the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society will be held next week commencing Tuesday, March 29, and continue until April 1. It is the first spring show held for several years and it is to be hoped that the trade generally will give it all the support they can by exhibiting and competing for the generous premiums offered. A spring show properly conducted should be almost if not quite as great an attraction as the chrysanthemum exhibition in the fall. Let everyhody put their shoulder to the wheel and push all together.

The number of G. C. Watson's 'phone

The number of G. C. Watson's 'phone is 5086 D. He has been a trifle slow, or perhaps we had better say conservative, with this convenience, but now one can have his car at a moment's notice.

THE AMERICAN FLORIST

Subscription $1.00 a Year. To Europe, $2.00. Subscriptions accepted only from those in the trade.

Advertisements, 10 Cents a Line, Agate; $1.00 per inch. Cash with Order. No Special Position Guaranteed. Discounts, 6 times, 5 per cent; 13 times, 10 per cent; 26 times, 20 per cent; 52 times, 30 per cent.

The Advertising Department of the AMERICAN FLORIST is for Florists, Seedsmen, and dealers in wares pertaining to those lines ONLY.

Orders for less than one-half inch space not accepted.
Advertisements must reach as by Wednesday to secure insertion in the issue for the following Saturday.
Address THE AMERICAN FLORIST CO., Chicago.

B. P. Critchell's Sons.

The above firm call our attention to an error in their advertisement in our issue of March 12. The advertisement is worded "Six Areca lutescens 5-inch pots, five in a pot." It should have been "three in a pot."

"Experience with Carnations."

The latest edition of Mr. Albert M. Herr's pamphlet on carnations has just been issued. It gives further information about varieties mentioned in former editions with additional cultural notes. Everyone interested in carnations should send for a copy.

Greenhouse Building.

East Weymouth, Mass.—Daniel Lincoln, one greenhouse, 150 feet long. Westerly, R. I.—II. G. York, one commercial house, 23x70 feet.

E. G. Hill's Experience with Jadoo.

In answer to your questions regarding Jadoo would say: First, it is useful in a limited way for germinating certain seeds, chrysanthemums, begonias, and other seeds of a like nature, for the reason that it seems free from substances which go to decomposing soon, thereby rendering less trouble from fungus growths. There are other substances equally as good, viz., cocoa fibre and some kinds of peat.

We have found it good for fancy caladiums, especially for starting the bulbs in for early growth; but it does not maintain growth without the application of liquid or other feed—for that matter neither will soil, where extra good plant development is desired. We have used about two tons of it and shall continue to experiment with it, believing it has certain qualities for a few kinds of plants which warrant its use.

We think its cost out of all proportion to its value and doubt if it will become very generally used on that account.

If it will do one-half what is claimed for it, it should become a very valuable adjunct to the florist in the production and development of high class flowers and extra fine plants.

In the stirring competition now prevalent in the florist trade it would require that Jadoo at $27.50 a ton should possess extraordinary powers over ordinary compost in order to warrant its being used to any great extent by plantsmen. This quality we fail to find in its use over soils for general culture. Our experience is that it does not work well to mix with the soil of castern Indiana, and fail to find any special benefit whatever from its incorporation with our general compost as used by us.

As noted above we intend to give further trial and experiment, desiring it shall obtain an honest start with us in competition with other soils.

In connection with the subject matter it may be stated that there are deposits of vegetable fibre in castern Indiana not unlike Jadoo in fibre and texture, and which, when sweetened by exposure to air and frost, acts as a stimulant to quick root production. This particular fiber is found where the beavers in years gone by built their dams across rivers and streams. We have no doubt but that this fiber if gotten out and sweetened would be useful in a limited way, equally so with Jadoo.

E. G. Hill.

Society of American Florists.

The Executive Committee of the Society of American Florists and Ornamental Horticulturists held its session in Washington, D. C., on March 15 and 16. Many matters of importance concerning the future policy of the society and the management of its various departments were taken up and carefully discussed.

It is not the purpose of this communication to give in detail all the matters which occupied the committee's time, but merely to give briefly the conclusions arrived at in some of the matters of special interest to the society members and the trade in general. The most radical departure from the past policy of the society was the adoption of resolutions establishing a number of departments under the society's management, calculated to secure to members of the society direct benefits which are likely to make membership in the organization desirable and necessary to everyone identified with the florist trade. These departments are to be established under the following titles: Department of Credit Information, Purchasing Department, Legislative Department, Arbitration Department and Claims Department. Each of these departments is to be under a committee appointed by the president, with the approval of the society, and the title, in each case, indicates its work.

The duty of the committee on credits will be to furnish information concerning the business standing of persons in the trade; said information to be supplied to members of the society at $1 per amum and to all other applicants at $5 per annum. This committee was constituted to consist of the secretary with Messrs. II. B. Beatty and Adam Graham and was instructed to proceed at once to secure necessary data for putting the department in operation.

It was decided that the purchasing department should also begin work at once to secure for members of the society through co-operation and the purchasing of large quantities of material, lower rates upon such supplies as glass, iron pipe, coal, etc. Messrs. E. M. Wood, W. W. Coles and W. K. Harris were constituted the committee.

The legislative committee will be entrusted with the duty of watching for and discouraging adverse legislation, either state or national, and encouraging such legislation as shall be considered favorable to the trade. The committee already acting for the New York Florists' Club on similar work, consisting of Messrs. Patrick O'Mara, J. N. May and C. H. Allen, were endorsed and appointed to represent the Society of American Florists in a similar capacity.

The purpose of the claim department is to act on behalf of the members of the society to look after the adjustment of claims against transportation companies.

The arbitration committee will be entrusted with the duty of helping members to settle mutual differences without recourse to law.

The two latter committees were not constituted by the executive committee—the necessity for immediate action not being apparent, but the committee will recommend to the society at its meeting in August that they be established—the secretary to be a member ex-officio, of the committee in each of these departments.

In response to what seemed to be a general demand for a revision of the methods of making awards at the trade exhibitions, it was decided that the past system of awarding certificates should be discontinued and the competitive features heretofore encouraged, eliminated. The old rule in reference to the making of awards was replaced by the following: "Judges shall examine all exhibits and make mention of such as are, in their opinions, of special value, and shall only award certificates to new plants, improved appliances and approved florists' requisites, not previously exhibited before this society." It was also voted that all parties hereafter, who win awards of value, shall qualify themselves as members in good standing before receiving such awards.

All other matters relative to the management of the trade exhibition at Omaha were left to a committee consisting of the president, vice-president and secretary, who will visit Omaha early in May and make all necessary arrangements toward securing a successful convention in all its departments. Propositions looking to the securing of a special train to travel from some eastern center to Omaha and take up delegates at various points en route, were also referred to the same committee.

The following subjects for discussion at the sessions of the convention were selected: "The American Bulb Industry, (and, incidentally, the lily disease; its cause and its remedy), discussion to be opened by Mr. M. G. Kains of the Department of Agriculture, Washington. "Trade Exhibitions," their value to the florist trade, to be opened by Mr. E. H. Cushman, Euclid, O. "The Influence of Public Parks," "Grafted Roses for Growing I'nder Glass," "The Effect of Improvement in Varieties and of Improvement in Cultural Methods," were all selected as subjects to be discussed, and to be assigned at a later date to competent persons. How to interest the retail trade in artistic decorative work was a subject discussed at length, and a general invitation will be sent out for a contribution of photographs of such work, to be shown at the exhibition hall in Omaha.

The Carnation, Chrysanthemum and Dahlia Societies will be invited to provide one essayist each on subjects connected with their special work. It was decided to offer the same number of silver and bronze medals for competition at Omaha as was offered at Providence last year—one of which will be given to the best exhibit of American grown bulbs and the balance of the schedule to be announced later.

The treasurer's report showed the gratifying fact that there is a balance of $135 more in the treasury than at a corresponding date last year.

On the committee table was a vase of magnificent blooms of the rose Golden Gate, grown and contributed by Gude Brothers, of Washington.

WM. J. STEWART, See'y.

Bringeport, Conn.—E. C. Bassick died Saturday, March 12.

Albany, N. V.—Thos. Wade has opened a new store at 104 Pearl street.

Philadelphia.

BUSINESS STILL DULL .- BEAUTIES CHEAPER. -STOCK PLENTIFUL.-SWEET PEASARRIV-ING,-MB,D WEATHER,-D, D. L. FARSON GONE OUT OF BUSINESS .- PERSONAL.

No, business has not improved much over that of last week; it is dull, very dull; to be sure there have been some store decorations and a few small weddings, but the transient business still continues very slow. The bottom has dropped out of the Beauty market as far as prices are concerned, and they are to be had at are concerned, and they are to be had at almost any figure, the very best going for three dollars per dozen and many left over at that. The smaller sizes go for a mere song: $4 to $6 is high for teas, with the exception of a few specials which bring $5 to $10. Carnations at $1 to $1.50 have commenced to pile up. A few of the finest bring $2 to $3. Sweet peas are becoming quite common and sell for $1 to $2 per hundred sprays. Violets are almost past quoting, about 50 cents per hundred for the best with a limited sale is the price, in quantity very low prices are realized. Bulbous stock is all about the same figure, from $2 to $4 per hundred being the price. Harrisii lilies sell slowly at from $8 to $10 dollars per hundred flowers.

Plants in flower are in evidence in all the stores, but just now they, along with everything else, are selling slowly.

The mild—in fact hot—weather of the past week has given the growers considerable uneasiness as it is bringing the Easter stock along very fast; 70° out of doors is very warm for this season, and extra precautions have to be taken to prevent the stock coming on too fast.

As Easter draws near there seems to be quite a lot of lilies coming into sight and it is quite probable there will be enough to go around at about the same figures as last season. John Wanamaker has commenced his annual sale of Dutch budded roses, and one does not go very far on the shopping streets without seeing bundles of them being lugged about by amateur rose growers, 15 cents each or two for 25 cents, and $1.25 a dozen is the price.

D. D. L. Farson has closed up his establishment and gone out of business. The petty annoyances of the retail merchant were too much for Dan, and hegave up in disgust after a little over a year's experience.

Messrs, Walter Coles, E. D. Smith and H. B. Beatty of the executive committee of the Society of American Florists stopped over a day or two in this city on their way home from Washington. The western members always lay out routes in going about this city so as to take in as many oyster saloons as possible. It is related how many the Kokomo member put away at one sitting, but we forbear as we don't like to be called unreliable.

Chas. E. Mechan and a unimber of his Germantown friends had a private reception in the club room last Tuesday evening, a very enjoyable time was the result. A like privilege will no doubt be enjoyed by other members in the near

Cincinnati.

Business the past week has been on the decline, and flowers of all kinds are now plentiful Roses have fallen off in prices, with the exception of choice Beauties. Bulbous stock is in good supply with lit tle demand. Carnations of good quality are holding their own, prices have varied from $1.50 to $2.50 per 100 for laney. Violets are a terrible glut, and buyers of large quantities are able to secure all they need at their own figures. Retail trade is quiet all over the city and St. Patrick's Day passed by unnoticed. The first part of this week more activity in funeral work was felt.

At the Christ Moerlein funeral (of the Christ Moerlein Brewing Co.) I noticed one emblem which deserves special mention. It was a solid white vase resting on a base of loosely arranged cycas leaves, interspersed with Beauties and lilies of the valley. The design was five feet high and the top about twenty inches in diameter, it was filled with Beauties and Asparagus plumosus. A garland of Beauties was fastened at the top, drooping gracefully over one side, with several doves resting among roses at the other side. The whole design showed much taste, and the workmanship was excel-It was executed by the Hoffmeister lent. Floral Co.

We are having unusual warm weather at present with much rain. Magnolias are in full bloom, peaches showing color, and all herbaceous plants are much advanced for this time of the season.

H. SCHWARZ.

Worcester, Mass.

Trade still continues to hold on fairly well; flowers are plentiful and prices remain steady.

Bulbous stock is moving rather slowly, especially tulips, but the bulk of it will be well cleaned out after Easter.

There has been a little violet war on the last week between Sargent and the cutflower department of the Boston Store; at last accounts Sargent had the best end of it.

The weather continues warm and springlike and robins and bluebirds are with us, but as yet we have seen no Dutchman.

SITUATIONS, WANTS, FOR SALE.

Advertisements under this head will be inserted at the rate of 10 cents a line (seven words) each insertion. Cash must accompany order. Plant advs. not admitted under this head.

Every paid subscriber to the AMERICAN FLORIST for the year 188 is entitled to a five-line want adv. free to be used at any time during the year.

CITUATION WANTED—By a first-class florist of 10 years' experience; good rose and carration grower. Address A.C.M., care American Florist.

SITUATION WANTED—By a competent gardener and florist, private or public place preferred. First-class references. A PA, care Am. Florist.

SITUATION WANTED-By an experienced krower of roses, carnstions mome, as foreman: 12 years' experience. GROWER, care 716 3d Ave., Brooklyn.

ATTUATION WANTED -By an experienced gardener in and florist on private or commercial place; nge 33, married. Best of references. W.R. caro American Florist.

OPTHATION WANTED—As foreman by single man, in age 30; grower of roses, carnations, minos, violets, valley, paims, etc. First-class recommondations. F A H, care American Florist.

OPTUATION WANTED - By a young Danish florist, 12 years of size, is assistant; i years' experience in England. First class references E. B., 130 Prospect Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y.

CITUATION WANTED By an experienced grower of rones carmations, violets, indims and general bedring plants, to take charge of commercial or private place. Address F.W., care Am Florist

OTTIATION WANTED A chance to learn to grow in carnations, etc., by a young man; have had some experience; small wages. New England states perferred. Address A II., care American Florist.

OPTUATION WANTED By practical florist, No. 1 to now grower; commercial or private position; en-mations, minus, violets a specialty. References, 25 years experience. W. care P. O. Box 547, Alliance, O.

OPTUATION WANTED. By good orchid, paim and in fern grower: Bratednasa, all round florist and gardener, English, middle aged, single, temperate. Alref erences. CATILEYA, 126 Duraton Ave., Syracuso, N.Y.

STUATION WANTED A man, 30 years of age, single, wants position in commercial place; good grower of roses, carmations, mains, paims and general stock—liest of references—At liberty April 1—C. J. R. care American Florist SITUATION WANTED—As manager by a competent plantsman; IS years' practical experience in roses, orchids, palms, ferns, tiorists' stock in general. Capable of taking entire charge of large commercial or private place; married. References. Address HPS, care American Florist.

WANTED AT ONCE-Assistant florist. Address GOOD HOME, care American Florist.

WANTED—The address of Carl Jorgensen, Dane, Amager. Address L. JENSEN, South Butte, Mont.

WANTED-Partnership in established business, in or around Boston. Capital, $1,000 or more. OLOF OLSSON, 66 Hamond St., Boston, Mass.

WANTED-By April I, a gardener and florist for commercial place; German, single man. Wages $30 a month. JNO. FEIDEN, Great Falls, Mont.

WANTED-To buy or rent a florists' establishment near Omaha. Neb., or ground suitable for erec-tion of a plant. Address A. C. ANDERSON, Leigh, Neb.

WANTED AT ONCE - Good, quick man, sober habits, for watering and general greenbouse work. State wages wanted. References.
C. II. FREY, 1131 O St., Lincoln, Neb.

WANTED—Competent and first-class practical florist to take charge of 5 rose and carnation houses; good worker; married man preferred; natural gas bere. State salary expected. Address

L. A. JENNINGS, New Castle, Ind.

WANTED-A buyer for an established florist business and greenhouses. Everything in first-class condition. A fine stock of all plants, roses end carnations. City water, steam beat; 3 boness, 3000 feet glass; fine large office, bolier bones, potting sbeds, cold frames, etc.; lerge cut flower cellar; cement walk, stone curb and streets improved; land 150x132 feet. In thriving indisna town of 500; beaths and pleasure resort, six large sanitariums. No competition within 30 miles. A bargain if sold at once; 13 cash, balance to suit purchaser. Speak quick. Address MEXICO, care American Florist.

FOR SALE-Greenhouses on principal street in the city. For particulars apply to J. H. REBSTOCK, 584 Main St., Buffulo, N. Y.

FOR SALE—Cheap for cash, an old-established flo-rist and seed store in Chicago drawing good busi-ness; owner has two piaces. 174. care Am. Florist.

FOR SALE OR RENT CHEAP—Six well-stocked greenhouses, dwelling, etc. Best R. R. facilities, no competition. Reason, poor bealth. W. L. Winn, White Hall, Ill.

FOR SALE.

One dwelling house, two greenhouses 17x150, newly built, well located and good home trade, on street car line, near city of 300,000 population. For particulars address H S, care American Florist.

FOR SALE.

Greenhouses in one of the best cities in Wisconsin, A good investment and a money maker for a hustler. Owner must retire on account of poor health. For particulars write

A. LEUBNER, Wausau, Wis.

Situation Wanted.

A COMPETENT MANACER of therough ablify and over 20 years' practical experience desires a position to take entire charge of private estate, park or first-chase commercial place; an experienced outlivator or palms, orchids, florists' stuck in general, shrubbery, fruit and vegetables; a good floral decorator. Thoroughly reliable, married, with small family. Good wages required. Address

FLORIST, care S. J. Nelson, 206 E. 28th St., New York.

BUSINESS OPPORTUNITY

I HAVE a lot of seven acres at Atlanta, Ga., ferfile and well adapted for growing flowers. Many varieties now growing. I want to talk business to florist with capital and experience. Fine climate, population 110,000. Call on or address

HENRY ROBSON,

CHICAGO, ILL.

Wanted For Easter!

A house of Harrisii or Longiflorum Lilies in bloom, for cut flowers.

"LILIUM."

care Eastern Office, 67 Bromfield St., Boston, Mass.

It is not much trouble to mention the AMERICAN FLORIST when corresponding with an advertiser.

Diseased Callas.

What is the matter with callas rotting off in the stem at the base? Out of 200 fully one-half have done that way in pots and bench. The roots start with fine strong growths and ready to bloom. All at once they fall over and are gone. I have never seen callas behave that way and have grown them every year under the same treatment. Do you know any cause for it?

H. STEINMETZ.

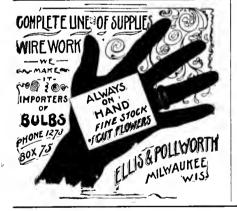

The callas are affected with a rot that develops in the crown, where the leaves join the corm. The germs of the disease are doubtless inside when the plants are set out, and came from the region where they were last grown. The disease is known to occur in California, but does not seem to have become established east of the Rocky mountains. No remedy has yet been suggested. Every plant with the soil about it should be removed as soon as the disease shows, and thus keep healthy plants from contracting the J. C. ARTHUR.

Cure for the Rotting of Bulbs.

If you are ever troubled with bulbous plants decaying on the side of bulb, stem or leaf, take three-fourths lime (airslaked will do) and one-fourth sand; make a stiff plaster. Remove all the decayed portions and give the parts affected a thick coat, and keep that way until all signs of decay have left. Place your plants in a moderately warm place and do not water too much; keep water from the affected part, and in a short time your plant will A. F. WIENOLD. outgrow it.

TRAVERSE CITY, MICH.—Charles Gunton has started in the greenhouse business on Randolph street, at the location formerly occupied by the Traverse City Floral Co.

DAYTON, O.-The new greenhouses at the Soldiers' Home will be erected in May.

Wholesale Flower Markets

| CINCINNATI, March 24.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |
|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Roses, Beauties select                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |
| medium                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |
| " Brides                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |
| Dittesmands 1009 0.00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |
| " Meteors 5.00@ 7.00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |
| Carnations 1 50                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |
| " fancy 2.00@ 3 00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |
| Laly of the valley 3.00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |
| Romans                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |
| Narcissus 3.00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |
| Daffodils 3.00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |
| Daffodils       3.00         Violets       50         Harrisii       10.00@12.50                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
| Harrisii                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |
| Callas 8,00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |
| Tulips 3.00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |
| Tulips 3.00Smilax 12.50                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |
| Adiantum                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |
| Asparagus 50.00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |
| Abparagos                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |
| St. Louis, March 24.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |
| Roses, Beauties                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |
| Meteors 1.00 a 6.00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |
| " Brides, Bridesmaids 1.00@ 6.00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
| " Peries. 1.00@ 6.00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |
| " Wootton 1.00@ 6 00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |
| " La France                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |
| " Katserin                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |
| " Carnot 1.00@ 6 00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |
| Carnations 1.00@ 3 00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |
| Carnations 1.00@ 3 00Violets California                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |
| Violets California                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |
| Lily of the valley 2.00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |
| Harrisii                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |
| Callas                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |
| Tulips 3.10 a 5.00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |
| Narcissus. Romans                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |
| Smilax                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |
| Freesta 2.60@ 2.50                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |
| No No 1. 07                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |
| MILWAUKEE, March 25.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |
| Roses, Beauties per dozen 1.10@3.00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |
| " Brides, Bridesmaids                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |
| rene. bene 2 000 5.00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |
| meteors                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |
| Carnations 1.00% 2.50                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |
| Violets                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |
| Romans                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |
| Lily of the valley 2.00@ 3.00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| Freesias 2 00@ 3 00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |
| Lily of the valley   2,00@ 3,00   Freeslas   2,00@ 3,00   Freeslas   2,00@ 3,00   Fullps   Hyacinths   2,20@ 3,00   You Slons   Jouquils   2,00@ 3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3,00   3, |
| Von Slons, Jonantis 2 00@ 3 00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |
| Callas, Harrisii                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
| Smilax                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |
| BUFFALO, March 24.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |
| Roses, Beauties                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |
| " Brides Bridesmaids, Meteors 3 00% 6 00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |
| " Perles                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |
| " Niphetos                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |
| " Niphetos                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |
| Carnations extra                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
| ordinary 1.00@ 1 50                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |
| Lily of the valley 300@ 4.00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |
| Violets. 50@ 1 00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |
| Pomens 9.00@ 1.00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |
| Romans 2.00@ 4.00Harrisil 6.00@10.00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |
| Dartiell 6 00@10.00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |
| Smilax         12.50@15.00           Adlantum         1.25@1.50                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |
| Adiantum 1.25@ 1.50Asparagus 50.00@75.00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |
| Asparagus                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |

Asparagus Plumosus

Strings 8 to 10 feet long,

50 CENTS.

W. H. ELLIOTT, Brighton, Mass.

The Denver Florists' and Nurserymen's Exchange,

Ihe Denver Florists' and Nurserymen's Exchange, 1501 Lawrence St., Denver, Colo. for the accommodation of the Denver Florists and Nurserymen and for the benetit of the Western Trade in general. Will furnish you certything you ceed for the Greenhouse and Garden. We pay cash for our wants in the Cut Flower line. Send us a list of your Surplus Stock. Let us figure on anything you need. Terms cash, Also Cut Flowers, etc., bought and sold, on commission. Ask for our new and original Telegraph Code; very useful for new tirms.

F. A. Haenselmann, Mgr.

GOOD PACKING.

«Հուսանուսանուն անանական անանական անանական անանական անանական անանական հարաական անանական անանական անանական անա WE WILL HAVE THEM!

8,000 CUT

ALSO ALL OTHER SEASONABLE FLOWERS PROMPT SERVICE.

At the Right Prices.

Place your order now for Easter delivery.

HOLTON & HUNKLE CO.

Wholesale Florists and Florists' Supplies.

457 MILWAUKEE STREET, Wire Work. 'Phone Main 874. P. O. Box 103. MILWAUKEE, WIS.

C. A. KUEHN, Wholesale Florist,

1122 PINE STREET, ST. LOUIS, MO.

A complete line of Wire Designs.

MOUND CITY CUT FLOWER CO.

Wholesale Florists.

CONSIGNMENTS SOLICITED

Special attention given to shipping orders 1322 Pine St., ST. LOUIS, MO.

C. W. WORS 2740 Olive Street, ST. LOUIS, MO. ERS ....wholesale....

.....ROSES, and a full line Headquarters for the South West ....

When writing mention American Florist

ST. LOUIS CUT FLOWER CO.

Wholesale Florists

E. H. MICHEL.

1620 Olive St. ST. LOUIS, MO.

GIVE HEADQUARTER US Α TRIAI WE CAN PLEASE YOU.

ROSES, CARNATIONS, AND ALL KINOS OF SEASONABLE FLOWERS IN STOCK.

WM. F. KASTING COMMISSION FLORIST....

495 Washington St., Buffalo, N. Y. Also Dealer in Florists' Supplies and Wire Designs

W. A. MCFADDEN.

NEAVE BUILDING, CINCINNATI.

Producers and Shippers of every description of High Class Floral Supplies.

CATTLEYAS and DENDROBIUM NOBILE.

Quotations issued weekly, forwarded on request.

THE "OLD RELIABLE" FOR

WHOLESALE

Hunt's Flowers Go Everywhere

76 Wabash Ave., CHICAGO.

WIRE WORK A SPECIALTY, 88 WABASHAVE. CHICAGO

E. C. AMLING. WHOLESALE

Consignments Solicited. CHICAGO.

Prompt attention to shipping orders.

A. G. PRINCE & CO. AND FLORISTS' SUPPLIES.

ROOTED GARNATION GUTTINGS

Albertini and Bridesmaid, $2.00 per 100; Daybreak, $1.50 per 100; Lizzie McGowan, Ivory, Lizzie Gilbert, Fred Dorner and Rose Queen, $8.00 per 1000.

88 & 90 Wabash Avenus,

Telephone Main 3208.

CHICAGO.

S. B. WINTER.

(Successor to WINTER & GLOVER,)

HIGH GRADE UU

so they will reach you in just as good condition as they reach us.

WIRE DESICNS: A Full Line. Write us for our lilustrated Catalogue.

IF YOU WANT EASTER FLOWERS OR FLORISTS' SUPPLIES

LOOK FOR THE AD. OF THE

IRIPLEIS

In NEXT WEEK'S Issue

Wholesale Flower Markets

| CHICAGO, March               | 25                    |
|------------------------------|-----------------------|
| Roses, Beautles per doz. 1.0 | 0@4.00                |
| " Brides                     | ., 3 r 0@ 5 00 |
| " Meteors, Bridesmalds, Ka   | alserio.3.Ct@ 5.U0    |
| " Perle, Gontlers            | 1.00a 3.00            |
| " La France. Testout         | 4.00@ 8.00            |
| Carnations, common           | 1.10@ 2 00            |
| " fancy                      | 2.00@ 5 D0            |
| Violets                      |                       |
| Narcissus, Romans            | 2.00@ 3.00            |
| Callas                       |                       |
| Harrisil                     | 6 60@ 8.U             |
| Lily of the valley           | 2 0000 3 00           |
| Tuilps                       | 1.0067 4.00           |
| Von Sions                    | 2 0                   |
| Hyacinths                    | 3,0020,600            |
| Adlantum                     | 1.00                  |
| AdlantumSmllax           |                       |
| DIMINA                       | 40 00c; 75 00         |
| Asparagus                    | 40.0009 10.00         |

Consignments Solicited.

All Florists' Supplies.

19 & 21 RANDOLPH STREET, CHICAGO. Fine Stock a Specialty.

Wholesale Florist

DON'T FORGET that we are at the old number, 126 Dearborn St., Chicago.

Write for special quotations on large orders.

N. Y. CUT FLOWER EXCHANGE

404-412 E. 34th St. Near Ferry. Open for Cut Finwer Sales at 6 o'clock Every Morning.....

DESIRABLE WALL SPACE TO RENT FOR ADVERTISING.

JOHN DONALDSON, Secretary.

***Wholesale Florists

111 West 30th Street, NEW YORK.

Consignments Solicited. Telephone, 260 38lh St.

Cood Money for your Flowers.

Cood Flowers for your Money 49 WEST 29TH ST. NE TELEPHONE 1675 38th St. NEW YORK.

THE NEW YORK GUT FLOWER CO.

II9 and I2! West 23d Street, 112 and 114 West 24th Street,

Telephone 733-18th. NEW YORK.

CONSIGNMENTS SOLICITED. Special Attention Given to Shipping Orders.

ROGERS PARK FLORAL CO..

Wholesale Growers of

FLOWERS.

51 WABASH AVENUE,

- CHICAGO. HEADQUARTERS FOR AMERICAN BEAUTIES.

WHOLESALE GROWERS OF

...CUT FLOWERS...

800,000 feet of Glass. We can fill all orders on short notice with all leading varieties of Roses and Carnations. We are fleadquarters for fine American Beautles. Give us a trial and convince yourself. & & & &

ROOTED ROSE CUTTINGS

| BRIDE           | §1,50 | #19.5 |
|-----------------|-------|-------|
| BRIDESMAID      | 1.50  | 19.5  |
| PERLE .         | 1.50  | 12.5  |
| METEOR          | 1,50  | 13.5  |
| KAISERIN .      | 1.00  | 13.5  |
| BELLE STEBRECHT | 0.01  | 12.5  |

ROSE PLANTS

| •              | • | • |     | •  | •  | _ | _ |    |    | •  |   |    |   | - | •  | •  | • |    | •  | - | -  | - |      |     |       |       |
|----------------|---|---|-----|----|----|---|---|----|----|----|---|----|---|---|----|----|---|----|----|---|----|---|------|-----|-------|-------|
|                |   | c | 111 | t  | c  | f |   | ١, | 6  | -1 | ı | ıc | 1 | ı | t  | H) | t | ð, |    |   | ľ  | • | ۹.   | 100 | per 1 | COT   |
| Meteor         |   |   |     | Ċ. |    |   |   |    | Ξ. |    |   |    |   |   | ٠. |    |   |    | ٠. |   |    |   | 83   | Dil | 820   | 100   |
| Perle          |   |   |     |    | ì  | Ġ |   |    |    |    | ı |    |   |   |    |    |   |    |    |   |    |   | 3    | DO  | 25    | UK    |
| Bride          |   |   |     |    |    | ï |   |    |    |    |   |    |   | , |    |    |   |    |    |   | ٠. |   | 2    | 50  | 1343  |       |
| Bridesninld    |   |   |     |    |    |   |   |    |    |    |   |    |   |   |    |    |   |    | ٠. |   |    |   | . 2  | 50  |       | : 541 |
| La France      |   |   |     | ì  |    |   |   |    | į, |    |   |    |   |   |    |    |   |    |    |   |    |   | . 2  | :50 |       | . 50  |
| Katserin       |   |   |     |    | ٠. |   |   | ٠. |    |    |   |    |   |   |    | ٠. |   |    |    |   |    |   | . 12 | 50  |       | .50   |
| Belle Stebrech |   |   |     |    |    |   |   |    |    |    |   |    |   |   |    |    |   |    |    |   |    |   |      |     |       | : 50  |
|                |   |   |     |    |    |   |   |    |    |    |   |    |   |   |    |    |   |    |    |   |    |   |      |     |       |       |

ROOTED CARNATION CUTTINGS.

|                  | per 100 per 1000 |
|------------------|------------------|
| JUSILEE          |                  |
| Win Scott        | 1 00 7.50        |
| Nancy Harks,     | 1 00 7.50        |
| Tidal Wave       |                  |
| Portla           | 1 00 7.50        |
| Lizzie McGowan   | 1.10 7.50        |
| Koldnoor         | 1 00 7 10        |
| Goldfineh        | 1.00 7.50        |
| Mra Thompson     | 1 00 7 50        |
| Imybrenk         | 1,50 12.50       |
| Emma Wocher      | 1,50 12 50       |
| Meteor           | 1.60 12.60       |
| Lizzie tillbert  | 1 50 12 50       |
| Harrison's White | 1 50 12.50       |
| Bridgenuald      | 1 50 12 50       |
| Nives            | 3.00             |
| Market 11111     | 4 100 375 100    |

51 WABASH AVENUE. CHICAGO. REINBERG BROS..

M. A. HART. Commission of the Cut Flowers. 44 WEST 29TH STREET,

NEW YORK CITY. THE BEST MARKET IN NEW YORK. 'Phone 1307 38th $t.

TRAENDLY & SCHENCK, Wholesale Florists.

Control the stock of many celebrated growers and are prepared to quote prices on First Grade Cut Flowers. All varieties.

38 West 28th St., and Cul Flower Exchange, NEW YORK CITY. Tel. 961 18th Street.

FRED.

No. 1403 Fairmount Avenue.

Telephone, Long Distance.

PHILADELPHIA.

Wholesale Flower Markets

| NEW YORK, March 23.                     |
|-----------------------------------------|
| Roses, Beautles 6 00@40.00              |
| " Br.des. Bridesmaids 2 00% 6 00        |
| " Testout, Carnot 3 00@ 8.00            |
| " Morgan, Meteor 2.00 g 6.00            |
| Carnations 1.00@ 1.50                   |
| " fancy                                 |
| Lily of the valley                      |
| Mignonette                              |
| Violets                                 |
| Harristi, Callas                        |
| Daffodlis, Tullps                       |
|                                         |
| BOSTON, March 22,                       |
| Roses Beauties                          |
| " Brunners 6.00@25.00                   |
| " · Perie, Niphetos 2 00@ 4 00          |
| " Brides, Bridesmaids Carnot 2 00@ 8 00 |
| " Morgans, Meteor 4.00@ 6 00            |
| Carnations                              |
| Carnations                              |
| Viulets 25@ .40                         |
| Harrisil, Calia 5.00@ 8 00              |
| Tuilps 1.50@ 3.00                       |
| PHILADELPHIA March 23.                  |
| Roses, Beauties, select, per dozen3.00  |
| " medium 6.00@15 00                     |
| " Brunners                              |
| " Teas 4 00 % 10 00                     |
| Carnations 1 00@ 1 50                   |
| fancy                                   |
| Lily of the valley, 3 00@ 4.00          |
| Violets                                 |
| Narcissus,                              |
| Hyacinths                               |
| Harristi                                |
| Sweet peas                              |
| Smtlax                                  |
| Emitax 12.00@10.00                      |

1612-14-16 LUDLOW ST. PHILADELPHIA, PA

John I. Raynor,

49 WEST 28th STREET.

-NEW YORK.

SPECIAL EXTRA STOCK OF

AM. BEAUTY, METEOR, BRIDESMAID, BRIDE.

Record Breaking Carnations ALL THE YEAR ROUND.

THOS. YOUNG, JR.

* * Wholesale Florist

43 West 28th Street, New York.

WALTER F. SHERIDAN. WHOLESALE

ORIST.

39 West 28th Street, NEW YORK.

Roses shipped to all points. Price list on application

ose Growers

Will find a good market and good returns for their stock at....

JULIUS LANG'S 53 W. 30th Street. - NEW YORK.

Edward C. Horan. 34 W. 29th Street, NEW YORK,

WHOLESALE • FLORIST.

Careful Shipping to all parts of the country Price list on application.

WM. C. SMITH. Wholesale Florist.

40 So. 16th St., PHILADELPHIA.

Consignments Solicited. Special attention given to shipping orders

Long Distance Telephone 5008 A.

CITY HALL CUT FLOWER MARKET. 9 Chapman Place, 15 Province Street, BOSTON, MASS.

BROS.

ed separate space in our market. We guarantee payment for all Flowers sold. Sales reported weekly; payments monthly, or oftener if required.

THE NEW ENGLAND HEADQUARTERS FOR THE BEST GRADE OF FLOWERS AT ALL SEASONS OF THE YEAR.

J. K. ALLEN, Wholesale Florist.

WHITE VIOLETS, finest quality, EXTRA ROSES and other desirable specialties.

57 West 28th Street,

Long Distance Telephone 382-38th St

NEW YORK.

GALVIN & CO. Wholesale Florists

AND DEALERS IN ALL

FLORISTS' SUPPLIES,

4 Ordway Place, BOSTON, MASS. Cut Flower Consignments Solicited. Best market.

GEORGE A. SUTHERLAND, Cut Flowers Florists' Supplies WHOLESALE.

67 Bromfield St.,

BOSTON, MASS.

Wholesale Florists

JOBBERS IN

Hortleuliural Auctioneers. LEY STREET. . BOSTON.

JOHN YOUNG, ROSES. CARNATIONS. VALLEY

and all other choice cut flower stock.

51 W. 28th Street. NEW YORK. Price list on application.

FRANK MILLANG, CUT FLOWERS.

WHOLESALE COMMISSION.

408 E. 34th Street.

Cut Flower Exchange.

NEW YORK.

Dahlia Notes.

A CORRECTION.

I am in receipt of a letter from Messrs. E. H. Krelage & Son, of Haarlem, Holland, under date of February 25, 1898, from which the following is an extract.

"Referring to dahlias we may be permitted to say that the statement in the AMERICAN FLORIST of January S which refers to Prof. Bailey's visit to our nurseries, is not quite correct. The true cactus dahlias are now preferred to the 'decoratives.' The latter are excellent for bedding, but the former are superior for show and cutting purposes. We think the term 'decorative' to be better than the German 'Cactus dahlien hybriden,' which may lead to confusion and does not mean anything. The number of true cactus dahlias introduced in 1897 was about fifty and there will be as many as seventy novelties in this class this year. Probably a dozen will prove to become standard varieties of the future."

The italies in the clause beginning "Which may lead," etc., are mine. I have introduced them to emphasize the evident position of the Messrs. Krelage in regard to the use of the terms "cactus" and "decorative" and because I most heartily endorse them, only in America confusion already exists. The extract occurs in a private business letter and is all that refers to the subject and was not suggested by anything in the previous correspondence. It is therefore highly interesting as showing the evident desire of the Messrs. Krelage to be placed right on the record.

Old Orchard, Mo.

If I may thus express it, Mr. H. E. Michell seems to be right "in it" in so far as the cultivation of palms and ferns is concerned. The plant formerly belonging to Wm. Trillow, comprising eleven houses, and originally built for roses, has been completely remodelled and adapted for palms, it being Mr. Michell's intention to give a deal of his time to this branch.

I may mention, in passing, that the cultivation of palms in this latitude is as yet in its infancy, and though some attemps have been made, with more or less success, to grow a few latanias, none, to my knowledge, have ever experimented upon a general stock, such as kentias, Areca lutescens and ferns. Mr. Michell's venture, therefore, seems to be of the right sort.

What impressed me most favorably about the place was the strong, healthy and vigorous growth of the stock. What is generally termed as "drawn" plants were conspicuous by their absence. His ferns especially are in the best of condition.

A honseful of latanias in 4 and 5-inch pots were very interesting, being remarkably clean and healthy. Taken all in all my visit to Old Orchard was an enjoyable-treat.

Carrolton, Mo.

The Hillside Greenhouses, owned by Kennedy & Farnham, were badly damaged by hail on the afternoon of March 18. About 3000 feet of glass was lost; there was no insurance. Single strength glass suffered the most. The stock was not injured to any great extent.

Geo. W. Kennedy.

Garnations, Violets, Lily of the Valley

And ALL OTHER FLOWERS at Lowest Market Rates . . . .

FOR EASTER

CARNATIONS

A SPECIALTY

WE control more carnations than any house in the country and can fill orders Large or Small.

HARRISII to SUPPLY ALL

Harrisii In Great Numbers!

SMALL AND LARGE ORDERS BOOKED ON HARRISH.....

Order of us any kind of Rooted Carnation Cuttings. We will get them for you. Special line of Bulb Stock for Easter. * * Get your orders booked. * * *

HARRISII FOR ALL!

Lily of the Valley

WESTERN AGENTS for E. G. Asmus' high grade stock. Best and most uniform grown.

TULIPS

of all kinds. & Klehms Novelty a Specialty. & & &

See our Price List for Easter in all trade papers. Book orders early, as we fill in rotation.

Write for Catalogue and Cut Flower Price List.

KENNICOTT BROS. COMPANY,

FONG DISTANCE TELEPHONE Express 466.

88 Wabash Avenue, CHICAGO.

ROOMS 22 & 23

GRAND NEW VIOLET "LA FRANCE"

STRONG VIGOROUS GROWER EXTRA FREE FLOWERING

1 the many new Violets introduced in the past few years this, the latest introduction of the foremost Trench specialist, is unquestionably the BEST. It has been thoroughly tested by Mr Suprot, the Violet expert, who pronounces it "perfect," and flowers which we have exhibited during the past few weeks have been much admired. In vigor of growth, freedom of bloom and in size and coloring it is superior to all existing sorts, and will soon supersede them. Only a limited stock will be offered this season, and orders will be filled in strict rotation.

Price, $1.25 per dozen: $10.00 per 100.

HENRY A. DREER, 714 Chestnut Street, PBH ADELPHIA, PA.

JADOO

Extracts from Letter of March 15, 1898

Wm. Wallace Lunt, Esq.

16 OLIVER ST., BOSTON, MASS.

".... Experiments with other plants are just as satisfactory, notably with Rubbers, Fuchsias, Gloxinias and Ferns.

"..... If Horticulturists have brains and are willing to use them, by all means grow your plants in JADOO, but if you are going to grow plants on the hit-or-miss plan, let it alone."

WHERE TWO MEN GROW THE SAME PLANTS IN JADOO, AND ONE SUCCEEDS WHERE THE OTHER FAILS, IS THE FAILURE THE FAULT OF THE JADOO OR THE GROWER?

For the results obtained from the intelligent use of & & &

Jadoo

By practical growers, address 🚜 🚜 🚜

THE AMERICAN JADOO COMPANY,

815 Fairmount Ave., PHILADELPHIA.

Mention The American Florist.

CANNAS ES CANNAS

THE FINE NEW BEDDERS

PRESIDENT McKINLEY, PRESIDENT CLEVELAND, DEFENDER, TARRYTOWN,

At 60 cts, each; $5 00 per dozen; $40.00 per 100 from 4-inch pots,

Also a Fine Stock of Strong Dormant Bulbs.

Queen Charlotte, Mme. Crozv, Florence Vaughan, Chas. Henderson, A. Bouvier, Egandale, Ami Pichon

At $2.50 per 100; $20.00 per 1000.

M. Mesnier, L. E. Bally, Midway, Admiral Avellan, Prest. Carnot, J. C. Vaughan,

$3.00 per 100.

ELDORADO, Alex. Billard, Chicago, Burbank, Count de Bouchard, Souv. de Prest. Carnot,

$4.00 per 100; $35.00 per 1000.

Souv. d'Antoine Crozy, Papa, John White, Italia,

$5.00 per 100; $40.00 per 1000.

SPECIAL OFFER:

1000 Fine Bulbs in 10 named sorts, $15.00 Cash. 500 ... ... ... ... ... 8 00 Cash.

Strictly our selection of sorts.

THE COTTAGE GARDENS, Queens, N.Y.

THE # NATIONAL FLORISTS BOARD OF TRADE

(INCORPORATED) COLLECTS OLD OR

ORGAN

ORGANIZED FOR THE PROTECTION OF

FURNISHES TRUSTWORTHY REPORTS

FLORISTS, SEEDSMEN, NURSERYMEN

AND KINDRED INTERESTS.

Write to the Secretary for terms and information regarding Membership, Collection Rates and Reporting and Credit Department. Testimonials of the highest character as to effciency and reliability.

CORNELIUS S. LODER

SECRETARY.

(Notary Public)

_271 Broadway, NEW YORK.

Why Some Carnations Fail.

There is one thing positive about this carnation business, and that is the impossibility to judge a carnation by one season's trial, unless it be such a rank failure that the condemnation be so general as to remove all doubt.

Mr. Herr may be right as to the cause of failures among the common herd, but I think there is another cause, at least from my experience. Very few of the general run of florists care to invest very heavily in any seedling at its first introduction, and when they do buy it is only a few plants. Should the first flowers strike their fancy, then they are worked for all there is in them; the plants are immediately stripped of everything that looks like a cutting; this process is kept up all the time, even the first cuttings are cut back or down to the pot in order to give another cutting. The main object seems to be quantity, and just so the highest possible number is reached is all that is thought of. The next season many plants are weak, give a larger percentage of poor flowers, and show no vigor until spring, by that time the soil has become sour and it is again an uphill business for the poor plant. It is spoken of as a variety that will produce a few nice flowers, but it does not pay to grow it, and out it goes; and they hang on to Snowden, Hinze's White, or some other

I remember the first batch of Hector that I handled as they came from the florist (fifty in all). They were boxed and transplanted to the field with the rest and seemed to do well. I did not see them housed, but knew about the exact treatment they received. I heard later that they had proven an utter failure, and to my understanding I thought Hector (from the report) a fizzle. You may imagine my surprise last fall while attending the Indianapolis show of seeing my old friend Hector in all its glory, and I thought it was as fine a bunch as there was at the back number. I have seen Scott thrown out because two plants were treated just as I have described, and such a failure as

Mrs. Garfield kept in its place.

show of its color.

While condemning carnations, why not roses? How many really can grow first-class Beauties? Yet no one will dare say that Beauty is no good. Look at the scrubby Brides, Perles and Bridesnaids you run across, and that does not condemn roses. Growers make every effort to comply with the general wants of a rose; build houses for one kind and import a certain soil; but with a carnation it is different. They are all dumped into one house, given a general treatment, and if they stand they are O. K., if not, they are called a fraud or humbing.

A. F. WIENOLD.

Kirkwood, Mo.

There are violets and violets. Those that I saw at the Ude Brothers' establishments during a recent visit are well worthy of the name. Seldom have I seen anything to equal them. The Californias especially are grown with remarkable success, and between the three brothers, F. W., H. G. and C. M. Ude, it would be hard to determine who is really the most successful grover.

successful grower.

Mr. F. W. Ude also grows carnations, and some of the best that the St. Louis flower market affords come from his place. His Daybreaks, Jubilees and Scotts never go begging. A white Daybreak is one of Mr. Ude's latest acquisitions. It is a sport of Daybreak, and like the latter it bids fair to make its mark.

Homo.

EASTER FLOWERS

BUY DIRECT FROM THE GROWERS.

Bassett & Washburn,

* * * WHOLESALE GROWERS OF AND Cut Flowers
... DEALERS IN

HARRISII LILIES

25,000 for Easter. We have the largest and finest stock in the West. Our long experience in handling these lilies enables us to deliver them in the best condition. We guarantee them to arrive without bruising if shipped in boxes of 75 or 100, direct from our greenhouses without repacking. Price $10.00 to $12.00 per 100.

AM. BEAUTIES

50,000 plants to cut flowers from and they are now in full crop. A very large quantity of Brides, Kaiserins, Bridesmaids, Meteors and Perles, all our own growth.

FANCY CARNATIONS

as well as good common sorts. A A A A A A

LILY OF THE VALLEY

15,000 extra choice cold storage pips at three cents. This is fresh cut every day. A A

TULIPS

A large quantity of all kinds and Daffs or double Von Sions, all best quality. A A

ASPARAGUS

3000 strings at 30 cents per string. A A A A A is very scarce and $2.50 to $3.00 per dozen, but we shall have 3000 strings. * * Our flowers are all carefully chilled before shipping. Write us for our weekly price list.

SMILAX....

BASSETT & WASHBURN

STORE: 88 WABASH AVENUE,

GREENHOUSES: HINSDALE, ILL.

THE AMERICAN FLORIST

For twelve years the representative paper of the Florist, Nursery and Seed trades.

==SPECIAL== EASTER NUMBER

APRIL 2, 1898.

ADVERTISING RATES:

Advertisements of less than U inch not solicited. Three (ounch columns to the page (so inches), Special position not guaranteed.

Discounts for Consecutive Insertions:

Less than 6 times, net, 6 times, 20 per cent, 52 times, 30 per cent, ratimes, 10 per cent

FLORIST for this date will be sent to all the new names obtained for the 1898 Directory, which is compiled at this office, and will be mailed to 13,000 buyers of florist, nursery and seed stock and supplies.

No extra charge for advertising space in this number and the usual discounts for time contracts will be given.

SEND COPY AT ONCE

Early orders will receive our best attention as to display and position.

AMERICAN FLORIST COMPANY

324 Dearborn Street, CHICAGO.

TELEGRAPH CODE

AM. SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION

in either stiff or flexible cover.

And HERR ORDERS TO

AMERICAN FLORIST CO., CHICAGO.

Surplus Stock

Can be disposed of by advertising. Try it.....

This Size "Ad." Losts Only $1.00.

AMERICAN FLORIST CO., URICAGO.

THE AMERICAN FLORIST'S COLOR CHART

is now accepted as the standard in preparing color descriptions, by many foreign houses as well as in America.

PRICE 15 CENTS POSTPAID.

AMERICAN FLORIST CO., 322 Dearborn St., Chicago.

Cypripedium William McKinley. NEW HYBRID.

Cypripedium insigne Chantini  $\times$  C. Harrisianum superbum. This new hybrid has the blood of three distinct species, C. Harrisianum itself being of hybrid C. Harrisianum itself being of hybrid origin, being C. barbatum × C. villosum, which too claims the distinction of having been the first hybrid cypripedium ever raised. Thus it is seen the new one under notice has C. insigne Chantini as the seed parent, and the influence of C. barbatum and C. villosum imparted to it through the pollen parent, with the it through the pollen parent, with the result that excepting the color, which it imparted to its hybrid C. Harrisianum, the species C. barbatum is wiped out; in the next resultant hybrid, C. cenanthum, it is the species C. villosum which becomes obscured, whilst in the new hybrid William McKinley theinfluence of C. villosum returns in such force as to make itself noticeable in a very marked degree.

The following technical description will give a good idea of the principal characteristics. Foliagelong, broad and spreading, bright green with a darker green tessellation and slightly spotted at the outside base; flower scape green, minutely side base; nower scape green, ininitely spotted with purple brown, very hirsute, bract apple green, speckled at the base; ovary pale green, densely hirsute along the ridges; the dorsal sepal measures two and one-half inches deep by two inches in breadth, delicate green with many well defined lines of minute brown spots, here and there broken up by larger ones, and a venation of darker green which ramifies in every direction; the whole dorsal sepal is broadly margined with frosted white, which same crystal effect is observed over the entire flower; basal sepal very large, very delicate pale green over which is very prominent darker green venation, lined at the base with small blackish spots, tipped with white and that same crystalloid effect which is indeed so charming; petals five inches across, very broad, golden bronze netted and shaded with bright chestnut brown, inferior with bright chestnut brown, interior halves near the base spotted with rich brown; lip very large, beautifully formed, yellowish green shaded with fawn brown on the face and which spread in nerves over the entire surface, the orifice is lined with short hairs on the golden yellow rim; staminode granulose golden with a faint green base.

It will be seen that the affinity this hybrid has with others of similar parentage is entirely wiped out or so obscured as to preclude its being taken for a variety of them, and it had the qualifications necessary to obtain a first-class certificate from the Massachusetts Horticultural Society on January 22. It is dedicated to William McKinley, our President, by the possessor and raiser, Mr. C. G. Roebling, of Trenton, N. J., and who had desired it named in compliment to a man well known in public life.

HENRY T. CLINKABERRY.

Niagara Falls, N. Y.

A fine central location in this city has been secured by W. J. & C. J. Biggar on which they will—this season—erect new modern greenhouses and necessary building for their retail florist business. They contemplate heating by electricity. Indreamed of possibilities are here in store, only awaiting development in the use of electric heat, power and light for greenhouse purposes. This will be the only establishment of the kind in the United States, if not in the world, and the result will be looked for with interest.

Palmer's Hot Bed Mats FROST PROOF

Made expressly for winter covering of hotbeds, cold frames, plants and seeds of all kinds. Indestructible, Cheap and Warm

WILL not harbor mice or vermin. Easily handled. Dry out quickly after rain. Have now been in practical use three years. Cost less than old-fashioned straw mats and entirely take their place.

MADE IN FOLLOWING GRADES:

No. 1—Burlap Ctoth, filled with combination wool and quilted, seams 3 inches apart and edges firmly bound.

Size 40x76 inches, 50 cents each.

Made any length, 76 inches wide, at 12 cents per running foot.

No. 2-Duck Ctoth outside, filled and quilted

No. 2—Duck Cloth outside, filled and quitted same as No. 1.

Size 40x76 inches, $0.75 each.

76x76

1.00

Made any length, 76 inches wide, at 16 cents per running foot.

That these mats are a much needed improvement over anything heretofore used for the same purpose, is demonstrated by the large demand and many testimonials from prominent men in the trade. Everyone using Hot Bed Mats should give them a trial.

No. 3—Waterproof, made of oil duck, filled and quilted same as Nos. 1 and 2.
Size 40x76 inches, $1.00 each.
"76x76" $1.25 to $1.50 each.
Made any length, 76 inches wide, at 20 cents per running foot.

PATENT APPLIED FOR.

OUILTED HORSE BLANKETS the Cheapest, Warmest and Strongest in the World ... WE ALSO MAKE

The R. T. Palmer Co.

Or New London, Conn.

113 Worth Street, NEW YORK

Address all correspondence to The R. T. Palmer Co., New London, Conn. Agents wanted—paygood commission. Mention American Florist.

Special Easter Number

THE issue of the American APRIL 2 Florist for will be the annual Easter or Spring Number, and will be sent to all the new names obtained for the 1898 Directory.

THIS IMPRINT ON AN ENCRAVINC

CHICAGO

IS A CUARANTEE OF SATISFACTORY QUALITY....

Manz makes illustrations for this paper.

THE Regan Printing House NURSERY SEED FLORISTS

87-91 Plymouth Place, ***CHICAGO***

GEO. E. COLE & CO. Blank Book Makers. Stationers and Printers

> 86 and 88 Dearborn Street. CHICAGO.

...THE...

"Lyon=Horticole"

is an interesting review of French horticulture. Issued semi-monthly, 20 8-vo. pages illustrated. Subscriptions to the United States, 1 year, $2.00; 6 months, $1.00. Address

DIRECTEUR LYON-HORTICOLE, Lyon-Villeurbanne, France.

FLORISTS' MUTUAL

FIRE INSURANCE ASS'N

Application Blanks and Prospectus Ready.... Write now. Delays are dangerous.

W. J. VESEY, Sec'y, - Ft. Wayne, Ind.

For Insurance against damage by hail, Address

JOHN G. ESLER, Sec'y, F. H. A., Saddle River. N. J

THE NATIONAL Florists Board of Trade

C. S. LODER, Sec'y, 271 Broadway. New York.

THE WABASH R. R. COMPANY

The Short and Quick Line between the The Short and Quick Line between the East and West connecting Buffalo, Detroit and Toledo with Chicago, St. Louis, Kansas City and Omaha.

The Wabash is the Only Line running sleeping cars and chair cars (free) between Buffalo and St. Louis and Kansas City.

Through sleeping cars between New York and Boston and St. Louis and Chicago run every day.

For further information apply to the nearest Railroad Ticket Agent, or to

H. B. McCLELLAN, G. E. A.,

3B7 Broadway, New York City,

J. D. McBEATH, N. E. P. A., 5 State Street, Boston, Mass.

C. S. CRANE, Gen. Pass. & Tkt. Agt., St. Louis, Mo.

Do the American Florist a small favor. Mention the paper when writing to advertisers.

THE SEED TRADE.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

JEROME B. RICE, Pres.; E. B. CLARK, 1st Vice-res.; S. F. Willard, Wetbersfield, Conn., Sec'y

VISITED CHICAGO:-M. G. Madson; J. E. Northrup, J. O. Littlejohn.

SWEET PEA crops are reported damaged by frost in some sections in California.

ENGLISH GROWERS report that roots of early garden turnips set out for seed have been seriously injured by recent severe frosts.

Outlook for Seeds in California.

The long looked for rains have not come as vet, and the seed growers are no further ahead than they were two months The cold frosty nights and the dry north winds during the day have taken all the moisture out of the ground. It is very probable that there will be many short crops this season, in fact this is one of the worst winters that our seed growers have ever experienced. Onions, lettucc, etc., are all at a standstill, and unless an early rain comes the damage will be very great. METEOR.

Cut Flower Price Lists Received.

Kennicott Bros Company, Chicago; Bassett & Washburn, Chicago; W. A. McFadden, Cincinnati; St. Louis Cut Flower Co., St. Louis; Vaughan, Me-Kellar & Winterson, Chicago; Holton & Hunkel Co., Milwaukee; H. L. Sunderbruch, Cincinnati.

KEOKUK, 1a. - Christian Leslie has re-opened his city greenhouse at 25 North Fifth street.

1878

NEW Price List for If you have not re-Will mult you list illustrated descrip-

-1808 SPRING and SUMMER ceived, send Postal, and beautifully tive Catalogue.....

H. H. BERGER & CO., 22J broadway, NEW YORK. ESTABLISHED 1878.

(Branch for Pacific Coast, San Francisco, Cal.) Hortleuiturat Imports and Exports from Europe, China, Japan, Abstralia Mexico etc.

BURPEE'S SEEDS PHILADELPHIA.

Wholesale Price List for Florists and Market Gardeners

August Rölker & Sons,

Spring Bulbs, Florists' Supplies, SE

ITIPORT ORDERS booked now for foreing Bushs Azalean, Life of the Valley, etc., for fall delivery, send for terms to 52 Dey Street.

NEW YORK.

NEW - GIANT - ESCHECHOLTZIAS,

"THE GOLDEN WEST."

New Grant Fancy Cosmos, six splendid varieties, separate 11 or Grant Cosmos splendid mived, 65 or Califopsis California Sunheams "41 or Special rates given on Cosmos in quantity; Apple Gerantum fresh 41 per 1000 seeds, New Large Freeweing Zonde Gerantum #150 or, Ipomos, Heaven's Rue 41 or 412 lb, Laurostinos urandiffers 41 or Zinnas New turled and created 50c or 45 lb., Nasturium Good Venture Mixture, 60c ib 48 per 15 lbs Seaforthia elegana (Paim) 40c per 100 seeds 43 per 1000 seeds Send for trade list of Seeds, Plants, Bulbs and Cacit

MRS. THEODOSIA B. SHEPHERD, Ventura-by-the-Sea, Cal.

G. C. WATSON,

Juniper, below Walnut, - PHILADELPHIA.

Seed Stores and Flower Stores

Can profitably handle our Packages of Plant Food. Attractive, take little & & Manager Shelf room. Valuable & Manager Shelf room. Good profits.

The WALKER FERTILIZER CO. Clifton Springs, N. Y.

We beg to inform our customers that we have removed to

No. II Broadway (Bowling Green Building).

Write for quotations on

JAPANESE BULBS, PLANTS AND SEEDS for fall delivery.

SUZUKI & IIDA.

No. II BROADWAY, (Bowling Green Bldg.) NEW YORK.

No. 3 Nakamura, YOKOHAMA, JAPAN.

TRY DREER'S GARDEN SEEDS.

Plants, Bulbs & Requisites.
They are the best at the lowest prices. Trade List issued quarterly, mailed free to the trade only.
HENRY A. DREER,
Philadelphila, Pa

Mention American Florist.

Manufacturers and Dealers COTTON SEAMLESS, BURLAPS, ETC. SECOND HAND BAGS BOUGHT AND SOLD. CINCINNATI BAG CO. Second and Walnut Sts., CINCINNATI, O. F. F. C. Voung, Pres.
Jos. D. Bedle, Sec'y.
S. M. Pease, Gen'l Mgr.

The Cleveland Seed Co.

Contract Growers of

Peas ∞ Beans

and General

IOBBERS IN SEEDS. Cape Vincent, N. Y.

THE ALBERT DICKINSON CO. GRASS SEED

Parks, Tennis Courts, Lawns, &c. In fancy 1 and 2 pound packages and bulk.

SPECIAL PRICES TO THE TRADE. CHICAGO, ILL.

BEST OF ALL" TOMATO
"ENGLISH" MELONS
(FOR FORCING)

FLOWER SEEDS FOR FLORISTS

Catalogues on application.

WEEBER & DON, Seed Merchants and Growers,
114 Chambers St., NEW YORK, N. Y.

CLUCAS & BODDINGTON CO.

Seeds, Bulbs Plants,

501 TO 503 W. 13TH ST.,
NEW YORK CITY.
Send for quotations on all Florists' Bulb Stock.

SEND ADVS. OUICK TO BE IN TIME FOR OUR SPRING NUMBER TO BE ISSUED NEXTWEEK.

Buffalo.

The recent annual meeting and banquet of the Florists' Club seems to have infused new life into that organization and they are going ahead with some of the old-time vigor. The executive committee met on Friday last and made good progress with the preliminary arrangements for the fall show. It is hoped that when they report to the club at its next meeting they will have the skeleton of a schedule ready for approval.

Great activity seems to prevail in the North parks just now. Superintendent Brothers has had a large force at work at Delaware Park. He has disposed of all the sheep and destroyed all the evidence of their existence that he could lay his hands on.

Strong pressure is being brought to bear on the park commissioners, by lovers of fast horses, to induce them to set aside some portion of Delaware Park and construct a speedway thereon. So far the committee has declined to grant the prayer of the petitioners, but they favor buying a plot of land adjoining the park and using it for a speedway and for general athletic grounds. They feel that to construct such a speedway within the confines of the present park would destroy what it has taken years to create, and it is probable that the introduction of the fast horse unlimited would detract from that restfulness which is now the feature of the park.

Visits to the park propagating houses show them to be overflowing with bed-ding plants. At Delaware Park, under the care of Mr. Braik, everything is in nice order, and preparations are being made to grow some fine plants for the decoration of the houses after the spring stock is planted out. At Stony Point as nice a lot of bedding stock as can be found in the country may be seen. Frames have already been used to relieve the over-crowded benches. The space under the benches in one house we noticed was filled with a fine lot of young conifers, from cuttings, to be used in replenishing the park nurseries. I noticed also a large and very fine stock of Farfugium grande, and an extensive collection of cotyledons, etc., in a dozen or more species, including some very pretty and rather rare ones, such as C. Hoveyi, C. agaveoides, C. De Smetiana, etc. C. De Smetiana is used extensively and is very pretty. On the whole the stock is extra fine and reflects great credit on Mr. Roderick Simpson, who has charge of it.

We had the pleasure of a visit from Mr. Elmer D. Smith during the past week. He was on his way home from the executive meeting of the S. A. F. and O. H.

Santa Barbara, Cal.

Charles Sexton and Paul Higgins were instantly killed by an explosion on the morning of March 16. The accident was peculiar as no one witnessed the occurence. The verdict returned at the investigation was that death resulted "by accident, resulting from an explosion of some explosive confined in a piece of 1-inch pipe.

Paul C. Higgins was a native of Illinois. He leaves a wife and two children. His father owns one of the finest ranches in the valley.

Charles E. Sexton was well known here, where he was for many years employed in his father's floral business, and two or three years ago became the junior partner. He was unmarried.

100 ACRES IN TREES AND Deciduous Evergreen, Hedging, Vines, Bulbs, Tubers, Etc. SHRUBS

NEW 1898 CATALOGUE, 40 PAGES, FREE.

The. Wm H. Moon Co., MORRISVILLE, PENNA.

Mention American Florist

Jackson & Perkins Co.

Growers of Choice Specialties fur Nurverymen and Florists ...

NEWARK, NEW YORK. ROSES, NOVELTIES, Strong, field-grown, dormant plants......

THREE NEW RAMBLERS, $1.75 per 10: $16.00 per 100.

Yellow Rambler (Agraia)
The only hardy yellow Companion roses to Crimson Ram-bler, similar habit The only bardy yellow climbing rose. bler.similar borner light red. Clear light red. manuer of bler. White Ramb er (Thalia) pre white. borner light red. long very ons; bardy.

Lord Penzance's Hybrid Sweet Briars.

of growth and manuer of bloom-ing, very vigor-ons; hardy.

Lord Penzance's Hybrid Sweet Briars,
$1.75 per 10; $15 00 per 100. Extra strong field-grown, dormant plants.

Varieties:
Amy Robsart-lovely deep rose. Anne of Ceierstein-osek crimson. Brenda-maldenk blush or peach. Flora M'Ivor-pure white, blushed rose.
Lady Penzance-tb beautiful, soft that of copper with a peculiar metallic matre. Lord Penzance(b) soft shade of fawn or cerue passing to a lovely emerald yelluw Meg Merrilees, gorgeous crimsun. Rose Bradwardine-beautiful clear rose,

ROSES, COMMON SORTS.

Strong, field-grown, dormant plants, $10 per 100. We can still offer, in nice assortment, some extra line plants at the above price. List of varieties upon application.

Madame Plantier, Russell's Collage, climbing, crimson: Tenn. Belle, climbing, blush: extra beavy dormant plants, on own roots, two years old, $5

TREE ROSES.

5 to 7 ft., extra fine, $3.50 per 10; $25 per 100. Crimson, Pink, Rose Red, White, Yellow.

ORNAMENTAL SHRUBS, Per 100

JACKSON & PERKINS CO.

F. & F. NURSERIES SPRINGHEID, N. J. New Fruits and rare Ormanientals. Shade Trees, Shrubbery, rriver. Specialties. 100.000 Peach at lowest prices. Catalogue free. Ageois wanted.

Mention the American Florist when corresponding with an advertiser.

HARDY

Herbaceous Perennials

THE MOST COMPLETE STOCK IN AMERICA. PÆONIES, PHLOX, IRIS, DELPHINIUMS, ETC., ETC.

JACOB W. MANNING, The Reading Nursery, READING, MASS.

ESTABLISHED 1854.

When writing mention the American Floriet.

Assorted in 25 Varieties.

My selection $50 per 1000. Descriptive catalogue and price lists for the trade.

SAMUEL C. MOON, Bucks Co. PA. MORRISVILLE.

CLEMATIS

Large flowering varieties. Rhododendrons, Ampelopsis, Azalea, H. P. Roses, Tree Roses, etc., etc. Lilies, Tuberoses, Begonius and Gloxinias.....

The Horticultural Co.
Boskoop, Holland. Rutherford, N. J.

STRAWBERRIES

NEW

Lloyd's Favorite

NEW

A new variety that has been recommended very highly. Also Lady Thompson and Tennessee Prol tic. $200 per 100; $18.00 per 1000. We have ten more good varieties.

Wonderful Triumph or Philadel large size: best quality and bardes $7.00 per 100. We have a good stock.

RUDOLPH BARTH, Florist,

1540 No. 27th Street, - PHILAGELPHIA, PA.

Please mention American Florist.

Rhododendrons.

Not imported and therefore hardy. Hardy Azaleas, Japanese Maples, Magnolias, (living guaranteed) Rare Evergreens.

other Trees, new Shrubs, Hedge Plants. Parsons & Sons Co. LIMITED,

FLUSHING, NEW YORK.

Varieties of Begonia Semperflorens of which "Vernon" is perhaps the best known are sainfulk new friends every year, and are holding on to the old ones.

EXCELLENT FOR BEDDING

Try CRIMSON GEM. CORAL GEM and DUCHE-S OF EDINBURG in comparison with Geraniums

SOW NOW

Send one dollar and receive a ½ trade packet of each of the above three varieties in return. Cash with order,

A. H. LONSDALE CO., Specialists. Station H Philadelphia, Pa.

Flower Seeds...

.. For the Trade.

NEW CROP. CHOICEST STRAINS CLOSE PRICES

Vaughan's Seed Store. NEW YORK, CHICACO.

1898 SEEDS...

| Mammoth    | Verbena | Seeds only | $1 C0 per oz. |
|------------|---------|------------|----------------|
| Aster Seed | s       | only       | 1.00 per oz.   |
| Pansy Seed | ls      | only       | 1 00 per oz.   |

THE MORRIS FLORAL CO., Morris, III.

Aster Seed

Semple's celebrated strain of Asters. Finest in the World. Mixed colors, pink, white and layen-der. Also a small quantity of pink separate.

JAMES SEMPLE.

BOX 2 ...

BELLEVUE, PA.

PANSIES

ROEMER'S Prize Pansies; extra line stock plants from cold frames, in bud and bloom; transplanted in September; plants measure from 2 to 4 mehes in danacter; by express transplanted in October, 75e per 100, $5,00 per 1000, cash with order sample plants fiets.

PETER BROWN,

Lancaster, Pa.

Do not forget to say "saw your ad, in the AMERICAN FLORIST'S when corresponding with advertisers.

Boston Florist Letter Co.

This wooden box nicely stained and var-nished, 18x30x12 made in two sections, one for each size letter, given away with first order of 500 letters.

Block Letters 1 % or 2-inch size, per 10, $2.00 Script Letters 14. Fastover with each interpressord. I sed by leading forists everywhere and for sale by all wholesale forists and supply dealers.

N. F. McCAPTHY, Treas, and Manager, 84 Howley St., BOSTON, MASS.

WOODEN LABELS for FLORISTS and NURSERYMEN

Being located at the head center of this country for White Pine Lumber we are able to buy our stock right and turnish our customers with goods of the best quality and at prices which will put them at your station lower than the lowest. Our factory is thoroughly equipped and turning out promptly the most uniform, smooth and best painted goods made in this country, put up in neat packages, guaranteed full count and nicely crated. SEND FOR SAMPLES AND PRICES

WOODEN GOODS COMPANY, 83 Western Ave., MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.

Folding Boxes and Wax Paper

The Aull Bros. Paper & Box Go.

بىيە:،DAYTON, OHIO، بىرىد

HARDY CUT FERNS

FANCY

DAGGER

Do not order any ferns unless you are willing to pay this price as my stock is very limited and I have hardly enough now to carry my old stand-by

L. B. BRAGUE, Hinsdale, Mass.

LEUGOTHE of all wholesale florests or write the Introducer for free samples and information ..... SPRAYS... Samples and mon......

150 Tremont Building,

BOSTON, MASS.

BRILLIANT GREEN AND BRONZE GALAX LEAVES.

For Decorating and all Florists' Designs. CHAS. H. RICKSECKER, Linvilla, Mitchell Co., N. C.

FIRST-CLASS GOODS and CORRECT PRICES

have forced us to the front and today we are the largest manufact-urers of ...

IRON RESERVOIR VASES

and Lawn Settees in America. . . . A 40 page catalogue for the asking.

McDonald Bros.

108-114 Liberty St., COLUMBUS, O.

H. BAYERSDORFER & CO.

Cycne Wreathe, Moss Wreathe, Ferneries and Jardinieres, Wheat Sheaves ond Immortelles.

New Catalogue of all FLO ASTS' SUPPLIES on application. $ # For the trade only.

H. BAYERSDORFER & CO.

50, 52, 54 and 55 N 41h St , PHILADELPHIA, PA.

John Conley & Son,

2 AND 4 DOMINICK STREET,

_New York.

Bench Culture of Adiantum Cuneatum.

What soil should I use for the bench culture of Adiantum cuneatum; how far apart should the plants from 4-inch pots be set, and when is the best time to plant? What is the best way to keep slugs out of fern houses?

CUNEATUM. fern houses?

The bench culture of Adiantum cuneatum requires a compost of fairly good quality, the object being to produce an abundant growth of sturdy fronds, and these to be of good substance. There is no better soil for this purpose than good loam mixed with some short and wellrotted manure, using the latter in the proportion of about one part to six or seven parts of soil. Fresh horse manure should not be used in this connection, as it contains too much ammonia. Four to six inches is a sufficient depth of soil for the bed, and it is best to have the hottom of the bench sufficiently open to allow of thorough drainage. Plants from 4-inch pots should be planted fifteen inches apart, and if planted about the middle of April or even May 1, such plants ought to cover the bench well by the fall.

A light shading will be an advantage on the house during the hot weather, but should be allowed to thin off before the fronds are needed, else the growth may be too soft. Give plenty of ventilation throughout the summer, and after the plants are established an abundance of water will be needed.

It is a difficult matter to keep slugs out of fern houses entirely, but the most effectual remedy I have used is pulverized camphor, this being sprinkled among the plants rather sparingly; used in this manner I have never seen any injurious results W. H. TAPLIN. to the plants.

Little Beauty Fuschia.

ED. AM. FLORIST:-Will you please send me the address of the originator of the Little Beauty fuschia.

JOSEPH HILLYAR.

Little Beauty was originated by Mons. Victor Lemoine, of Nancy, France, and sent out under the name of Gracieux. Brittenbough Bros., of Bennetts, Pa., had it from us and named it Little Beauty.

A. T. SIMMONS.

BUY YOUR ASPARAGUS PLUMOSUS SEED DIRECT FROM THE GROWER......

J. W. LANDEVILLE, Florist, SAN DIECO, CAL. 535 (7th Street.

April 2...

IS THE DATE OF THE

Easter Number

reca Lutescens

| 3   | Plants | . 6-in. | Pot, | 24 to 32-in | . high. | very | bushy, | , each | $1 00 |
|-----|--------|---------|------|-------------|---------|------|--------|--------|------------|
| - 3 | • •    | 7-in.   | • •  | 32 to 36    | 4.      |      |        |        | 1.50   |
| - 3 | - 1    | 8-in.   | 6.7  | 36 to 42    | 6.6     | 6.6  | 4.4    | 6.0    | 2 00   |
| - 3 | 4.6    | 8≁in    | • •  | 42 to 48    | 4.6     |      | 4.4    | * *    | 2 50   |
| 1   |      | 10-in.  | * *  | 4 to 5-ft.  | high,   | 1+   | 4.1    |        | 5.00   |

Phila., Pa.

DECORATIVE PLANTS

JOHN H. LEY, Good Hope, D. C.

Solicits early orders for following fine stock: NEPHROLEPS, O. Furcans
Very large, full of fronds, 3 feet over
(6-lneb pots, fit for 8-lneh,..... 1.00 9.00

ROBERT CRAIG

and Novelties in Decorative Plants.

Market and 49th Street, PHILADELPHIA, PA. Markot and 15...

ASPARAGUS SPRENGERII

ASPARAGUS PLUMOSUS

Strong 3-in. plants......6.00 per 100

The Conard & Jones Co. West Crove,

Crowing and Importing of ORCHIDS

Our Specialty. Correspondence Solicited.

LAGER & HURRELL, - Summit, N. J. Mention American Florist.

Hydrangeas

FOR & & &

Fine plants with 10 to 30 blooms per plant. 10 cents per bloom...

JOHN SCOTT, Keap St. Greenhouses,

Rose Hill Nurseries

LARGEST Growers of Palus, Orchids, Stove and Greenhouse plants, Ferns, Aranearias, Pandanus, New wholesale price list will be ready March 20th.

SIEBRECHT & SON, New Rochelle, N. Y. New York Office, 409 Fifth Ave.

DWARF PAPAYAS

M<sup>OST</sup> magnificent bedding and decorative-plant known. Equal to a palm in beanty and manner of growth; grows with the ease of the Ricinus and endures drought with impunity. Plan s from 4-in, pots set ont Jnne 1st attained a height of 10 feet and though not watered once, remained fresh and vigorous throughout the extreme drought. Also produces a delicious fruit; as easily grown as a tomato. Our plants are propagated from a tree which has produced this winter 192 lbs. of fruit, the largest weighing 12 lbs. Send for half-tone illustration from photo showing bed of these plants. Every florist needs it. Price $2.25 per 12 for 3-in. pots, ready May 1st. We are headquarters for tropical plants. Send for list.

Martin Benson, DONGOLA, ILLINOIS.

LARGE FOLIAGE PLANTS

Areca Lutescens, 8-inch, $2.00; 9-inch, $3.00 each. Latania Borbonica, 8-inch, $2.00; 9-inch, $3.00; 10-inch, $4.00, and 12-inch, $5.00 each. Pandauus Veitchii, 6-inch, $1.00; 7-inch, $1.50; 8-inch, $2.00, and 10-inch, $4.00 each. Pandanus

COOD STOCK. JOHN WELSH YOUNG, - Germantown, Pa.

Stock Plants

A few hundred extra strong clumps in 6 and 7-inch pots for sale Cheap for Cash to make room.

JOHN N. MAY,

Receiver for PITCHER & MANDA SUMMIT, NEW JERSEY.

per 100 1000 3000

COCOS WEDDELIANA. 81.00 87.50 820.00 LATANIA BORBONICA . 50 8.00 7.50 820.00 ENTIRE BELMOREANA . 1.00 7.00 20.00 SORREAD STANDARD
J. L. SCHILLER,

404 E. 34th St..

NEW YORK CITY.

Helpful Reminders.

The last week of March should find pansies uncovered and cleaned, with ventilation and watering attended to constantly. The same is true of forget-me-nots, daisies, etc. If any considerable number have failed it is best to transplant the good ones all in one end and use the balance of room for later sown seedlings.

You will have call for lilies this spring. It is best to order a few each of the popular varieties. Pot them now and keep cool. You can supply your customers then satisfactorily; no danger of a bulb when nicely started in a pot. What are not sold come in nicely for summer cutting, and for this reason it is well to provide a larger number of Lilium auratum and L. lancifolium.

Sort out all your cannas now, pot them and give them a warm situation if you There is no harm in having early bloom, and frequently better sales are insured by the bloom showing. If you can not give them all room to come in early, make it a point to have some of each of your varieties in that will serve to take orders by. Go over all your odds and ends now, giving them a cleaning, a shift where necessary, or a top dressing; these "odds and ends" are very important. Oranges are coming in bloom. Ardisias and aspidistras are in bloom. Aralias and pandanuses are pot-bound. So many pretty things are let go unless you make a business of going through them at stated times

While you are examining your stock just before sale time make your calculations on what it costs per square foot of bench room to maintain your green-houses, and see if the stock you have for market is choice enough to bring it. This is a problem which should be considered with each lot of plants you have. You will find, usually, that one stock is so unprofitable as to consume the earnings of a profitable one. Find out at once which is the unprofitable. See that you have a few nice dracanas and phanix for vase filling next month, also ivy geraniums, and get in plenty of choice nasturtium seed. Begin using fertilizer on your hydrangeas, spiraeas, and all stock with well developed roots, and which is wanted for show. If you have no white lilac or Hydrangea grandiflora in your garden for your own cutting, order at least twenty-five of each at once so as to get them planted in April.

C. B. W.

Rochester, N. Y.

Cut flower trade is very dull at present, and if it was not for the several spring openings in the larger department stores, where plants and flowers are used quite liberally, the florist might as well give a vacation to one-half of his employes.

Prices are low and uncertain; the favorite plan of buying now is in job

Plant sales are only fairly good lately; the stores are lavishly provided with large assortments in variety; the windows are attractive everybody must admit, but sales might be better.

Nurserymen have been busily engaged digging trees and packing orders for over two weeks. The early opening of the ground has always been looked upon as indicative of an increase in sales, and present appearances point that way. Some of our firms are greatly troubled over the unjust action of Canada prohibiting all shipments of nursery stock from the United States. The San Jose scale scare seems to affect all countries alike, and they make no discrimination as to localities; our nurserymen have a vital interest in keeping their stock clear of all such pests; they have taken every possible precaution, and to my knowledge there has not been a single instance yet in our locality where any nursery stock has been found to be infested.

Driving through our parks last week I noticed that a great many of the trees and shrubs have been provided with good sized labels, the lettering is distinct and sharp so that it can plainly be read from quite a distance; both the botanical and Énglish names are given. J. B. K.

TORONTO, ONT.—Fire damaged the stock and fixtures of J. 11. Dunlop's place on King street to the extent of $1,500 on March 5. Mr. Dunlop will continue the florist business and fill all orders without interruption.

Special Easter Number

THE issue of the American APRIL 2 Florist for . . . . APRIL 2 will be the annual Easter or Spring Number, and will be sent to all the new names obtained for the 1898 Directory.

New CARNATIONS.

WHITE CLOUD—White.
GOLD NUGGET—Yellow.
NEW YORK (Ward)—Bright cerise pink.
MR* JAMES DEAN (Ward)—Clear silvery pink.
JOHN YOUNG (Ward)—White.
BON TON (Ward)—Scarlet.
Prices for above varieties: $2.00 per doz., $10.00
per 100, $75.00 per 1000.

per 100, $70.00 per 1000.

We will also have Cerise Queen (Breitmeyer),
Angyle (Stollery), Jack Frost (Swayne), Empress (Swayne), Evelina (Witterstaetter), Firefly (Hancock), Psyche (Hill), Pantled Lady (Hill), and Mrs. S. A. Northway Simmons).

All good 1897 novelties and other standard varieties at reasonable prices.

New Chrysanthemums.

MRS. C. H. PEIRCE - Yellow.
3 ic each, $3.50 per doz., $25.00 per 100.
SNOW QUEEN - White.
5/1c each, $5.00 per doz., $35.00 per 100.
MERRY CHRISTMAS - Late White.
35c each, $3.50 per doz., $25.00 per 100.

Send for Descriptive Price List. Ready January, 1898.

F. DORNER & SONS CO. LAFAYETTE, IND.

ALBA SUPERBA

Plants Now Ready * $10,00 per 100 60,00 per 1000

JOHN BURTON, Chestnut Hil. PHILADELPHIA, PA.

ORDERS PLEASE

All the Leading Carnations Now Ready. Per 100

THE MORRIS FLORAL CO., Morris, III.

WEST ISLIP GREENHOUSES.

CARNATIONS. Rooted Cuttings
Scott. Portla, McGownn, $1.00 per 100 $8.00 per 1000.
Daybrenk, $1.50 per 100 Mixed Geraniums, from Inta, strong plants $15.00 per 1000. Mixed Cunnas, dry roots of the following sorts: Alphonse Rouvier, Mme, Croy, Clins. Henderson, Queen Charle He, Burbank, John White, etc., $2.50 per 100 Cush with order.

E. B. SUTTON, Jr., Babylon, L. I.

NEW CARNATION....

The largest, bright rich crim- Empress

Send for price list of above. New and Standard Sorts....

We have 1000 Baroness Rothschild Roses in 6 and 8-inch pots which will be in fine shape for Easter. Prices $9 and $12 per dozen.

Book your orders early to insure delivery.

J. B. Deamud

ILLINOIS CUT FLOWER CO.

51 AND 53 WABASH AVE., CHICAGO.

40 Fine Palms Ready For Sale

FOR $5.00 12 Latanias 1-tien pro Kentins 6 Corypha Australis 6 Areca Lutescens 6 Areca Lutescens snowing (wording ractor lengths)

3-inch pots
5-inch pots, 3 in a pot
5-inch pots, 1 in a pot
...3-inch pots, 1 in a pot

Rooted Cuttings of Lemon Verbinic Sulvia Splendens - Strong and selectorical (§1.10) per 100 (§ 20) per 1000

Calogs Go len Bester Nelly Grant and others 750 per 100 fatter of our 950 per 1000 mash a theorder some.

110 E. 4TH STREET.

——— Cincinnati, Ohio | WM. SWAYNE, Box 226, Kennett Square, Pa.

A PHOTOGRAPH OF OUR UNNAMED WINTER BLOOMING SEEDLINGS

$300

American Rose Co.'s

PRIZE

For best Seedling Carnation for Winter Blooming.

Prize Money

will be deposited with the American Carnation Society April 15, 1898 to be awarded by them at the

ANNUAL CONVENTION

Philadelphia, February 1899.

Send for circular giving full particulars to

P. O. BOX 422, WASHINGTON, D. C.

$300

$300

COMPETITION

must be by purchasers of at least

ONE HUNDRED

of our Seedling Carnation Plants

BUT

such purchasers are entitled to use in such competition our seedling plants or seedling selling plants of seedling selling sel erestion.

THEIR OWN

The owner of the WINNER agrees to SELL it to the

American Rose Co.

for the highest bona fide offer which would be accepted.....

10.000 strong plants ready April 15th, 1898 in 3-inch pots. Price per 100, $15-00. Sample plant mailed on receipt of twenty-five

$300

IS a much more substantial flower than Daybreak; color a shade or two darker and entirely rust proof. Can be seen at Yaughan, McKeller & Winterson's every Wednesday and Saturday.

THE SEEDLINGS WE SELL YOU ARE FROM HAND-FERTILIZED SEED OF THE SAME KIND.

NATHAN SMITH & SON

Wholesale Florists

pecialties *** 36

ADRIAN, MICH.

CHRYSANTEMUMS
CARNATIONS

· · · CORRESPONDENCE SOLICITED · ·

CARNATIONS

STRONG, HEALTHY ROOTED CUTTINGS Ready Feb. 1st and Later

Including Morello, Flora Hill, Daybreak, Wm. Scott, Lizzie McGowan, Ivory, Silver Spray, Emily Pierson, Goldfinch, Eldorado, and others. Send me a list of what you want and get prices before you buy. We also have a fine lot of Carnation and Violet blooms for sale. Write for prices, Address

CHAS. CHADWICK,

Lock Box II.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.

If corresponding with an advertiser at any time, say "saw your ad. in the American Florist."

Kathleen Pantlind

Price $1.50 per 12; $10.00 per 100; $75.00 per 1000.

Premium—5 Red Wave with every 100 Kathleen Pantlind.

HOPP & LEMKE,

Paul P. O., E. GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.

50,000 Flat-Grown GARNATIONS Daybreak STRONG STOCK. Per 100 per 1000 815 00 815 00 815 00 15 00

| Daymeak                              | $4.00 | $19 UU |
|--------------------------------------|--------|---------|
| Scott                                | 2 00   | 15 00   |
| Rose Queen                           |        | 15 00   |
| Tidal Wave                           | 1.50   | 12.00   |
| Portla.                              |        | 12.00   |
| Rob Roy (new)                        |        | 14.00   |
| Jubilee                              |        |         |
| Snow Queen                           |        |         |
| Silver Spray                         |        | 12.00   |
| L. McGowan                           |        | 12.00   |
| Eldorado, Meteor                     |        | 12.00   |
| Flora Hill                           |        |         |
| Triumph, Armazindy                   |        |         |
| Pinto, new, and Uncle Sam, new, both | 0.00   |         |
| varieties                            | 10.00  |         |
|                                      |        |         |

Cash with order. HENRY A. NIEMEYER, Erie, Pa.

20,000 CHRYSANTHEMUMS.

2\(\text{define}\) pots.

Major Bonnaff in. \(\text{S}\) (0) per 100 or \(\text{$15}\) (0) per 1000; Prevident Smith. Eda Prass. \(\text{$15}\) (0) per 100 or \(\text{$12}\) (0) per 1000.

Geraniums the best mixed varieties for bodding, \(\text{$3\cdot}\) enon pots, showing buds \(\text{$250}\) per 100 or \(\text{$18}\) (0) per 1000; \(\text{$18}\) enon pots, \(\text{$20}\) oper 1000 or \(\text{$18}\) (0) per 1000.

Cash with or der or satisfactory reference.

PAXTON GREENHOUSES, C. E. Taube, Prop. Harrisburg, Pa.

REDUCED PRICES

Carnation Cuttings

Taken from our "Prize" Stock.

McGOWAN ALASKA ALBERTIN HELEN KELLER ARMAZINDY DAYBREAK

$2 00 per 100; $15.00 per 1000.

SOUTH PARK FLORAL CO., New Castle, Ind.

JUBILEE

CARNATIONS,
Rooted
Cuttings

1 have a fine stock of this peerless variety, also most of the leading standard sorts. MARIE LOUISE rooted runners at special low rates, Write for prices. Will exchange for fruit

W. W. COLES, - Kokomo, Ind.

Cleveland.

Business continues to amble along at pretty much the same gait that it has maintained since Lent began. Things are slightly slower of course than previous to the advent of Lent, but upon the whole there has been no very great reason to com-plain, as a good share of the stock offered is selling, although not at high prices. This is doing well enough for Lent, when the vast increase in the volume of supply is taken into consideration. Easter week may be said to be scarcely more than two weeks off now, and it is to be hoped that any serious slump may be avoided.

Easter stock of all kinds is advancing with wonderful rapidity under the influence of unusually bright weather.

The two members of the S. A. F. executive committee, Messrs. Graham and Cushman, arrived home the latter part of last week. They report a very pleasant time in Washington as well as a valuable meeting, of which the fruits will appear at Omaha in August. On the return trip a stop was made to visit Schenley Park, where they had the good fortune to find Mr. Falconer hard at work supervising the planting of one of the houses. It goes without saving that everything was found in magnificent condition; the palms and ferns being particularly noteworthy. A house devoted to economic plants gives promise of being a great feature very shortly, among other things being a fine collection of agaves and cacti from the Shaw Gardens at St. Louis. Mr. Smith, of Washington, also was represented by an extensive batch of various kinds of plants.

A special feature at Schenley Park is, of course, the great displays provided for various occasions throughout the year, one of the finest, of course, being that shown at Easter. This year's display promises to excel anything heretofore seen; there are hundreds of magnificent hydrangeas and cinerarias in fine shape and of every imaginable color variation; azaleas of all sizes and kinds; bulb stock without end apparently, as well as many other handsome things. One beautiful feature will be the genistas in large sizes. These have been grown without trimming and now hang in long, graceful plumes that by Easter will transform them into miracles of floral beauty. All in all the visit to the institution under the efficient management of Mr. Falconer was one that amply repaid one for the trip. A.

PRICE LIST of rooted cuttings of New Carnation

| t a | lozen | or | up, prepaid | l by ma | ıl or ex | oress 1 35  |      |
|-----|-------|----|-------------|---------|----------|-------------|------|
|     |       |    | (to 100) 10 |         |          | " 10 00 per | 100  |
| 1   | 00    | 16 | purchaser   | paying  | charges  | s 8 00 pei  | 10)  |
| 2   | 50    | 66 |           | * 1     |          | 7.00 per    | 100  |
| 5   | 00    |  | 44          |       | ۴.       | 675 per     | 100  |
| 1,0 | 00    | 61 |           |       |        | 65.00 per   | 1000 |

Descriptive illustrated and priced circular free.

DAN'L B. LONG. Sales Agent, Buffalo. N. Y. X------

CARNATION

It sells because there is nothing in sight to at all equal it. It speaks for itself where-ever grown. It is fragrant. It is the largest bloom. It puts all others in the shade. Nothing past or present to equal it. We have four thousand plants exclusively for propagating from; don't allow them to bloom. Send at once and get the best stock ever offered. $5.00 per 100; $40.00 per 1000.

Our trade list is issued. If you have not received one send for it.

§ E. G. HILL & CO., = Richmond, Ind. §

TRY A FEW OF & & & THE NEW CARNATION

MAYOR PINGRE

$5.00 per 100.4 4 $40.00 per 1000

JOHN BREITMEYER & SONS, Mt. Clemens, Mich.

CARNATIONS! UP-TO-DATE

18 VARIETIES OF 1898.... 15 VARIETIES OF 1897.

All the Best Standard Sorts. Yours if you order at once. Many are all are finest of stock and ready for IMMEDIATE DELIVERY. Our prices are right. Send for catalogue....

GEO. HANCOCK & SON.

GRAND MAVEN. MICH

H. F. LITTLEFIEL WORCESTER, MASS. THE BEST OF THE NEW PINK CARNATIONS Mrs. Frances A WINNER I

Carnations Chrysanthemums

NEW AND STANDARD VARIETIES

Our new Trade List will embrace the lead-ing novelties of 1856 and 1856 as well as the best standard sorts. Address

H. WEBER & SONS,

N. W. L. L. L CARNATION ARC

A few left at the following price 3 3 $10.00 per 100, $75,00 per 1000 ....

STOLLERY BROS. ARCYLE PARK, CHICAGO, ILL. ************************

Experiences

The next number ready March I, will be cultural as we'l as descriptive, and sent free to all applicants.

t Guarantee all cuttings sent out and offer a Special Guarantee to all buyers of Flora Hill and Triumph.

ALBERT M. HERR,

.... LANCASTER, PA.

**∄...........

n Napperenterekerekerekerekerek

5000 GARDENIA FLORIDA

3-inch pots, 8-10 inches high, $8 per 100; $70 per 1000. 25,000 Cannas, dormant roots, lu 20 best sorts, $20 per 1000.

Latanta Borboolca, 4-inch pets, 1-2 choice leaves, 12-15 in., $15 per 100.

Latania Borbonica, 4-Inch pots, 2-3 choice leaves, 15-18 in., $20 per 100.

Phoenix Reclinata, 4 inch pots, 12-15 in., $15 per 100. Phonix Reclinata, 4-inch pots, 15-18 in., $25 per 100. Oranges, hest sorts, grafted, 4-inch pots, 10-12 lo., $20 per 100: 5-inch pots, 18-20 ln., $30 per 100.

P. J. BERCKMANS, Augusta, Ga.

out of 21/2-inch Pots; good strain; strong plants ready for cutting, $2.50 per 100. Cash with order.

ED. OUINN. - Springfield, Mo.

Best named, 21<sub>2</sub>-in., $25 00 per 1000.

250 Vinca Variegata, field-grown, now in 4-meh 6.00 per 1000

GEO. W. GASKILL 212 N. Tod Avenue, - WARREN, OHIO.

MYRTLE For CEMETERY AND CARPET WORK.

1 have the largest and best stock in the country . . . . Rooted Cuttings, mail paid . 100, $-60; 1000, $-4.50 From 2½ and 3-in pots . . . . 100, 6.00 Large field-grown clumps . . 100, 7.00; 1000, 60.00 Delivered to any express from New York. Cash with order

F. A. BOLLES, Lawnwood, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Rooted Cuttings Well Rooted ...

Scarlet Verschaffeltii, Golden Verschaffeltii, Fire King, Fire Brand, Tam O'Shanter, S. P. Gem, Alhambra, Golden Urown, Midnight, Salvator, John Goode, Nigger, 15c per doz.; 75c per 100; §5 per 1000; express paid.

S. T. DANLEY, Macomb, III.

The Cottage Gardens OUEENS. L.I Specialties in CARNATIONS, CHRYSANTHEINUMS. CHINAS, GERADIUMS. DAHLIAS. SEND FOR OUR PRICE LIST

THE JENNINGS STRAIN.

PANSIES
THE JENNINGS STRAIN.
THEY ARE GRAND.
Fine stocky plants in bud
and bloom, $10 and $15 per 1000; $1.50 and $2 per 100 by express; small plants,
75c by mail. Pansy seed, $1.00 per pkt. Aster seed, Semple's pink, $1 00 per oz. Cush with order.

E. B. JENNINGS,

SOUTHPORT, CONN. Crower of the Finest Pansies.

MARCH OFFER

|                                             | 14 | ·r 100 |
|---------------------------------------------|----|--------|
| Alternanthera A. Nana, $1.75; P. Major.    |    | $2.00 |
| Begonias, 5 var. and Vernen                 |    |        |
| Coleus and Centaurea Gymnocarpa             |    | = 2.00 |
| Geraniums, 215-in. pots, $2.50; 3-in. pots |    | 3,75   |
| Marguerite (Paris Daisy) 4-in. pots         |    | . 4.00 |
| Pansy plants, 1000, $9.00                  |    | -1.00  |
| CASH WITH ORDER.                            |    |        |

JOS. H. CUNNINGHAM, - Delaware, Ohio.

It will be better for everybody if you mention the American Florist when writing advertisers on this page.

100,000 VERBENAS. THE CHOICEST VARIETIES IN CULTIVATION. IN CULTIVATION.

Fine pot plants, $2.50 per 100; $20 per 1000. Rooted Cuttings, 75c per 100; $6.00 per 1000; $50 per 10000.

PACKED LIGHT, AND SATISFACTION GUARANTEED. SEND FOR CIRCULAR. We are the Largest Growers of Verbenas in the country. Our plants cannot be surpassed.

J. L. DILLON, Bloomsburg, Pa.

&&VERBENAS.&&

The finest collection in America, 35 varieties, every one a gem—mammoth size, striking colors, green as grass. Strong rooted cuttings, 60c per thousand, $20,00.

New Yellow Marguerite fluest variety, strong 2-in-pot plants, 3c; rooted cuttings, 2c.

STRICTLY CASH WITH ORDER.

SOUTH SIDE FLORAL CO., Springfield, III.

Rooted Cuttings CARNATIONS And Other Stock

DOUBLE HOLLYHOCKS

Fine plants, one-year-old. Pausies, Verbenas, &c. Send for Price List.

W. PIKE, ST. CHARLES, ILL.

GREEN AS

MAMMOTH VERBENAS

Fine selected stock in separate colors. Rooted cuttings, per 100, 75c; per 1000, $6.00. Cash with order.

FRANK S. PAYNE, Barnard Crossing, N. Y.

AZALEA INDICA

We have an immense stock of all the best varieties; well set with buds; large plants, 12 to 15-inch, $6.00 per doz.; $45 per 100.

PANSIES

We grow over a million from the choicest seed of Bugnot, Cassier, Odier and Tri-mardeau; transplanted in cold frames; 60c per 100; $4.00 per 1000.

HARRISII LILIES

In bud, guaranteed right for Easter; 10c per bud.

CINERARIAS

In bud and bloom, $1.00 per doz.

| ROOTED CUTTINGS 100                        | 1000          |
|--------------------------------------------|---------------|
| Mammoth Verbenas $ .70                    | $5.50 |
| Double Petunia 1.00                        |               |
| Heliotrope                                 |               |
| Ageratuin                                  |               |
| Double Golden Dwarf Marguerite, $1.00 per | 100.          |

PLANTS 214-inch.

 Double Geraniams
 $2.00 per 100

 Vinca Variegata
 2.00 per 100

WHITTON & SONS. Wholesale Florists,

City and Green Sts., UTICA, N. Y.

FAXON'S "WHITE" PANSIES.

The best mixture in cultivation, flowers very rge, thick and velvety; of superb colors and arkings. The perfection of form and texture. large, this

In Trade Packets at $1.00 each. M. B. FAXON,

1528. BOSTON, MASS. Correspondence solicited. Lock Box 1528.

SPECIALTIES

ROSES, from 3-luch pots.

CARNATIONS, for fall delivery.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS. SMILAX.

Prices low. Send for list.

WOOD BROTHERS, FISHKILL, N.Y.

GLEMATIS Jackmanni, Henryli doz. 100 and others......$3.00 $20.00

H. P. ROSES Strong, 2 and 3 years own roots. $1.50 $10.00 RED JACKET GOOSEBERRY, only large native red. 75 $4.00 DOWNING, hest for general crop, special

PAEONIES, fine ass't of colors and kinds $1.25 $8.00 SMILAX, extra strong plants...... $2.50

F. A. BALLER, Bloomington, III.

KLONDIKE

Cold Fields at Your Door.

COLG Fields at Your Door.

COLEUS—All kinds, all grades and all prices. Verschaffeltil and Queeo. 75e per 100; $8.00 per 1000; 25e-inch pots, $15 00 per 1000; $1.50 per 100. Coleus in variety, 56e per 100; $4.50 per 1000; $2.50 per 100. Coleus in variety, 56e per 100; $4.50 per 1000; $2.50 per 1000; $1.50 per 1000. Ageratum dwarf blue. (8e per 100; $1.50 per 100. Double Petunias, extra fine strain or dists, $1.50 per 100. Saudora sortis, $12 00 per 1000; $1.50 per 100. Double Petunias, extra fine strain or dists, $1.50 per 100; $1.20 per 1000. Anthenis Coronaria, Golden Marxuerite, $1.50 per 100; $1.20 per 1000. Anthenis Coronaria, Golden Marxuerite, $1.50 per 100; $1.20 p

J. E. FELTHOUSEN, Schenectady, N. Y.

CARNATIONS AND COLEUS

ROOTED CUTTINGS

THE 1898 INTRODUCTIONS THE 1897 INTRODUCTIONS

DAYBREAK of special quality.
ROOTED COLEUS in variety.
Cood stock only. Price list free.

DAN'L B. LONG, Growers' Agent, BUFFALO.

5,000 SMILAX...

From flats, by mail. 50c oer 109, 84,00 per 1000 From 2-Inch pots, 82,25 per 100, 813,00 per 1000 Gerantums from 2-Inch pots, 82,25 per 100; 820,00 per 1000. Cash with the order. Send for samples. Fred Boerner, CAPE MAY CITY, N.J.

Marie Louise Violet Runner*s*

Good plants, healthy stock, $5.00 per 1000.

A. WASHBURN & SON BLOOMINGTON, ILL.

LETTUCE AND OTHER... VEGETABLE PLAN

LETTUCE—Blg Boston, Boston Market, Tenn.; Ball, Grand Rapids and Reichner's Forcing. 15 cts. per 180; $1.00 per 180.

TOMATO, CABBAGE and CELERY-Small plants for transplanting new ready. 15cts. per 100; $1.00 per 100. Pepper and Egg Plants-25cts per 100; $2.00 per 1000.

CAULIFLOWER, Soowball—35 cts per 100; $2.50 per 1000; If by mall add 10 cts. per 100 for small plants, and 50 cts. per 1000. Send for price list. Cash with order.

R. VINCENT, Jr. & SON, White Marsh, Md. Mention American Florist.

Baltimore.

A week of balmy spring weather has helped to depress prices, though on the whole prices and demand are remarkably good for Lent. Complaint is made that Philadelphia is unloading a good deal of stale flowers on the market at any price they will bring. This encourages the sidewalk vendors, and is just that much against the stores.

The last meeting of the Florists' Club was largely attended, being the annual election of officers.

Messrs, E. A. Seidewitz and N. F. Flitton were nominated for president, Mr. Seidewitz receiving thirty-four votes to Mr. Flitton's nineteen, was duly elected. For vice-president, Mr. C. M. Wagner received thirty-eight votes to Mr. P. B. Welsh's twenty. In the vote for secretary the number of ballots cast fell to tary the number of ballots cast fell to nearly the same number as for president, Mr. Chas. F. Feast receiving thirty-four and Mr. F. Burger twenty. The vote for financial sceretary was the closest and largest polled. Mr. W. P. Binder received thirty-one, Mr. H. Ekas, thirty, Mr. J. J. Perry, four. The election of Mr. Win. B. Sands as treasurer and Mr. J. L. Wagner as librarian were unanimous. All business being on motion dispensed with the ness being on motion dispensed with, the members adjourned to the French restaurant on Liberty street and partook of the sumptuous repast that the committee had provided.

After this formality was over, Mr. Sands-who was to have acted as toastmaster-being obliged by the lateness of the hour to take his train home, made a short speech introducing Mr. Seidewitz as the president and withdrew.

Mr. Seidewitz spoke of his determination to be an impartial executive "regarding neither friend nor foe," and compared different carnations, McGowan, Scott, Jubilee and others, to different classes of people. He then called on Mr. Vincent for a speech, but Mr. Vincent said he was no talker and could only tell of the meeting of the executive committee of the Society of American Florists, and the convention in Omaha in August, which he hoped many would attend. Owing to the fact that many members had to take cars for home by 12 o'clock or not at all, those remaining then dispersed.

Mr. Wm. Swayne, Kennett Square, Pa., had a cluster of carnation Empress on exhibition in the hall, with stems fully two and a half feet long. The blooms were three inches in diameter and filled (not crowded) with broad deeply laced petals of a rich, velvety, deep crimson. Add to this the very strong clove scent, and the admiration excited by the exhibit cannot be wondered at.

Mr. John Burton, Chestnut Hill, Pa, also had a jar each of Alaska, and Flora-Hill, which would be hard to improve on Messrs Halliday Bros sent a jar of all the varieties they cultivate, all were extra Маск.

SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH "The second meeting of the Florists' and Gardeners Association was held March 14. There was a good attendance and much interest was manifested in the proceedings.

Peacock's Prize Winning Dahlias

Two Great Sports

CARNATION

VICTOR

Undoubtedly the best Pink Carnation in commerce and certainty the most prolitic bloomer, perfectly healthy and of vigorous growth Rooted cuttings now ready. $4.00 per 100; $35.00 per 1000. Come and see this carnation growing.

CHRYSANTHEMUM PENNSYLVANIA

The finest yellow for cut blooms or exhibition purposes ever produced. Plants ready March 15, $5.00 per doz.; $35.00 per 100; $250 00 per 1000.

HUGH GRAHAM, 104 South 13th Street, PHILADELPHIA.

Mention this paper.

Chrysanthemum Mrs. A. F. Wienold

WE claim this to be one of the grandest early whites yet sent out. Originated with us 3 years ago and given a thorough test. It is earlier than Bergmann. Plawers 7 to 11 mehes in diameter; is easy to grow; a splendid keeper and above all never shows its center. Except in color it looks like a well grown Golden Wedding. Select stock, 2%-in. pots, 20c each; $1.50 per doz.; $10.00 per 100.

CAL. VIOLETS. No disease. Strong runners. 50e per 100; $4 per 1000. MCDONALD & STEELE, Grawfordsville, Ind.

Ghrysanthemum

It received the highest points and a Certificate of Merit at the Cleveland Chrysauthemum Show. It is in Yellow what Jerome Jones is amongst the White. The very best for late blooming. 2½-in. pot plants, strong, $2.50 per doz.; $20.00 per t00. Stock ready April 15th.

E. J. PADDOCK, 295 Erie St., CLEVELAND, OHIO.

"BOSS" Chrysanthemums WM. H. CHAOWICK—the grandest white novelty of the season. THE YELLOW FELLOW—Winner of $100 Stearns bicycle prize. MADELINE PRATT—"As pretty as her picture."

Distributed March 1st by leading firms and the grower...... Grove P. Rawson, Elmira, N. Y.

IMPORTERS

JAPANESE PLANTS,

At lowest prices Small orders filled from experimental garden Columbia Road Dorchester, Mass. Wholesale catalogue, 1898 free to the trade.

JAPANESE NURSERY.

BOSTON, MASS.

Large Field-Grown Roots in all the Leading Varieties $5.00 to $7.00 per 100.

30,000 DAHLIAS

Before ordering your liability stock be sore and send for my catalogue of novelties and standards of the best quality and at the lowest prices. All stock guaranteed true to name.

W. W. WILMORE, Dahlia Specialist,

Jardinieres, Pots Pedestals

Florists' Use.

Artistic Shapes and Decorations.

สมัยสมัยสมัยสมัยสมัยสมัย

Write us for Illustrations and Prices.....

×

W. P. PEACOCK, - Atco, N. J. BURLEY & TYRRELL, 42=44 Lake St., CHICAGO.

Catalogues Received.

11. 11. Berger & Co., New York, seeds and bulbs; Frederick W. Kelsey, New York, trees, shrubs and plants; Holton & Hunkel Co., Milwaukee, Wis., wire designs; Jac. Wezelenburg, Sassenheim, Holland, Jac. Wezelenburg, Sassenheim, Holland, bulbs; E. Calvat, Grenoble, France, plants; Lothrop & Higgins, East Bridgewater, Mass., dahlias; Yokohama, Nursery Co., Limited, Yokohama, Japan, trees, shrubs, plants, seeds and bulbs; H. F. House & Co., Hiram, O., seeds; John S. Kerr, Sherman, Texas, trees, shrubs and fruits; C. E. Allen, Brattleboro, Vt., seeds; C. I. Spechuan & Sons Sussenheim seeds; C. J. Spechnan & Sons, Sassenheim, Holland, bulbs. Haerens Brothers, Somergem, Belgium, plants; J. A. McDowell, City of Mexico, Mexico, plants; James M. Lamb, Fayetteville, N. C., trees, shrubs and plants; Ellis & Pollworth, Milwaukee, Wis., plants and supplies.

TORONTO, ONT .- The florists of this city at their last meeting made preparations for the annual chrysanthemum show to be held on November 9, 10, 11 and 12. The prize money has been raised to $860.

ELIZABETH, N. J.—The Elizabeth Nursery Company has purchased several acres of land on Rahway avenue, on which they propose to build a range of large greenhouses at an early date.

NEW BRIGHTON, PA.-William George, florist, will build a new greenhouse at the corner of Fourth avenue and Ninth street and engage in business soon after the first of April.

Toledo, Ohio.—A greenhouse belonging to the Superior Floral Company was damaged by fire to the extent of $25 on the morning of March 9.

N. Dames

of the

Vanderhorst eeeeeee & Dames...

BULB GROWERS

Lisse and Heemstede, Holland,

is on his round trip through the United States. To spare time, we beg to send all letters and communications up to May 15, care of

Knauth Nachod & Kuhne, 13 William St., New York,

Give us the list of your wants and we will send you our lowest quotations for real good stuff.

Down to War Prices...

Tuberose Pearl, 4 to 6 inches, per 1000...$5.00 Spirea Japonica clumps, per 100... 3.00 Iris Germanica, fine field roots, mixed, per 1000....8.00

Send cash with orders.

HULSEBOSCH BROS.

ENGLEWOOD, N. J.

100,000 CANNAS

Strong dormant roofs in leading varieties; orders received until April 10th at. $3.00 per 100, $25.00 per 1000 per 100, $25.00 per 1000 per 100, $25.00 per 1000 pichARDIA ALBA HACULATA $3.50 per 1000 pichARDIA, strong whole roots in leading varieties, of Cactus, large flowered and Pompon $6.00 per 100
THE STORRS & HARRISON CO., Painesville,

BEST HOLLAND BUI OUALITY

Per 100 Per 1000

LOWEST PRICES

Jac WEZELEN

SASSENHEIM, HOLLAND.

Address up to May 1 in care of KNAUTH. NACHOD & KUHNE, 13 William St., NEW YORK.

LILIUM AURATUM.

9-11 inch 5.00 L. RUBRUM (Speciosum) Per 100 Per 1000 .... 4.75

LILIUM ALBUM (Speciosum) Per 100 Per 1000 7-9 inch. 6 50 9-11 inch. 7.50 55.00 65.00

BEGONIAS TUBEROUS ROOTED ...

Single, separate colors...... Double, " ...... 3.50 30.00

TUBEROSES....

True Excelsior Pearl.
"Hallock strain" First size. .... 1.00 7.50

GLOXINIAS ..... Per doz., 85e; per 100, $5.00 CALADIUMS.....

Fancy leaved choice bulbs, per doz., $1.75; per 100, $12.00.

CALADIUM ESCULENTUM

Cured and sound bulbs with live center shoots. Doz. 100 5 to 7 inches in circumference. $\frac{40}{250}$ 7 to 9 " " 9 to 12 " " 7 to 9 63 4 50 9 to 12 6 6 7 1 00 6 50 50c per 100 less on 7-9 inch aud 9-12 inch sizes if shipped from New York.

GLADIOLUS XXX Florists Mixture

$15.00 Per 1000 Per 100 ... $1.75

VAUGHAN'S SEED STORE

NEW YORK 14 Barclay St.

CHICACO 84-86 Randolph St.

For FLORISTS.. BS FOR SEEDSMEN.

VAN ZANTEN BROTHERS.

HILLEGOM.

HOLLAND.

CANNAS NEW AMERICAN Finest in the World Our Novellies for 1898

OUR CANNAS IN FRANCE.

To Mesers. A. Blanc & Co.
Your new cannas of last year gave me much satisfaction. Please send me a complete set of your novelties for ISS as soon as ready. Also 12
Glant Crimson, etc. Sixned CII MOLIN,
Lyon, France, Jan. 3, 188

ASPARAGUS SPRENGERI

Fine plants in 6-inch pots, ready for 8-inch, $5 per 12.

Veltch's Hyhrids. $4 per 12; Equestra, $4 per 100; Formosissima, $3 per 100.

CALLAS

Spotted Leaf, $3; Black, $5; Yellow, $30; all per 100. Golden, $2 each.

DAHLIAS

11 prizes out of 22 at the last Dahlia exhibition. First prize Dahlia, GILT EDGE, $15 per 100 Send for special list.

A. BLANC & CO., Philadelphia, Pa.

Armstrong's Everblooming Tuberose * *

A NEW departure in Tuberose growth, Flower bearing buds continue to form around the old flower stock indefinitely. Flowers greatly superior to those of all other single Tuberoses—Awarded Certificate of Merit by the S. A. F. at Providence last August, and the Shaw Gold Medal at St. Louis in November.

For Prices and Particulars ...Address...

LUTHER ARMSTRONG.

3720 Olive St., ST. LOUIS MO. #$$$$$$$$$$$$$$$$$$$$$$$

Sub-Watering.

This method of watering should receive careful consideration from every florist. Readers of the AMERICAN FLORIST will remember that the method described by Prof. Arthur (except as modified by the Indiana Station) was described and figured on page 834, vol. xii., which was mainly an extract from the thirteenth reput of the Wisconsin station, then recently I have had four years' experience issued. with this method of watering, and feel competent to give evidence. Thave grown all kinds of vegetables commonly forced in greenhouses, as well as roses and carnations, and do not hesitate to recommend it as the very best system of water-

That it is a simple method cannot be denied, but that it requires no skill or judgment I deny. Good common sense will be in just as great demand here as in surface watering. The tendency at first will be to give too much water. It takes considerable time for the water to rise through four to eight inches of soil, especially if left loose.

I have found that it is not necessary that the benches be built absolutely level. A slight sag here and there does not make a mud puddle. Prof. Greenc's method has been used here for comparison, and while it is far ahead of surface watering, it does not give as satisfactory results as the brick method. The water is not uniformly distributed, and when a sufficient quantity of water to moisten the whole bed has been applied a large portion of the soil will be soaked and muddy, and will remain so for a considerable time, while other parts are dry.

By this method-as described by Prof. Greene-three rows of three-inch tile are used in a four-foot bench. Just how Prof. Taft is able to successfully water a fourfoot bed with one row of tile is not clear to me. The original cost of the beds for this system of watering should not discourage growers from giving it a trial. The increased yield of a single season will more than offset this extra cost. The zine will no doubt last as long as an ordinary greenhouse and the bricks are everlasting. The improvement to be looked for is the substitution for the bricks of some cheap water-conducting material that is lighter than brick. weight of the soaked bricks is something A running foot of bench enormous. four feet wide will require thirty-six bricks, which will weigh from 160 to 175 pounds. This needs to be borne in mind when constructing benches for this work. An inch of gravel and three inches of compacted sand answers well but is heavier. Char-coal broken into pea-size pieces will also work well, but is more expensive than bricks. However, the present method is excellent and should be given a fair trial by every progressive florist.

FRED CRANEFIELD.

Wisconsin Experiment Station.

Mansfield, O.

The Berno Floral Co intend building house to cover an additional rose house to cover 25×110. The house will be equipped with all the modern appliances and heated by steam. They will likewise overhaul their other houses, it being their intention to put the entire plant in first-class condition. Carnations will be grown on a larger scale than heretotore, the increased demand for these flowers necessitating the additional room.

Mr Berno reports an unusually brisk trade in funeral work Hogo.

SCOTT'S ROSES!

AMERICAN BEAUTY

.....$6.00 per 100; $50.00 per 1000.

ULRICH BRUNNER. Strong plants of hard wooded entrings, from 2½-inch pots, ¾4,00 per 100; §$5,00 per 1000. This is gilt edged stock, and has a reputation of its own. Last year we could have sold 10,000 plants after our stock was sold. Sample for 10 cents.

BRIDE, BRIDESMAID, PERLE DES JAROINS, METEOR and CARNOT, from  $2^{4}\mathrm{e}\text{-in}$ , pots. Write for

NEW DWARF CANNA GLORIOSA, without exception the most useful and beautiful Canna yet in-troduced. Plants, from 3-in. pots, $2.00 per doz.; $12.50 per 100.

CANNA FLAMINGO, dormant roots, $8.00 per 100. CANNA PAUL MARQUANT, dormant roots, $2.00 per 100; $15.00 per 1000.

CANNA CHAS. HENDERSON, dormant roots, $2.00 per 100; $15.00 per 1000.

-ORDER NOW-

ROBT. SCOTT & SON,

19TH AND CATHERINE STS.,

PHILADELPHIA, PA.

Roses! Roses! Roses!

Bride, Bridesmaid, Catherine Mermet, Madame Hoste, Mrs. Pierpont Morgan, Perle des Jardins, Meteor, at $5.00 per 100. La France, Kaiserin Augusta Victoria, Mrs. W. C. Whitney, Souvenir de Wootton, Madame Caroline Testout and Pres. Carnot at $5.50 per 100. Clara Watson and American Beauty at $8 00 per 100. 4 4 4 Write for special prices for large quantities.

JOHN N. MAY, Summit, New Jersey.

ROSES CUTTINGS ...ROOTED

| o scrub | wood used   | All stock thorou | ighly roc | ited and |          |                 | From 21/6 | -Inch Pots |
|---------|-------------|------------------|-----------|----------|----------|-----------------|-----------|------------|
| refully | packed when | sent out. Sen    | d for sai | mples    | Per 100  | Per 1000        | Per 100   | Per 1000   |
|         | AMERICAN    | BEAUTIES.        | Rooted    | Cuttings | , $2,50 | $22.00         |           |            |
|         | BRIDES      |                  | * *       |        | 1,50     | 12.50           |           |            |
|         | BRIDESMAI   | ID               | 4.1       | * *      | 1.50     | 12,50,          |           |            |
|         | METEOR      |                  | * *       | • •      | 1,50     | 12.50           |           |            |
|         |             |                  |           |          | 1.50     | 12.50           |           |            |
|         |             |                  |           |          | 1,50     | [2.50, , ,      |           |            |
|         |             | ferms cash wi    |           |          | lants fr | om 2%-inch pots |           | 1st.       |

J. A. BUDLONG, - STATION X. CHICAGO, ILL.

OWN ROOTS.⊀ DORMANT.⊀.⊀ FIELD GROWN

IN COLD STORAGE IN CHICAGO.

No. 1, 2 to 4 feet, cut back to 2 feet Yellow Rambler (Aglata) Hybrid Perpetuals, Mosses, Hardy Climbers and Madam Plantier

These plants are very strong and well shaped Prices on application. Address

W. F. HEIKES, Manager. 1308-1310 Unity Bldg., -CHICAGO, ILLS.

STOCK FINE ROSE

In 2 and 3-inch Pots.

Write for prices of kinds you wint,

12 Bost Varieties of Carnations in 2-inch pots, ready to plant out. Write for prices. Send 50c for samples. I arrey Smilay in 2-inch pots.

GEO. A. KUHL, Pekin, 111.

300,000 YOUNG ROSES 300,000

Ramblers, Climb. Malmaison, Climb. Whife Pet, Climb, Wootlon, Pres. Carnot and too other leaders in Teas, II. Teas and Climbers. Moon Vines, $2.50 per 100.

Send for prices

The National Plant Company, Dayton, Ohlo.

NEW FORCING ROSE MRS. ROBT. GARRETT

Hybrid tea, rich soft pink, buds very long, flower extra large, delightfully fragrant, rivaling Bridesmaid in color, but larger and much more productive. A sturdy, vigorous grower, a maker and a triumph of American skill. The best firms in the country are investing in it. It has won numerous prizes and has elicited the most favorable comment from critical judges. Price strong plants from 21 p-inch pots, $25.00 per 100 in lots less than 1000; $225.00 per 1000. Orders booked now, delivery March 15, 1898, Correspondence solicited. Address

H. WEBER & SONS, Oakland, Md.

ROSES

PERLES......
METEORS.
BRIDESMAID

Gnaranteed first-class. Stock grown in low temperature,

THE E. HIPPARD CO., Youngstown, Ohio.

When corresponding with any advertiser on this page, please mention the fact that you saw the ad. in the AMERI-CAN PLORIST.

San Francisco.

BUSINESS PICKING UP.—PRICES ON ROSES DROP—LILY BLOOMS SCARCE FOR EASTER —REMOVALS—PERSONAL.

Business in all its branches has picked up very much during the last few weeks and much better prices are now prevailing. Violets have taken a jump to $1 per dozen. The cold frosty nights have put a stop to blooming, so that they became scarce very suddenly.

Roses are not of as good quality as they have been during the winter. First-class Brides and Bridesmaids have dropped to 75 cents per dozen; second grade still brings 50 cents. Some very excellent Beauties are being received and are bringing good prices. One or two of our growers have had their roses attacked by a cut-worm or leaf-roller which has done much damage. Carnations are just about the same as when last noted.

Lilium Harrisii is of miserable quality, due of course to diseased bulbs being planted. They are bringing very poor prices. A few longiflorums have been seen which are of much better quality than Harrisii. There will probably be quite a shortage of lily blooms for Easter. Lily of the valley is selling very steadily and good prices are being obtained. The market is completely stocked with narcissus, hyacinths and other outdoor grown bulbous stock, and as a consequence poor prices are being obtained. Smilax and asparagus are scarce articles and bring good figures.

Quite a large quantity of field-grown violet plants have been sold this season. The prices obtained were very good. Californias and Marie Louise seem to be leaders for this work.

The greater part of our growers are now busily engaged in working up their stock of chrysanthemums.

F. Pelicano & Co., who have conducted their large flower store at 343 Kearney street for many years past, are about to move a few blockscloser to Market street. Mr. Kenneth Murray, who has been foreman for M. Lynch, at Menlo Park, has been forced to resign his position on account of ill health.

The San Jose Bird and Floral Co. has opened up a new store at 70 North First street, San Jose. Mrs. Raventos and R. E. Rayburn compose the new firm.

There will probably be a floral festival in the Santa Clara valley this spring.

J. Jacquemet & Co. have removed to Sutter street, between Kearney and Grant avenue.

Mr. Rudolph Steffens, who has been with the Sunset Seed Co. for some time past, has left for New York.

The San Rafael Floral Society have decided to hold a flower show in May. Substantial premiums will be offered.

Mr. E. Wegener has accepted a position with Chas. Josselyn, at Woodside.

Mr. John Jacks, head gardener at the Oakland race track, paid a visit to the different growers last week. METEOR.

GERANIUMS....

READY FOR IMMEDIATE SHIPMENT

25,000 from 2-in. pots.......$3.00 per 100; $25.00 per 1000 25,000 rooted cuttings........ 1.50 per 100; 12.50 per 1000 (Our selection of sorts.)

OUR LIST COMPRISES

S. A. Nutt, Mrs. A. Blanc, Mme. Jones, Mrs. Ch. Molin, Mrs. J. M. Gaar, Marvel, W. A. Chalfant, Madonna, Rev. Atkinson, Leonard Kelway, Mrs. E. G. Hill, Comtesse de Danne, Wm. Ptitzer, La Favorite, Gloire de France, H. de Bornin, Mme. Buchner, Gettysburg, Beaute Poitevine, Comtesse de Harcourt and many others.

SPECIAL OFFER:

| 1000 | Geraniums, | 2-inch | in 10 | varieties, | our se | lection | ı, for |     | $20.00 cash. |
|------|------------|--------|-------|------------|--------|---------|--------|-----|---------------|
| 500  | * *        |        |       |            |        |         |        |     | 10.50 cash.   |
| 1000 | 1.4        | rooted | entti |            |        |         |        |     | 12.50 cash.   |
| 500  | • •        |        | 4.1   | 10         | * *    | +4      | 1.1    | 4.4 | 6.50 cash.    |

THE GOTTAGE GARDENS,

CHRYSANTHEMUMS

READY FOR IMMEDIATE DELIVERY.

Mrs. C. H. Pierce and T. H. Spaulding......35c each, $3 50 per doz. Frank Hardy and The Yellow Fellow......50c each, $3.00 per doz. Pennsylvania and Snow Queen........50c each, $5.00 per doz.

T. B. Morse, Marcia Jones, Mrs. R. McArthur, Mrs. H. Wright, J. H. Woodford, Western King, Mrs. M. Ryerson, Elvena, Dorothy Devens and many others of last years introduction.

2-inch pots, - 75 cents per dozen, $5.00 per 100. Rooted Cuttings, 50 cents per dozen, $4.00 per 100.

. . . ALSO . . .

Lenawee, Maud Dean, Golden Wonder, Pride of Castlewood, Glory of Pacific, Mrs. H. Robinson, Golden Trophy, Ivory, Yellow Queen, Mrs. R. Crawford, Invincible and many others.

2-inch pots, - 50 cents per dozen, $3.00 per 100. Rooted Cuttings, 40 cents per dozen, $2.00 per 100.

THE GOTTAGE GARDENS,

QUEENS, N. Y.

GROWN IN CALIFORNIA

|                           | Oz,         | Pound.  |
|---------------------------|-------------|---------|
| Verbena, Mammoth, White,  | .$1 00 | $10.00 |
| Verbena, Mammoth, Scarlet | 1.00    | 10.00   |
| Verbena, Mammoth, Mixed   | . 75    | 7.50    |
| Grevillea Robusta         | 40      | 4.(H)   |
| Smilax                    | 30      | 3,00    |
| Brahea Filifera           |             | .40     |
| Camphor Tree              |             | 2.00    |
|                           |             |         |

CHOICE STRAINS OF FLOWER SEEDS!

HAVE YOU TRIED THEM?

| * * * * *                         | Oz.      | Pound. |
|-----------------------------------|----------|--------|
| Aster, Semple's, White            | . 8 . 50 | $5.00 |
| Aster, Semple's, Pink             |          | 5.00   |
| Aster, Semple's, Mixed            | 50       | 5.00   |
| Aster, Vick's Branching           | 50       | 5.00   |
| Cosmos, Mammoth Perfection, Mixed | ,30      | 3 0 1  |
| Mignonette, Allen's Deffance      | 40       | 4 (8)  |

COX SEED & PLANT CO.,

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

Los Angeles, Cal.

The different localities in southern California have been refreshed with showers during the past ten days. Reports from the northern and central parts of the state show that severe frosts this week have seriously injured, and in some places totally destroyed, this year's crop of apricots, peaches, cherries, prunes and

All the world has read of the death of General W. S. Rosecrans, who for a number of years has made his home within a few miles of Los Angeles. Ail the florists had heavy orders for the funeral, one firm putting up twenty-one pieces.

In addition to large orders for the Rosecrans funeral, Capt. F. Edward Gray had a big wedding order to fill for Tucson, Arizona. He seut some nice stock out to the land of the cactus and jack-rabbit.

J. A. Summers, of the Central Park Floral Co., who was so severely injured, is recovering nicely and expects to get to the store before many days.

J. C. Harvey, of the Los Angeles Botanical Society, started this week for southern Mexico, where he has large coffee and rubber plantations.

J. J. Dean, of Moneta, is working up a nice trade in Redondo carnations by mail.

M. E. Walker, the university florist and bulb grower, has had too much "grip" for the past week.

California taxes fruit trees. The assessment rolls show 1,200,000 lemon trees now planted in the state.

A recent visit to Redondo, where more carnations are grown than at any other point on the coast, shows the principal growers there preparing for spring plant-The Redondo Beach Floral Co., J. G. Morley, manager, has ground ready for 75,000 plants and plenty of stock to plant it with.

Henry Feder is already at work planting on a little patch of about four acres. At the Wolfskill place, where George Watson grows as fine carnations as anybody, the ground space is limited, but the condition of the plants and surroundings shows the beneficial effect of thorough D. R. W. cultivation and good care.

New Haven, Conn.

Spring activity among local florists is blossoming in abundance just now. Thos. Pattison, who has lately completed a rose house and is marketing some of the choicest Bridesmaids hereabouts, shortly erect a carnation house 20x65 feet on his grounds in West Haven. Smith Bradley, of Fair Haven, is also planning an extension, and E. J. Morse, of East Haven, is said to be about to do the While other dealers are making extenstons in a variety of fields, Witt Jost, of hast Haven, still confines himself to colets, and the degree of success which be has attained in cultivating the Faranhar seems to justify all his efforts. Mr. Jost has four houses, 10x120 feet each, given up to this variety alone, there being about 1 200 plants in each house. His weekly slapments to Boston and New York far exceed his sales in this vicinity Mr. Jost shades his violets early in March, using turpentine and white lead in prefer to whitewash, applied so as to not calude sunshine too completely, thereby obtaining added fragrance to the violets

The first Jacqs of the season arrived last week, and retail for $3 per dozen. Brun scree, and retail of 8 per dozen. Fruncis, too, are in good shape, though the senson is yet young, and command the same price as Jacqs. Bridesmaids and Brides bring $2, while bulbous stock, being abundant, sells for 60 cents per

John N. Champion, accompanied by his wife, is absent on a two weeks' trip through the south, visiting Havana, Jacksonville, Savannah and other cities before they return. Mr. Champion expects to make many selections for his Easter trade while on the trip.

Henry A. Siebrecht, of Siebrecht & Son, New York, was in the city on business J. A. P. last week.

Grand Rapids, Mich.

Trade is still brisk, and very much unlike what was expected for the Lenten season.

Although all large functions have ceased, weddings, funerals and the steady demand for loose bunches, have kept flowers scarce. Business promises to continue good, but stock is getting scarce.

The outlook for Easter stock is fair; lilies are more or less diseased, and will be given a turn at the next club meeting.
F. Postma and Mr. Blair have severed their connections with T.R. Renwick & Co. Chas. Bowditch, late with F. A. Chapman, is now traveling salesman for Henry A. Dreer, of Philadelphia.

Wencil Cukierski, the city florist, has purchased a number of lots on the west side, on which to erect a greenhouse plant, should occasion require.

GEO. F. CRABB.

(Copyrighted)

Kraft's Plant Tonic

For PLANTS, PALMS and FLOWERS

...A Wonderful Preparation for the Promotion of Plant Life, Destruction of Insects and Scale...

This is one of the greatest preparations for the use of Florists and Plant Growers ever compounded. It gives to the foliage of plants treated the bright, fresh color of healthy, growing vegetation. It destroys all insect life infecting the plant and eradicates scale.

Besides improving the color of the plant, it effects a general betterment of its condition, aiding nature in disseminating and retaining the sap and life of the plant. The Tonic makes the foliage of the plant soit and pliable, and a beautiful bright green.

For sale at

Price per bottle, 25 cents.

84 & 86 RANDOLPH STREET, CHICAGO.

VAUGHAN'S SEED STORE.

14 BARCLAY STREET, NEW YORK.

STEMS DUST EXTRAGT

VAUGHAN'S SEED STORE.

Chicago. New York.

VATIVE GUANO A COMPLETE AND NATURAL FERT

NATURAL FERTILIZER FOR .

(Desiccated Night Soil)

Gardeners and Florists. SOLUBLE, QUICK TO ACT. PLEASANT TO HANDLE.

STANDARD FERTILIZER CO. Inc.

1822 Filbert Street, Philadelphia.

Scollay

INDISPENSABLE

J. A. Scotlay, Maker,

71 Myrtle Ave.
Brooklyn. N. Y.
VAUGHAN'S SEED STORE, Gen'l Western Agents, 84 Randolph St., CHICACO.

REED & KELLER Florists' Supplies

122 W. 25th St., NEW YORK CITY.

ESTABLISHED 1859

W. Weathered's Son

Horticultural Architect & Builder

And Manufacturer of Greenhouse Heating and Ventilating Apparatus

The latest and most perfect Sectional Hot Water and Steam Boiler in the market. Improvements will astonish you. It has not only got the greatest amount of heating surface but is sectional in each and every

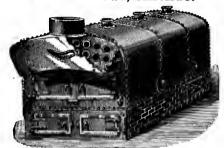

LOOK OUT FOR NEXT ISSUE AND SEE MY AD.

THOS. W. WEATHERED'S SON, 141 Centre St., New York.

KROESCHELL BROS. CO.

29 to 59 Erie St., CHICAGO.

Boilers made of the best of material, shell, firebox sheets and heads of steel, water space all around (front, sides and back). Write for information.

Boilers

OF HIGH &

For GREENHOUSES.

See our Catalogue.....

Steam and Hot Water. Giblin & Co., Utica, N. Y.

GREEN-HOUSE HEATING. MYERS & CO.

1518 & 1520 S. 9th St. PHILADELPHIA. Send for catalogue and price list.

NEW & SECOND-HAND MATERIAL,

phased from Sheriff Receiver, and Assignee, as the less than one-half prices. Pripe and Fithings e. Florists Wire, Hot Water Heaters, Greenhouse lers and Englanes. Rope, Light Wrought Iron Pipe, se Sash, and thousands of other articles, for sa c by

CHICAGO HOUSE WRECKING CO.
Largesi Mail Order Depot for New and Second-Hand
Material in the World.
W. 35TH & IRON STS., CHICACO.
Write for our free illustrated catalogues.

Wheeler-Stenzel Co.

Make your contracts for next season now. We can deliver to any part of the country and Save You Money .....

*************

Greenhouse Glass

72 Sudbury St., BOSTON, MASS.

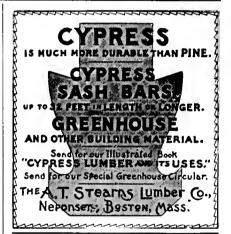

is the only boiler that will keep a steady heat in a greenhouse all night without attention. No sitting up all night to keep a good fire-

× Further information on application.

GORTON & LIDGERWOOD CO. 96 Liberty Street, NEW YORK.

EVANS' IMPROVED CHALLENGE Ventilating A*PPARATUS*

QUAKER CITY MACHINE WORKS

LOUISIANA Cypress Green House Material.

RED CEDAR

Write for Estimates.

Our Special Easter Number April SEND ADS. AT ONCE OR IT WILL BE TOO LATE.

Uncle Sam and the Washington Florists.

The following House bill, introduced by Mr. Richardson, which was favorably considered and referred to the committee on the District of Columbia we learn will probably soon become operative:

 $H(R, h_3 bo)$

A BILL

To regulate the disposal of the products of Government greenhouses and grounds in the District of Columbia

"Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, that from and after the passage of this Act it shall be unlawful for any person in charge of any establishment in the District of Columbia supported in whole or in part by the Government of the United States, or for any of his subordinates, to appropriate to their own use, loan, distribute priate to their own use, loan, distribute gratuitously, or sell or offer for sale in the District of Columbia any product of the greenhouses or grounds under their charges. charge:

Provided, That nothing in this Act shall be construed as prohibiting the President of the United States from using, at his pleasure, the products of the White House conservatories and grounds:

"Ind provided Jurther, That nothing in this Act shall prevent the Secretary of Agriculture from distributing any new or rare plants not in general cultivation.
"Sec. 2. That violators of this Act or any of its provisions shall be subject to dismissal from the Government service.

Mr. Freeman, prominent among the Washington florists, originally agitated the question which resulted in the foregoing bill.

The Washington P. st reflecting this opinion, and in sympathy with the florists savs editorially:

"After much prayerful inquiry and selfcommunion, we are convinced that the Washington florists have right and reason on their side. It is borne in upon us that the free distribution of flowers by the government is. in a small way, what the free distribution of seeds is in a large way-a humbug, a blunder. As regards the seeds, we have already expressed our opinion. It remains only to say that the distribution of flowers, as at present conducted, is not only an injustice to the general public in the improper employment of persons whose salaries the general public pays, but a mischievous favoritism out of which no good can come to any-body."

It has been argued that it this law is passed that the products of the green-houses and nurseries of the Industrial school will be deprived of a market and claimed that the proceeds of sales were an aid in supporting this institution but expert investigation has shown that such trathe has never even paid the running expenses for this plant, and a more bene-heral use of the flowers and plants from this establishment could be found in their distribution among the public schools, hospitals, etc., which would not injuri ously disturb patronage of the legitimate sources of these supplies Burr hoov.

FLOWER POTS

A SPECIALTY STANDARD POTS

J. G. SWAHN'S SONS, MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.

SYRACUSE POTTERY CO. Flower Pots,

Bulb Pans, Hanging Baskets and Saucers

OUR FLOWER POTS are standard measure and alt first-class and we assure you they will give good satisfaction. We call your attention to our new pots, 6, 7, 8 and 9-inch, called the "Poro Pot." They are more Porous than any pots, smoother inside and outside, perfect drainage, and are easily washed and cleaned, Give them a trial and you will not want any other. Remember these Pots are as cheap as any other Pot on the market. Write for price list.

SYRACUSE POTTERY CO.

SYRACUSE, N. Y.

Standard Flower Pots...

OUR POTS ARE OF THE BEST QUALIT

We ship all goods from Cincinnati, guaranteeing lowest freight rates and prompt delivery.

Write us before placing your orders elsewhere......

CAMBRIDGE TILE MFG, CO., Covington, Ky.

FERN PANS and AZALEA POTS...

OLD RELIABLE MAKE OF Elverson. Sherwood & Barker.

Write for price list. Address

PITTSBURG CLAY MFG. CO.,

New Brighton, Pa. GEO. KELLER & SON. Flower Pots.

> Before buying write for prices. 361-363 Herndon Street, near Wrightwood Ave., CHICACO. ILL.

Mention American Florist.

FULL SIZE AND WIDE BOTTOMS, BULB PANS AND AZALEA POTS,

DETROIT FLOWER POT M'F'Y.

HARRY BALSLEY,

DETROIT, MICH., 490 HOWARD ST.

Standard 🥦 🧀 FLOWER

If your greenhouses are within 500 miles of the Capitol, write us; we can save you money.

W. H. ERNEST,

Station M. N. E.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

tood Railroad Facilities KELLER BROS. For shipping.

Special Attention Given to :
Mail Orders, and Special
Sizes Made to Order.

NORRISTOWN, PA.

Price Lists Furnished on Application.

STANDARD ....FLOWER

We have 50,000 Jern Pors that we will close out at §7,00 per 1000, 500 at same rate. Send for price list for other sizes, Address.

HILFINGER BROTHERS POTTERY FORT EDWARD, N. Y.

Brick or Wooden Greenhouse Walls.

Answering "C. B. S." Delaware, O.: Lumber, labor and brick vary so much in cost that the difference in expense between brick and wooden walls can not be given with any degree of accuracy. A solid brick wall is not to be recommended for your climate, as the great extremes of temperature inside and outside cause most kinds of ordinary brick masonry to rapidly go to pieces. A hollow brick wall is probably the best and most durable of all, but is more expensive. A well made wooden wall will answer every purpose except that it is not so durable as the hollow brick wall.

Would not advise the use of any glass smaller than 12x12 inches, and it should be double strength. In a general way the larger the glass the lighter the house, consequently the better the house. For cut flower growing 14 and 16-inch glass is commonly used, but for general greenhouse stock when economy is an object 12-inch glass will answer very well.

Concrete Greenhouse Walls.

Answering "Subscriber," Milton, Ont.: A solid concrete wall would be open to the same objections as a solid brick one, as mentioned in answer to "C. B. S." Delaware, O., in this issue. If the best Portland cement, sharp coarse sand and clean gravel or crushed stone is used, in proper proportious, with great care in mixing and laying up, it is probable that the solid concrete wall will stand but it will not make so warm a house as the wooden wall, if the latter is well made, double, with building paper between the boards. Do not use the common tarred paper. The tar destroys the fiber of the paper in many cases and it soon hardens and cracks, becoming useless.

RIVERTON, N. J .- William Parry, of the firm of Parry Brothers, nurserymen, died last week of an acute attack of Bright's disease. Mr. Parry was 50 years of age, and was a son of the late Judge Parry.

SEND FOR CATALOGUE.

An advertiser feels better when he knows he is getting direct returns for his money. Mention the American Florist.

You can not get a GOOD THING for nothing. But the price of this apparatus is next to nothing. Send for price and description to

J. D. CARMODY, Evansvilla, Ind.

| ___X======X======X==== EEN-HOUSE CONSTRUCTIO

This has been a specialty with us for many years and to us is due the credit for many of the great improvements that have been made in the construction of wooden green-houses. To those that buy our we furnish, free of cost, complete detail drawings from which any intelligent workman can put up the material correctly. We have plenty of time to write letters ABOUT OUR BUSINESS, and we will be glad to hear from those contemplating building.

Clear Cypress Building Material

Write for Circulars or Estimates.

LOCKLAND LUMBER CO.

X____X___X

LOCKLAND, OHIO.

MACHINE. VENTILATING STANDARD

NONE EQUAL IT Strength AND Durability Send for Catalogue.

NOTHING Flimsv OR Complicated about it.

HIPPARD, YOUNGSTOWN, OHIO,

GREENHOUSE MATERIAL

Cal. Red Cedar and Louisiana Cypress. BEST GRADES. PERFECT WORKMANSHIP.

A. DIETSCH & CO. SHEFFIELD AVE. CHICAGO, ILL.

DON'T WATER. SYRINGE COLD

It lowers the vitality of your stock, but write for particulars of my tempering Apparatus.

HENRY W. GIBBONS, 134 LIBERTY STREET.

Copy for Advertisements......

TO APPEAR IN THE EASTER NUMBER OF THE AMERICAN FLORIST SHOULD BE SENT AT ONCE. .

FOR SALE CHEAP.

GLASS for Greenhouses, Conservatories, Hotbeds, etc. Also Hotbed Sashes and Mats, Paints, Oils, etc. THE REED GLASS & PAINT CO.. 456 W. Broadway, NEW YORK.

Everybody is more pleased if you say "saw your ad. in the American Florist" when writing.

| Index to A                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |  |  |  |
|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|--|--|--|
| Advertising Rates                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | Ley John H                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |  |  |  |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | Littleffeld H F                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |  |  |  |
| American Bose Co                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | Long D B970 971                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |  |  |  |
| Amling E C                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   | Lonsdale A II                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |  |  |  |
| Armstrong Luther Viol                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | Lord & Burnnam Co. 380Lordsville Tonson Co. 336                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |  |  |  |
| Box Co                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | Lucas J & Co                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |  |  |  |
| Baller F.A                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   | Lynch W E 104                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |  |  |  |
| Bartlett Geo S 566                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | Manning Jacob W955                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |  |  |  |
| American Jadoo C (38) 384 American Rose Co. 388 Amilton Rose Co. 388 Amiltong Luther. 35 Anil Bros Paper and Box Co. 384 Baller F A. 351 Barth Rudolph. 385 Bartlett Geo S. 366 Bassett & Washburn 381 Bayenderfer H & C (38)                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | Manz J & Co                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |  |  |  |
| Renson Martin 186                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | McCarthy N. F. & Co., 955                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |  |  |  |
| Berger H II & Co . 364                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | Melbanald Bros                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |  |  |  |
| Berokmans P.J                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | McDonald & McManusisaMcDonald & Steele                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |  |  |  |
| Blanc A & Co 155                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | McFadden W A956                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |  |  |  |
| Bobbink L.C                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | Millang Frank                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |  |  |  |
| Bolles F A                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   | Moon Samuel C 185                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |  |  |  |
| Boaton Letter Co                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | Moon Wm H Co . 965                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |  |  |  |
| Breitmeyer J & Sons 100                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | Mound City Flo Co356                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |  |  |  |
| Brown Peter . 1881                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | Myers & Co                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |  |  |  |
| Budlong J A                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | Trade                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |  |  |  |
| Burpee W Atlee & Co 1414                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     | National Plant Co 164                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |  |  |  |
| Burton John 145                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | Niemeyer H A                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |  |  |  |
| Co 318                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | Lonsdale A II                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |  |  |  |
| Carmody J. D                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 | Paddock E J972                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |  |  |  |
| Chicago House Wreck-                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | Parsons A Sons Co385                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |  |  |  |
| Bartlett Geo S. Basett & Washburn (8) Bayersdorfer H & Co 34 Benson Martin (8) Berser H H & Co 34 Berser H H & Co 34 Berser H H & Co 34 Bersen Bersen (8) Berser H H & Co 34 Bersen Bersen (8) Berser H H & Co 34 Bobbins L C 35 Bobbins L C 35 Bobbins L C 35 Boton Letter Co 36 Brazile L B 37 Bretmever J & Son 90 Brown Peter 38 Bretmever J & Son 90 Brown Peter 38 Bridney A Tyrrell 37 Burley & Tyrrell 37 Burley & Tyrrell 37 Burley & Tyrrell 37 Cambridge Tile Mfg Co 35 Chicago House Weckling Co 37 Chicago House Weckling Co 37 Chicago House Weckling Co 37 Chicago House Weckling Co 38 Clicas & Boddington Co 38 Coles & Boddington Co 38 Coles & Co 38 Coles W W 38 Conard & Jones Co 38 Coles W W 38 Conard & Jones Co 387 Conley John & Son 387 Collage Garden 8                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | N Y Cut Flower Co 904 Paddock E J 972 Palmer The R T Co 983 Farsons A Sons Co 985 Paxon Greenhouses. 984 Payne Frank S 971 Peacock W P 972 Pennock Sm. 1 8 964 Pitte Sur. 972 Pennock Gay Mfc Co. 985 Prince A G & Co 944 Quaker City Mc h Wks. 967 Quinn Ed 961 Kandali A L 854 Kawson Grove P 972 Kaynor J L 987 Regan Printlng House 983                       |  |  |  |
| Cleveland Seed Co 384                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | Peacock W P                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |  |  |  |
| Ciucas & Boddington                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | Pennock Sam'l S 955                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |  |  |  |
| Cole Geo E & Co3853                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | Pittsburg Clay Mfg Co 978                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |  |  |  |
| Coles W W                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    | Prince A G & Co 35d                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |  |  |  |
| Conley John & Son                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | Quinn Ed 161                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |  |  |  |
| Land Delta Men                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | Randali A L                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |  |  |  |
| Cox eed & Plant Co.275                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | Kaynor J 1 955                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |  |  |  |
| Craig Robt 1967                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | Regan Printing House 963                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |  |  |  |
| Canningham J H971                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | Reed Glass & Paint Co 979                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |  |  |  |
| Dames N 953                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | Reinberg Bros                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |  |  |  |
| Detroit Flo w Pot Mig 368                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    | Ricksecker C.H969                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |  |  |  |
| Dickinson Albert Co 984                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | Rogers P'k Floral Co 354                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |  |  |  |
| Cox seed & Plant Co. 95 Craig Bobt                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | Rawson Grove P                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |  |  |  |
| DornerFred &Sons Co 365                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | Scollay Jno A 976                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |  |  |  |
| Dreef H A   30   34     Ehret F   85     Ellizabeth Nurserles   36     Ellizabeth Nurserles   36     Ellizabeth Nurserles   36     Ellisa Pojlworth   39     Ellisa Pojlworth   39     Ernest W H   97     FA Nurserles   36     Faxon M B   97     Faxon M B   97     Faxon M B   97     Fathousen J E   97     Ford Bros   54     Galvin & Co   55     Galvin & Co   56     Gibbons H W   59     Gibbons H W   59     Gibbons H W   59     Gibbons H   56     Gorton A   Lidgerwood     56     56     56     56     56     57     58     58     59     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50     50 | Scott Robt & Son . 274                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |  |  |  |
| Elizabeth Nurseries                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | Shepherd Mrs T B184                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |  |  |  |
| El.is & Pollworth 956                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | Semple Jaa                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |  |  |  |
| Ernest W H                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   | Sheridan W.F                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |  |  |  |
| Faxon M B971                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 | Situations, Wants, etc. 163                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |  |  |  |
| Felthousen J E                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | Skabeura Dip Co                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |  |  |  |
| Ford Broa                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    | Smith W C 955                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |  |  |  |
| Galvin & Co                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | South Park Floral Co. 161                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |  |  |  |
| Gibbons H W978                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | Standard Fertilizer Cours                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |  |  |  |
| Giblin & Co                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | St Louis Cut Flower Collid                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |  |  |  |
| 367                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | Stollery Bros970                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |  |  |  |
| Graham Hugh 952                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | Storrs & Harrison Co.355Struck J.N.& Bro977                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |  |  |  |
| Haenselman F A 366                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | Sunderbruch H L Co. 356                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |  |  |  |
| Hall Ass D                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   | Sutton E B Jr                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |  |  |  |
| Hart M A., 165                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | Suzuki & lida                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |  |  |  |
| Halles W.F                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   | Swayne Wm                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |  |  |  |
| Herendeen Mig to missi                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | Syracuse Pottery Co!                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |  |  |  |
| Gorton & Eldgerwood Graham Hugh. 972 Gurney Heater Co95 Hunnerlman F A. 106 Hall Ass n 983 Hancock A Sons 960 Heat M A 106 Heat M A 107 Helkes W F 107 Herr Albert M 108 Herr Albert M 109 Hill E 96 A Co 960                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | Standard Fertilizer Coopsistearna Lumber Co. 977 St Louis Cut Flower Code Stollery Broa. 978 Struck J N & Bro. 977 Sunderbruch H L Co. 968 Sutton E B Jr. 988 Suzuki & Ilda 984 Swahna Suna J G 968 Swayne Wm 958 Traendly & Schenck 968 Vanghan J C. 968 Vanghan McKellar & |  |  |  |
| Hildinger Bros 955HBli E G A Co . (90)                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   | Vaughan J C                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |  |  |  |
| Hippard E                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    | Vaughan, McKellar &                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |  |  |  |
| Hilli E G A Co. (5) Hilli E G A Co. (5) Hilli B G A Co. (5) Holom A Hunkel Co. (5) Holom A Hunkel Co. (5) Holom A Lenke. (5) Holan Edwit. (5) Holan Edwit. (5)                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   | Winterson.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |  |  |  |
| Hoop & Lenke 303                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | Wabash R R                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |  |  |  |
| Horan Edw (                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | Walker Fertilizer Co 364                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |  |  |  |
| Hulsebosch Bros 95Hunt Elf 954Elinois Cut Flower Co                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | Watson G C 961                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |  |  |  |
| B Inola Cut Flower Co                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | Weathered's T.W. Son Pol-Water H.A. Sons, 970,971                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |  |  |  |
| January A. Perkins in 180 Januares Nurserv 162 Jenning E.B. 161 Kasting W.F. 166                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | Vaughan, McKellar & Winterson                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |  |  |  |
| Japanese Sursery 162                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | Welch Bros 365                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |  |  |  |
| Kasting W.F 100                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | Wheeler Stenzel Co 977                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |  |  |  |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | Whilldin Pot Co 1978Whilton & Son 1971                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |  |  |  |
| Kelsey Harlan P. 1996                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | Willmore A W 972                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |  |  |  |
| Kannienti Brus (a. 354 555                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   | William R Son                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |  |  |  |
| Mentile Plant Tonle No.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | Wood Bros                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |  |  |  |
| Kroeschell Brosta 25                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |  |  |  |
| Ruhi Geo A 61                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | Young Jno                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |  |  |  |

nor City, O. James White, a of of this city, has committed I'm cord would was the

Wors t W Young Inc. Young Thes Je Young John Welsh

Kuchn f A Kuchn f A Kuhl Geo A Lager & Horrell Indevited W Larz Julius

Hitchings

ESTABLISHED 50 YEARS.

ARCHITECTS AND BUILDERS

GREENHOUSE HEATING AND VENTILATING APPARATUS.

THE HIGHEST AWARDS RECEIVED AT THE WORLD'S FAIR FOR HORTICULTURAL ARCHITECTURE, GREENHOUSE CONSTRUCTION AND HEATING APPARATUS.

Conservatories, Greenhouses, Palm Houses, etc., erected complete, with our patent from Frame Construction. Send tour cents postage for illustrated catalogue.

233 Mercer Street, NEW YORK.

LORD & BURNHAM CO.

LARGEST BUILDERS OF GREENHOUSE STRUCTURES

And Manufacturers of Heating and Ventilating Apparatus.

Plans and estimates furnished on application for Heating and Ventilating Appartus erected complete or for material only. Highest awards at Worlds Fair.

ુષ્દ

Send 4 cts. postage for catalogue of Patent Iron Greenhouse Construction.

Standard Hot Water Heater IN 4 SIZES.

Specially adapted for moderate ranges. We also make Sectional Heaters for large ranges. Highest economy. Reasonable prices.

Send 5 ets. postage to New York Office for latest catalogue of Heating and Ventilating Apparatus. Estimates lurnished for Cypress Greenhouse Material.

GENERAL OFFICE AND WORKS: IRVINCTON-ON-HUDSON, N. Y.

FURMAN

160 FIFTH AVE., Cor 21st St.

On Your Coal Bills If your Houses are Heated by a Furman Boiler.

Send for large Hustrafed Catalogue, Florists' Edition. Let us make you an estimate FREE.

THE HERENDEEN MFG. CO. 20 Vine Street, GENEVA, N. Y.

BRANCH OFFICES:

(Bostos, 51 Oliver Street Ni.w York, 39 Cortlandt Street Philister (rms, 1019 Betz Building

It is good business policy to mention the American Florist when you write to an advertiser.

JCA

► FOR GLASS

JOHN LUCAS & CO. PHILADELPHIA.

THE AMERICAN FLORIST

America is "the Prow of the Vessel; there may be more comfort Amidships, but we are the first to touch Unknown Seas."

Vol. XIII.

[ CHICAGO AND NEW YORK, APRIL 2, 1898.

No. 513.

THE AMERICAN FLORIST

Copyright 1898, by American Florist Company. Entered as Second-Class Mail Matter.

Published every Saturday by AMERICAN FLORIST COMPANY, 324 Dearborn Street, Chicago.

Eastern Office: 67 Bromfield St., Boston.

Subscription, $1.00 a year. To Europe, $2.00. Subscriptions accepted only from the trade.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS AND ORNAMENTAL HORTICULTURISTS.

OFFICERS-WM. F. GUDE, Washington, D. C., president; A. DONAGHUE, Omaha, Neb., vice-president; W. J. STEWART, 67 Bromfield St., Boston, Mass., secretary; H. B. BEATTY, Oll City, Pa., treasurer. The fourteenth annual meeting will be held at Omaha, Neb., August, 1838.

THE AMERICAN CARNATION SOCIETY.

Annual Convention at Philadelphia. February, 1899.

ALBERT M. HERR, Lancaster Pa., Secretary.

CHRYSANTHEMUM SOCIETY OF AMERICA.

Annual meeting at Omaha, Neb., August, 1898.

ELMER D. SMITH, Adrian, Mich., secretary.

An Easter Perspective.

With the advent of every Easter there is a perennial revival of business all along the line. The grower, dealer and retailer each shares an active interest, and each desires to reap the natural benefits involved. The florist's Easter is material rather than spiritual, and while he is 'first' at church he rarely attends an Easter service. At the mere sight of an early worshiper he goes off on a tangent—to attend to more business.

A certain amount of business is assured from the start, with net results dependent on quality and quantity of salable stock in hand. At no other holiday season are fresh flowers and blossoming plants so generally salable, with the plants aversoing by for the better quality.

aging by far the better quality.

Cut flowers suffer from over-handling and incident neglect. Take the bloom off the fine bunch of grapes and half its ornateness is gone. Leaving roses and ornateness is gone. similar stock exposed and lying around in promiscuous heaps certainly doesn't improve quality; and by the time they reach the customer there isn't hardly enough vitality to survive Easter day. It seems that no amount of preaching can entirely shut out "stored products," but if these floral mummies were only ossified remains instead of rottenness and decay! Sic transit gloria mundi. And while there is more friction to Easter trade than desirable, still it would be next to impossible to be wholly free from it for obvious reasons. At Easter it is no sinecure to deal with the general public. Some people make purchases who seldom buy flowers at any other time, and these small sales involve an endless amount of "small" talk, inconsequent unless it be to impress the dealer with the questionable importance of their undesirable trade. Churches and church people simply "want the earth"—at your expense. 'Tis no wonder florists are skeptical of christian principles after dealing with a church committee!

The unusual "ethereal mildness" for

The unusual "ethereal mildness" for March brings stocks along even more forward than last year, when Easter was eight days later.

It will be strange if roses are not more or less offcrop, for not being able to predetermine the lively gait of the weather which seems to present a zeal not according to knowledge or previous experience; bulbous stock shoots up like Jack's historic bean stalk. However, resurrection is the vital spirit at Easter. There will be no shortage of azaleas, but there is considerable uncertainty as to liliesthe large percentage of diseased stock will appreciably reduce surplus. Good violets will be in extra demand, as there will be less of the prime quality, except with growers who understand the delicate subject. My own violet range affords a 100,000 weekly, and I hope to preserve phenomenal quality. It's lots of fun to grow violets, but some growers make "funny business" of it, and that spoils the "fun."

More blooming plants will be called for this Easter than ever before. I predict a record breaker in this respect. Present to customers good honest ornate plants, minus so much millinery. I consider ribbon bedecked plants abnormal and a very doubtful equation of good taste. I am reminded of a past fad of tying piano legs with hugh bows of staring ribbon, which was so ridiculed and ridiculous that the square piano became out of date and is replaced by the plain upright. The best advertisement for the florist is prime stock—plants and cut flowers. Fads and styles, for the most part, do not cut much of a figure with plants or cut flowers.

One admires some of the dainty conceits in filling violet orders, and the dainty flower itself is so adaptable to the art and skill of refined taste.

The rush of Easter work crowds every day's calendar, and before the advent of Easter morning until the going down of the sun 'tis a wise florist who knows which end he stands on—and even his artificial support is shaky, unduly stimulated. Certainly the florist's exhaustive nervous strain should represent value received for recuperation.

The plant trade is one branch of the business and cut flowers another. Try to handle them separately; don't mix the two together at the same time. Putting up a box of cut flowers and selecting a plant for a customer "all to wonst" quently gets a card in the wrong box, and you well know the consequences are not favorable for future business. Now, it too often happens that the latest customer gets your best stock of cut flowers Always give from very persistency. booked orders the preference. Reserve stock already sold to preserve regular customers. Keep a tabulated statement of daily sales booked forward. So many roses, so many carnations, and compare the aggregate with stock on hand or prospective.

You cannot fill an order satisfactorily at the eleventh hour with stock not in supply. Take care of the minutiæ and details. Don't curtail this part of your work. As a rule the average florist is not any too systematic. Like his business, he is inclined to do at the moment whatever presses him most—it may be his temper.

Provided the weather is reasonably satisfactory Easter Saturday, the florist is assured a smiling and happy Easter morn, and his buoyant spirit stays—in a measure—his empty stomach. Happily a regular dinner follows later on—the first for the entire week, perhaps. Would-be florists, ponder the vicissitudes of the florist business.

florists, ponuc.

florist business.

May Easter, '98, pan out O. K. As a florist, I have great faith in "paus."

Blooming paus are a florist's Klondike—at Easter.

GROVE P. RAWSON.

Consigning Cut Flowers for the Holidays.

As Easter draws near it strikes me it is a good time to stir up the growers. Not all, but many of them require a little stirring up. In the first place do not pickle your stock; send it to market as fast as it is in condition to cut. There is always a shortage of stock for a few days previous to the holiday week, with a big demand; many growers will hold back their stock until holiday prices go into effect, thus losing a sure sale, and the early part of the week sending in a lot of old, soft, pickled stock that can not be shipped and has to be sold at a sacrifice to the fakir, and so depreciate quoted prices.

The fourth, third and second days before the holiday proper is when the very best stock is wanted for the long distance shipments. The fourth day to Montana, Utah, North and South Dakota, etc.; the third day to Louisiana, West Virginia, Colorado, etc.; the second day to Illinois and adjoining states; and to get to these points in good condition it must be stock of the very best quality, as it is all to be sold for use on the holiday. Many growers will send the worst first, and old, bad stock shipped to far off points is sure to result in a kick—and usually a big one—and it is the merchant that has to stand the kick and square the deal, also in many cases lose a good customer on account of disappointing him just when he is most in need of the goods and depends on his broker to furnish them.

Of course an old timer like myself, who has grown tough with many kicks on both sides, can stand it, but how about the young and tender boys who are still young in the business? It is a little rough on them to take the kick which in all instice should be given to the misguided grower who pickles his stock. Another thing he often does which is all wrong is they will harden up and be as brittle as glass, and break as easy; and as a result most of the open flowers will be damaged or spoiled altogether. Your merchant can harden them up after receiving them.

I have always found the best results from wilted stock that has never had a drink; they should be packed with great care, with soft paper between the flowers, and far enough from the end of box so they do not get bruised. The stems should be firmly pinned down with a cleat with soft paper under it, then pressed just hardenough to hold in place, but use care not to press so tight that it will break the stems. If near enough to market it is safest to bring them in by hand, packed in bunches of 50 to 100 flowers, covered with soft paper.

Cut as long stems as you can; this applies to all flowers; short stemmed flowers are never much good, and do not sell to make the bunches look as attractive as possible, and be generous in your count and avoid "ringers,"

The day before the holiday is the big city day. The holiday itself is worse than a Sunday, and seldom amounts to much, if anything. By following the above advice you will earn the thanks of your merchant, the blessings of his customers, and the shekels for yourself.

FLINT KENNICOTT.

Flower Seed Growing in America.

American seed growing has developed wonderfully during the past twenty-five years, until now, in spite of the European advantage in experience and in cheaplabor, we are producing vegetable seeds which compare favorably both in quality and price with any from abroad. But we have paid little attention to growing the holding back of his flowers until the last day, or the holiday itself, then sending in large quantities, causing a glut in the market and, of course, a big slump in prices, whereas, if he would send his stock as it is ready he would avoid a glutand find a steady demand at good prices. Still another thing wrong, especially with lilies, is to hold them back to make sure of getting them in for the holidays, and at the last moment rush them into a hot house up to a 100 or more and force the very life out of them, the result being consignments of soft, watery stuff that is when it reaches the market and worthless when received by the customer. especially when shipped to any distance Harrisu and other lilies of the same ilk should be grown cool, so they will have some substance to them, then cut a few hours before packing and allowed to wilt a little; this will make the petals pliable and they are less apt to break in transit, it you put them in water in a cool place advantage. In packing roses and carnations, etc., you would think some growers had been trying to see how much hay or moss they could get in a box, and had jumped on it or pounded it down with a brick. Care in packing pays; a tew broken heads and bruised flowers at holiday prices would pay for enough knock-down boxes to pack hundreds of flowers in; and where you do pack loose use care and cleat down all long stemmed stock, and pack far enough from end to keep roses from getting bruised, using wax or soft paper between each layer of flowers. Do not over crowd your boxes, and grade your stock; it will pay you, and your merchant does not have the time especially during holidays-to do it for especially during holidays—to do it for you. Often a mixed lot that would sell on sight if graded, gets set on one side until there is time to pick it over. Stock should be graded by the growers, never patting any seconds with selects, or thirds with seconds. In flowers that are launched flower seeds, the great bulk of those used in this country being imported.

NEW SWEET PEA PINK CUPID

There is, however, an exception in the case of sweet peas, Amerean grown seed of this flower being abundant and cheap, and generally considered the best in quality. The honor for the improvement of the sweet pea has been given to Henry Eckford, of England, and to such an extent that many seem to think that not only were all of our finer sorts originated by him, but that we must depend solely upon him for any further improvement.

I would not speak lightly of, or underestimate Mr. Eckford's work. He has done more to create and develop the modern improved forms of this beautiful flower than any other man; but, while giving him due credit, we ought not to ignore or undervalue the studies and labors of such men as Hutchins, Morse and other American lovers and growers of sweet peas. A collection made up wholly of Eckford's varieties would lack some of the very best kinds in cultivation. He has produced nothing so early and free flowering as the Extra Early Blanche Ferry, nothing of its color so beautiful as Stella Morse. America is the best red striped. Cupid, with all the splendid possibilities of its type promised in Pink Cupid, is an American not an Eekford variety. Blanche Burpee, his best white, is at least equaled by The Bride, and Brilliant is a better red than his Mars. Not only this, but it is a fact that in many cases, after American growers have worked for years to produce and perfect some stock, Eckford has sent out some new variety essentially like it, and, though the American stock was usually the purest and best fixed, and often better in other qualities, it has been unselfishly dropped, rather than add to the confusion of names, and Eckford alone has been given credit for work which was as well done by the American.

So much for the past. As to the future I know that one American is now growing stock of a variety which is as distinct a departure in color as Cupid was in form, being a true blue, a color hitherto unknown in this flower. It is hinted that in the opening year of the twentieth century an American grower will enrich our gardens with an entirely distinct class of half dwarf or bush sweet peas, superior in both beauty and usefulness to either the tall or dwarf sorts.

It has been said that our American sorts are not the result of horticultural skill, but chance sports, the outcome of the large areas planted in this country and the consequent immense number of individual plants produced. But no one who has had an opportunity to know the careful study and earnest work of some of our American growers will deny that their work is well done and worthy of praise. While it perhaps does not illustrate this point, the history of two American sorts may be of interest. Some forty years ago a woman in Northern New York noticed and saved the seed of a particularly bright flowered plant of the old Painted Lady. She planted them in her garden and each succeeding year saved and planted seed of what she thought were the best plants. She did not raise many, some years not more than a dozen plants, and never more than could be grown in three square yards. She was the wife of a quarryman, and her garden was always over limestone ledges, where the soil, though fertile was very thin, often not over a foot in depth, and gradually her plants became more compact and sturdy, until after some ten or twelve years she ceased to "bush" them, simply letting them support themselves. After she had raised them in this way for some twentyfive years a seedsman noticed their beauty, obtained about 100 seeds and from them has come the Blanche Ferry. This poor woman was not a scientist, her little garden and cottage were not at all an ideal trial ground and seed laboratorybut no scientist has suggested a better plan for the development and fixing of the qualities which make the Blanche Ferry the most practically useful variety we have than that which her love for the beautiful and her conditions of life lead to her carrying out so faithfully and patiently. The Extra Early Blanche Ferry was not the result of the selections of the earliest flowers, but it was developed on the theory that the time (from the sowing of the seed) of a plant coming into flower was quite as largely affected by conditions of growth as by constitutional tendency, but that the period in the development of the plant when it first showed bloom was more a matter of constitutional tendency than of growth conditions. Accordingly in breeding for early flowering, plants which produced flowers from the lowest nodes, rather than those which first showed flower, were selected, and the results show the correctness of the theory. It seems to me that what Americans have done in the development of this flower suggests possibilities with others, and that we ought to look forward to the production of our own flower seeds of all kinds. WILL W. TRACY.

A TALL RAMBLER ROSE-DECORATED. EASTER PLANTS.

Dahlia Notes.

If you are growing dahlias on an extensive scale you are now busily occupied in potting, hardening off and all the necessary details for preparing the cuttings for the ground. If, however, their cultiva-tion is only a side issue, the clumps of roots may now be awaiting your pleas-ure in their place of winter storage. It is time to be forwarding them for early trade. A cold frame or a mere bedding out of the roots in a warm, sunny situation with a covering of light earth, litter or horse manure will do the work. Perhaps you will find them already starting freely when you take them out. You will be very certain to do so if their place of storage has been quite warm. In this case you can safely divide them at once before bedding out, making as many divisions as there are starting buds. If the crown of a root shows two or three buds run the knife lengthwise so as to divide the root into an equal number of pieces. If the buds are still dormant when taken out of storage, ten daysora couple of weeks' exposure in a warm starting bed will set the buds into a free growth, and then the roots may be divided as described above.

After division the roots may be bedded out in the open ground, proper precauout in the open ground, proper preduction being taken against frost at night and cold stormy weather. Exposure during all suitable weather will produce a strong, stocky growth, and at planting time you should have a stock of thrifty plants two or three inches high, backed by a considerable amount of tuber which can be safely sent to almost any required distance. In case the growth should become too rampant before the plants can be disposed of, cut back the shoots, and the buds already formed at the base of the stalk will start into immediate growth. It requires but a short time for plants grown in this way to become established in their permanent quarters and to start into rapid thrifty growth.
H. F. BURT.

A RHODORENDRON BEFORE DECORATING

EASTER PLANTS.

Further Notes on Sub-Watering.

When the philosophy of sub-watering is once stated it seems simple enough. Evidently all that is directly required is to introduce the supply of water intended for the plant into the soil from beneath, and let it ascend by capillary movement to supply the feeding roots.

In arranging to carry out this method in practice there are two or three conditions of great collateral importance, which must receive due weight, or a full measure of success is out of the question. Most cultural results can be attained by sarious procedures, so long as the principle at stake is not violated, and substanting is no exception. The writer has used two methods for supplying water beneath the soil, one of which was discarded as deficient and the other remains and gives satisfaction. Other experimentars have used other methods, partly with and partly without good results.

The conditions, which seem to me prerequisites to success are (1) the ready distribution of water over the whole hory air through the bottom layers, and (3) the employment of material that will remain porous and efficient. The use of a water-tight bottom 1 do not consider essential, but Ibelieve the careful, economical and thrifty grower will come as near to water-tight benches as he can secure.

The permeable sub-layer of non-compressible material permits water to distribute itself evenly throughout the whole bench almost as soon as it is applied; and the flow of the water does not clog up the passage ways, for there is no fine or dissolvable material present. This layer of mert substance, which makes it possible quickly to spread an even sheet of water over the bottom of the bed, should be thick enough so that no liquid water can come in contact with the soil. The water should wet the sub-soil layer, be taken up by it and passed on to the soil above as hygroscopic water. The soil thus gets its moisture, slowly, and never contains standing, water that can compact or soin it.

distribution of water over the whole hot: Such a subsoil layer is well formed tom of the bench (2) a free cycuration of a from sett bracks with their lower edges removed as passageways for the running water. All water for the plant must thus pass upward through four inches of porous brick before reaching the soil. But other material can also be used. Cinders and coarse gravel, from which all finer parts have been sifted, can form an inch or two on the bottom, with as much more of the same sort but finer above, and then the soil. With even the best of such material it is an advantage to have long metal troughs, with their sides notched, inverted on the bottom and extending from the entrance pipe across the benches. These are put in place first, and the gravel or cinders added afterward. They need be only about an inch high.

With brick, gravel, cinders, broken stone, or any similar distributing layer for the water; a most ample movement of air is also provided for. Much of the time, in fact, the spaces between the fragments of the sub-soil are filled, not with water but with air, and at no time are they entirely filled with water, if the watering is properly done. Moreover, the inlet tubes on the front of the bench and the overflow tubes at the rear permit something of a circulation of air through the sub-stratum at all times.

Whether the bottom of the bed shall be formed of zine, galvanized iron, cement, or some other more or less perfectly impervious material can be left to individual preference. But a perfectly level, water-tight bottom will distribute the water the evenest and give the cultivator the best control over the bench.

I have been very explicit about the character and structure of the sub-soil layer for sub-watering because it has seemed to me that some of those who have writen in contemplation of the establishment of a trial bench or house were in danger of missing the most valuable feature of the method. Everyone knows that if the water level under a garden should stand in contact with the loam, it would be very detrimental. We are trying to establish artificially a water table that never comes in contact with the loam of the bench, and that contains no fermentable or decomposing material. By this means the soil is never soaked with liquid water, but takes all its moisture by capillarity.

A point on which I had not given thought at the time my paper was read before the Carnation Society, was so forcibly brought forward then that I have been looking into the matter carefully since. The point is in reference to the possibility of successfully applying liquid fertilizers to plants in connection with sub-watering. My present view is that any fertilizer, whether liquid manure, ammonia, nitrates, phosphates or potash may be mixed with the stream of water so long as it does not contain solid matter to clog up the distributing sub-layer. Nitrogen fertilizers especially could well be applied in this manner, and the upward movement of the water through the soil would undoubtedly earry the fertilizing ingredients with it. The soil of the bench should be made reasonably rich at the outset, especially with phosphates, and then additional fertilizers for growth, particularly manure water, can be added in connection with sub-watering.

J. С. Актичк.

Ti scor v, Ir n = Dr. S. A. Richmond has engaged the services of J. N. Lawrence and will engage in the florist business on North Main street. Three new greenhouses are now being built.

Bellerophon's Experience with Carnations.

Would you advise a young man of healthy growth, and fairly seasoned morals, to engage in the florist business? I have a natural hankering for posies, and would have considered myself especially created for the business, had I not failed at it once. I was young then, and fell among teachers who evidently considered that adverse experience was a wholesome lesson for beginners.

Perhaps, if I relate my experience, you may be better able to give me the advice asked. I thought that carnations would be the most profitable to grow, as the freight on them per flower would be less than on chrysanthemums. I visited the autumn flower show, and hung around among the growers endeavoring to pick out a dealer that would not sell me at the same time he sold his stock. The nearest approach to a Sunday school countenance I could find belonged to a Mr. Cox, to whom I applied. I confided to him my ignorance, and asked if carnations were easy to grow.
"Oh! yes," he replied, "the stock I'll send you can be grown as easy as falling off a log. All stock in the market is not easily grown. It is apt to run to short stems, which are not salable."

"Well," I replied, "there are some exhibited by Borner, they have long stems."

"Yes, that is so," said Mr. Cox, "but you can't get the soil he uses; he gets it from the Louisiana cane-brakes, where fishing rods have grown in it so long that the soil has got in the habit of sending up long shoots, and thus acts upon the car-nations. You don't want to use that soil, it is full of fish-hooks and besides he has bought up all the land and controls it.

"How is your stock different from what other dealers send out?" I asked.

"Well, that is a trade secret, but I'll tell you," he answered. "What others send out, are cuttings, and in order to get as many as they can they chop them up too fine, and this weakens them. What I will send you will be rooted pips, they never miss fire, and are winners."

I could not resist that benign countenance and bought at $5 per hundred, which he said was cheap for rooted pips. He gave me a bushel of instructions, not to let the dew rest upon the foliage, and to be sure to dehorn them, at the proper time, also that it was the best to grow them on benches. That suited me because I had lately built an addition to my cottage for a laundry, and had quite a number of wash-tub benches to spare; but l had some trouble in retaining the soil. The rooted pips came, and in time seemed to grow well. I attended the florists' club's meetings and listened to the discussions on growing the carnation. I was particularily struck with the statements regarding the frequent drenchings with manure water. I felt inclined to doubt Mr. Cox's theory of the long stems to Mr. Borner's plants, and finally came to the conclusion that the long stems came from the flowers trying to reach up and get away from the smell of the manure. 1 asked Mr. Box about it, and he smiled. It was a different smile from Mr. Cox's, which was a sort of a give-me-an-order smile, while Mr. Box had an open grave smile, a sort of a never-come-up-again one, that completely buried my theory, when he replied: "You must stretch the stems, it takes Samson three hours every morning to go over our benches and stretch our crop. Samson is long legged and long armed and therefore is well adapted to the work, and that is the secret of his success." When I tried that, and complained afterwards that the stems broke off at the base, Mr. Box advised dropping melted glue into the plant.

At last the flower buds came, and to my joy I found that my system of culture had caused a very prolific growth. I had noticed that all the varieties exhibited had but one flower to a stem. Mine had had but one flower to a stem. Mine had nearly a dozen. Here was wealth staring me in the face. Mr. Cox had said something about dehorning or disbudding, I've forgotten which, but I can't see how one can get flowers, if one takes the buds off, so I let them remain. When they opened up, they opened all over. They bloomed at the top of the callyx and down the side. I had never seen that before, carrely not at the exhibitions where only surely not at the exhibitions, where only the newest and best were shown, so I was sure I had something new. I wasn't going to let the commission men get all the profit. I was going to reach near the consumer, and having something extremely choice; I wanted to select a florist whose exquisite taste would appreciate a good thing when he saw it. I made up quite a box of my choicest flowers, and called on Mr. Phillipine Souswirth, under Peck's Ampitheatre, I told him to prepare his eyes for a feast; that Mrs. Bradt and Argyle were not in it, and that if he paid me enough, he could have control of the whole crop. He didn't seem at all elated or excited, but remained calm and colbleeted, coldly saying "open 'em up." I did so. "Oh! rot" he exclaimed. "No said I, "they are Wm. Scotts, Mr. Cox sold them to me for such." I was astonished at his ignorance. I noticed a peculiar expression of disdain and pity stealing over his face, and was just going to speak when Marc Anthony who was standing near, came up and with one glance at the flowers, took me by thearm and leading me to a corner said: "Now here, my friend, you are a member of our horticultural society, and as such haveits reputation to maintain, just take my advice and carry those culls out of the county and bury them." I asked him if ontside the city limits would'nt do. He shook his head sorrowfully and answered emphatically "No." Bellerophox.

A RHODODENDRON - DECORATED.

EASTER PLANTS.

toward extravagant expenditure in park construction; details are elaborate; costly buildings are erected often which few people use; bridges are sometimes carried across depressions without reason, in fact depressions have, in cases, been created to serve as an excuse for the span; costly walls have often been built spoiling natural effects, when the purpose could have been the better served by plantations. Expensive aggregations of stone are often laid up into so-called rock work, the interstices being filled with plants generally looking misplaced and unhappy, entailing great labor in their care, out of

A POORLY SHAPED AZALEA. BEFORE DECORATING,

EASTER PLANTS.

Park Notes.

In the development of parks thoughtful consideration should be given to the question of future maintenance. Additions to improved sections, from year to year, requiring increasing appropriations, are ant to be forgotten or ignored by those entrusted with the responsibility of making provision for the maintenance of parks, the result being that the character of maintenance falls below the stand. and required to give satisfaction to the public. Lach new path or extension of a drive, and each new plantation adds to the cost of care. It behooves, then, the park may er to keep this fact prominently before him and to chiminate from his plans of expensive embellishments, all unnecessary paths or reads or other teatures entailing large expense for subsequent care. The tenden v of the day is a all proportion to the benefits derived. Large ranges of glass are maintained for growing tender plants for bedding; this is an expensive leech to satisfy and makes large drafts on the maintenance account.

Simplicity of design in park construction is the most pleasing to the eye, and simplicity in design carries with it economical maintenance. Wide stretches of grass and masses of trees and shrubs are among the most important elements in park scenery. In combination they produce our fuest landscape effects and offer attractions varying with each season.

Natural groupings of native or hardy plants are more effective than ephemeral floral displays of exotic bedding plants, while the labor and care of maintenance is very much less. Hardy plants, too, have the additional merit of interest and length of season. From the pushing through the snow of the snowdrop in the spring until the last anemone has succumbed to the freezing breath of winter, what a succession of beautiful forms greet the eye from month to month.

Roads and walks serve no purpose but that of utility. Their care is an expensive burden, therefore they should never be laid out where not absolutely necessary; excellence of construction makes easy the subsequent care.

Park buildings should be plain in design, of good construction and materials, without elaborateness of finish either inside or outside; common brick, ivy covered, will in most cases meet the requirements with the least expenditure for maintenance.

Narrow strips of grass bordering driveways may be somewhat more cheaply maintained by planting them with shrubs of low growth, in a solid mass. This method has been adopted for several years past by the Brookline, Mass., Park Department on its driveways, and the effect is very good. The plants used are Rosa lucida, Berberis Thunbergii, viburnums, cornels, rhamnus, etc. The variety of bark coloring makes the winter effect very pleasing, nor is the effect at any time monotonous, so varied are the changes from colored bark to budding leaves and bloom, and from bloom and fruit to autumn colored leafage.

The general lack of adequate funds for maintenance work in parks is a matter of serious thought for park managers. Money and time spent in construction is nullified if subsequent care can not be given to roads, walks or plantations.

The difference between success and failure lies sometimes in the neglect of little things, whether the cause of neglect is beyond the control of the park manager is scarcely considered by a generalizing public.

J. A. Pettigrew

American Raised Roses.

The question is frequently put to me why are there not more American seedling roses of merit raised. The reply to this may be given from several standpoints, two or three of the most important reasons being as follows:

The first is, that in a general way the process from the fertilizing of the flower till the plants bloom takes too long for our ideas of getting the desired results; for proof of this we have only to turn to the carnation and chrysanthenum; here it takes only a few months, six to nine at most, to determine what our efforts have produced, and as a result we have plenty of sterling varieties of both these flowers continually being offered. But with the rose it is quite different as it takes three or four times as long to get any indication of what the results are likely to be, and then if out of several hundred seedlings there should happen to be one or two that are promising on first blooming, it takes a much longer time to work up sufficient stock to give a fair trial to test the many desirable qualities such as color, size, free blooming, healthy, vigorous constitution, distinctiveness and several other qualities necessary to make it worth putting on the market, and then when the raiser has satisfied himself on all these points it takes a still longer time to work up sufficient stock to enable him to offer it for sale. This, of course, is presuming that the first blooms hold their characteristics good continuously, which often happens to be the reverse, then a double disappointment is the result. This long waiting and often final failure to obtain the desired multum in parvodeters many from trying again after their first attempt. On this score it may not be out of place to mention the fact that unany seedling roses do not show their full character the first time blooming; -often the most promising at the first are the most disappointing later on, and others with less attractiveness on first blooming turn out much better with further acquaintance. Thus there is always a great amount of uncertainty attached to it which deters many from taking up this branch of our business that otherwise would and could do so with great advantage to horticulture.

The next factor in this case is that so few of our rosarians in this country feel they can afford the time necessary to pursue this subject with that minute detail and study necessary to make it a success. This is particularly true of the commercial florist generally. No one, I think, will dispute the fact that this class of men have all they want to do to manage their business successfully and pay their way, having no time for indulging in anything that does not promise quick returns. But this does not apply to many amateurs who could if they would take up the raising of seedling roses and find a great amount of pleasure in the occupation. I do not mean by this that anyone with just enough knowledge of horticulture to know what a rose is could do so, but those who have made a study of flowers for their own pleasure, and who often become expert judges of the different qualities necessary in any flower, could select the parents having the best eveloped qualities which, when blended, would produce the best and most distinct forms desired; and no country to-day offers the inducement that ours does for anything that is really an improvement in roses. The field is a broad one and those having the time and means to devote to this subject need have no fear of over-production or of not finding in our republic an appreciative people willing to endorse a really good thing, even though it be a queen. Summit, N. J. JOHN N. MAY.

Greenhouse Pests, San Jose Scale and Legisla tion versus Insects.

[Read by Professor John B. Smith before the New York Florists' Club.]

[CONCLUDED.]

These are peculiar in several respects and particularly their mode of multipli-cation. Their appearance I will not undertake to describe, but if a single large individual be observed for a few days in succession, it will be noted that a colony of small specimens, daily increasing in size and number, forms round her and, as these attain full size in a few days they move off a little distance and in turn become centers of new colonies. If the watch be continuous and close, it may be observed that every few hours the mother of the colony gives birth to a livand all her descendants are apt to be like herself, viviparous, parthenogenetic females. Some of them become winged, but that is not necessary to enable them to begin reproduction. Under greenhouse conditions no males are produced as a rule, and multiplication goes on with great rapidity. It is against such insects that the florist is most frequently called to battle, and besides the methods already mentioned, it may be in place to say that single plants may be often completely cleaned by the use of bisulphide of carbon. Bisulphide of carbon is a clear liquid like water which volatilizes rapidly, giving off an extremely Coul odor which is poisonous to insects when confined in it. A dram is sufficient to poison one cubic foot of closed space, so as to kill plant lice without harming plants in one hour. In a closet constructed for the purpose, a number of plants might be placed at one time and completely cleaned, whenever such cleaning was desirable, as before sending to a customer. As the vapor is heavier than air and sinks, the bisulphide should be evaporated in a shallow dish secured in some way near the top of the closet. The objection to this material is its inflammability, but so long as this peculiarity is kept in mind it can be used with entire

A somewhat similar process has of late been the subject of experiment in cleaning entire houses of insects by the use of hydrocyanic acid gas. This is secured by the action of dilute sulphuric acid on tical use of this gas to say much of its possibilities. I know that it has been used in some large houses; but I do not know the details. It is an exceedingly dangerous thing in careless hands, yet it may develop into a valuable method when we become better acquainted with its range and its possibilities.

Among the most troublesome greenhouse pests are scales; soft and armored. Soft scales are usually of considerable size; of the texture their name implies and brown in color. The young are smaller, much flatter and paler; usually quiescent, but capable of motion. In some species the young are produced alive, in some eggs are deposited under the female scales. Whichever is the case the florist must study the species until he knows when the young larvæ are being produced.

A POORLY SHAPED AZALEA-DECORATED.

EASTER PLANTS.

cyanide of potassium, and it is exceedingly poisonous to animallife of all kinds. The proportions are:

Fused evanide of potassium, 1 oz. weight.

98 per cent. pure, Sulphuric acid, 1 oz. measure. 3 oz. measure.

Use a glazed earthenware vessel and put in first the necessary water, then add the acid; and when all is prepared drop in the cyanide in small lumps. The forma-tion of gas begins at once and the amounts above given will thoroughly fill 100 cubic feet of space. Plant lice succumb in a few minutes, scales in from onehalf to one hour-plants very soon thereafter. I do not know enough of the pracThen he_should apply his washes promptly and thoroughly and at short intervals, for the larvæ scales are easily killed, and once out of the way the plants will remain clean. Soap washes are best in this case, although tobacco will do it frequently used. The main point to be observed is the time when the young appear and prompt application as soon thereafter as possible.

The armored scales differ from the soft scales or lecaniums in that the scale is separate from the insect itself which lies free beneath it. The armored scales have no power of motion when they are once fixed to the plant and their chance to travel is confined to a day or two just after they are born or hatched as the case may be. Treatment is much as already advised and is also effective in proportion to the promptness and thoroughness with which the application is made. No use to apply weak washes to mature scales.

A CLUSTER OF CARNOT ROSES, SPOT VIOLETS

Now it has been suggested that I should say something about the San Jose scale and about the attempts to legislate it out of existence. I am afraid that almost too much has been already said on the subject—enough at any rate to induce Germany to forbid the entrance of our fruit and living plants into her markets. Just how far this will be enforced, it is impossible to say at present, but perhaps far enough to make the unwisdom of the "scare" that has been caused, thoroughly That this insect is a destructapparent. ive one if left to itself, is beyond question, and that we have not yet found the best method of dealing with it may also be admitted. I am firmly convinced, how-ever, that legislation is not that best method, for laws do not enforce them-selves, and if the energy displayed in securing legislation were devoted to experiments in the orchard, the result might be different. We know the life history of the insect now, thoroughly; we know that we can kill it if we are persistent, and as compared with some plant diseases it is almost harmless. In the very worst infested district in New Jersey the fire blight killed more trees last year than the scale has done in the ten years that it has been with us. In one of the best peach orchards in New Jersey the scale has been present ever since it was put out. None but careful horticultural treatment was given until the present winter and of more than 1,000 trees, not one has been in the least harmed by the scale. Plant disease cut off 10% of the orchard last year, and 20% of some varieties. Why not legislate against that?

Legislation has a place undoubtedly in our battle with insect foes, but it is rather to give us a weapon than to act itself. There are always some men who are behind the times or who are congenitally unable to comprehend that any one has rights that they are bound to respect. Such men occur among the farmers as well as elsewhere, and in some cases they maintain a veritable nuisance on their grounds in the form of insect infested plants from which adjoining lands become infested; such men should be compelled to look after their property to the extent of saving their neighbors, and legislation can help us to that point and no further.

AN AZALEA TIED DOWN.
EASTER PLANTS.

Of course, inspection of nurseries is a good thing in so lar as it informs the nurseryman of the condition of his own affairs and he can make it, if he chooses, the basis of a guarantee to purchasers that his stock is clean. This will be of some tangible benefit to the purchaser if he is careful to deal with responsible firms, but as it is now, a certificate is a protection to a dishonest dealer since it gives him something to hide behind should his stock prove, later, to be either diseased or infested by insects.

It seems almost as if there was an epidemic of a new disease which may be called "certificatitis," sweeping through the country, and its most prominent symptom is a craving for a written formula which is expected to replace the necessity for personal care and examination.

It is admitted in the very latest expression from Mr. Alwood, who is one of the chief promotors of legislation, that a certificate may be dishonestly affixed to stock or that an inspection may fail to discover infestation if it is slight. As a matter of fact, certificated stock has been received in New Jersey from three states this past winter, infested by the scale.

In such cases certificates are a positive source of danger, since the purchasers are apt to rely upon them too implicitly and to assume that they are a guarantee which obviates the necessity for personal care and inspection. Whether florists will ever suffer from this pernicious scale is a question. The insect infests almost everything. Its normal food plants are perhaps the tree forms of the rosacce. But vines and shrubs, as roses, blackberry, raspberry and the like, are also infested, and roses particularly, are sources of danger.

LOOKOUT MOUNTAIN PARK.—Plans for a national park on the battlefield at Lookout mountain are well under way

ENTRANCE TO WABAN CONSERVATORIES OF E. M. WOOD, "NATICK, MASS.

Rambler Roses.

' It would seem as if all climbing roses of the inture are to be called Ramblers, owing, probably, to the success of the name given the really beautiful climber sent out by the Turners of England and given the very appropriate and euphonious name, the Crimson Rambler. This variety was introduced from Japan into England over thirty years ago and remained in oblivion until seen by the Turners, nurserymen of Slough, who recognized at once its good qualities and sent it out into the world, where it will ever remain a living example of their genius and enterprise.

in pots show something of the form of each, in fact flatter them very much except in the case of the Crimson, which is not a good picture. How men who pretend to be honest can make such representations is past our comprehension.

The vellow rose Aglaia is a pale lemon yellow with about one-third the number of petals and not more than half as many flowers to a cluster as the Rambler. No doubt it is a pretty climbing rose, but then it is not the same as the Crimson Rambler, only yellow. The pink and white varieties are much inferior to the yellow, the flowers being considerably smaller and very single.

north we cannot apply it. There has been but little frigidity lying around loose the past winter, everything is forward. The boys are holding back the Easter crops; the hyacinths, tulips and narcissi are blooming in their winter resting places and a general previousness among the flowers is as tantalizing as lateness when one is not ready to use them. With the florist it is just that time, "between hay and grass," when trade is dull and before the Easter activity which will stir anew the commercial impulses of the business.

Now is the time when one meets the kind of florist—and there are quite a few of them-who has foresworn ever

THALIA, THE WHITE RAMBLER ROSE.

" The few plants set out the past two years have done exceptionally well in all parts of the country, and the sales in the immediate future should be enormous, as r will certainly be universally planted As a pot plant for Laster sales it is meomparable its hundreds of blossoms allopen together and seeming to improve for at blast two and even three weeks, make it especially variable. Nothing his been vaid yet either by tongue or pen to do this rose justice it must be seen to be

But of the other the vellow, the white and the paracture hare being heralded a free some events, cover an fact pictures representatives of the area sized and tomost flower events, termine being sent sent. The event point applicates of plants

A Drummer's Twaddle.

We have just emerged from the Sunny Southland, which more than ever the past mild and dry winter has merited its balmy title. Scarcely a chill breath has blown across this region to blast its roses and camellias in full bloom in the gardens and parks at Christmas. The January and February months invited planting of outdoor crops usually postponed until a month later. Roses in their plentitude sold from the fields in basketfuls instead of by count, about on the basis of panach and kale, "so much for a quarter," that the southern florist's business, ¿ hich never compares with our own, espenally languished snow bound and ice locked" is a layorthe expression of ours, but on arrival planting another bulb; "they cost more than their product sells for," he wants to sell out "lock, stock and barrel;" every business in the world to him looks rosier than his own; his, the only one with its periods of depression and dissatisfaction; you can't divert him; the Maine disaster, Culian independence, the prospect of war, all fall upon stony ground and clieft but a stony stare. We have met him these many years; annually with a lugubriousness of expression which would be amusing were we not all sympathetic does he announce his getting out of the business, but with the spring revival of trade, when he begins to get round shouldered carrying his money at Eastertide, all is changed, and later when we get around in the summer, up is going another greenhouse, improved heating or ventilating apparatus and other evidences of his continued ambition and interest in his business, and life is again worth living.

AGLAIA, THE YELLOW RAMBLER ROSE.

THE CRIMSON RAMBLER ROSE.

Happily we also meet with the other fellow, and right glad we are that he is in the majority, he who keeps peeled for the business fray and philosophically takes

Crepe Paper Decorations.

The use of crepe paper in decorating pot plants has become quite general, although there are still many florists and other persons interested in the business who are opposed to its use, they seeming to think that it gives too much of an artificial appearance, similar to the now alof ribbon of good width are very effective, but of course add considerably to the expense.

We use waterproof building paper about the thickness of light cardboard as a foundation; this is cut to fit any sized pot, coming from half to an inch above the edge, so that in watering the paper is not his doses of the bitter and the sweet; is enterprising and creates business. There are other days, St. Patrick's for instance, and in advance he grows some shamrocks in pots, drums up the Hibernian societies, and patriotism for "the ould sod" does the rest, right green here were the breasts of the crowds on parade this holiday, bedecked with the shamrock green spotted with St. Patrick's tears. Here is one demand, but we have not the time now to pick winners before they are ripe, but perhaps you can see suggestiveness in the drummer's talk when he tries to "jolly" you.

CREPE PAPER POT COVERS.

So far as we have gone among the eastern cities this spring, we have never before noticed more attractive window decorations, and it would be invidious to particularize, for generally this feature of display among the floral establishments is ahead of former seasons. All are putting the best foot forward in beautifying their window fronts to attract admiration and trade. There is an abundance of stock ready for this purpose, with nothing promising to be short except Library Harrish, many of which have bloomed before the season, and from 20% to 40% have been thrown out on account of the disease. Japan longiflorus have shown but trifling signs of this tuple, but a small proportion of these plants have grown quite short, this layer and shole has done well and will be more energed, used again.

We look for a good Laster market and better to ing among the florists after it, and a for the drummer why he always tees seel from you. Lipix most obsolete white-fringed paper for the bouquet. Others do not care to go to the trouble, and say it interferes too much at a busy time, while still another objection urged by some is that people will not pay the difference.

To our mind, and after an experience of five years, we are firm believers in the efficiency of the crepe paper cover as an adjunct and helper to the sale of pot plants. With scarcely any experience the average person can improve the looks of a blooming or foliage plant and change a badly shaped specimen, giving it a symmetrical or greatly improved appearance. The bare stem of a rhododendron or tall growing a zalea is much improved by having a bow of ribbon to break the vacant space from pot to flowers, and a loosely arranged crepe paper cover on the pot makes a much better foundation to the large head of bloom.

Color effects innumerable are possible, as almost any shade of crepe paper desired can be obtained, and this season some very pretty flower figured patterns contaming pansies, violets, dogwood and other subjects have been placed on the market

Paper the same color as the flower is always safe, and in the case of violets, hyaemths, pansies, daffodds, lilies of the valle, and other low growing plants it is probably the best tonse, although a bow of ribbon or crepe paper of another color can be added with good effect.

Silver or gold cord is used to bind the paper narrow ribbons also answer, but are more expensive. Unlarge plants bows injured. The waterproot cover is held together with two small McGill fasteners, or pins may be used. The outside them gets a touch of mucilage, about an inch from the top, and the paper is fitted to it and bound on with the silver or gilt cord. When making, it is best to have an empty pot in the cover and to have this placed on top of a 6 or 8-inch pot, bringing it up to about the right height to work conveniently. If kept in a dry place and not crushed together they can be made as far ahead as is necessary to get a stock on hand for a holiday season, and will keep from one year to another if protected from the light, which soon bleaches out the color.

Hardy Herbaceous Perennials.

To those of us who grow hardy herbaceous perennials, the exceptionally early opening of spring has brought work which is ordinarily deferred until a month later. The new growth of aquilegias, phloxes, poppies and many others, warns us that the time has arrived for their transplanting and division where necessary.

Judging from the testimony of florists in this city and elsewhere, it seems that the demand for hardy plants is steadily increasing—particularly for the more showy and stronger growing ones—and the time is coming. I believe, when the public will appreciate many of the choicer and more delicate ones.

At the present time the call in this locality is for delphiniums, coreopsis, phlox, therbaceous paonies and the early flowering Dutch bulbs. Comparatively few people are acquainted with the glory of the many hardy lilies, the exquisite beauty of the aquilegias, both in flower and foliage; the gorgeous poppies of the oriental types, or the more quiet beauty of the Iceland poppies, with their everlasting profusion of white, yellow and orange bloom, the varied forms of the iris and the multiplicity of campanulas, foxgloves, sunflowers, asters, gaillardias, together with the host of more chaste and less assertive blossoms, which can be grown as easily as coleus or geraniums.

It would seem that the florists have persistently avoided this class of plants, for what reason I can not guess, unless it be for the fear that once planted they would last forever and hence orders would cease. This would hardly be the case, as many of the tender annuals, or the perennials, which we use as annuals, though so common, have an intrinsic beauty and a continuous blooming habit which will continue to make them attractive indefinitely. Nor is it true that any plantation of perennials will last forever, for the best of them will need frequent transplanting and renewal. The use of hardy perennials is not advocated for the purpose of supplanting the tenderer plants, for that would be absurd, but because we want them for variety and relief and for their own good qualities and adaptability for certain uses.

There is probably more art required in the using of perennials than in the con-struction of a bed of alternauthera, still they are difficult to spoil, for they have a character and individuality about them that asserts itself in almost any situation. Yet there are places and places. On grounds of any size or pretension where there is room for a shrub or a tree, there is room and a suitable situation for at least a few hardy herbaceous plants. There is always some spot by the house; some line to be emphasized; something to be screened or cut off; some tall group to be clothed or brought down to the grass line, where the taller species may be appropriately used. Or there is a warm slope toward the spring sun; some rocky dedge or stony bank; some low spot where the spongy sod oozes to the tread the summer long; some natural or artificial water of greater or less extent; providing places for many a gem that "Comes before the swallow dares;" places for the brilliant natives of our moist meadows; for the beautiful alpines, and for the noble grasses and aquatics. To plant them effectively will require some study, it is true; some consultations with nature and with common sense—both safe teachers— the former to be easily reached and the latter found occasionally. It is wonderful how much the frame has to do with the picture, in fact becomes a part of the picture. Those who have seen groups of foxgloves and other plants of strong growth planted in the edges of woods, as Mr. Falconer planted them at Schenley Park last year, or who have seen the goldenrods and asters fringing some country road half hiding an old stone wall draped with clematis and shaded with crimson fruited barberries, will understand what is meant by effective planting. While it is undoubtedly true that most of our hardy plants are worth growing for themselves alone, yet there is a beauty above and beyond the individual which the gardener must consider—the beauty of combination of form and color and which should guide him in the selection of plants for a given place or purpose

Well, what I started out to say is this: The question is frequently asked of me (and this will answer two recent correspondents), "When shall I begin to work up a collection of hardy herbaceous plants?" And I answer, now. It makes no difference what time of year the question is asked, the answer is always the same—begin now. For most plants many are better sown in the spring than later, and the rest may be sown as soon as mature seed of the present season's growth can be obtained. There are a few species that would become unmanageable if sown in early spring, but the majority will make far more satisfactory plants for next year if sown now.

JOHN F. COWELL.

LILAC DECORATED WITH CREPE PAPER AND RIBBON.

which are propagated by division early spring is the best time. At this season of the year the members of the plants are full of good impulses, and a little piece that would wither and die if taken off later in the spring or at the approach of winter, will now start off as though nothing had happened and make a good sturdy plant for another season or in the case of some species, for the present summer.

If they are to be propagated from seed,

The Confidence Man.

In a certain town where the "confidence man" has recently done business with some of the local florists, much to their sorrow, one of the victims relating his experience to a sympathizing brother florist got quite excited over the affair and exclaimed, "Well, the next time a stranger comes here, whether 1 know him or not, he can't have anything. No, sir! I'll cut off both my right hands first!"

Ornamental Bedding.

PART III.

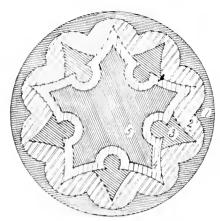

Fig. 6.—Ten feet diameter.

Very often in designs, and especially in scroll work, circles with different radii are joined so that there is no break at the intersections, no matter how much difference in size. This is only the case when the circles intersect on the mutual diam-Fig. 7 will explain this better than erer. words.

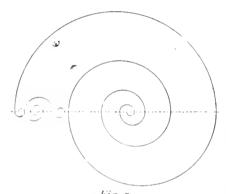

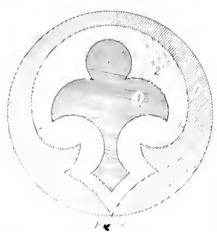

Fig. 7

These spirals consist of semi-circles of different size, meeting each other on the dotted line in which also all the centers lie. Consequently, if you have a design with this kind of intersections, you must find the two centers, draw a line through them and the intersection is where this line cuts the curve.

Alternanthera amœna spectabilis: A. aurea nana; 3, A. spatulata.

There is an exchiple of this kind, the intersections ranked with crosses. This is also a different kind of a design as it is synmetrical on the diameter and not on the ribbins as the proceding ones, we can not find the centers by division, but must "shoot centers" using two convenient points as the base of construction. These designs are more difficult to lay out, but much prettier than the others, and can be used with more success for smaller beds. Fig. 8 for instance is for a seven foot circle. A working sketch would look like this.

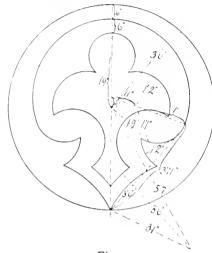

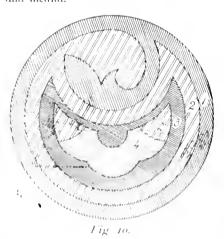

Fig. 9.

Three of the centers are in the diameter the others are found by using two tapelines, putting the rings at the ends over the points indicated (main center and lower end of diameter) and adjusting them until the respective measures meet, and then we put a peg there; find the corresponding center on the other side, draw the respective curves, find the next two centers, etc., mark the lines as you proceed. If you have only one tape line, slip the ring over one of the main points, draw with the indicated distance as radius a short curve on both sides, about where you judge the centers to lie, repeat this operation from the other main point, and the two centers are where the curves intersect. Figs. 10 and 11 are two more examples of this kind.

1, Alternanthera amœna spectabilis; 2, A. aurea nana; 3, A. spatulata; 4, Santolina incana.

1. Alternanthera; 2. A. aurea nana; 3. A. amo na spectabilis; 4, Santolina

For construction of a square we use the sides and for control the diagonals. Suppose we lay out an eight foot square.

First get the base a-b eight feet long and set pegs, from one of these b for instance, measure eight feet out about square on the base and set a peg,  $\epsilon_i$  with a radius of eight feet "shoot" d from a and c and put a peg there, now tie a piece of twine from a to d, from d to c and from  $\epsilon$  to b; measure the diagonals a- $\epsilon$  and b-d, and unless you have been very lucky, one is longer than the other. Take up pegs c and d move them a little in the direction of the shorter diagonal, set them in the ground again with the twine stretched, measure the diagonals and if not yet alike, proceed as before until you have them equal. This is a way I have found easy and practical, but the same result can be had in many different ways.

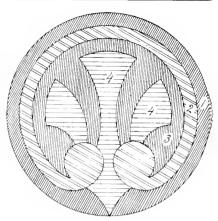

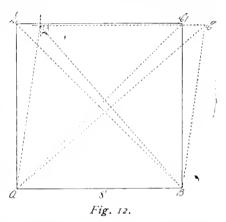

Fig. II.

The Ideal Chrysanthemum.

In approaching this subject I feel that 1 am dealing with a question that can not be answered off-hand; although, at first, it seems to be quite simple, the more one studies the matter the more complex it becomes. It is hardly possible to imagine an ideal flower that would be accepted by all, for nearly every one has his own likes and dislikes as regards color and form. The point of view from which one looks at the flower makes a great difference in his estimation of what constitutes perfection. If a grower for the market, the ideal flower would be one which pos-sesses a color which is always in demand; petals which will display this color to the best advantage, at the same time having substance enough to prevent the flower from being bruised in shipping; the foliage must be ample and handsome to properly set off the flower, and the stem must have strength to hold the flower erect, so it can be seen to the best advantage.

The amateur who grows the chrysanthenum out of pure love for the flower would probably differ somewhat in his ideal, for the shipping qualities of a flower make but little difference to him; his ideal would probably be the flower which combined what seemed to him the most beautiful color with greatest elegance of form. While a flower with incurved petals might possibly serve as an ideal in whites, it most certainly would not do for the other colors, for to get these in their purity the upper surface of the petals must be exposed, and we can only find this in a reflexed flower.

CHRYSANTHEMUM MODESTO AS GROWN IN ENGLAND.

One class should not be set above another, for they all have their admirers, and it seems to me that it is not desirable to establish one ideal if it were possible, for the great charm of the chrysanthemum as a flower lies in its infinite variety of form, and the great range of color which it displays. If we must have ideals, there should be as many as there are distinct classes, and each combine the distinctive characteristics of its class in the highest degree possible, with the most beautiful colors, rich foliage and strong stem

A. H. Fewkes.

Connecticut Horticultural Society.

We have received the list of premiums offered by the Connecticut Horticultural Society for competition at its exhibitions of 1898 and spring of 1899. The exhibitions will be held in June, July (sweet peas), September, November (chrysanthemuns), and March 28, 29 and 30 (flowering bulbs, roses and carnations). Copies of the list may be had on application to the secretary, C. M. Redgers.

Orchids for Florists.

The practical commercial florist will appreciate the fact that of the very large number of cultivated species there are comparatively few orchids that are suitable for his purpose, or that will repay for their culture in dollars and cents. It will be found that the merely curious or botanically interesting kinds will not attract the great majority of buyers even as they are cultivated by the few who are known as orchid lovers, but there still remain enough kinds that are of surpassing beauty and appeal to all by their coloring and form, and fortunately these are also the cheapest and most easy to procure, because collectors go to get these, and others are collected often by mere accident. Many a new plant has been discovered in this way and some of the most beautiful, too, even when the object of their search has cluded the collectors.

We have found that the genus that finds most favor among those that can afford to pay the price is the cattleya, a genus that is a purely American one, extending from Mexico to Southern Brazil, and from the cultivator's standpoint the lælias may be included with the cattleyas, for they differ only in the mere accident of having eight pollen masses instead of four, and botanists may yet see the wisdom of merging them into one genus at some not very distant date, If we take the two kinds named, it is possible to have flowers all the year round by selecting the proper species and varieties. and in passing it may be said that of the cattlevas all the best known are classed as mere geographical forms of the original C. labiata, and these will include all the largest flowered and best colored in the genus. Taking the typical Cattleya labiata as a starting point in the season of winter cut blooms, we find it comes in at a very opportune time, just as people are coming home from mountain and shore and are beginning to think of entertaining at their homes. Five years ago this cattleya was worth its weight in gold, but its rediscovery in a locality hundreds of miles from its original place of discovery is now a matter of history and cause for comfort both to introducers and growers alike, for it is one of the brightest and easiest grown cattlevas, requiring no special treatment to do it well and can be obtained at very low prices at the present We have noticed that when cutting the flowers it is essential to cut the stem and sheath close down to the bulb, for if a portion of the sheath be left it will hold moisture and result in the loss of both leaf and bulb if not noticed in time. This is a pecularity more especially applying to this kind, but we have also had it occur in plants of C. Triana in mid-winter, when moisture was not evaporated rapidly by a tree circulation of air in the Tollowing C labiata in quick succession comes C Pereivalliana, and while not so large it is brightly colored, the combinations of crimson and gold in the hp making it very conspicuous and desir able. This has been found to be the most difficult to grow satisfactorily of all the labiata group, though there are individual plants in the collection that could not be grown better or flower free; invariably those plants that have the largest halbs made in their native woods prove the casiest regrow and it may also be said in this connection, that plants that made thin wood bulbs in their native woods cannot under the most skillful cultivation be induced to put on good fat ones, this has been our experience with many plants of all the kinds. Cattleya Percivalliana ought to continue the succession of bloom until Christmas, and even later into January if enough be grown. It is a native of Venezuela and comes from a somewhat lower elevation than the Colombian varieties, and enjoys a little more warmth in consequence so that it should be placed at the warmest end or corner of the house.

Almost all who see orchid flowers for the first time, ask how long they will last, and the reply is that under favorable conditions they may be kept three weeks but there are times when they will not last more than one week. When C. labiata first became plentiful, it was the impression that it came from a "warm" country or what is known as such among cultivators, and the few we had were grown in the warmest house; the flowers were of very poor texture, and lasted about a week, and great was the disap-pointment. The plants also began to make a second growth before resting, and here was the key to the situation, too much heat. We now find it the the most durable of flowers with as much substance as could be desired, and also very fragrant when the sun shines. In a cooler temperature, however, there is still danger of the flowers decaying from too much moisture, and plants in bloom should be taken to a more airy and buovant atmosphere if it is desired to keep them as long as possible. We find they last longer in the dwelling house than in the house they grew in.

Cattleya Trianæ is, without doubt, the queen of winter flowering orchids, and more of this variety is grown than of any other for commercial purposes. There is infinite variety in the plants, no two being alike in a thousand. In the first flowering of a newly established lot there is great interest attached, as some are of great value while others are poor in comparison. It is easy to grow either suspended or in pots on the benches, or as we have recently seen, merely tacked on boards. The medium in which cattleyas are grown is not of so much importance as the conditions that prevail, but C. Trianæ will take longer to kill than most others under adverse conditions. The season of flowering will last for about two months where a number are grown, especially if some be encouraged by a little warmer position all the time, selecting for this treatment those that are apt to flower earliest naturally. In this way we have found that there are plants that flower every year from the first time quite a month before the main lot, and this is quite an advantage. In giving orchids a little more heat to bring them on it must not be understood that forcing is meant. Orchids cannot be forced as other plants, in the general acceptation of the term; if this is tried, it will be found that new growth will be the result instead of flowers and at their expense, with a consequent weakening of the stored up vigor. A neighbor of mine once got all his cattleyas into bloom at Christmas; they were recently acquired plants, and it was considered a great stroke, as it reflected on others and their skill, the plants have not yet fully recov-

Cattleya Trianae ends the list of winter blooming varieties, unless we take into consideration C. Chocoensis which is a very closely adhed plant and also very beautiful, and if the florist wants only those that bloom in indwinter he will not need C. Mossia, C. Gaskelliana, C. gigas and others, but it is safe to assert that if a few are grown of those that come in the summer months, there will always be those that will appreciate them at those seasons, for the great thing is to keep people interested in the collection whether it be a private one or a commercial venture.

Carnations.

In our eagerness for novelties we are losing sight of one of the fundamental principles of nature, and that is the law of selection. In this I will again use 11clen Keller for an example.

The past week a trip among some of our local growers demonstrated the fact that selection should not be confined exclusively to those of strong constitution, although that is a very desirable feature to have added to free flowering.

Since the introduction of Helen Keller I and a few others have been selecting our cuttings from those plants that produced all good flowers and a fair amount of them. A plant that produced one sleepy flower was not used to propagate from, and the result is that to-day we are growing Helen Keller with profit, every bud making a salable flower and almost every bud making a flower of first quality. The plants producing these flowers are not as healthy and strong as the original stock, and the variety may in the course of a few years longer run out.

My own plants are not nearly so good looking as many I have seen, but we are getting results and the fine looking plants are producing practically nothing but sleepy flowers. Results are what we are after ascut flower growers, and it is better to have a hundred plants that are producing good flowers in abundance than a thousand plants that produce scarcely anything but fine foliage. Do not understand me as decrying good stock, it is one of the important things to look after, and where you can combine strength of plant, freedom of bloom and first quality flowers all in one variety you are very fortunate indeed.

Among the growers I visited I noticed some Scotts that are going the same way as Keller; they have been selected for strength of plant more than for freedom of bloom and quality of flowers, and the result is a fine looking lot of plants with very few and very ordinary flowers. With these growers Scott is doomed for next season, and yet where the variety has been selected with more regard to the flowers than to the plant it is a hard one to eclipse from a dollars and cents point of view.

The lesson I have learned from Keller is that in selecting entrings it pays to look first of all to the quality of the flowers, second to the freedom of bloom, and third to the health of the plant. Even if a variety does run out under this treatment in the course of five to seven years what matters it, providing for those five to seven years it has paid as a cut flower producer. Before the end of that time, with the number of seedlings now being introduced, there will be one as good or better in the market, and you will have the money to stock up on the new one.

ALBERT M. HERR.

Careless Letter Writing.

Mr. W. W. Coles encloses a letter written him asking for information and enclosing postage, but having no signature. Carelessness in dating, signing or addressing correspondence is one of the cardinal sins in the commercial world and is the cause of a vast deal of annoyance and financial loss.

ONE OF THE SHOW ROOMS OF H. BAYERSDORFER & CO., PHILADELPHIA.

Boston.

BUSINESS SHOWS STEADY IMPROVEMENT.—
EASTER PROSPECTS.—CARNATIONS DOING WELL.—LOCAL NOTES

A spell of rainy weather has been effective in reducing the heavy surplus of flowers forced into bloom by the previous warm days, and conditions are rapidly improving in the cut flower market. Easter being now close at hand, anticipation of its wants and its possibilities occupies the attention pretty fully of all interested and leaves little time or inclination to continue the complaining spirit that has prevailed for the past few weeks.

As to Easter prospects, it is evident that lilies will be good property. The number of L. Harrisii grown in this section this year is not as large as in past years. In fact, L. longiflorum has been always the favorite here, and the disease so prevalent with the Harrisii has helped to make the preference still more pronounced.

Carnations are, even now, bringing good prices and have held their ground better than any other flower during the past week. That they will enjoy a good Easter demand seems to be the prevailing opinion, but it is well to qualify the prediction with the proviso that the stock be of good quality and, especially, that it be fresh

Part I of the transactions of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society for 1897 has been received by the members. It contains the full text of all lectures and discussions for the season of 1897.

News comes of the death, at Washington, of Hon. John Simpkins, of Yarmouthport, on Sunday last. Mr. Simpkins name is associated with some of the grandest exhibitions here, in the past, of aquatic flowers and chrysanthemums.

N. F. McCarthy and W. H. Elliott have just returned from a vacation trip to Florida. Mr. McCarthy's auction sales will commence about April 14.

Jackson Dawson will deliver a talk on his last summer's European trip before the Gardeners' and Florists' Club on the evening of April 5.

Visiting Boston: Alfred Dimmock, New York

Bayersdorfer's Store.

II. Bayersdorfer & Co, are just now up to their ears in business. Their spring trade is the best they have ever experienced. In addition to their large building they last winter added a big warehouse floor in an adjoining building that almost doubled their storage capacity. The accompanying photo shows one of their salesrooms, the easiest to take, all the others being so crowded with goods they made no showing in the camera.

This stock is constantly changing, importations coming every month in the year from Europe, and in addition a large force of hands are being kept busy getting out original and order work. One set of men year in and year out make nothing but wheat sheaves, their trade in this stock being enormous. The Bayersdorfer member of the firm is the same old Harry. Hard work seems to agree with him and he is an exceptional visitor who gets away from him without leaving a big order behind, as Harry is a salesman to the manner born.

CONTENTS.

| Consigning out flowers for the holidays                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | 981                                                                                                                          |
|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Flower seed growing in America (2 illus.)                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | 982                                                                                                                          |
| Easter plants (illus.)                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | 983                                                                                                                          |
| Dahlia notes                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   | 983                                                                                                                          |
| Dahlia notes                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   | 98.4                                                                                                                         |
| Earther notes on sub-watering.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 | 984                                                                                                                          |
| Further notes on sub-watering                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | 985                                                                                                                          |
| Easter plants (illus.)                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | 925                                                                                                                          |
| Laster plants (illust)                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | (186)                                                                                                                        |
| Park notes                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     | SER                                                                                                                          |
| Park notes. American raised roses. Greenhouse pests, San Jose scale and legisla-                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | 986                                                                                                                          |
| Greenhouse pests, San Jose scale and legisla-                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |                                                                                                                              |
| tion versus insects (concluded)                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | 987                                                                                                                          |
| Laster plants (illus.) .                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | 987                                                                                                                          |
| A cluster of Carnot roses, spot violets (illus.)                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | 988                                                                                                                          |
| Entrance to Wahan conservatories (illus.)                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | 080                                                                                                                          |
| Easter plants (illus )                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | 989                                                                                                                          |
| Rambler roses.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 | 990                                                                                                                          |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | $1510                                                                                                                       |
| A drummer's twaddle. Agjain, the yellow rambler rose (illus.).                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 | 990                                                                                                                          |
| Aglain, the yellow ramifier rose (1908.).                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | 991                                                                                                                          |
| The Crimson Rambler rose (illus.)                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | 992                                                                                                                          |
| Crepe paper decorations (illus.)                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | 000                                                                                                                          |
| Hardy herbaceous perennials. Lifac decorated with crepe paper (illus.).                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | 993                                                                                                                          |
| Millio dendificat attit ciele labet (mas):                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     | 993                                                                                                                          |
| The confidence man Ornamental bedding Part III (7 illus.)                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | 904                                                                                                                          |
| The ideal chrysanthemum                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | 994                                                                                                                          |
| Chrysanthemum Modestons grown in Eng-                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |                                                                                                                              |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |                                                                                                                              |
| land tillus i                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | 995                                                                                                                          |
| land (illust)                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | 995996                                                                                                                   |
| land (illus.)                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |                                                                                                                              |
| land (illus.). Orcheds for florists. Carnations. Cards so letter writing.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | 51913                                                                                                                        |
| land (illus.). Orcheds for florists. Carnations. Cards so letter writing.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | (1943(1943                                                                                                               |
| land (illus). Orchols for florists. Carnations. Careless letter writing. Boston. Revershifter's store.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | (196)(194)(196)                                                                                                      |
| hand (illus.) Orchels for florists Carmitons Carpless letter writing Booton Bayer-doffer sistore Bayer-doffer sistore                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | 996996996997997998                                                                                       |
| hand (illus.). Orcheds for florists. Carnations. Careless letter writing. Boston. Basersdurfer's store. Raversdurfer's store. Carnationnums.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   | 996996997997997998998                                                                                |
| hand (illus.) Orcheds for florists Carnations Careless letter writing. Boston Baver-dorfer s store Rose notes Chrsarde monts                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   | 996996997997997998998                                                                                |
| hand (illus.) Orcheds for florists Carnations Careless letter writing. Boston Baver-dorfer s store Rose notes Chrsarde monts                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   | 996996997997997998998999                                                                         |
| hand (illus.) Orcheds for florists Carnations Careless letter writing. Boston Baver-dorfer s store Rose notes Chrsarde monts                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   | 996996997997997998998998999                                                                  |
| hand (illus.) Orcheds for florists Carnations Carpless letter writing Booton Baver-shorfer sistere Brice notes Chr. sandle monts Bodding piptits New York Chipago Onage this spring show                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | 996996997967968998998998998100996                                                    |
| hand (illus.) Orcheds for florists Carnations Carpless letter writing Booton Baver-shorfer sistere Brice notes Chr. sandle monts Bodding piptits New York Chipago Onage this spring show                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | 99699799799799899999010001000                                                                |
| hand (illus.). Orcheds for florists. Carnations. Carpless letter writing Booton Baver-shorfer's store. Brose notes Chr. santhemonis Bodd in pipitt's New York. Chipago Piniade phin spring show. St. Louis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     | 0969989989979679989991000100010001001                                                |
| hand (illus.). Orcheds for florists. Carnations. Carpless letter writing Booton Baver-shorfer's store. Brose notes Chr. santhemonis Bodd in pipitt's New York. Chipago Piniade phin spring show. St. Louis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     | 0969989989979679989991000100010001001                                                |
| hand (illus.). Orcheds for florists. Carnations. Carpless letter writing Booton Baver-shorfer's store. Brose notes Chr. santhemonis Bodd in pipitt's New York. Chipago Piniade phin spring show. St. Louis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     | 9969969979979979989989999991000100110011001                                  |
| hand (illus.). Orcheds for florists. Carnations. Carpless letter writing Booton Baver-shorfer's store. Brose notes Chr. santhemonis Bodd in pipitt's New York. Chipago Piniade phin spring show. St. Louis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     | 9969969979979979989989999991009100110011001                                  |
| hand (illus.). Orcheds for florists. Carnations. Carpless letter writing Booton. Baversdorfer sistore. Rose notes. Christophy orch. Christophy orch. Chieago Phande pha spring show. St. Louis Philadelphia Chemiatt Worester Mass Mi washe. Roselester.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | 99699699699799799899899910001000100110011001                                 |
| hand (illus.). Orchuls for thorists. Carnations. Carpless letter writing Booton. Baver-doffer's store. Baver-doffer's store. Baver-doffer's store. Bods in panels. New York. Chengo Proude phi ispring show. St. Louis Philadelphia. Cineminati Woreaster Mass Mi washe. Rechester. Bastimore                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | 966966966967968968968968100010001001100110011001100110           |
| hand (illus.). Orcheds for florists. Carnations. Carpless letter writing Booton. Baversdorfer sistore. Base notes. Chrisanethemonis. Bodding pipiets. New York. Chicago Pomade phicispring show. St. Louis Philadelphia Chicanis Philadelphia Chicanis Philadelphia Chicanis Rochester Bastimore Bastimore Louisvitte Ex                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | 9969969969979979989989999991000100110011001100                           |
| hand (illus.) Orchids for florists Carnations Carpless letter writing Boston Baver-dorfer's store Bose notes Chrisanite mains Bodding plants New York Chicago Phande phasispring show St. Louis Philadelphia Cincumnatt Worcester Mass Ma warder Bastimore                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | 966966966967968968968968100010001001100110011001100110           |
| hand (illus.). Orcheds for florists. Carnations. Carpless letter writing Booton. Baver-shorfer's store. Baver-shorfer's store. Brise nodes. Chr. sandhemmus. Bodd ng pipités. New York. Chipago Piniade phia spring show. St. Louis. Philadelphia. Criccintatt Woreester Mass. Mi. washe. Bactimore. Bact | 9669669669679679689689691000100010011001100110011001                 |
| hand (illus.). Orcheds for florists. Carnations. Carpless letter writing Booton. Baversdorfer's store. Bose notes Orrespondentes Bodding plants Chipago Dinade plantspring show St. Louis Philadelphia Crimeninati Woreaster Mass Mi wawket Bodinger Bodinge | 966966967967968968968969100910001001100110011005100810131013 |
| hand (illust). Orchuls for florists. Carmations. Carpless letter writing Booton. Baver-shofter stature. Baver-shofter stature. Baver-shofter stature. Baver-shofter. Baver-shofter. Baver-shofter. Badding pands. New York. Chengo Proude phia spring show. St. Louis Philadelphia. Cincumnati Woreaster Mass. Wie washe. Baddinge. Ba | 9969969979979989989985991000100010011001100110011001                 |
| hand (illus.). Orcheds for florists. Carnations. Carpless letter writing Booton. Baver-shorfer's store. Rose notes. Chr. saidle moins. Bodding points. New York. Chiego. Philadelphia spring show. St. Louis. Philadelphia. Cincinnati Woresster Mass. Mi Wauker. Bachmore. Bachmore | 9669669679679679689689699691000100110011001100110011             |
| hand (illust). Orcheds for florists. Carnations. Carpless letter writing Booton. Baversdorfer's store. Rose notes. Chrisanche moins. Bodding pipitts. New York. Chiego. Philadelphia spring show. St. Louis. Philadelphia. Cincumati. Worester Mass. Mi wauker. Bachmore.  | 966966966967967968569969100010001001100110011001100                  |
| hand (illust). Orchids for florists. Carnations. Carpless letter writing Booton. Baversdorfer's store. Bose notes Orrespondenses Bodding plants Chieago Phande plants Philadelphia Criedinatt Woreaster Mass Mi wauket Bodding Philadelphia Criedinatt Bodding Boddin | 9969889879879869889889891000100010001000100010                           |
| hand (illust). Orcheds for florists. Carnations. Carpless letter writing Booton. Baversdorfer sistore. Base notes Or sanchemonis Bodding plants New York. Chicago Porade phinispring show. St. Louis Philadelphia Comminati Workester Mass Mi wander Bachmore Bootsvitte Ky Steam and hot vider heating Harrishorg Pr Pittsborg What shir it the harriest be The seed trade the norsers trade Kaierin for some of hosemic. Let Monte on the some of the Masserin for some of hosemic.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | 996986987987988998998998989989100010001000                                   |
| hand (illust). Orcheds for florists. Carnations. Carpless letter writing Booton. Baversdorfer's store. Rose notes. Chrisanthe minus. Bodding plants. New York. Chiego Philadelphia spring show. St. Louis Philadelphia Cheuniatt Workster Mass Mi wanke. Backmen. Backme | 9969869879879889889889899801000100010001000                                  |

Death of a Well Known Florist.

John O Callaghan died Tuesday, March 22 at his horize 1 Oakland street, Rochester, N. Y., aged 73 years. He was born in Country Cork, Ireland, and came to this country forty years ago and settled in Pochester. He entered the employ of Ellwanger & Barry and was connected with that firm up to the time of his death. He hadespecial charge of the propagating of roses.

Rose Notes.

Cuttings struck in January and potted off as soon as ready should now be well rooted, and will probably be ready for a shift into a larger sized pot; other batches in the sand should come out immediately they are rooted. Just ahead of Easter bench space is usually very scarce and valuable, and the temptation is apt to come to us, that using a little extra care we can hold the cuttings in the sand, or the plants in the small pots a couple of weeks longer, when we shall have an abundance of room and more time to handle them. A very good scheme if it can be carried out successfully.

Success in handling young roses in pots depends largely upon two things, potting and watering. As soon as a rose cutting is rooted it should have a chance to make its roots in soil rather than sand; it is comparatively easy to pot a cutting with roots an inch long, but very difficult to crowd a cluster of roots six inches in length into a 214-inch pot. As has often been said in these columns, success in rose growing is achieved by attending to all the little details as and when they present themselves, rather than as a result of natural shrewdness and great ability, and a very important detail is that of potting off the cuttings at the proper time. The question is often asked, llow long is it safe and wise to leave a plant in a  $2^{1}$  inch pot? It is hardly possible to lay down any rule that could govern in all cases; difference in variety, soil, temperature, etc., make it imperative that every grower behis own judge. Two things, however, we should ever bear in mind, which are applicable under all circumstances; never repot into a larger size until the plant demands it, and never allow a batch of young roses, if wanted for cut flower purposes, to remain in small pots until the roots are gone and the whole plant has become stunted and starved; fine plants cannot be grown in this manner; when the pot has become well filled with clean white roots and the foliage is bright and healthy is the time to repot rather than after the roots become black and the toliage yellow and sickly. Years ago we were told to grow our plants along carefully until May or June, then set outdoors to ripen off, and when most of the foliage had dropped and the plants had got well stunted they were brought in and set out in the benches. A plan the very opposite of this is followed at the present time. The best growers to day aim to so manage the potting, watering and temperature, that there should be no interruption of growth and progress from the taking of the cutting until the season's work is ended.

I think for potting roses it is a mistake to use soil that has laid very long in the compost heap, we have had the best results with that laid together the previous fall, and not too much decomposed. The rough turt that cannot be rubbed through a <sup>3</sup>1-inch screen makes the very best kind of drainage. Too much fertilizer at this time should not be used; rank growth is not as desirable as strong, hard, sturdy growth, with foliage impervious to mildew and the like.

A word to young men about potting. How many plants should a man handle in a day, shifting from 214 into 312-inch? As many as he can do properly, no more. What might properly be termed poor work in this line? When a newly potted plant turned out shows hollow spaces round the sides, when the soil is firm on top of the ball and loose at the bottom, when the pot has been almost filled with soil and an attempt made to press the plant down into it, thereby damaging the roots and loosening their hold on the ball, when a plant is potted so high that the first good watering presses it over against the side of the pot to be after-wards driven around in a circle every time the hose comes into play, these are evidences of miserable potting that no man who takes any pride in his work would allow. Good work in potting need not necessarily be divorced from rapidity of motion; a man may pot rapidly and well if he wants to and has sense enough, or lacking ambition his slowness may not be offset by quality of work. There is one thing to remember always, that numbers should never be counted on to hide or counterbalance poor work-manship. Robt. Simpson. manship.

Chrysanthemums.

It is with reluctance that we begin a series of articles upon the cultivation of this popular flower. The most important reason for our hesitancy is that this subject has been thoroughly and carefully treated by several of the eminent growers of the country time and time again; thus there is limited opportunity of presenting your readers anything new or original. And again, it is difficult—in fact it is inpossible-to give directions that will be practical to all, as so much depends on the conditions that surround the grower. To our mind early June planting is the most practical, especially to those having plenty of high houses, and who can easily devote the space for this purpose by the middle of the month. This is very im-portant to those growing early varieties for the market, and those interested in the exhibitions will find their products none the worse by adopting this course.

To the first-class growers we would suggest they consider their wants very soon, deciding upon the varieties and arrange for the quantity required. Orders are often placed the first of August for early sorts with the expectation of good results. And how inconsistent when we expect these little plants, three to four inches in height, to complete the growth and set buds in three weeks, as they must do if we look for flowers early in October. Disappointment, as a rule, is the result, for a wide-awake competitor has planted early, and has the same kinds with fine strong wood two and a half to four feet high at the time the others were planted, and in consequence has ample stem and foliage, flowers that have depth as well as diameter, with the crop marketed several days before the others are in con-Those who intend to comdition to cut. pete at the fall shows should soon decide what varieties are best suited for their purpose, and see that the stock of these is in proper condition. In making the selec-tion remember your strongholds are the sorts which youknow do well under your management. It is advisable to try the novelties, as there are always some that are improvements in one way or another and may be very useful, but do not overdo in this matter; remember it is flowers in competition and not varieties. certainly the case when the schedule calls for white, yellow and pink without specifying the variety. Should the list include rying the variety. Should the ast mender such slow growing sorts as Golden Wedding, Maythower, Liberty, Mand Dean and Mrs. Jerome Jones we would advise that cuttings of these beput in the sand not later than April 15, which will allow six weeks for them to root and become established in small pots. Some may take exception to the statement that these are slow growing, but they must be so considered when compared with Mrs. S. T. Murdock, Niveus, Helen Blood-good, President W. R. Smith, etc., and most of these are slow in rooting as well as inactive until warm weather prevails; it is for these reasons we think it hest to have them fairly strong when needed.

We do not wish to imply that good flowers cannot be produced in less time, for, to the contrary, we have had satisfactory results from July planting, and more particularly has this been true with the stronger growing sorts.

Those that do not have six to eight feet in the clear between the benches and glass will be obliged to either defer planting until July or keep the plants tied down, and this entails a great amount of labor. Those who have purchased novelties and wish to make the most of them, will find the surest way is to prepare a bench of three or four inches of good soil and plant them in rows eight inches apart and four inches in the row; thus treated they will make cuttings faster and of better quality than where they are kept in the pots. This method may be employed to produce a large stock of the standard kinds. ELMER D. SMITH.

Bedding Plants.

The most important point to figure on in regard to bedding plants is to have them nice and stocky, and not drawn or hard, but in a healthy growing condition when planting out time comes, so that when they are set outside they will not suffer, lose a great deal of the foliage, and look like sticks for a month or so. It should be the aim to have such plants as geraniums, lohelia, ageratum, pansies, petunias and all flowering stock well in bloom when the proper time comes for setting them out, as such stock unless in good condition, and well flowered is hard to move. As a general thing everybody likes to get this kind of stock out of the way as soon as possible, to make room for planting chrysanthemums and other stock for cut flowers. Geraniums will need to be now well established in 4-inch pots, and should not be overcrowded but given plenty of light and air, and care taken not to over-water or allow to get too dry, but be kept in a growing condition as much as possible, and if any are getting too long it is not too late to mip a cutting here and there, which will make nice little plants if you have any call for such stock later in the season, and will also do to be planted out in the lot for stock.

It will greatly improve the looks of a blouse of geraniums to have all the different colors set on the bench by themselves and carefully labeled, so if anyhody wishes to know the name of a certain variety the salesman will have it right there. By keeping each color together it will save several steps when picking out a big order during a rush.

The best of a great many varieties of geraniums which we have tested here and geraniums which we have tested here and the quickest sellers are, Heteranthe, red; W. P. Simmons, dark red; Le Cid, dark red; Mrs. E. G. Hill, single, salmon, fine; Beaute Poitevine, salmon pink; Mary Hill, deep pink (never been able to get enough stock of this one); La Favorite, double white; Mrs. J. M. Garr, single white, and Athlete, single scarlet. These have all proven good bedders, and stand the sun well. Our customers prefer the the sun well. Our customers prefer the semi-double varieties most, and as a rule single varieties are not much called for. Coleus should be propagated as fast as possible now, and potted on as soon as they require it. Give them a good warm place, with plenty of sunlight to bring out the colors; we find a nicely colored plant in a 3-inch pot to be the hest seller.

Dwarf ageratum and dwarf lobelia, when well flowered in 3-inch pots, meet a ready sale. They need a cool, even temperature and should not be allowed to become dry. The green fly will need to be kept in check by light funigating.

Both the double and single dwarf sweet alyssum are in great demand when well done. The flowers should be picked done. The flowers should be picked from the double variety if they are get-ting long or going to seed; they will branch out again and be just right by the middle of May.

Vines for vases, such as maurandya, Convolvulus minor, Thunbergia and other annual vines should now be potted on, and if they get too long top back a little, they will then make nice branching

All annuals such as asters, phlox, marigolds, stocks and zinnias should now be pricked off in flats, and not allowed to become drawn, but hardened off gradually; they will then be ready for the cold frame in a few weeks.

Hotbeds should be ready now for alternanthera, and this is a good place to start your cannas, providing there is enough headroom. Overhaul and start into growth any bedding roses that have been wintered in cold frames. They need a good light place, free from draughts and not over-watered, and keep a sharp lookout for mildew and greenfly. Cut out any dead wood and be sure the drainage is good.

Petunias, fuchsias, heliotrope and pelargoniums that are intended as flowering plants for Decoration Day will be greatly benefited by an occasional application of weak liquid manure, and should be neatly C. W. Johnson. staked and tied.

New York.

MARKET CONDITIONS .- TULIPS, ROSES AND VIOLETS OVER PLENTY .- CARNATIONS AND SMILAX IN SHORT SUPPLY .- TEND-ENCIES IN WINDOW ADORNMENT.-LOCAL CUT FLOWER AND PLANT TRADE ITEMS.— SERIOUS ILLNESS OF A CHILD OF A. S. BURNS.

A noticeable feature of the cut flower market at present is the heavy shipments of tulips coming in. They are in many colors, both single and double and they are very difficult stock to dispose of. Their uses are limited as compared even with daffodils. Growers assert that they get less for the flowers than the original cost of hulbs in some cases. But they said the same last year, yet they persist in forcing large quantities of them, nevertheless. Just why this is so, it is hard to explain, but it is natural to assume that they will in time get tired of raising tulips for nothing but glory.

The tone of the market generally seems a little better than last week, and stock moves rather more freely. Of roses there are immense quantities being received daily and they go, necessarily, at very low prices when large lots are disposed of. Carnations are really in short sup-ply. The market could easily consume a good many more but they must be good. Poor carnations find trouble wherever they show up. Smilax is also scarce, it being out of the question to fill an order for any very large amount of it.

As previously reported violets are overstocked with prospects for a tremendous cut of blooms of good quality for Easter if the weather does not run too warm in the meantime. As to lilies it may be said that most of those being received just now are of miserable quality. They give evidence of having been held by grower as long as possible in hopes of an improved market, and are sold at prices that sound ridiculously low until one sees the goods. It is noted, however, that when guaranteed real good selected stock is demanded in giving an order, buyers have to pay a good price and they don't grumble much over it either.

There are quantities of belated freesias to be seen and here again one may wonder why anyone should expend the time and money to bring in freesias at this season when the market is so overloaded with an infinite variety of flowers and the only prices possible are far too low to show anything but loss. Lily of the valley is abundant and cheap and it naturally outsells the freesia in all directions.

While undoubtedly the florist stores will all stock up heavily on the regulation varieties of Easter plants, yet it is worthy of mention that there is an apparent disposition to adorn the show windows in the more pretentious localities with a choicer class of material than is found in the customary Easter stock. Farleyense ferns, orchids and rare things of this character seem to have the preference. Many pots of blooming violets are seen on all sides.

A new carnation which E. C. Horan is receiving from A. Schultheis is named the Mrs. Schultheis. It is a good sized flower of a peculiarly soft and luminous pink and Mr. Horan says that it is well liked.

M. A. Hart has added another big ice chest to the equipment of his new establishment on Twenty-ninth street.

Plant wagons are out in full force in all directions with their brilliant loads of geraniums, petunias, pansies and flowering bulbs.

The plant dealers opened on schedule time at Clinton Market on Monday and are very happy over the progress that has been made in providing comfortable quarters for them.

Harold, the youngest son of Mr. A. S. Burns, was attacked suddenly with pneumonia on Sunday and for two days his life was despaired of. A slight change for the better is now reported.

Rudolph Jahn, of Brooklyn has failed, owing considerable sums to some of the New York wholesalers.

George C Watson, of Philadelphia, will read a paper on "The Florist Versus the Flower Show," at the Florists' Club meeting of April 11.

Among the visitors: W. H. Elliott, of Boston.

Chicago.

STOCK CONSIDERABLY REDUCED .- FAVOR-ABLE WEATHER INCREASES LILY STOCK. -A CLEVER SWINDLER.-PERSONAL AND VISITORS.

There is very little change in the cut flower market except that the stock on hand has been considerably reduced; a week ago there was quite a large stock accumulated in the wholesale houses. Last Friday and Saturday several large orders were shipped out of the city. Sunday morning everything salable was cleaned out; since then there has been very little surplus stock.

There is at present every indication that the coming Easter trade will be the largest ever done in Chicago.

The very favorable weather we have had for several weeks past has brought out a much larger crop of lilies than was anticipated a few weeks ago.

There is a very good stock of roses coming in of all the leading varieties; the crop of extra long-stemmed American Beauties will be much larger than ever before at Easter.

Carnations will be in fair supply.

There will be enough bulb stock to supply all demands except, perhaps, lilies.

Considerable inquiry is being made for Easter flowers for both retail and shipping trade. The retail trade is very quiet; very few flowers are being sold at the retail stores; the street fakirs—one or more of whom may be found upon every corner in the business portion of the city—seem to be doing most of the business at present.

Mr. I. Mangel has leased the store on the northwest corner of Washington and State streets for five years at a rental of $8,000 per year. The location is about the best in the city.

A well dressed gentleman visited several north and west side retail florists and gave some very liberal orders for flowers to be sent to the funeral of a friend of his who was killed in the Wabash avenue hire; after the order was fixed up he would discover that he had not the amount of cash with him and could not pay for the flowers unless the florist would kindly cash a check, generally for about double the amount of the bill. The florists kindly eashed several of these checks; when presented at the bank the checks were found to be worthless. At the address where the flowers were sent no such person was ever known.

A. S. Vaughan started out on the road about ten days ago to sell bulbs; he found the florists in a decidedly belligerent attitude, they being about to declare war against everyone in the bulb trade. After a recognizance of the enemy's position he retreated back to Chicago and opened up diplomatic correspondence with the enemy, with the hope that after they get their Easter returns peace may be declared, and they will then be willing to again enter into business negotiations.

Mrs. H. B. Whitted, of Minneapolis, Minn., was in the city this week to make arrangements for Easter flowers.

J. D. Thompson and James Hartshorne leave Chicago to-day for the east in the interest of a new greenhouse plant they will build this summer. The plant will be devoted to the growing of high grade carnations. Mr. Hartshorne will be manager.

L. H. Hunt is home, sick with malaria. Visitors: P. Vos, representing the Holland Bulb Co., Holland; Herman C. Baartman, Sassenheim, Holland; C. S. Ford, Jr., representing A. Herrman, New York City.

Philadelphia Spring Show.

The spring show opened with the handicap of a rainy day. The space devoted to the exhibits might have appeared more crowded, and the visitors had too little trouble in getting about to suit the treasurer. Still the show can be said to be fairly successful. In the main hall were arranged large groups of foliage and blooming plants, while the foyer contained the cut flowers and design work.

H. A. Dreer received a certificate of merit for a group of well grown palms, while in those arranged for effect. Westcott Brothers, took first, and A. Woltemate second. Robert Cridg & Sonhad a pretty group of blooming plants for exhibition only.

W. E. Harris won first for six hand some genistics in his colored enameled pots, giving the plants a very near and novel appearance. A specimen of thodo-dendron in the center was a beauty. A Woltemate received second prize. He also received first for a collection of orchids.

In the cut flower exhibit the display of carnations was the best. R. Craig & Son carried off the most firsts, winning with Hill for white. Pingree for yellow, and Jubilee for red; also second with Lily Dean for variegated, twenty-five of each.

11. Weber & Son won first with Triumph for dark pink, first for any other color with a light striped pink, and first for striped with Mrs. Bradt; they were very fine blooms.

J. Heacock received first for light pink with Elizabeth, a fine vase; and J. Burton second for white with Alba Superba.

A. M. Herr staged some fine vases of Triumph, Armazindy, Jubilee and H. Keller.

Win, Swayne won first for twelve and twenty-five crimson, with Empress; they were time blooms.

George Christy had a fine bunch of his Mark Hanna.

Hugh Graham exhibited a large vase of his superb pink Victor, not for competition.

George Anderson won first for six Brunners, very fine flowers, and same for twelve Kaiserins.

D. T. Connor won first for La France, and second for Brunners.

J. Heacock won first for six Beauties, and a vase of fifty of same, also for Brides; and second for Bridesmaids; with J. Burton first for Bridesmaids and second for Beauties.

Graham exhibited a beautiful basket of flowers not for competition.

J. Kift & Son won first for basket. Pennock Bros. first and second for bridesmaid's bouquets.

A. Hoag staged a very pretty bridesmaid's bouquet not for competition.

Other entries will be made on Thursday and Friday and it is hoped there will be more interest shown by the retail men.

St. Louis.

Stock shows the effect of the protracted dark rainy spell, and is not quite as abundant or in as good condition as at last writing. Prices have maintained themselves, and no drop can be looked for until after Easter. California violets are over, and their absence from the market is felt most keenly; buyers wanting violets are disappointed when they cannot be had, and seem disinclined to take anything in place of them. An effort is made to fill their place with miniature hyacinths, tulips, and other spring flowers. but it is a hard matter to do so. Some fair doubles are still moving in good shape and sell readily without an advance in price.

All eyes are turned toward Easter and orders are being placed very freely for plants for that occasion. Inquiries for lilies have been made quite extensively, and there appears a probability of there being a shortage of good pot plants; cut lilies, it is expected, will be in sufficient supply to fill all orders. Prices, however, have not as yet been determined upon.

A call upon Julius Ko nig, in North St. Louis, found his houses crowded with pot plants and spring stock, most of the latter in small pots waiting for a chance to get into more roomy quarters in frames; there is quite a little Easter stock ready, principally marguerites and bulbous stock. The longillorum lilies may be in on time, but look a trifle backward Quite a stock of minature hyacinths have been grown this season, and so far with satisfactory results; some selected bulbs of Dutch hyacinths have made beautiful plants. A novelty in growing for Easter was noted in a large number of tulips, one bulb in a small pot, principally La Candeur and Tournesol. These will be used in filling window boxes and plant baskets; minature hyacinths grown the same way will be used for the same purpose. An excellent red sport from Mrs. Bradt has made its appearance, and has about been fixed, having been grown for the past two seasons; all stock possible is being worked up and will be planted the coming season. The stock all through was in good shape. A novelty, or rather oddity, was several standard geraniums that had been top worked and were bearing flowers of different colors.

A visit to Hy Emmons, in Bellville, showed him to be in good shape with his Easter stock; his lilies will be just right, and there will be quite a few of them; there is also a nice batch of hybrids; Jacqs, Brunners and Magna Charta are just showing color; in bulb stock there will be a frame of Paper Whitegrandiflora and minature hyacinths.

Carnations show the effect of heavy euttings, Daybreaks especially. Emma Wocher is beginning to show its tendency to come single, owing to the warmer weather. It will be largely planted again next season, as it has cut two flowers to Scott's one during the winter months, and has averaged a better price. It is profitable to grow, especially for winter flowers, and use its bench room for small plants during the spring. Nearly all the young stock has been shifted from flats to 2-inch pots, and looks fine. Roses were also making a strong growth but will be a shade off for Easter. Beauties had an extra strong clean growth, likewise Woottons, Brides and Bridesmaids, especially the two-year-old stock, were making heavy canes from the base of the plant.

Wm. Trillow, at the St. Clair Floral Company's plant, was hustling earnations out into frames to make room the large number ready to come out of the sand, and in order to shift up the young stock on hand. Quite a lot of roses, geraniums, salvias and other stock is in 3 and 4-inch pots, and will need no more attention until sold, save giving more room. Carnations are the principal stock grown, and have averaged very fair during the season. Jubilee was showing up finely, but has proven rather late; Dazzle will be the main variety grown for red, with Portia to help out; Meteor will be discarded and Jubifee given a further trial; Scotts have proven a standard pink, and will be mainly relied on for that color; Mrs. Bradt has made a fine growth, and while not as prolific as some other varieties, it will be more extensively grown as a fancy variety, returning also a fancy price; Alaska is favored as a white, although a bench of Uncle John has proven very satisfactory; these two varieties with several of the newer whites will be tried again. A bench of callas in pots were full of flowers, and judging from the number of stumps left on the plants from flowers cut, they must have proven a paying crop. Abench of mignonette was in full crop and in excellent shape; quite a quantity will be cut for Easter. Longiflorum lilies will be too late for Easter use, the L. Harrisii grown, however, will be on time.

At E. W. Gny's the carnations were fine, a house of Daybreak and Armazindy being specially worthy of note; Armazindy is coming a shade smaller than during the winter season, but still ranks as fancy.

R. F. T

The American Florist

Subscription $1.00 a Year. To Europe, $2.00. Subscriptions accepted only from those in the trade.

Advertisements, 10 Cents a Line, Agate; $1.00 per inch. Cash with Order. No Special Position Guaranteed. Discounts, 6 times, 5 per cent; 13 times, 10 per cent; 26 times, 20 per cent; 52 times, 30 per cent.

The Advertising Department of the AMERICAN FLORIST is for Florists, Seedsmen, and dealers in wares pertaining to those lines ONLY.

Orders for tess than one-half inch space not accented. Advertisements must reach us by Wednesday to secure insertion in the issue for the following Saturday.

Address THE AMERICAN FLORIST CO., Chicago.

WITH this issue Mr. W. N. Rudd retires from the active management of the AMERICAN FLORIST.

WE PROMISED our advertisers that a copy of this issue would be mailed to 13,000 persons directly interested in the merchandise advertised, but we actually mail over 15,000 copies. The circulation, as usual, is limited to those in the trade.

By YOU, READER, who receive this Easter number, though not a subscriber, we ask a careful perusal of the eighty-six pages here presented. The American Florist offers you fifty-two numbers per year, not all of this size but of equal and vital value to you and your business, and invites you now, at the beginning of another active year, to send us one dollar for a year's subscription.

Philadelphia.

PRICES ADVANCING .- PROSPECTS GOOD FOR EASTER TRADE. - THE FLORAL EXCHANGE BUILD FIVE NEW HOUSES.-VISITORS.

The spring exhibition of the Horticulture Society is being arranged at this writing and bids fair to be a credit to the committees, who have worked hard to make it a success. The store men have apparently not lost much sleep over their exhibits, and competition in arrangements of cut flowers is not likely to give the judges much trouble-more's the pity.

There has not been much change in the cut flower market the past few days, although there is a tendency to stiffen prices on account of the expected rush next week. Violet prices have taken quite a brace, the warm weather of last week was too much for their gentle constitutions. The single varieties are now very small and it takes so many to make a respectable looking bunch that it hardly pays to pick them. The double are also much smaller and quite scarce; 50 to 75 cents per hundred is the price.

Roses continue about the same; Lonsdale is now sending in the finest Beauties of the season to S. S. Pennock. They have stems six feet long with elegant flowers and foliage. Six dollars per dozen is the price such as these bring. Very nice stock with four foot stems goes for $3. Teas bring from $4 to $12 per hundred, the $6 to $8 ones being the popular sizes. The Easter houses of Brunners are commencing to come in, $2 per dozen being the price for fair flowers.

Carnations are stiffening a little, $2 being asked for all good stock. For next week prices of carnations will advance more than any other flower; $3 to $4 for good stock will be about the price, with the fancies a trifle higher. Roses may advance about $2 above the present figures for the teas, while the Beauties and Brunners will no doubt soarquite a little.

One of the commission men said in regard to the prospects of Easter trade that he expected to have a good week. He said he was getting letters from a lot of people who seldom bought, wanting choice things and plenty of them. And they will get them too,—that is if anything is left after our everyday customers, who also expect to be busy, are sup-

Easter stock in blooming plants is very fine this season and the growers say it is selling fast. Robert Craig & Sons' Crimson Ramblers are about all sold, and H. A. Dreer has had to stop taking orders for azaleas, his large stock being all disposed of for immediate or Easter delivery. This speaks well for a busy time all round, and it is to be hoped that April 10 may find every establishment, whether grower, wholesaler or retailer as bare of Easter stock as old Mother Hubbard'scupboard was of bones.

The Floral Exchange have just added to their plant five houses 22x125; these have glass sides three feet from the eaves which are six feet high. Four ground beds three feet wide are laid out with walks two feet wide, one of which extends entirely around the house next the walls. deteors are to be planted exclusively, this rose having done very well with them the past two seasons. Their place them the past two seasons. Their place now comprizes thirty-one houses in all with a glass surface of about 60,000 square feet.

Visitors in town: Lyod G. Blick and G. D. Levy and wife, of Norfolk, Va.; W. Asparagus Elliott, of Brighton, Mass.; W. Feast and E. A. Seidewitz, Baltimore; Benjamin Durfee, Washington, and others.

Cincinnati.

The inclement weather which prevailed here the greater part of last week had a paralyzing effect on business. We were having lots of rain but on mount the first indication of alarm among the the bottoms. The having lots of rain but on Monday was rain of Sunday and Monday was drenching; it upset all calculations. "That little river," as Mr. Scott called it a year ago, is now a rampant little ocean, sweeping away bridges, greenhouses and other buildings along the line. Messrs. Fred. Walz, Glins and Wolf are again drowned out, and much sympathy is felt for them among the craft.

Retail trade the past week has been rather quiet, and the flower market Saturday, owing to disagreeable weather, was at a standstill. From present indications, there will be enough stock to go around for Easter, with the exception of Harrisii lilies. Violets at present continue a glut, but will be scarce for Easter; they are about done now. Choice blooming plants, such as azaleas, lilies, cinerarias, deutzias, spiras, roses and bulbous flowers will be plentiful.

Our down town stores are now lavishly provided with large assortments. The windows are very attractive, but sales slow.

Mr. Ernst Mack, of Price Hill, is on the sick list. Mrs. Charles Pfeifer, of New-port, is also reported ill. Our Holland friends are with us. Although railroads leading to this city from the east were cut off for three days, owing to the high water, they got here nevertheless. Messrs. Hermann Baartman and 11. Van Zonnevelt were here the latter part and Mr. Kuyck and several others the first part of last week.

H. Schwarz.

Worcester, Mass.

Trade at present is fairly satisfactory, and good flowers are a little too plentiful. The weather has kept very warm, and this, of course, has pushed things along in spite of every precaution. It has also helped to get in some late batches of lilies for Easter, but I still think that there will be a shortage of lilies about the ninth of April and also of azaleas.

It appears now as if we were to have a very early season; the land is in good plowing condition and the farmers have already planted some early crops. buds on trees and shrubs are swelling rapidly; the earthworms have come to the surface and every sign points to an unusually early spring.

The first spring exhibition of the Horti-cultural Society was held March 24, and was unusually fine, and was well patronized. The show of carnations was one of the best ever staged in the hall and embraced nearly all of the '97 novelties. H. F. A. Lange, F. S. Blake and H. B. Watts received the premiums in the order named. Cyclamens were also in fine shape, and the same can be said of the azaleas and hyacinths. H. F. A. Lange took first premium on all three. F. A. Blake was awarded first for some well done plants of Primula obconica, and F. B. Madaus for cinerarias, unusually good. G. Marsten Whitin showed a fine collection of orchids. A. H. L.

Milwaukee.

Trade has improved here during the last week, although many of the flowers have gone for a low price; pretty plants have been selling constantly. It is the pure love of them that induces purchasers to take them at low prices.

Palm Sunday is more of a feature for florists than usual, many churches hiring palms for decoration.

Many azaleas intended for Easter have come in too soon. Mr. F. P. Dilger appears to be the most successful in holding his back. Pot lilies will be quite scarce. Cut lilies will be plentiful. Churches will not decorate extensively. There promises to be a large demand for small parcels.

March weather has disappointed our expectations by being respectable.

Sweet peas and grass seed are selling quite lively.

C. B. W.

Rochester, N. Y.

An unusual quantity of Easter stock had been prepared this year, perhaps unproportionate to the requirements of the city trade, and if all this stock had done well and been ready for marketing next week, someone would have to stand the damage; there is even now more potted plants in view than are likely to be wanted unless the demand should jump up above all expectations. Some of our florists would find the growing of cut flowers of any description a surer source of income than the handling of holiday or Easter plants, flowers were hardly ever overplenty with us during the past winter, while plants were offered everywhere at comparatively low figures and a large percentage of them would not find purchasers at any price.

The cut flower market was well stocked for the past week and trade was good; a large amount of funeral work created an unexpected demand, and but very little stock was left at the end of each day.

Prices have not changed materially, only in violets and bulbous stock they are very uncertain, the former especially so, some lots would go as low as 30 cents per 100, while others might bring readily 5 cents on the sameday, but quality had something to do with this. J. B. K

SYNDICAT DES CULTIVATEURS D'OIGNONS A FLEURS,

OLLIOUES, (Var) FRANCE.

A Remarkable Foundation in France.

From time immemorial flower bulbs have been grown in the South of France. In the second half of this century the improved means of conveyance by land and sea have made those bulbs an article of commerce, well known both in North America and in Europe.

Down to 1889 nearly the whole crop of Southern France was bought for a tritle by forestallers, who sold the bulbs at high prices to their customers. Under the existing circumstances matters could scarcely be otherwise. Two great ditticulties lay in the way of most growers, viz., ignorance of foreign languages and the expensiveness of traveling, so the growers stayed at home and remained dependent on the fore taller.

In 1770 the state of things was changed. Three years before about 400 grows: liad met at Ollioules (Dept. du sar.) and founded a company: Le Syndicat des Cultivateurs d' Oignons a Fleurs. The purpose of this syndicate (entering into commercial relations with customers for their Roman bulbs) soon began to be realized, but not without great difficulties. The forestallers, not being able to gain the same profits as in former years, got the syndicate entangled in a lawsuit, which, in the Examining the Bulbs.

Treasurers.

Assessors.

Joseph Emeric Fils, }

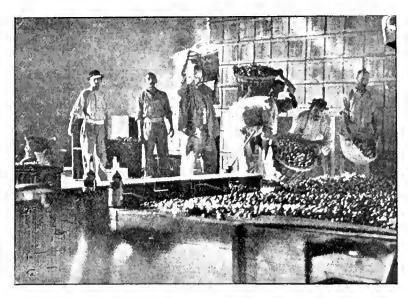

Edward Andrieux, Charles Arnand, Theodore Andrieux, Marius Bonnifay,

Anguste Infernet, Marius Emeric,

Gaston Lagarde, Manager.

During the management of the zealous and active Mr. G. Lagarde many improvements have been introduced, particularly referring to the treatment and the packing of Roman Hyacinths, Paper White Narcissus, etc., so that now the syndicate can offer their customers nearly full guarantee for the bulbs which are to be forwarded. In the month of June every member of the syndicate brings his whole crop to Spreading the Bulbs on Wooden Floors.

first instance, they lost; in the court of appeal however, they gained a glorious victory.

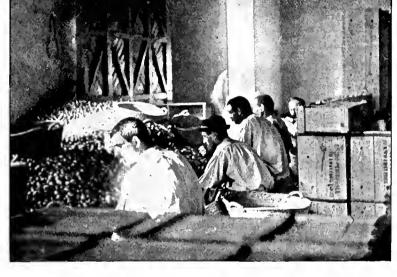

Since that time they have been steadily widening their sphere of action. Now, the syndicate consists, as stated above, of 400 members, cultivating an extent of several hundreds of hectares (3 hectares=5 acres). The board is composed as follows: A council of administration, consisting of 12 growers, and a director or manager appointed by election. Councillors are:

Theodore Fenouillet, President.

Alexandre Carvin,
Laurent Durand,

Vice-Pres.

Edward Mercheyer, Louis Fenouillet, Secretaries.

Sorting the Bulbs.

Women Wrapping the Liliums.

the syndicate stores, where it is received three times a week, by a committee of 3 members, one of them being a delegate of the council of administration.

How very busy this time must be may appear from the supply of every week, being on an average 1,500,000 bulbs. On receipt these bulbs are closely examined by the manager and the above mentioned committee. Only those which are thoroughly dry, in good condition and of the required size are accepted.

Immediately after acceptance the bulbs are spread on wooden floors to prevent them from heating; but not for any longer time than is required for sorting them according to their size.

Putting the Bulbs in Cases.

or in the case of Liliums, until they have been wrapped in tissue paper to guard them from damage.

As quickly as possible, for customers in general are not always so patient as might be desired, the bulbs have to be counted and put in cases. For two years past the syndicate has practiced existence of the syndicate only 1,500,000 bulbs were exported, this number has gradually increased, and since two years ago the syndicate unanimously appointed their sole agents the firm C. J. Speelman & Sons, wholesale growers of Dutch bulbs, the export has reached the number of Coopering and Nailing the Cases.

a more intable manner of packing the bulb, in consequence of which their arriving in good condition is guaranteed.

When they have been coopered, nailed up, marked and numbered, they are ready to be forwarded to their de tination.

though in the first year of the they have done until now.

about 4,000,000 bulbs a year, requiring the labor of some thirty men and women. Customers are found in the U. S. A. and Canada, in England, Scotland, Germany, Austria, Russia, Sweden, Norway, Denmark and Holland, and we confidently hope that the syndicate will go on prospering as they have done until now.

Jackson & Perkins Co.

Growers of Choice Specialties for Nurserymen and Florists....

NEWARK, NEW YORK. ROSES, NOVELTIES, Strong, field-grown, dormant plants.....

THREE NEW RAMBLERS, $1.75 per 10; $16 per 100.

LORD PENZANCE'S HYBRID SWEET BRIARS

$1.75 per 10; $15.00 per 100. Extra strong field-grown, dormant plants.

field-grown, dormant plants.
Varieties:
Amy Robsart-lovely deep rose. Anne of Ceierstein-dark crimson. Brenda-malden's bush or peach. Flora M'Ivor-pure white, blushed rose. Lady Penzance—(b) beautiful, soft that of copper with a peculiar metalle lustre. Lord Penzance—(b) soft shade of fawn or eerne passing to a lovely emerald yellow. Meg Merrilees, gorgeous crimson. Rose Bradwardine—beautiful clear rose.

ROSES, COMMON SORTS.

Strong, field-grown, dormant plants, $10 per 100
Mme. G. Bruant Mrs. John Laing
Magna Charta Princess Adelaide, Moss
Mme. G Luizet Ulrich Brunner
Mme. Plantier, $5 per 100.

TREE ROSES.

5 to 7 ft., extra line, $3.50 per 10; $25 per 100. Crimson, Pink, Rose Red, White, Yellow.

ORNAMENTAL SHRUBS. Per 100

| eutzias, assorted, 3 to 4 ft $7.00             |
|-------------------------------------------------|
| xochorda granditiora, tree-shape, 3 to 4 ft     |
| xochorda grandiflora, 2 to 3 ft., fine 10.00    |
| ringe, purple, 3 to 4 ft                        |
| ydrangea Red Branched Hydrangea Thos. Hogg.     |
| strong, field-grown, dormant plants with good   |
| crowns                                          |
| these now and old vertetion bridge and given on | shrub... 18 00

Complete list of unsold stock including additional Roses and Shrubs, Clematis, Ornamental Trees.
Confers. Small-Fruit Plants and Fruit Trees sent upon application. A postal card will bring it if you mention this paper.

JACKSON & PERKINS CO.

THE HOME OF THE

Rhododendron and Azalea...

HIGHLANDS NURSERY ** in the high Carolina Mountains.

Hardy American Native Trees, Shrubs and Herbaceous Perennials.

Finest stock for Park and Cemetery work, and now universally used by all leading Landscape Architects Rhododendrons, Kalmias, Tree Andromeda, Roses, Lilies, Ferns and Vines.

. Fine stock of Hemlocks, I to 2 ft. Also the beautiful and rare  $% \left( 1\right) =\left( 1\right) \left(

CAROLINA HEMLOCK (Tsuga Chrolinana.)

OVER 30,000 AZALEAS

Five species, leavily hudded and with balls

Write for catalogue and information. Address becommunications to office.

HARLAN P. KELSEY

1150 Tremont Bldg.,

BOSTON, MASS

Slapments from North Carolina.

Say "saw your ad, in the Florist" when you write advertisers.

SITUATIONS, WANTS, FOR SALE.

Advertisements under this head will be inserted at the rate of 10 cents a line (seven words) each insertion. Cash must accompany order. Plant advs. not admitted under this head.

Every paid subscriber to the AMERICAN FLORIST for the year 1888 is entitled to a five-line want adv. free to be used at any time during the year.

SITUATION WANTED—Where first-c'ass stock is grown. Best ret's past nod present employers; 24, state wages. W D care W. W. Coles, Kokomo, Ind.

SITUATION WANTED—By an experience d gardener and florist or private or commercial place; age 33, married. Best of references. W R. care American Florist.

CITUATION WANTED-By a first-clars grower of toses, 'mums, carnations, violets, tomatoes, cumbers and other plasts. Best references; married, no children F. F. RENTZ, Lancaster, Pa.

SITUATION WANTED—By florist with life experi-becein growing good cut flowers and plants. Am. Beauties a specialty Good references as working fore-man from presentemployer. A M. care Am Florist.

SITUATION WANTED-By A1 cut flower grower, roses specialty. Successful propagator; Hyears' experience. Sug'e. Address
L. J. Nielsen, 315 Jones Ave., Burlington, New Jersey.

SITUATION WANT AD-By competent florist and gardener. 38 years old, single speaks and reads German and English; would like charge of a private place as it rist and gardener. Best references steady place, fult wages. STEADY, care Am. Florist.

UTUATION WANTED—As foreman or manager to take charge of private or commercial place. Practical plant and cut flow-recover. A life long experience as a north and gardener. Leaving present employer to reasons which can be satisfactorily explained. Can be well recommended by present employer. Married, J. W., 306 27 th St., Milwankee, Wis.

WANTED-Few stock plants of Bouy-rdla: state va-rletles and price. F. L. Bills, Daveaport, .a.

WANTED-Two men for potting and two men for helping in rose houses. Apply to BASSETT & WASHBURN, Hinsdale, Ill.

WANTED-Price lists of young seedlings of all kinds of shade, fruit and ornamental trees. THEAKE VAN DER MEULEN, Dunkirk, N. Y.

WANTED-A florist, single man. Wages $20 per month with board and room. J. W. & E. E. ARNOLD, 1210 N. 18th St., Omaha, Neb, WANTED-Foreman for a commercial place: must be a No 1 rose grower, especially Beauties; mar-ried man preferred.

J. M. Rogers Park Station Y, Chicago.

WANTED-A reliable, industrious German for private garden. Must have references; no green-houses. Apply to ERNST WIENHOEBER, 415 E'm St., Chicago. houses.

WANTED TO RENT-Established florist business; houses must be 1 good condition. Or would buy interest in business. In writing give full particulars. Address G J G, care American Florist.

WANTED-Two single young men, one having fair knowledge of greenhouse work, the other capable of growing vegetables Willing to pay $29 and board.

P. O. Box 273 Huntington, L. I.

WANTED—A German florist, married to take a half share in a good business where roses, carnations, mums and general stock is used, in connection with store. No capital required. Can rent the place after the first season.

CP, care American Florist

WANTED AT ONCE—Man for general gardening, especially inderstanding care of lawns and shrubbery. Must be young man with experience, stogle, sober and industrious: 2 hours from Boston; wages $40 per month for 6 months; hoard and room cheap. Address J. C. RANE. Durham, N. H.

FOR SALE—Greenbouses on principal street in the city. For particulars apply to J. H. KEBSTOCK, 584 Main St., Buffalo, N. Y.

FOR SALE OR RENT CHEAP—Six well-stocked greenhouses, dwelling; etc. Beat R. R. facilities, no competition. Reason, poor health. W. L. Winn, White Hall, 111.

FOR RENT-A. II. Saxon Estate. Houses, 75 ft; 3,600 ft glass; 74 botbed frames; material for another house; well stocked. $25 per month.
A. H SAXON ESTATE. Downers Grove, Ill.

FOR SALE AT A BARCAIN.

Frame residence and three greenhouses: lot 125x175 feet; 50x110 feet nader glass. Death cause of wishing to sell. Address

MRS. kOEBLE, 2243 Leavitt St., Chicago.

FOR SALE.

Two Greenhouses, well stocked, no competition. House attached.

E. GRAVES, Pittsfield, III.

WANTED, TO BUY

in some good western or northwestern town. 10,000 to 20,000 square feet of glass in good repair and in good reaning order. Address, giving particulars,

H M. 912 So. Washington St., Denver, Colo.

Please mention the American Florist when writing to advertisers.

The New Garnation, Gerise Queen.

MOUNT GREENWOOD, ILL.

MOUNT GREENWOOD, ILL.

MR. FRED BREITMEYER,
Mt. Clemens, Mich.,
DEAR SUR:—In reply to yours for our experience of Cerise Queen, will say that under our treatment the color, form and substance is all that can be desired; we have also found it a very free and continuous bloomer and have never found a bursted ealyx the whole season; it is a little weak in the stem, but we lay that to the poor place in which it is growing also we think one should be careful and not overfeed it, as it does not need it, but produces a fine flower under ordinary care. Yours truly, C. W. JOHNSON.

II. DALE, Cut Flower Grower, Brampton, Ontario.

MESSRS. J. BREITMEYER & SONS,
Mt. Clemens, Mich.;
Gents:—The plants of Cerise Queen which you sent me last spring for trial have done well; the flower is of very pleasing color, stem medium length, 15 to 18 inches; habit of plant good. I shall plant it again next year.

Your truly.— H. DALE.

DAILLEDOUZE BROS.

DAILLEDOUZE BROS.

FLATHE'SH, BROOKLYN, N. Y.

JOHN BREITMEYER & SONS.

GENTS:—We have a few plants of your No. 16,
Cerise Queen, on trial; the flower is medium size,
but fine color, in fact the only fault we find is its dwarf habit; we should like to grow some for side benches, as we believe it far superior to Tidal Wave
for that purpose, and should make a commercial variety, but not high priced. Please give us your best price on 1000 rooted cuttings.

Very truly yours,

DAILLEDOUZE BROS.

GEO, A. RACKHAM, Wholesale Grower, Detroit, Mich.

J. BREITMEYER & SONS,
Mt. Clemens. Mich.,
DEARSINS: In reply to yours asking as to my success with your No. 16, Certse Queen, will say that I consider it the ideal Carnation of its type, very productive, continuous, stiff stem, of medium length, and holds its color longer on the plant than any Tidal Wave ever grown. I shall plant a house of it, if I am able to procure the stock.

Yours, GEO, A. RACKHAM.

We predict CERISE QUEEN is the coming Dark Pink Commercial Carnation. Orders booked and filled in rotation. Price, $2 per doz.; $10 per 100; $75 per 1000. Mexor Pingree the best of all yellows. Buy your stock from the Originators. Our stock is in excellent condition, $5 per 100; $10 per 1000, R. C.

JOHN BREITMEYER & SONS, Cor. Gratiot and Miami Aves DETROIT, MICH.

On Your Coal Bills If your Houses are Heated by a Furman Boiler.

> Send for large Hustrated Catalogue, Florists' Edition. Let us make you an estimate FREE.

THE HERENDEEN MFG. CO. 20 Vine Street, GENEVA, N. Y.

BRANCH OFFICES: BOSTON, 54 Oliver Street.
New York, 39 Cortlandt Street.
PBILADELPHIA, 1019 Betz Building.

.. Stand Up and Fight ..

You don't have to do it, you can SIT DOWN AND BID in comfort at

Cleary & Co.'s Auction Rooms

EVERY TUESDAY AND FRIDAY AT 11 A.M.

Trees, Shrubs, Roots, Bedding Plants, in infinite variety, from the best growers Sign of the Red Flag.

YOUR PRICE IS OURS.

60 Vesey Street, NEW YORK CITY.

40,000 NORWAY MAPLES

Young, thrifty and well-rooted, 6 to 15 feet high, 1 to 3 inches diameter. Low-branched for Parks, Lawns and Cemeteries;

High-branched for Avenue and Street Planting.

Sugar, Silver, Weir's Cut-leaved and Sycamore Maples, Oriental Planes, Poplars, Willows and a Choice Assortment of JAPANESE and other EVERGREEN TREES. California Privets, large plants for imme= diate effect, (Specimens and Hedge plants.)
Our prices and stock will please you. Trees in Car Load Lots a Specialty.

CHAS. B. HORNOR & SON,

Horticulturists and Nurserymen.

Mount Holly, Bur. Co., N. J.

Stock Cheap.

| $50 T(00)                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |
|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Feach trees $10,00 to $35,00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| PRIVET.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |
| 4 2 Propert 10 00 to 35 00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |
| t al. Privet                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |
| 20,000 Beld Stown Winherobers 20,000 to 85,000                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| Vertebit                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |
| Shrubs, our selection                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |
| Grasses, in variety. 30,00 to 60,00 Honeysnekle Evergreen. 30,00 to 60,00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |
| Japan Mapies, Atropurphreum, 12 to 18 inches.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |
| $3.00 per 10; $25.00 per 100.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |
| Large Shade Trees of all varieties, 214 to 4 inches                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |
| in diameter. Priced upon application.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |
| tarolina Poplar, fine Per 100                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |
| 8 to 10 ft                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |
| 10 to 12 ft 16.00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
| 19 to 14 ft                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |
| 14 to 16 ft                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |
| Pin Daks—                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |
| 4 to 5 ft.,                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |
| 6 to 5 ft                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |
| Sec. 10.17                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |
| - San Kardish Reedy Macabla Hypoleuca, Faryi                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |
| flora, Steliata, Watsonii and Conspicua.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |
| Proces on ambiguitum.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |
| 100,000 Evergreens and small shribs cheap, for                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| transplanting. Send for price list.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |
| Per 100                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |
| pi0,000 Dwarf Box $1.50 to $3.00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |
| Hollybooks, to color. 6.00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |
| Hollis Box 83, total of the control |
| Thempile naliminal straight                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |
| Phlex, 15 varieties, fine pot plants 5.00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |

The Elizabeth Nursery Co.,

96 Broad St , ELIZABETH, N. J.

GREENHOUSES

HOW TO BUILD THEM AND HOW TO CARE FOR THEM

"Greenhouse Construction," by L. R. Taft, Prof. of Horthenhure. Mich. Agr.l. College. The only American work devoted to the building and heating of greenhouses. Gives plant and practical directions for constructing glass houses of all kind-

Price, postpaid, $1.50

** Greenhouse Management," by the same author. Treats of the growing of the leading greenhouse erops including flowers, vegetables and fruits. Particular attention given to the leading crops of commercial florists, and to the insects and diseases of greenhouse plants. 300 pages. Just out.

Price, postpaid, $1.50

Both books are profusely illustrated. Address orders to

L. R. TAFT,

Agricultural College P. O., Mich.

VANCE BOILERS

For Heating Greenhouses, Conservatories and Dwellings......

VANCE BOILER WORKS, Geneva, N.Y.

TO SUCCEED IN GARDENING YOU MUST HAVE FIRST-RATE SEED

BURPEE'S

SEEDS

SEEDS

CROW

Do you know what a first-rate seed is? It is bred up, just as a horse, or cow, or dog, or hen is. Vegetables and flowers are poor in their natural state; they are fair in their usual state; they are rich in the proper seedsman's provingground. And the richer they are the more unstable they are they tend back, as water runs down hill. A first-rate vegetable or flower seed goes back to a lower grade as soon as it ceases to feel the seedsman's care. This care is not cultivation; it is sorting out and breeding up.

The wise gardener trusts no seedsman's seeds in the next generation. He gathers no seeds himself; he buys of his seedsman every year, and so does his wife.

You see, the farmer's and gardener's first anxiety is, not plows and harrows, but seeds. Any plow will plow, any harrow will harrow; but first-rate seeds he must have, or fail in his crops.

Do you plant for PROFIT?

If so, you should write for BURPEE'S BLUE LIST, which gives wholesale prices for Market Gardeners, Florists and Farmers' Clubs, #3-In writing for this list be sure to ask also for our complete descriptive catalogue—The FARM ANNUAL FOR 1898—if you have not already received a copy.

BURPEE'S SEEDS are the BEST THAT GROW

W. ATLEE BURPEE & CO., PHILADELPHIA.

Please mention the American Florist when writing to advertisers.

THIS SPACE RESERVED #FOR WELCH BROS., No. 9 CHAPMAN PL., 15 PROVINCE ST., BOSTON, MASS. WHO ARE TOO BUSY TO WRITE ADVERTISEMENT

YOU CAN ALWAYS RELY UPON THEM.

Bulbs...Implements

OF THE HIGHEST QUALITY ONLY

LAWN GRASS SEED...

...and LAWN MOWERS
A SPECIALTY

Illustrated Catalogue and Price List sent FREE

HENRY F. MICHELL,

FOR SALE CHEAP.

GLASS for Greenhouses, Conservatories, Hotbeds, etc. Also Hotbed Sashes and Mats, Paints, Oils, etc. THE REED GLASS &
PAINT CO., 456 W. Broadway, NEW YORK.

IT IS GOOD BUSINESS POLICY TO MENTION THE AMERICAN FLORIST WHEN YOU WRITE TO AN ADVERTISER.

DUTCH BULBS

HERMAN C. BAARTMAN

Sassenheim, Holland

....ADDRESS TILL MAY 10.....

KNAUTH, NACHOD and KÜHNE.....

13 WILLIAM STREET, NEW YORK.

Send for Wholesale Price List

WOODEN LABELS for FLORISTS and NURSERYMEN

Being located at the head center of this country for White Pine Lumber we are able to buy our stock right and turnish our customers with goods of the best quality and at prices which will put them at your station lower than the lowest. Our factory is thoroughly equipped and turning out promptly the most uniform, smooth and best painted goods made in this country, put up in neat packages, guaranteed full count and nicely crated.

SEND FOR SAMPLES AND PRICES.

WOODEN GOODS COMPANY, 83 Western Ave., MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.

Louisville, Ky.

Unusual warm and cloudy weatheraccompanied with unceasing rains for over a week past has played sad havoc with a great many flowers intended for Easter sales, forcing out a great many too early, thus over throwing the calculations of a great many florists for a good lot of several leading sorts of flowers; nevertheless a few florists will be right in the swim with lilies and bulbons stock generally.

Nanz & Neuner excel this spring with first-class carnations and mignonette.

Thompson & Son can pride themselves with very well grown cinerarias of an unusual good strain of the dwarf largeflowering class

Jacob Schutz will as usual lead in quantity and quality of his bulbous stock, and a house full of Harrisii lilies will come in just right for Easter.

Chas. Reinard will have a good lot of lilacs, and a splendid batch of lily of the valley for Easter.

George Shulz had this winter the best single as well as double violets, and feels justly proud of the fact.

Marret has his show house well stocked with a fine well grown lot of begonias. A bed of Bridesmaid roses in first-class condition will bring a rich harvest for Easter.

Ed. Reimers has for a year made a specialty of decorative plants, and his India rubbers, one and a half to two feet in height, well covered with grand foliage, will meet with ready sales this spring.

Haupt's Floral Bazaar, with its fine show window, shows to great advantage some good flowers from several home growers and Chicago houses.

Sam Thompson seems to monopolize the trade in cheaper work, and the opening of the American Restaurant's new building gave new testimony to that effect

Our park commissioners had to send east this spring for a forester to teach their park superintendents and other employes how to trim and eare for trees.

I believe the florists have decided to do without a spring show this year.

C. G. N.

COLLEGE OF FORESTRY.—The state of New York has appropriated $10,000 for the establishment of a College of Forestry at Cornell University

Standard Made by

For shepping Special Attention Given to Mail Orders and Special Sizes Made to Order

KELLER BROS.

NORRISTOWN, PA.

Price Lists Furnished on Application.

STANDARD ....FLOWER

W Solven to a fine a series of the process Address

HILFINGER BROTHERS POTTERY FORT EDWARD, N. Y.

FLOWER POTS

J. G. SWAHN'S SONS, MINNEAPOLIS, MINN

SYRACUSE POTTERY CO. Flower Pots,

Bulb Pans, Hanging Baskets and Saucers

OUR FLOWER POTS are standard measure and all first-class and we assure you they will give good satisfaction. We call your attention to our new pots, 6, 7, 8 and 9-inch, called the "Poro Pot." They are more Porous than any pots, smoother inside and outside, perfect drainage, and are easily washed and cleaned. Give them a trial and you will not want any other. Remember these Pots are as cheap as any other Pot on the market. Write for price list.

SYRACUSE POTTERY CO.

SYRACUSE, N. Y.

Standard Flower Pots...

OUR POTS ARE OF THE BEST QUALITY.

We ship all goods from Cincinnati, guaranteeing lowest freight rates and prompt delivery.

Write us before placing your orders elsewhere. . . . . . .

CAMBRIDGE TILE MFG. CO., Covington, Ky.

OLD RELIABLE MAKE OF Elverson. Sherwood & Barker.

Write for price list. Address

PITTSBURG CLAY MFG. CO.,

New Brighton, Pa.

FERN PANS and

AZALEA POTS...

THE BEST STANDARD FLOWER POTS

WI make the best flower pot for Florists and general use made in America, as many dealers in Mich. III. Wis. and Ind. can testify. We invite a trial order and will be pleased to send prace list. Our business demanded a Western Office and we have recently established a Chicago office at 115 Dearborn St., MR. M. f. PARRINIAU, Aqt. Give him a call.

■ONIA POTTERY CO.,

Manufacturers of Standard Flower Pots.

THE IONIA POTTERY CO., Ionia, Mich.

🚅 GEO. KELLER & SON,

Flower Pots.

Before buying write for prices. 361-363 Herndon Street, near Wrightwood Ave.,

CHICACO, ILL.

Mention American Florist

"STANDARDS"

FULL SIZE AND WIDE BOTTOMS, BULB PANS AND AZALEA LOTS.

DETROIT FLOWER POT M'F'Y. HARRY BALSLEY, DETROIT, MICH., 490 HOWARD ST.

Standard * * FLOWER

If your greenhouses are within 500 miles of the Capitol, write us; we can save you money.

W. H. ERNEST,

Station M. N. E.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

*****************************

米米米米米米米米米米米米米米米米米米米米米米米米米米米米米

Few Easter Favorites

200,000 VIOLETS

AMERICAN BEAUTIES—
SPECIAL.....

LILY OF THE VALLEY LONGIFLORIUM LILIES TULIPS, DAFFODILS, ETC.

ADDRESS FOR PRICE LIST,

**********************************

E. C. HORAN,

34 WEST TWENTY-NINTH STREET, NEW YORK CITY.

SUBSCRIBERS PLEASE

Speak Up...

THIS TIME and say to our advertisers: SAW & SYOUR AD. IN THE

American Florist

AND DON'T SPELL IT ANY OTHER WAY

Sorry You Bought Bulbs?

Because they proved inferior, or Because you paid too much?

₼.₼.₼

....OUR BUSINESS....

نۍ خوه نوه د ښ

STUMPP & WALTER CO.

High Grade Seeds and Bulbs....

50 Barclay St., NEW YORK.

ŬĦĦĦĦĦĦĦĦĦĦĦĦĦĦĦĦĦĦĦĦĦĦĦĦĦĦĦĦĦĦĦĦ

GREENHOUSE MATERIAL

Cal. Red Cedar and Louisiana Cypress.

BEST GRADES. PERFECT WORKMANSHIP.

A. DIETSCH & CO. SHEFFIELD AVE. CHICAGO, ILL.

Easter Greeting

M. RICE & CO.

25 N. Fourth St., Philadelphia, Pa.

PAPIER MACHE POT COVERS

One of the CHEAPEST AND BEST ADVERTISEMENTS for YOU. Put a COVER on EACH pot that goes out of your store, stamp your name, etc., on the same and your advertisement remains as long as either plant or cover,

SPECIAL PRICES

| SECIAL FRICES                              |       |         |  |
|--------------------------------------------|-------|---------|--|
| Sizes 6-in,                                | 7-in. | 8-in.   |  |
| Price per doz., Brown                      | 50c   | 60c     |  |
| Price per doz., Gold, Silver, White 75c    | 90c   | $1.00  |  |
| Silver, Gold, White and Brown, assorted si | zes:  |         |  |
| Price per 100 $6.00 Price per 1000 |       | $50.00 |  |
| 50 at 100 rate; 500 at 1000 rate.          |       |         |  |

OUR STOCK OF SUPPLIES

Is most complete for YOUR EASTER WANTS and shall be pleased to receive your esteemed orders.

PRICES ON APPLICATION.

Cycas Leaves, Baskets, Wheat Sheaves, Doves, Pins, Foil, Pot Covers, Iron Plant Stands, Wire, etc., etc.

Steam and Hot Water Heating.

There are comparatively few steam and hot water fitters who make a specialty of greenhouse heating, and as a consequence many fitters know little about this class of work. The florist himself is often compelled to take a hand in the fitting of his heating pipes, and not always as a matter of economy, but as a matter of necessity.

There are often many changes to be made from time to time, in the line of heating pipes, caused by extensions or additions to the houses, some slight and others quite extensive. The heating plant of a greenhouse is the most important consideration. The florist therefore should be practical in the matter of heating as well as in cultivation. He should know how to properly heat any space to any desired temperature, by the various systems in use. He should be able to run the necessary lines of pipe, make the joints, and do all the necessary work of this kind, and by having the knowledge to do all this, laboring men may be hired to execute the work.

Every greenhouse should have a good set of pipe fitter's tools, in order to be able to make necessary repairs without delay. In greenhouses of any extent it is a good policy to keep also on hand extra pipe, and a fair assortment of fittings, as well as a quantity of all necessary material used on such work and not depend on finding some special fitting, or other material that may be wanted in a hurry, at some plumbing or tin shop.

There is a great variety of pipe fittings for the various angles and positions in heating plants, and it is a proper thing to be acquainted with them, to know their correct names and to know just where these various special pipes and fittings can be purchased.

The two special systems of greenhouse heating are steam and hot water. With the steam system of heating wrought iron pipes are alone used, while with the hot water system of heating, either wrought iron or cast iron pipes may be used. Many of the leading boiler manufacturers of this country are, of late years, giving special attention to greenhouse heating, and are producing boilers with special features for this class of work.

There are also many new arrangements of pipes and special appliances pertaining to greenhouse heating, which we propose to illustrate and explain from time to time in these columns, in a comprehensive and practical way, so that the florist who deserves to be up to date in greenhouse heating can do so. A cheap way of constructing a hot water heating plant for greenhouse work is by using old boiler tubes. There is scarcely a concern which makes wrought iron tubular boilers, that has not at all times large numbers of old tubes that have been taken from condemned boilers. Such tubes cannot be placed in new boilers again even should some of them be good, and the consequence is that they go to the scrap heap and are melted up. As such tubes are generally in long lengths, they can be used to advantage under long benches for heating coils, fitted together in the same manner as the regular cast iron greenhouse pipe, with calked rust joints. The regular greenhouse cast iron fittings will not answer to connect with the boiler tubes, but cast iron soil pipe fittings will answer for this purpose, and they can be found in any market.

To use old boiler tubes of two and a quarter or two and a half inches in diameter as heating pipes, two inch soil pipe fittings would answer, and to use tubes of three and a quarter or three and a half inch diameter, three inch soil pipe fittings would be the proper size. As the pressure of water on such plants would be very light the standard weight of fittings would do the work and at the same time be the cheapest. As there will be no threaded joints on such work, it will simply be necessary to use a pipe cutter to get the correct lengths in fitting ends of lines, and at the same time carefully ream out the ends of the tubes after they have been cut, so that the rough ends will give as little resistence to the flow of water as possible. JAMES J. LAWLER.

A Novel Idea.

A clever Tremont street florist has succeeded in keeping a crowd of sightseers in front of his window by exhibiting a chip hat very artistically trimmed with violets and other natural flowers. The combination proves too much for the female heart, and as a consequence of much profit to the florist and corresponding loss to the unfortunate swain.—Louisville Post.

The Central New York Horticultural Society has made arrangements to give three premiums at its exhibition next fall to the children who are able to win them. In May or June the society will distribute 1500 chrysanthemums among the local school children. The three children whose plants make the best appearance at the fall exhibition will receive the prizes.

SYCAMORE, ILL.—Elmer Boynton will build two greenhouses, each 24x100 feet.

A CHANGE OF NAME

Don't mean a change of our policy which is and always has been that of square and honorable dealing, with promptness and dispatch. ** ** ** ** Entrust your orders with us and rest assured you get what you want. ** ** ** Our EASTER STOCK IS LARGE AND OF FINE QUALITY. ** ** ** ** If you want the best and expect your order filled complete, ORDER EARLY. ** ** ** **

...S. B. Winter...

Successor to WINTER & GLOVER

21 Randolph St., CHICAGO.

IF YOU FAIL TO GET OUR PRICE LIST, SEND FOR IT.

DECORATIVE PLANTS FOR EASTER

es as are especially suited for decorative purposes. For a full line of this class of stock, see We enumerate below only such varieties and size our Quarterly Wholesale Price List, issued March 15th.

STANDARD OR TREE-SHAPED BAYS.

| 5    | ſŧ. | high | crown | 15- ins.  | in dian | ١. | $ 2,50 |
|------|-----|------|-------|-----------|---------|----|-------------|
| ri . | ſt. |      |       | 36-ins.   |         |    | 10,00   |
| GL.  | ft. | 4    |       | 42-ins.   |       |    | 15.00       |
| m.   | ft. |      |       | 45-1115.  | 1.0     |    | 15.00   |
| 7    | ft. | - *  |       | fill-ins. |         |    | (0,00   |

PYRAMIDAL-SHAPED BAYS

| THAMBAL OUR ED BATOL                                 |             |          |
|------------------------------------------------------|-------------|----------|
| 7 ft. high, 32-ins. diam, at base, tapering          | $\{ \omega$ |          |
| points ft. high, 36-ins, diam, at base, tapering | . ,-        | 10,00    |
| s ft. high, 36-ins. diam. at base, tapering          | 111         | 12.00    |
| s ft high, 40 ins. diam, at base, tapering           | to          | 1 3.1111 |
| point.                                               |             | 15.00    |
| *                                                    |             |          |

CONICAL OR PILLAR BAYS.

| 9 | ft. h | igh, 36-ins | diam. at | base, | 12-ins.  | at top. | 25.100 |
|---|-------|-------------|----------|-------|----------|---------|--------|
| 7 | II.   | 54-1ns.     | * -      |       | 30-111~. |         | 40.00  |

STANDARD OR TREE-SHAPED BOX.

7-in, pots,26 to 28-ins, high, with 12-in, crowns, 4 00

PYRAMIDAL-SHAPED BOX.

n pars, 32 to 36-ins, high, 15-in, diam, at base, tapering to a point

CIBOTIUM SCHIEDEI.

Undoubtedly the finest of all Tree Ferns, and while it has a most debeate appearance, stands better than any other. Possesses a grace bound in no other plant and used extensively by castern decorators. Fine plants, 7-in. pots $2.50 each.

ARECA LUTESCENS.

| Inch puts.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     | Height.      | Each.  | 107.    |
|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|--------------|--------|---------|
| n Very bushy                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   | 28 to 30 ms. | $1.00 | $12.00 |
| 7 10 10 10 10 10 10                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | 32 to 36 ··· | 1.50   | 15,00   |
| Mark Control of the C | 36 to 42     | $,50  | 30,00   |
| 36                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | 42 to 45     | 3.00   | 36,00   |
| 9 Heavy single plant                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | < 45 to 60 " | 6,00   |         |

|            | CUCUS        | WEDDELIANA.               |         |
|------------|--------------|---------------------------|---------|
| Inch pots. | Height.      | Per duz.                  | Per 100 |
| 3          | 8 to 10 ins. | 82.50                     | $20,00 |
| 3          | 10 to 13 "   | 3,00                      | 25.00   |
| 3          | 15           | 5.00                      | 40,00   |
| 11 1.      | at a line    | and the second control of | ·       |

We also offer a limited number of specimen plants in 8-in. pots, 3 to 3½ ft. high, with 8 to 9 leaves 36,00 each.

STANDARD BAY.

LATANIA BORBONICA.

4-In. pots. 4 to 5 leaves, an excellent lot of exceptional value,83 per doz.,$25 per 100, $225 per 100; 5-in pots, 5 to 6 leaves. 18 ro24-in. bigh. We have an immense stock of this fine size for retailing $5 per doz., $40 per 100; 6-in. pots. 5 to 6 leaves, 18 to 24-in. bigh, $9 per doz., $50 per 100; 7-in pots, 6 leaves, 24-in. bigh, $12 per doz., $100 per 100.

KENTIA BELMOREANA.

| pots.    | Leaves.    | Heigh    | t.   | Each.         | Dozen   |
|----------|------------|----------|------|---------------|---------|
| 4        | 5 to 6     | 15 to 18 | ins. | $ 0.50       | $ 6.00 |
| 65       | 6          | 24 to 30 |    | 1.75          | 21.00   |
| 6        | 6          | 30       | 1.6  | 2.00          | 24.00   |
| 7        | fi to 7    | 32 to 36 | 9.1  | 2.25          | 27.00   |
| 8        | 6 to 7     | 36 to 42 | 1.5  | 4.00          |         |
| 8        | 7          | 42 to 48 | 4.5  | 5,00          |         |
| 9        | 6 to 7     | 48 to 54 | 1.5  | 7.50          |         |
| 10       | 6 to 7     | 54       | * 1  | 10,00         |         |
| 13       | 7 to 8     | 7 feet   | *    | 35,00 to $50 | 0,00    |
| 16-in. t | ubs 8 to 9 | 9 feet   |      | 75.00 to 100  | 00,0    |

KENTIA BELMOREANA-Made-up Plants.

7-in, pots, 4 plants in a pot, center plant about 30 ins, high, others about 18 ins, high, $3.50 each.

9-in pots, 4 plants in a pot, center plant about 36 ins, high others about 20 ins, high, $5.00 each.

9-in, pots, 4 plants in a pot, center plant about 4 feet high, others about 2 feet high, $10.00 each.

KENTIA FORSTERIANA.

| pots.     | Leaves. | Heigh    | f    | Each.         | Dozen   |
|-----------|---------|----------|------|---------------|---------|
| 6         | 6       | 30 to 36 |      |               | $18,00 |
| 7         | 6       | 36       |      | 2,00          | 24.00   |
| 8         | 6       |          |      | 3.50          |         |
| 9         | 15      | 48       |      | 6,00          |         |
| 9         | 6       | 52       | * 5  | 7,50          |         |
| 10        | 6       | 430      | 1.   | 10,00         |         |
| 13-in, tu | bs. 7   | 6        | feet | 25,00         |         |
| 12 "      | 7       | li.      |      | $35.00 to $ | 50,00   |
| 14        | ī       | 7 to 8   |      | 35.00 to      | 50,00   |
| 16 "      | ĩ       | 10       | • •  | 75,00 to 1    | 00,00   |

KENTIA FORSTERIANA - Made-up Planis.

8-in, pots, 3 plants of equal height, from 36 to 42 inches high, in a pot, $3.50 cach.

10-in, pots, 4 plants in pot, center plant 5 feet high, others 2 feet high, $10,00 each.

12-in, pots, 5 plants in pot, center plant 6 feet high, others 21/4 feet high, $25.00 each.

HENRY A. DREER, 714 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

LILIES, ROSES, CARNATIONS, ROMANS, TULIPS, VON SIONS

EVERYTHING IN A FLOWERS FOR EASTER

Principal dealers in Cut Flowers, Palms, Ferns, Decorative, Greenhouse and Bedding Plants West of the Mississippi. Send for Wholesale Price List.

St. Louis Cut Flower Co..

E. H. MICHEL.

____1620 Olive Street, ST. LOUIS, MO

THE AMERICAN FLORIST'S & MAN PRICE $2.00. MAN PRICE $2.00.

Harrisburg, Pa.

The gloomy weather of last week has decreased business but we should not complain as this winter in every respect has been more satisfactory than last.

The Bermuda lilies look very promising, but owing to the disease with which so many bulbs have been affected, there will be a considerable loss. I have tried the bulbs in four different ways. First, by selecting loam which had not been used for a number of years, without manure of any kind. Second, by potting them in three different sized pots 4, 5 and 6-inch. Third, by potting one half of the number outside in a shady place, and the other half in a coal house during the summer. Fourth, by keeping one part growing right along, while the other part received regular treatment.

I find that those which received the loam without manure, and were placed outside in 5 and 6 inch pots, and kept there until quite cold, then removed into the house and allowed to grow right along showed less disease and gave better results; while the others that were given regular treatment were one-half diseased.

I do believe that the treatment men-tioned above will ripen the bulbs the disease being caused by them being shipped when too green.

I will be glad to hear of the trials and results of other florists.

Our local florists at present are kept very busy. The old reliable establishment of the Joseph Schmidt is crowded with funeral and decorating work, and has been given large orders for the holidays.

The Melrose Flower Co. is doing a large business, as is shown by the orders given by it to the Paxton Greenhouses and other wholesale establishments.

C. E. T.

ashes cheap. ALSO PURE GROUND BONE.

Write for prices CEORGE STEVENS, Peterborough, Ont.

Wholesale Flower Markets

| Charles and Manach Cl      |
|----------------------------|
| Cincinnati, March 31.      |
| Roses. Beauties select     |
| medium                     |
|                            |
| " Brides 4 00@ 5 00        |
| Driuesmanus 4 una 5.mi     |
| " Meteors 5.00@ 6.00       |
|                            |
| " Perles 4 00              |
| Carnations                 |
| " fancy 2.00@ 3 00         |
| Lily of the vailey 3.00    |
| Billy of the valley 3.00   |
| Romans 2 00                |
| Narcissus 3.00             |
| Daffodils 3,00             |
| The later                  |
| Violets                    |
| Harristi                   |
| Callas 8.00@10.00          |
| Tulips                     |
|                            |
| Smilax                     |
| Adiantum 1.00              |
| Asparagus 50.00            |
| Asparagus                  |
| Om Lawra Manch 01          |
| St. Louis, March 31.       |
| Roses, Beautles 2 50@35 00 |
| th Marcons 1,00% c 00      |

| Roses, Beautles 2 50@35 00       |
|----------------------------------|
| " Meteors 1.00 @ 6.00            |
| " Brides, Bridesmalds 2,00@ 6.00 |
| " Perles                         |
| " Wootton 1.00@ 3 00             |
| " La France                      |
| " Kaiserin 2.00@ 6.00            |
| " Carnot 1.00@ 6 00              |
| Carnations                       |
| Violets, California              |
| Lily of the valley 2.00          |
| Harrisii                         |
| Callas 8,00@10,00                |
| Tuftps 3.00 a 5,00               |
| Narcissus. Romans 1 00@ 2.00     |
| Smilax                           |
| Freesia 2.00@ 2.50               |
| **                               |

| MILWAUKEE, APIH 1.                 |
|------------------------------------|
| Roses. Beautiesper dozen 1.00@3.00 |
| " Brides, Bridesmalds 3.00@ 6.00   |
| " Perle, Belle                     |
| " Meteors 3.00@ 6.00               |
| Carnations                         |
| Violets                            |
| Romans                             |
| Lally of the valley                |
| Freeslas 2 00@ 3.00                |
| Tullps. Hyacinths 2.006 3.00       |
| Von Slous, Jonquils 2.00@ 3.00     |
| Callas, Harristi 8.00@10.00        |
| Smilax                             |
| RIPPALO March 21                   |

| BUFFALU, March of.                   |       |
|--------------------------------------|-------|
| Roses, Beautles                      | 50.00 |
| " Brides, Bridesmaids, Meteors 8.00@ | 12.00 |
| " Perles 5.00@                       |       |
| " Niphetos 5.00@                     |       |
| " Kaiserin, Mermets 8.00@            |       |
| Carnations extra 3 00@               | 4 00  |
| " ordinary 2.50@                     |       |
| Lily of the valley 3 00@             | 4 00  |
| Violets                              | 1 00  |
| Romans3.00@                          | 6.00  |
| Harrisii                             | 15.00 |
| Smllax                               | 20.00 |
| Adiantum 1.25@                       | 1.50  |
| Aspsragus50.00@                      |       |
|                                      |       |

Asparagus Plumosus Nanus.

Strings 8 to 10 feet long,

50 CENTS.

W. H. ELLIOTT, Brighton, Mass.

Consignments of Violets

Alfred H. Langjahr Cut Flowers at Wholesale

19 Boerum Place, BROOKLYN, N. Y. Estab. 1801 Tel. 939 Brooklyn.

WE WILL HAVE THEM!

8,000 CUT

ALL OTHER SEASONABLE FLOWERS

At the Right Prices.

GOOD PACKING.

Place your order now for Easter delivery

HOLTON & HUNKEL CO.

Wholesale Florists and Florists' Supplies. Wire Work,

'Phone Main 874. P. O. Box 103.

C. A. KUEHN. Wholesale Florist.

ST. LOUIS, MO.

A complete line of Wire Designs.

MOUND CITY CUT FLOWER CD.

Wholesale Florists.

CONSIGNMENTS SOLICITED

Special attention given to shipping orders 1322 Pine St., ST. LOUIS, MO.

Headquarters for the South West....

When writing mention American Florist

ST. LOUIS CUT FLOWER CO.

Wholesale Florists

E. H. MICHEL SE SE SE SE

1620 Olive St. ST. LOUIS, MO.

ROSES, CARNATIONS, AND ALL KINDS OF SEASONABLE FLOWERS IN STOCK.

WM. F. KASTING WHOLESALE COMMISSION FLORIST....

495 Washington St., Buffalo, N. Y. Also Dealer in Florists' Supplies and Wire Oesigns

W. A. MCFADDEN.

NEAVE BUILDING. CINCINNATI.

Producers and Shippers of every description of High Class Floral Supplies.

CATTLEYAS and DENDROBIUM NOBILE.

Quotations issued weekly, forwarded

THE "OLD RELIABLE" FOR

WHOLESALE

Hunt's Flowers Go Everywhere

76 Wabash Ave., CHICAGO.

WHOLESALE CUT FLOWERS AND FLORISTS SUPPLIES. WIRE WORK 88 WABASHAVE CHICAGO.

E. C. AMLING. WHOLESALE

CHICAGO. Consignments Solicited.

Prompt attention to shipping orders.

A. G. PRINCE & CO. AND FLORISTS' SUPPLIES.

ROOTED GARNATION GUTTINGS

Albertini and Bridesmaid, $2,00 per 100; Daybreak, $1,50 per 100; Lizzie McGowan, Ivory, Lizzie Gilbert, Fred Dorner and Rose Queen, $8,00 per 1000.

88 & 90 Wabash Avenue,

lelephone Main 3208.

CHICAGO.

S. B. WINTER.

(Successor to WINTER & GLOVER,)

21 Randolph St., Chicago.

GRADE LU

PACKED RIGHT,

so they will reach you in just as good condition as they reach us.

WIRE DESIGNS: A Full Line. Write us for our Illustrated Catalogue.

IF YOU WANT EASTER FLOWERS OR FLORISTS' SUPPLIES

OOK FOR THE AD. OF THE

I KIPI T I N

ON BACK COVER PAGE.

Wholesale Flower Markets

CHICAGO, April 1. Roses, Beauties ... per doz, 1.00@5.00 "Brides ... per doz, 1.00@5.00 "Meteors, Bridesmalds, Kalserin, 3.00@ 6.00 "Perle, Gontiers ... 2.00@5.00 "La France, Testout ... 6.00@10.00 "In a fancy ... 3.00@6.6.00 Violets ... ... 50@2.1.00 Narcissus, Romans ... 2.00@4.00 Callas ... ... 8.00@10.00 Harriell ... 8.00@10.00 Harriell ... 8.00@10.00 Lily of the valley ... 2.00@4.4.00 Tulips ... 1.00@4.4.00 Tulips ... 1.00@4.4.00 Tulips ... 3.00@8.8.00 Adiantum ... 12.00@15.00 Asparagos ... 50.00@75.00 CHICAGO, April 1.

Consignments Solicited.

All Florists' Supplies.

19 & 21 RANDOLPH STREET, Fine Stock a Specialty. CHICAGO.

Wholesale Florist

DON'T FORGET that we are at the old number, 126 Dearborn St., Chicago.

Write for special quotations on large orders.

THE AMERICAN FLORIST'S COLOR CHART

r accepted as the standard in preparing color descriptions, by many foreign houses as well as in America

PRICE IS CENTS POSTPAID. AMERICAN ELORIST CO., 322 Dearborn St., Chicago

N. Y. CUT FLOWER EXCHANGE

404-412 E. 34th St. Near Ferry Open for Cut Flower Sales at 6 o'clock Every Morning.....

DESIRABLE WALL SPACE TO RENT FOR ADVERTISING.

JOHN DONALDSON, Secretary.

₩₩Wholesale Florists

III West 30th Street, NEW YORK.

Consignments Solicited. Telephone, 260 38th St.

JAMES M.

Commission Dealer in

Cood Money for your Flowers. Good Flowers for your Money 49 WEST 29TH ST , NE TELEPHONE 1675 38th St. NEW YORK.

THE NEW YORK CUT FLOWER CO.

119 and 121 West 23d Street, 112 and 114 West 24th Strest,

Telephone 733-18th.

NEW YORK.

CONSIGNMENTS SOLICITED. Special Attention Given to Shipping Orders.

ROGERS PARK FLORAL CO..

Wholesale Growers of

FLOWERS. 51 WABASH AVENUE,

- CHICAGO.

HEADQUARTERS FOR AMERICAN BEAUTIES.

WHOLESALE GROWERS OF

600,000 Leet of Glass. We can lill all orders on short notice with all leading varieties of Roses and Carnations. We Are Headquarters for the American Beautles. Give us a trial and convince yourself. I was

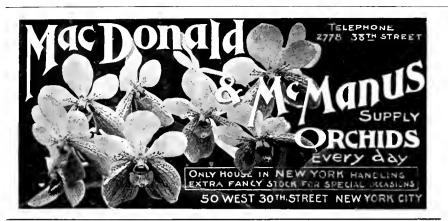

Per 100 #1,50 1,50 1,50 #10.50 10.50 BRIDESMAID 12.50 1.50 KAISERIN BELLE SIEBRECHT

ROSE PLANTS

ROOTED CARNATION CUTTINGS.

| JUBILEE          |         | 2.00   | 15.00   |
|------------------|---------|------------|---------|
| Wm Scott         |         | , 1 00 | 7.50    |
| Nancy Hanks      |         | E DO   | 7.50    |
| Tldaf Wave       |         | E 00   | 7.50    |
| Portla.          |         | 1 00   | 7.50    |
| Lizzie McGowan . |         | 1.10   | 7,50    |
| Goldfineli .     |         | 1.00   | 7 60    |
| Mrs Thompson .   |         |            | 7.50    |
| Daybreak .       |         | 1.50   | 12.50   |
|                  |         |            | 12.50   |
|                  |         |            | 12.50   |
|                  |         |            | 12.50   |
| Harrison's White | * |            | 12.60   |
|                  |         |            | 12, 50  |
|                  |         |            |         |
| Mines 11111      |         |            | 25, 400 |

51 WABASH AVENUE. CHICAGO. REINBERG BROS..

M. A. HART. Commission Dealer Cut Flowers. 44 WEST 29TH STREET,

NEW YORK CITY. THE BEST MARKET IN NEW YORK. 'Phone 1307 38th $t.

TRAENDLY & SCHENCK, Wholesale Florists.

Control the stock of many celebrated growers and are prepared to quote prices on First Grade Cut Flowers. All varieties.

38 West 28th St., and Cut Flower Exchange, NEW YORK CITY. Tel. 961 18th Street

FRED. EHRET.

No. 1403 Fairmount Avenue,

felephone, Long Distance.

PHILADELPHIA.

Wholesale Flower Markets

| NEW YORK, March 30                                       |       |
|----------------------------------------------------------|-------|
| Roses, Beautles                                          | .00   |
| " Brides, Bridesmalds 2 00@ 6                            | .00   |
| " Testout, Carnot 3.00@ 8                                | .00   |
|                                                          | 5,00  |
| Carnations 1.00@ 1                                       |       |
| " fancy 1 50@ 3                                          |       |
| Lily of the valley 1.00 & 2                              | . 00  |
| Mignonette                                               | .00   |
| Violets                                                  | .40   |
| Harrisii, Callas 4.00@ 5                                 | 00.د  |
| Daffodils, Tulips 1.50@ 2                                | .00   |
| BOSTON, March 30.                                        |       |
| Roses Beautles                                           | . 00  |
| " Brunners 6.00@25                                       | .00   |
|                                                          | 00    |
| " Brides, Bridesmalds, Carnot 2 00@ 8                    | .00   |
|                                                          | 5 00  |
|                                                          |       |
| Carnations                                               | 2.00  |
| Violets                                                  | .40   |
| Harrisli, Calla                                          |       |
| Tulips                                                   |       |
| 2                                                        |       |
| PHILADELPHIA March 30.                                   |       |
| Roses, Beautles, select, per dozen. 3.00 medium. 6.00@15 | . 00  |
| " Brunners                                               |       |
| Drumers                                                  |       |
| Teas 1.00@1:                                             | 3.00  |
| fancy                                                    |       |
| Lily of the valley                                       | 2.00  |
|                                                          |       |
|                                                          |       |
| Narcissus                                                | $.00 |
|                                                          |       |
| Harrisil                                                 |       |
| Smllax 12.00@ 1                                          |       |
| Similax                                                  | 0.00  |
|                                                          |       |

1612-14-16 LUDLOW ST. PHILADELPHIA, PA.

John I. Raynor,

49 WEST 28th STREET,

NEW YORK.

SPECIAL EXTRA STOCK OF AM. BEAUTY, METEOR. BRIDESMAID, BRIDE.

Record Breaking Carnations

THOS. YOUNG, JR.

* * Wholesale Florist

43 West 28th Street, New York.

WALTER F. SHERIDAN. WHOLESALE

FLORIST.

39 West 28th Street, NEW YORK.

Roses shipped to all points. Price list on application.

ose Growers

Will find a good market and good returns for their stock at....

JULIUS LANG'S 53 W. 30th Street, - NEW YORK.

Edward C. Horan. 34 W. 29th Street, NEW YORK,

WHOLESALE • FLORIST

Careful Shipping to all parts of the country.
Price list on application.

WM. C. SMITH, Wholesale Florist.

40 So. 16th St., PHILADELPHIA.

Consignments Solicited. Special attention given to shipping orders

Long Distance Telephone 5008 A.

CUT FLOWER MARKET. 9 Chapman Place, 15 Province Street, BOSTON, MASS.

Consignments from regular growers assigned separate space in our market. We guarantee payment for all Flowers sold. Sales reported weekly; payments monthly, or oftener if required.

THE NEW ENGLAND HEADQUARTERS FOR THE BEST GRADE OF FLOWERS AT ALL SEASONS OF THE YEAR.

J. K. ALLEN, Wholesale Florist.

WHITE VIOLETS, finest quality. EXTRA ROSES and other desirable specialties.

57 West 28th Street,

Long Distance Telephone 382-38th St

NEW YORK.

GALVIN & CO. Wholesale Florists

AND DEALERS IN ALL

FLORISTS' SUPPLIES, 4 Ordway Place, BOSTON, MASS. Cut Flower Consignments Solicited. Sest market.

GEORGE A. SUTHERLAND, Cut Flowers & Florists' Supplies WHOLESALE.

67 Bromfield St.,

BOSTON, MASS.

Wholesale Florists ALWAYS ON HAND, CARNATIONS,

JOBBERS IN

Horticultural Auctioneers. 84 HAWLEY STREET, . BOSTON.

JOHN YOUNG. ROSES, CARNATIONS, VALLEY

and all other choice cut flower stock.

51 W. 28th Street. NEW YORK. Price list on application.

FRANK MILLANG, CUT FLOWERS.

WHOLESALE COMMISSION,

408 E. 34th Street.

Cut Flower Exchange.

NEW YORK.

RIY FASIFR FLOWERS

Direct from the Growers

Bassett & Washburn

Wholesale Growers of and

CUT Dealers in FLOWERS

HARRISII LILIES

25,000 for Easter. We have the largest and finest stock in the West. Our long experience in handling these lilies enables us to deliver them in the best condition. We guarantee them to arrive without bruising if shipped in boxes of 75 or 100, direct from our greenhouses without repacking. Price $12.00 per 100.

BEAUTIES 50,000 plants to cut from and now in full crop.

TEA ROSES A large stock such as BRIDES, BRIDESMAIDS, METEORS, PERLES, CARNOTS and KAISERIN, all of our own growing.

CARNATIONS as well as good common sorts.

THE VALLEY

15,000 extra choice cold storage pips at three cents. This is fresh cut every day.

IPS Yellow Prince, Courless, Cardinal, Murillo, Kaiserskroon and La Reine. Price 4 cents.

AFFODILS Double Von Sions, 10,000 fine large flowers. Price $2 to $3 per hundred.

ASPARAGUS 3000 very fine long strings. Price 30 cents per string.

SMILAX is very scarce, we shall have a limited quantity at $2.50 to $3.00 per dozen.

PEAS Blanche Ferry at $1.50 per hundred.

MARGUERITES A large quantity, 50 cents per hundred.

DUTCH HYACINTHS Pink and light blue, $4 to $6 per hundred.

THE ABOVE STOCK

and we guarantee it fresh and good quality. Write us for our Florists Price List issued every week.

Rooted Cuttings...

ROSES

BRIDES BRIDESMAIDS METEOR $3.00 $25.00 TRIUMPH

CARNATIONS DAYBREAK WM. SCOTT HARBISON'S White MINNIE COOK ROSE QUEEN 12.50 7.50

Bassett & Washburn,

STORE: 88 WABASH AVENUE.

GREENHOUSES: HINSDALE, ILL,

Long Distance 'Phone, No. 10.

Long Distance 'Phone, Main 223.

Easter Gut Flowers

...LARGEST... Growers in America

Of Cut Flowers Under Glass. 600,000 Square Feet of Glass in Roses, Carnations and Lilies. * * * * * * * Try Our Lilies. * Special rates on large lots.

American state OUR SPECIALTY Beauties

BUY FROM FIRST HANDS & WE WILL SAVE YOU THE MIDDLE-MAN'S PROFITS.

Reinberg Brothers,

51 Wabash Avenue, CHICAGO.

Wholesale Cut Flowers and Florists' Supplies

Long Dist. Tel. Express 466

88 Wabash Avenue, Chicago, Illinois

OUR

For Easter Trade

HARRISII, TULIPS, DAFFODILS, VALLEY, VIOLETS......

And Extra Choice Bulb Stock of All Kinds

EASTER PRICE LIST

| P. AND D. AT COST.              | PER 10         | 00     |
|---------------------------------|----------------|--------|
| Meteors, extra select           | $5.00 to      | $7.00 |
| Maids and Brides, extra select. | 5.00 to        | 7.00   |
| Meteors, Maids and Brides,      |                |        |
| good average                    | 4.00 to        | 6,00   |
| l'erles, extra select           | 4 00 to        | 6 00   |
| Roses, our selection            | 1.00           |        |
| Harrisii                        | 8.00 to        | 15.00  |
| Callas                          | S,oo to        | 12.50  |
| Valley, the best                | 3,00 to        | 1.00   |
| Violets                         | .75 to         | 1,00   |
| Marguerites, white              | .50 to         | ,60    |
| Marguerites, yellow             | 1,00           |        |
| Carnations, extra-select        | 3.00 to | 1,00   |
| Carnations, white               | 4 00 to        | 5.00   |
| Carnations, good average        | 2,00 to        | 4.00   |
| Tulips, single, all colors      | 3,00 to        | 1,00   |
| Tulips, double, fine            | 3,00 to        | 5.00   |
| Tulips Klehm's Novelty, light   |                |        |
| pink                            | 3,00 to        | 4.00   |
| Daffodils                       | 2,00 to        | 1,00   |
| Narcissus                       | 1 00 to        | 2.00   |
| Mantum                          | 1,00           |        |
| Similary scarce                 | 15.00 to       | 20.00  |
| Vsparagus, perstring, 50 to 65c |                |        |
| Galax, per reco $1 50          | 21)            |        |
| Common Ferns, per 1000 $2.00.  |                |        |

HARRISII IN GREAT NUMBERS AT PRICES TO SUIT ALL...... TULIPS SINGLE, All Colors.

Small and Large Orders Booked on Bulb Stock.

> TULIPS DOUBLE, Very Fine. VALLEY THE VERY BEST. TULIPS Klehm's Novelty, Light pink.

TRY THEM. HARRISH for all. Special Line of Bulb Stock for Easter. Book Orders Early.

> VIOLETS LADY CAMPBELL, and all others, of extra quality and in quantity. CARNATIONS WE ARE HEADQUARTERS.

Book Orders Early as they are filled in rotation. ORDER OF US.

Carnation Rooted Cuttings of all kinds.

DAFFODILS, NARCISSUS, Etc.

Let us have your orders, we will fill them, The Values we give are our Best Advertisements. All Flowers in season at Lowest Market Rates. Prices given are for good stock specially selected, and inferior quality will be charged according to value.

Jobbers in all Kinds of Desirable Florists' Supplies.

WRITE FOR CATALOGUE AND PRICE LISTS Store Open until 6:30 P.M. Sundays and Holidays Noon Only.

For Easter

American Beauties, Roses, Carnations,

Harrisii, Tulips, Etc., Etc.

ALL OUR OWN GROWING.

Rogers Park Floral Co.

51 and 53 Wabash Ave., CHICAGO.

For Easter

Asparagus Plumosus

OUR NEW CROP

Is in fine condition. Just what you need for Easter Decorating. Send in your orders, large or small, and they will be promptly filled as our supply is abundant. & & &

CUT STRINGS 10 Ft. Long,

50 Cents

10,000 STRINGS ON HAND

C. O. D. to Unknown Parties.

W. H. Elliott, Brighton, Mass.

ORDER QUICK So As to Get 34.34

GOOD CUT FLOWERS

FOR LASTER SALES

Baroness Rothschild Roses

> In 6-inch Pots, $ 9.00 per dozen. In S-inch Pots, $12.00 per dozen.

PRICE LIST ON APPLICATION

Illinois Cut Flower Co.

51 and 53 Wabash Ave. Chicago

J. B. DEAMUD

lante terdente de de de de de

PROFIT IS CERTAIN

in the prudent and thorough heating of a greenhouse as much as in large sales of stock. If a florist is burdened by an unnecessary annual tax of from for fuel and extra labor he must work much harder in order to make up this unnecessary tax out of the profits of his business. We know from our past experience that there is no unnecessary tax for fuer and labor when our boilers are used, because they are made after eareful examination of the reasons why other boilers have failed and their construction avoids the defects shown. No one has bought

OUR BOILERS

that ever regretted it and thousands have bought and look back at the cost as the best investment they ever made

SEE WHAT

these florists say:

8. L. BRONSON, New Haven Conn., Jan. 4th, ISIS says: I have in my greenhouse one of your No. 12 Standard Sectional 11ct Water Beilers, lought June 2-th, 187. I find that its work is truly excellent and think it it the beat heater I ever had. I can find no fault with it in any particular. GEORGE BOYCE, Florist Pitch, N. Y., Jan. 31st, 1888, says: I have thoroughly tested the No. 50 Standard Sectional Hot Water Beiler bought of you had fall and it is a pronounced success. It is very easy to raise the water to a high temperature and keep it to. The bodier is easy to eperate and I can arrange the fire at Bo'clock at hight and find it in good condition at a clock in the morning, and by the one of drafts quickly obtain a new, bright fire for the day. The arrangements for cleaning are admirable as every part of the boller is necessable to the light and clean brush. You have certainly secured the right construction for a first-class greenhouse heater, and I can heartly recommend to additionals.

OUR GREENHOUSE CATALOGUE

is free, and we are in business to give information about our boilers and heating greenhouses, and solicit corres pondence.

WE CAN MAKE

GIBLIN & CO., Utica, N. Y.

Pittsburg.

There is no improvement to report in the trade situation. Business has been very quiet during the past week, but all are looking forward to a good Easter business notwithstanding the Spanish war outlook, and many believe that even if hostilities should occur it will make comparatively small difference now that Easter is so near at hand.

Easter is so near at hand.

The Pittsburg and Allegheny Florists' and Gardeners' Club held their regular meeting, which was very well attended, on Thursday night, the 24th. "Carnations" was the subject for discussion, and according to previous arrangement a very fine exhibit was made, the "question box" forming the medium for remarks, as there were no set essays the "question box" forming the medium for remarks, as there were no set essays or speeches delivered. Mr. Gus Ludwig exhibited from Messrs. H. Weber & Son, Oakland, Md., a fine collection including Daybreak, Buttercup, Mrs. Geo. M. Bradt, extra fine Della Fox, Flora Hill and Eldorado, also a remarkably fine bunch of the Mrs. Robert Garrett rose; from John Murchie Sharon, margnerites, white and yellow, very large blooms with stems fifteen inches in length; orchids, Dendrobium fimbriatum, and seed-ling carnations, a pink from Rose Queen and Peachblow, a white from Storm King and McGowan, and a dark red which has been recently named Walter Harvey after one of our oldest floriculturists in this vicinity. These seedlings were commended by everyone. From Mr. Chas. Hoffmyer a fine lot of Allium Neapolitanum and roses, Bride and Bridesmaid, with stems over thirty inches long—foliage and blooms first-class. Mr. Fred Burke exhibited Buttercup, Mrs. Geo. M. Bradt and Hector, which were fully up to the standard for quality.

Mr. E. C. Ludwig had a fine collection on exhibition from Mr. 11. D. Roher, Lancaster, Ohio, Albertini, stems thirty inches in length, blooms very fine; from Ohl Bros., roses and Daybreak and Flora Hill carnations.

The discussion as to how to grow carnations successfully was participated in by nearly all the growers present, and all left feeling satisfied that with matters of importance coming before them the waning interest in the club would be stimulated and revived in a marked degree.

Mr. James Dell has accepted a position as manager for Messrs. J. F. Gibbs & Son at their place, 5515 Fifth avenue, E. E.

A. L. RANDALL

...WHOLESALE...

Cut Flowers

DON'T FORGET THAT WE HAVE MOVED x.OTx

4 Washington St. CHICAGO

Get Easter orders in early as possible and get the best.

Will be well supplied with the finest Harrisii in the city. Also Fine

Bulb Stock, Roses,

Carnations. Etc.

JAMES M. KING,

Wholesale Florist

A FULL LINL OF CHOICE FEOWERS

49 West 29th Street, NEW YORK.

White Violets a Specialty

Telephone 1675 38th Street

PINEHURST VIOLET. 50.000 MARIE LOUISE RUNNERS

at $4.00 per 1000, 60c per 100. Cash with order.

Want to exchange above also for young Ameri can Beauties, Wootton and Meteor Roses, as well as all the newer Carnations, HILLSDALE FLORAL PARK, Hillsdale, Mich.

Hardlest form of the English Violet Flowers very large, since, ione-stemmed, very fragrant, brilliant shade. Blooms continuously all winter in the open or cold frame. Large, dark green foliage. Unsurpassed as all the year round ground cover Disease unknown. 10 for $4, 1000 for $30; cash with order. Ask for interesting spring price list of shrubs, herbaceous plants and seeds.

PINEHURST NURSERIES, Pinehurst, N. C.

GRAND NEW VIOLET "LA FRANCE"

STRONG VIGOROUS GROWER EXTRA FREE FLOWERING ***RICHEST COLOR

F the many new Violets introduced in the past few years this, the latest introduction of the foremost French specialist, is unquestionably the BEST. It has been thoroughly tested by Mr. Supiot, the Violet expert, who pronounces it "perfect," and flowers which we have exhibited during the past few weeks have been much admired. In vigor of growth, freedom of bloom and in size and coloring it is appropriate the superior of the past few weeks have been much admired. coloring, it is superior to all existing sorts, and will soon supersede them. Only a limited stock will be offered this season, and orders will be filled in strict rotation.

Price, $1.25 per dozen; $10.00 per 100.

HENRY A. DREER, 714 Chestnut Street, PHILADELPHIA, PA.

DID YOU EVER

Look for flowers that never came? They'll come all right if you order of us-good stock, too-packed right—and the order complete. . . . .

THIS IS US.

WOOTTON CARNATIONS, common CARNATIONS, fancy HARRISH CALLAS VALLEY and ROMANS NARCISSUS VIOLETES DAFFODILS TV LIPS SMILAN ASPARAGUS ASPARAGUS ADIANTUMS FERNS DAFFODILS 50c to 65c per string FERNS $2.00 per thousand

PRICE LIST TO TAKE EFFECT APRIL 6

Lynch 19=21 Randolph St.

Only a few more thousand left of

THE GREAT

Scarlet Wellesley

ORDER NOW.

Recognized as the best all-round Carnation of its color yet produced.

Rooted Cuttings....

40.00 per hundred. 475 (9) per the marel tinh a the color or

J. TAILBY & SON

WELLESLEY, MASS.

WILLIAM E. DOYLE, & FLORIST D

43 TREMONT STREET, BOSTON,

1) astan 1/8604/14 1.1898

for Southy Won Star Ser Wellesty it Lind fair will for the fact And Months and I am Jerfretty Satisfied That it is one of it not the het scarle Pinter I have howelled
I Consider it one of the Most Subsuble finds I lan receiving

Your Druly

A CORNER IN STOCK IS

One Way to Make Money.

J. K. ALLEN,

57 W. 28th St...

NFW YORK.

NEXT TO CORNER OF SIXTH AVENUE....

Telephone 382 38th St.

J. K. ALLEN...

Is CLOSE TO THE CORNER and money is made every day by patronizing this "old and reliable," established not for the purpose of "fleecing," but to provide

A Handy Market.....

Where grower and consumer receive equal consideration & & The stock offered for Easter comprises the full list of desirable and seasonable Cut Flowers in grades and prices to fit all pocketbooks.

...COME AND SEE US...

We carry constantly a Large and Complete Stock of .....

Clear Louisiana Cypress Lumber

And can fill all orders promptly.

JOHN C. MONINGER CO.

OFFICE AND FACTORY: 410 to 422 Hawthorne Avenue. Chicago.

eraniums . .

Cash with Order.

We have several thousand good bedding varieties, comprising all the principal colors, mostly double, rooted cuttings, mixed, at $1.00 per 100.

H. B. WEAVER & BRO., WHEATLAND MILLS, Lanc. Co., Pa. Money order office, Lancaster, Pa.

Plants for Easter

Callas, Spirma, Dentzias, Hyacinths. Tulips, Pelargoniums, Geraniums, Palms, etc., For sale by

AUGUST DRESEL, 17 West Belmont Ave.,

Large plants, trans planted, field grown, in large variety of colors, in bud or bloom.

MIST (Babies' Breuth.) Blooms from July to October. Fine white, airy flowers, nice for bouquets. $1.00 per doz., clumps $4.00 to $8.00 per 100, according to size. Phlox, Hardy Asters, Funkia, Myosotis, Veronica, etc., at lowest prices

W. C. JENNISON, Natick, Mass.

EASTER SPECIALTIES

HARRISH LILIES

We shall have in a fine lot of Harrisii Lilies, grown cold, and large flowers. All orders of 100 or more will be sorted and packed at the greenhouse, and will not be repacked in the city.

ASPARAGUS

We are cutting fine long asparagus at 50c per string

SMILAN

We are the largest growers of smilax in the west, having five houses devoted to it, and we will be able to cut a large supply for our Easter trade.

BEAUTIES

Our Beauties are coming in fine shape, and we will have a large crop in for Easter.

TEA ROSES

Such as Brides, Maids, Woottons, Meteors, Perles and Sunsets, are looking especially fine, and there will be a large crop in for Easter.

CARNATIONS

Our carnations never looked better and we will have in a good supply for Easter.

ADIANTUM

We have been able to supply the demand for adiantum this winter, and shall be able to fill an increased demand for Easter.

SWEET PEAS

Our sweet peas are looking fine, and we are in hopes to have a good supply for Easter.

TULIPS DAFFODILS MIGNONETTE FORGET-ME-NOT

VIOLETS LILY-OF-THE-VALLEY DUTCH HYACINTHS

All seasonable flowers at the lowest market price.
We can also supply you with THE KLEHM NOVELTY
TILIPS at their price.

BUY YOUR FLOWERS DIRECT FROM THE GROWER

A. G. PRINCE & CO.

WHOLESALE

CUT FLOWERS AND SUPPLIES

88-90 WABASH AVENUE,

ELEVATOR, 15 WASHINGTON STREET TELEPHONE MAIN 3208 AGENT FOR HINSDALE ROSE CO.

===CHICAGO===

RESIDENCE IPHONE DOWNERS GROVE 322

Our Easter Price List

Will be issued April 2d, if you do not receive one let us know at once.

Wm. Hagemann

WHOLESALE IMPORTING BULBS

SOLE REPRESENTATIVE IN AMERICA OF

E. A. GRIMM & CO., Hamburg, "Lily of the Valley."

KRUYFF & CO., Sassenheim, Holland, "Dutch Bulbs."

CLARENCE PENNISTON, Bermuda, "Lilium Harrisii."

L. BREMOND FILS, Ollioules, "Roman Hyacinths, &c."

N. B. Case lots and upwards only supplied. We have no facilities for breaking packages.

No. 28 South Third St., = Philadelphia.

Established 1886.

All ready for the Easter Rush

The busiest establishment on busy 28th Street

JOHN I. RAYNOR

OFFERS A FULL LINE OF

EASTER CUT FLOWERS.

ORDERS EXECUTED CAREFULLY AND SHIPPED ON TIME.

ORDER BOOK NOW OPEN! SPEAK UP.

ROSES—ROSES—ROSES

In large or small quantities. American Beauty in all grades; Bridesmaid, Bride and Meteor.

LILIES—LILIES—LILIES

Shipped, if desired, in original packages from the greenhouses.

CARNATIONS

Standard varieties in prize winning quality.

TULIPS

All colors. Lily-of-the-Valley, Daffodils, Mignonette and Violets.

JOHN I. RAYNOR,

49 West 28th Street,

New York City.

NO EASTER MATERIAL

gives more satisfactory results than good well-grown Carnations, carefully handled and properly packed.

I AM RECEIVING DAILY the finest stock of these in the New York Market, variety and quality unequaled.

RIB==

,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,, Also can supply to any limit, if ordered now, at lowest quotations for equal quality:

> American Beauty, Brunner, Bride, Bridesmaid, Cusin, Morgan, Violets, Lily of the Valley, Tulips, Daffodils, Mignonette, Asparagus and all other desirable EASTER SPECIALTIES

Asparagus Sprengerii and Fresh Cycas Leaves

JOHN YOUNG,

51 West 28th Street .....

NEW YORK CITY.

Boston Flowers More Roses NEEDE

HIGH GRADE GROWN COOL

ROSES, CARNATIONS, DAFFODILS, VALLEY, LILIES in Pots and Cut Bloom

Hill, Libes cut and packed in special boxes of filly flowers at greenhouses. No rehandling. All Longiflorum, no Harrish. Will keep several days.

Special Brunners, Heath, Asparagus, Violets

....Orders Booked in Advance for Easter....

GEORGE A. SUTHERLAND,

67 Bromfield Street....

BOSTON. MASS.

NOT ONLY FOR EASTER, BUT FOR EVERYDAY DEMANDS

ROSE GROWERS ARE REQUESTED TO COM-MUNICATE AT ONCE WITH

JULIUS LANG 集集基本基本基本基本基本基本基本基本基本基本基本

> CAMPBELL VIOLETS in a finch reported pots Splendid plants, well flowered A big stock for sale for EASTER

PRICES ON APPLICATION.

"What Shall the Harvest Be."

The recent action of the executive committee ought to interest every florist in the country. It will at least pay them to carefully study what the national society proposes to do to benefit the interests of its members. If florists were as apt to see what is beneficial to their own inter-ests as almost every other trade is there would be a stampede to join the ranks of the Society of American Florists. But the Society of American Fronsts. But viewed in the light of past history they will undoubtedly take at least five years to consider the matter. It has taken cleven years to convince the trade that hail insurance is a good thing, and even at this late date a good many florists are waiting for a convincing argument in the shape of an old-fashioned hail storm to make them thoroughly appreciate the benefits of mutual protection against hail.

The Florists' Mutual Fire Insurance Association is following in the footsteps of the Hail Association. Somethink they could have devised a plan that would have distanced the one adopted by the committee, while others think that an insurance association can commence business by simply trusting in the Lord to get the necessary cash to meet loses, while nearly all lose sight of the fact that equity is aimed at, and insurance at first cost will ultimately result. Like the Hail Association, the Mutual Fire Insurance Association will in the end be a grand success.

So will it be with the Society of American Florists and Ornamental Horticulturists. With a charter and a constantly increasing reserve fund the S. A. F. A. O. H. will cease to be "a rope of sand," and with the benefits devised by the executive committee a full treasury will undoubtedly be the outcome. The downward progress of the S. A. F. has been stopped. The past year shows a balance over all expenses of $135. If the old members do their duty, and if the trade knows a good thing when it sees it, that sum ought to be quadrupled this year after paying for all its benefits.

But we have forgotten the kicker. What will he say? A week or two before the convention he will probably rise to remark that "bowling" is wicked, that "junketing" is a device of the evil one to catch the souls of wicked florists, and that the exhibition was a fraud. Meanwhile the florist who is not dead from his shoes to his shoulders will avail himself of the benefits which the S. A. F. will be in a position to confer, and the harvest of groaning, moaning grunters will eventually be gathered in by the sheriffs of their neighborhoods.

In these days of progress only live men can exist. JOHN G. ESLER.

> SOMETHING FOR NOTHING THAT WILL MAKE YOU DOLLARS

> > AN ESTIMATE FOR CUTS

ENGRAVER ON WOOD 520 WALNUT ST.

When corresponding with advertisers, mention the AMERICAN FLORIST.

Palmer's Hot Bed Mats

Made expressly for winter covering of hotbeds, cold frames, plants and seeds of all kinds. Indestructible, Cheap and Warm

WILL not harbor mice or vermin. Easily handled. Dry out quickly after rain. Have now been in practical use three years. Cost less than old-fashioned straw mats and entirely take their place.

MADE IN FOLLOWING GRADES:

No 1-Burlap Cloth, filled with combination wool and quilted, seams 3 inches apart and edges firmly bound.

Size 40x76 inches, 50 cents each.

Made any length, 76 inches wide, at 12 cents per running foot. No. 2- Duck Cloth outside, filled and quilted

No. 2- Duck Cloth outside, filled and quilted same as No. 1.

Size 40x76 inches, $0.75 each.

' 76x76 ' 1.00 ''

Made any length, 76 inches wide, at 16 cents per runuing foot.

No 3—Waterproof, made of oil duck, filled and quilted same as Nos. 1 and 2.
Size 40v76 inches, $1.00 each.
' 76v76' $1.25 to $1.50 each.
Made any length, 76 inches wide, at 20 cents per running foot. That these mats are a much needed improvement over anything heretofore used for the same purpose, is demonstrated by the large demand and many testimonials from prominent men in the trade. Everyone using Hot Bed Mats should give them a trial.

×

PATENT APPLIED FOR.

QUILTED HORSE BLANKETS the Cheapest, Warmest and Strongest in the World ... WE ALSO MAKE

The R. T. Palmer Co.

Or New London, Conn.

113 Worth Street, NEW YORK

Address all correspondence to The R. T. Palmer Co., New London, Conn. Agents wanted-pay good commission. Mention American Florist.

THIS IMPRINT ON AN ENCRAVING

CHICAGO

IS A CUARANTEE OF SATISFACTORY
QUALITY....

Manz makes illustrations for this paper.

CHICAGO'S FAVORITE PASSENGER STATION

Reasonable success seems to have followed the efforts of the management of the Nickel Plate Road to make it popular as a passenger line for travel East. It is regarded as a favorite by many in making the journey from Chicago to eastern explicit.

Patrons of that line will be gratified to learn that arrangements have been made, effective Sun-day, March 6th, for all passenger trains of the Nickel Plate Road to arrive at and depart from the Van Buren Street Station in Chicago.

Van Buren Street Station in Chicago.

The many advantages afforded by this Great Union Depot, located in the heart of the lusiness portion of Chicago, and the continued advantage afforded by lower rates than over other lines, having three express trains daily, with through sleeping cars, to New York and Boston, and the advantage of superior Dining Car Service, when all considered, should show increased travel over the Nickel Plate Road.—(8)

ORCHIDS, CACTI AND BULBS.

Send for trade list and bargain prices.

J. A. MCDOWELL, APARTADO 167, CITY OF MEXICO.

GEO. E. COLE & CO. Blank Book Makers, Stationers and Printers

> 86 and 88 Dearborn Street, CHICAGO.

...THE...

"Lyon=Horticole" is an interesting review of French horticulture, Issued semi-monthly. 20 8-vo. pages illustrated. Subscriptions to the United States. 1 year. $2.00; 6 months, $1.00. Address

DIRECTEUR LYON-HORTICOLE, Lyon-Villeurbanne, France.

FLORISTS' MUTUAL

FIRE INSURANCE ASS'N

Application Blanks and Prospectus Ready....
Write now. Delays are dangerous.

W. J. VESEY, Sec'y, - Ft. Wayne, Ind.

For Insurance against damage by hail, Address

IOHN G. ESLER. Sec'y, F. H. A., Saddle River, N. J.

THE NATIONAL Florists Board of Trade

C. S. LODER, Sec'y, 271 Broadway, New York.

THE WABASH R. R. COMPANY

The Short and Quick Line between the East and West connecting Buffalo, Detroit and Toledo with Chicago, St. Louis, Kan-

and Toledo with Chicago, St. Louis, Ran-sas City and Omaha.
The Wahash is the Only Line running sleeping cars and chair cars (free) between Buffalo and St. Louis and Kansas City. Through sleeping cars between New York and Boston and St. Louis and Chi-cago run every day.
For further information apply to the nearest Railroad Ticket Agent, or to

H. B. McCLELLAN, G. E. A., 387 Broadway, New York City.

J. D. McBEATH, N. E. P. A., 5 State Street, Boston, Mass.

C. S. CRANE, Gen. Pass. & Tkt. Agt., St. Louis, Mo.

Do the American Florist a small favor. Mention the paper when writing to advertisers.

THE SEED TRADE.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

JEROME B. RICE, Pres., E. B. CLARK, 1st Vice-Pres.; S. F. WILLARD, Wethersfield, Coun., Sec'y and Treas.

VISITED CHICAGO.-Jos. Rolker, of Aug. Rolker & Sons, New York; Wm. Hagemann, Philadelphia.

BARTELEDES & Co., Denver, Colo., report business much better than it has been for two or three years, and attribute this to the high price of wheat, oats and other grains.

J. M. Thorburn & Co., New York, say that the early spring has had the natural effect of sending in seed orders earlier than usual, the demand being good, but prices continue low.

HENRY A. DREER, Philadelphia, reports a marked increase over last year's business, especially in the cash sales. The increase is general and in no special department, all branches feeling the improve-

NEW YORK.—Retailcounter trade begins to boom. A line of clerks behind the eounter and a double line of customers in front is what a visit to the various seed stores discloses. It is said now that prices on French bulbs are liable to advance. Mr. Littlejohn, of Rush Park Seed Co., Independence, Ia., is in town.

THE height of the season in the mail trade business was evidently reached this year rather earlier than usual owing to the advanced season. Monday, March 14 probably showed the highest number of mail orders, as well as total cash received, with most firms in the trade. While business remains good generally throughout the country, it has fallen away materially since that date.

W. Atlee Burree & Co., Philadelphia, Pa., say that a conservative estimate of the seed trade up to date this year compared with last would show a gain of about 20% in money value of sales, while the bulks used would represent considerably more than this owing to the continued downward tendency in prices. It is certainly to be deplored, when so many items are short this year (notably sweet corn, Netted Gem musk melon, Fordhook Early watermelon and Red Globe onion) that the goods should have been sold so much below what is their present market value. In fact the demand for all onion seed has been so very much heavier (fully 50%) than in either of the preceding two years that the prices both wholesale and retail could readily have been advanced 10% to 50% from the printed list figures. It is a fact that we, in common with ther houses, have contracted for onion seed crop of 1505 at higher bigures than to have sold seed this season and very such higher than the seed cost us on the rop of 1897. I rom all reports the visible supply of omen seed of new crop will be a ordly sufficient for the average demand ad as this will incessitate considerable dyance in both wholesale and retail rice for 1800 we book for a general stiffening of prices in other lines

CLARK BROTHERS

Paper Seed Bags

61 Ann Street, New York.

RAFFIA BEST QUALITY, LONG MADAGASCAR Having purchased on a very tavorable stock quickly, make the following special low quotations for prompt orders. In bale lots (about 2254bs.) at Sc

Crafting Wax
Trowbridge's Celebrated Grafting Wax
Trowbridge's Celebrated Grafting Wax, the genuine article, 1 lb. bars at 19c; ½ lb. bars at 20c; ¼ lb. bars at 21c per pound. Rebates: 10 lb. lots, 5 per cent; 25 lb. lots, 10 per cent; 50 lb. lots, 15 per cent; 100 lb. lots, 20 per cent.

G. C. WATSON,

Juniper, below Walnut, - PHILADELPHIA.

H. H. BERGER & CO., 22J Broadway, NEW YORK.

ESTABLISHED 1878.
(Branch for Puctic Coast. San Francisco, Cal.)
Horticultural Imports and Exports from Europe.
China, Japan, Australia, Mexico etc

BURPEE'S SEEDS PHILADELPHIA.

Wholesale Price List for Florists and Market Gardeners

We beg to inform our customers that we have removed to

No. II Broadway (Bowling Green Building).

Write for quotations on

JAPANESE BULBS, PLANTS AND SEEDS for full delivery.

SUZUKI & IIDA.

No. II BROADWAY, NEW YORK.

No. 3 Nakamura, YOKOHAMA, JAPAN.

TRY DREER'S GARDEN SEEDS.

Plants, Bulbs & Requisites.
They are the best at the lowest prices. Trade List issued quarterly, mailed free to the trade only.

HENRY A. DREER, Philadelphia, Pa

Mention American Floriat

SEEDS LAWN GRASS $12.00 per 100 lbs.

J. CHAS. McCULLOUGH, SEEDSMAN, RECLEANER AND JOHDER GRAHB BEEDS Second & Walnut Sts., Cincinnati, O.

Send for Illustrated Catalogues.

THE ALBERT DICKINSON CO. GRASS SEEDS

Parks, Tennis Courts, Lawns, &c. In fancy 1 and 2 pound packages and bulk.

SPECIAL PRICES TO THE TRADE.

CHICAGO, ILL.

BEST OF ALL" TOMATO "ENGLISH" MELONS

FLOWER SEEDS FOR FLORISTS

Catalogues on application.
WEEBER & DON, Seed Merchants and Growers.
114 Chambers St., NEW YORK, N. Y.

August Rölker & Sons, Spring Bulbs. Spring Bulbs, Florists' Supplies, SE

IMPORT ORDERS booked now for forcing Burbs, Azalens, Lily of the Valley, etc., for fall delivery; send for terms to 52 Dey Street, - NEW YORK.

NEW . GIANT . ESCHSCHOLTZIAS,

"THE GOLDEN WEST."

Suc Giant Faney Cokt., $8 oz.

New Giant Faney Cokt., $8 oz.

New Giant Faney Cosmos, six splendid varieties, separate, $1 oz.; Giant Cosmos, splendid mixed, 65c oz.; Calliopsis "California Sunbeams," $1 oz. Special rates given on Cosmos in quantity; Apple Geranium, fresh, $1 per 1000 seeds; New Large Flowering Zonale Geranium, $2.50 oz.; Ipomæa, "Heaven'y Blue," $1 oz.; Zinnias, "New Curled and Crested," 50c oz.; $5 lb.; Nasturtium Good Venture Mixture, 60c lb.; $8 per 15 lbs.; Seaforthia elegans (Palm) 40c per 100 seeds, $3 per 1000 seeds. Send for trade list of Seeds, Plants, Bulbs and Cacti.

MRS. THEOOOSIA R SHEPHERD.

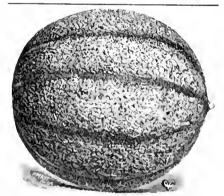

MRS. THEOLOSIA B. SHEPHERD,
Venture-by-the-Sea, Cel.

CLUCAS & BODDINGTON CO.

Seeds, Bulbs Plants,

501 TO 503 W. 13TH ST., NEW YORK CITY.

Send for quotations on all Florists' Bulb Stock.

THE "PAUL ROSE" Muskmelon

The most valuable novelty since we introduced the Osage Pkt 10c, (2-07), 30c, (27, 50c) 2

VAUGHAN'S SEED STORE. 14 Barclay St., NEW YORK. H4-86 Randolph St., CHICACO.

Everybody is more pleased if you say "saw your ad, in the American Florist" when writing.

## A FAIR PROPOSITION Wholesale Florists...... Wholesale Florists...... Wesupply you with fine Cattleyas we expect you to come to us for at least a portion of your general stock. We have it in all needed variety and best quality. ILILEPHONE 2778, 387H SIRELL.

SPECIAI

STRUCK IT RIGHT. AGAIN, THIS YEAR.

JACQS.... LILIES.... BRUNNER

FOR EASTER

HE new store will be none too large to hold them and the customers, too. Can supply you with everything else you need in cut flowers. Popular Prices. First come, first served

ORDER NOW.

M. A. HART

44 West 29th Street NEW YORK

EASTER ANNOUNCEMENT:

W. F. SHERIDAN

OFFERS

A full stock of all flowers for Easter demands, including high grades in all fancy varieties of Roses..

Special — LONGIFLORUM LILIES, AMERICAN BEAUTIES, VIOLETS.

39 West 28th Street

Telephone 214 38th St.

NEW YORK CITY

Telephone 1307, 38th Street....

000

000

Seed Stores and Flower Stores Can profitably handle our packages of Plant Food. Advisor Seed Stores and Flower Stores The WALKER FERTILIZER CO. CLIPTON SPRINGS, N. Y.

3, 3,000 NEW NAMES

In the American Florist Company's Directory, (6th edition, 1898) now in the press ::::: Price $2.00. AMERICAN FLORIST COM-PANY, 324 Dearborn St., Chicago.

IMS

LARGE STOCK * PERFECTLY HEALTHY

ALL MEASUREMENTS ARE FROM TOP OF POT. * * *

Areca Lutescens

| 3 | plants, | 4-in.  | pot, | 12 to | 15-in. | higl | h, per | 100   | 1   | 20 00        |
|---|---------|--------|------|-------|--------|------|--------|-------|-----|--------------|
| 3 | 4.6     | 5-in.  | 6.6  | 15 to | 18-in. | 44   |        | "     | ••• | 40.00        |
| 3 |       | 6-in.  |    | 24 to | 32-in. | * *  | very   | bus'y | ea. | 1.00         |
| 3 | 44      | 8-in.  | 44   | 36 to | 42 in. |      | 41     |     |   | 2.00         |
| 3 |       | 8-in.  |    | 42 to | 48-in  | 44   |      |     | "   | 2 50  |
| 1 | "       | 10-in. |    | 4 to  | 5- ft. | "    | 16     |     |   | 5 c o |

Latania Borbonica

| 2½-in. | pot, | 3 | to   | 4 | leaves, | per | 1  | 00,        | $ 4; | per  | 1000 | 35.00 |
|--------|------|---|------|---|---------|-----|----|------------|--------------|------|------|-------|
| 3-in.  | 61   | 4 | to.  | 5 |       | "   |    |            | 8;           | 66   | 4.6  | 70 00 |
| 4-in.  | 44   | 4 | to   | 5 | 44      | "   |    | "          | 20           | .00  |      |       |
| 6-in.  |    | 5 | to ( | 6 | 44      | 18  | to | 2 0 | in.          | high | and  |       |
|        | wide |   |      |   | •••••   |     |    |            |              |      |      | .75   |

Cocos Weddeliana

1 plant, 5-in, pot, 24 inches high, each.....

Kentia Belmoreana

| 2½-in. pot, 3 leaves, 8 to | o 10-in.         | high, | per | 100 | 14.00         |
|----------------------------|------------------|-------|-----|-----|---------------|
| 3-in pot, 4 to 5 " 10 to   | o 12-in.         |     |   | "   | 2 0.00 |
| 5-in. pot, 5 to 6 " 18 to  | o 2 0-in. |     | eac | h   | 1.00          |

Kentia Forsteriana

5-in. pot, 4 to 5 leaves, 24 to 30 in. high, each, 1.00 6 in. pot, 4 to 5 leaves, 30 to 36-in. high, each, 1.25

JOSEPH HEACOCK,

Mention the American Florist.

WYNCOTE, NEAR PHILADELPHIA, PA.

ASPARAGUS PLUMOSU

The most serviceable and popular Decorative Plant extant. Has supplanted Adiantum for cut flower work on account of the lasting quality and gracefulness of the fronds. True transplanted seedling plants, now ready, $3 per 100; $25 per 1000. 500 at one thousand rates. Cash with order from unknown correspondents.

R. ASMUS, New Durham, N. J.

BRILLIANT GREEN AND BRONZE

GALAX LEAVES.

CHAS. H. RICKSECKER,

MITCHELL CO. LINVILLE, N. C.

 Քոսոսոսուսուսուսունաուսուսուսուսուսուսուսուններուսուսուսու

|                                                 |        |        | No. of  | Prl     | ce     |
|-------------------------------------------------|--------|--------|---------|---------|--------|
| _                                               |        | bigh   | leaves  | each    | 100    |
| Areca Lutescens                                 | 2      | 6-8    | 2-3     | $0 10  | $6.00 |
|                                             | 3      | 12-15  | 3-4     | . 12    | 10 00  |
| " Rubra                                         | 3      | 10-12  | 3-4     | . 15    | 14 00  |
| Corvpha Austraiis                               | 3      | 6-8    | 3-4     | . 12    | 10.00  |
| ř                                               | 4      | 12-15  | 4-5     | . 25    | 22.00  |
|                                                 | 10     | 42-40  | 9-10    | 2.25    |        |
| Chamærops Exceisa                               | 3      | 6-8    |         | .12     | 10.00  |
| Latania Borbonica.                              |        |        |         |         | 20,000 |
| $35 00 per 1000                                |        | 6 S-10 | 2-3     | .05     | 4.00   |
| Latania Borbonica.                              | ,      |        |         | 100     | 1100   |
| $85.00 per 1000                                |        | 10-12  | 3-4     | .12     | 10.00  |
| Phœnix Canariensis.                             | 1      | 15-18  |         | .22     | 20.00  |
|                                                 | 5      | 20.24  |         | .40     | 38.00  |
| " Reclinata                                     | 8      | 36-40  |         | 1.75    | 00.00  |
| 11 It C 11 III II | 10     | 42-50  |         | 2.75    |        |
| " Tenuis                                        | 10     | 15-18  |         | .25     | 22.00  |
| "                                               |        | 36-40  |         | .90     | 42.00  |
| " Syivestris                                    |        |        |         | 1.50    |        |
|                                                 |        | 40 45  |         | 2.25    |        |
| Rhapis Flabelliform                             | 10 8   | 40 40  | 0.1     | 4.40    |        |
| 2 to 3 branches.                                | 10,    | 19-15  | 10-12   | 1.50    |        |
|                                                 |        |        | 12 15   | 2.00    |        |
|                                                 | ti     |        | 20-24   | 4 00    |        |
|                                                 | 8      |        |         |         |        |
| Send for list of oth                            | ier va | riette | a wug 1 | orices. |        |

W. J. HESSER, PLATTSMOUTH, NEB.

SMALL GREEI

CAN FLORIST."

Stiff, wiry stems. Are all the rage.

Box of 5000, $5.00. Less quantity at $1.25 per 1000. ....ADDRESS....

HARLAN P. KELSEY, 1150 Tremont Bldg., - BOSTON, MASS.

If corresponding with an advertiser at any time, say "saw your ad. in the AMERI-

THE NURSERY TRADE.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN. IRVING ROUSE, Pres.: E. ALBERTSON Vice-Pres.; GEORGE C. SEAGER, Rochester, N. Y., Sec'y and Treas.

JACOB W. MANNING, READING, MASS., reports that comparison of this year's orders with last year's, at the same time, is decidedly in favor of increased business for 1898

Shady IIILL NURSERY Co., Boston, Mass.: The nursery trade in New England, as we know it, is about the same in volume as last season, neither more nor less. Prices, however, have no standing. The nurserymen are somewhat at fault as to low prices. If they maintained a firmer front against the ent in rates they would be able to sustain a better range

Hoopes Bro. & Thomas, West Ches-TER, Pa.: The season this year is so much earlier than usual, it is difficult to make any comparison with last or former years. We would say, however, that the orders are probably 10% or 15% ahead, and should the season continue favorable, we have but little doubt that there will be an increase in the amount handled, but unfortunately, the prices are so low that there will be very little increase in the bank account.

Thomas Meehan & Sons, Germantown, Philadelphia, Pa., report that the mild spell of weather which prevailed during almost the whole month of March has advanced the shipping season at least two weeks. Taking this into con-sideration and the fact that it seems to be equally as advanced all over the country, they find that their orders are about as usual or perhaps a little heavier than has been the case for the last year.

James B. Wild & Bros , Sarcoxie, Mo.: Will say that we can note but little change as compared with the past four years, and last year was certainly a hard one in the nursery trade—low prices and everyone wanting to unload. A curtailing of propagation has been going on for the past five years, and this with the assistance of nature to grow the stock to a size not marketable has reduced the surplus to a point where there can now be no stock to offer. This has led to inquiry from all points for the small wants, and many nurserymen are led to believe that there is a revival of better times. The facts are, however, a reduction of propagation, and the now overgrown stock has made a shortage, and the calls for needs have gone from one nursery to another, who in turn could not supply nead for these their place and process to for the trade

SAMUEL C. MOON, Bucks Co., PA.

CLEMATIS

H P Book Tro Reconsists of the Reconsists of the Reconsist of the Reconsists of the Branch of

the Horticultural Co.
Boskoop, Holland. Rutherford, N. J.

100 ACRES IN RNAMENTAL REES AND Deciduous Evergreen, Hedging,

Vines, Bulbs, Tubers, Etc.

NEW 1898 CATALOGUE, 40 PAGES, FREE.

The. Wm H. Moon Co., MORRISVILLE, PENNA.

Mention American Florist

Grasses, $8.00 to $6.00 per 100. Hollyhocks and 20 very choice varieties of hardy Phlox cheap. THE ELIZABETH NIRSEDV 00

EVERGREENS AND

FLORISTS AS WELL AS NURSERYMEN HANDLE MY NURSERY-GROWN EVERGREENS AT A BIG PROFIT

Leaders for this season. 300,000 transplanted Hemlocks Over 1,000,000 of the beautiful Rocky Mountain Evergreens. 200,000 Red Cedar from northern seed and millions of the old standard sorts, such as Spruces, Pines, Balsams and Arbor Vitæs. My trade list costs you nothing but a postal card.

D. HILL, Evergreen Specialist, - Dundee, III.

The 12 acres of hardy perennials formerly belonging to the U.S. Nurseries must be sold at once, land to be devoted for building nurn

| devoted for building purposes.                                                                                        |
|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| All extra large clumps Per 100, F. O. B., Short Hills.                                                                |
| Ajuga rejums $151                                                                                                    |
| Amsonta Taberna montana 0 00                                                                                          |
| Artemish Ludovisiana 3 00                                                                                             |
| Artembla Abrotanum                                                                                                    |
| Eryngium Amethystianm 3 50                                                                                            |
| Funkla lanetfolla                                                                                                     |
| Funkia corduta                                                                                                        |
| Funkh hneifolia 3 50Funkia cordata 3 50Heliathus mollis granolilorus 5 600                                    |
| Hellanthus hybridus                                                                                                   |
| Helenlum automnale                                                                                                    |
| Hemerocaths Dumoriferl 1 50                                                                                           |
| Hemerocalils Kwanso ff. pl 4 50                                                                                       |
| Irls cristata                                                                                                         |
| Irls slbirica sanguinea 1 50                                                                                          |
| Opuntia Ratinesquii 3 50                                                                                              |
| Mentha canadensis                                                                                                     |
| Mentha canadensis 3 00Pentstemon laevigatus digitalis 1 50                                                        |
| Phlox puniculata mix                                                                                                  |
| Phlox puniculata mix                                                                                                  |
| Polygonum cuspidatum. 2 50Polygonum cuspidatum. 3 50Pyconthinum benelfojlum. 3 50Rudbeckla speciosa. 3 00 |
| Pyesenthimum banelfollum 3 50                                                                                         |
| Rudbeckla speciosa                                                                                                    |
| Salvia vertfellban 2 50                                                                                               |
| Satvia vertiellista 2 50Satvia officianilis 2 50                                                                  |
| Sylphture glganteum                                                                                                   |
| Sedum fabarium                                                                                                        |
| Sedum spectable                                                                                                       |
| statice latitoffa                                                                                                     |
| Thymus vulgaris 3 08Hilbiscus Incanus 6 00                                                                        |
| Hibbens bearus 6 00                                                                                                   |
| Enletta graettima 10 00                                                                                               |
| Enleda graellflina 1910)Phalarb arundt acea varia gara 2 50                                                       |
| Lord era Hallana i br                                                                                                 |
| Lord ern Hullinna ForLorseern brachspoda 4 99                                                                     |
| Lamcern brachypoda 4 DRAndromoda In varieties 10 DRCall in time and get your money's worth Plants             |
| A nell for these words and a construction of the state of                                                             |
| aind or none may bet sout moust a worth. Limita                                                                       |

curefully packed and guaranteed to arrive is good condition. Cash with order

J. F. ANDERSON

SHORT HILLS, N. J.

HARDY

Herbaceous Perennials

THE MOST COMPLETE STOCK IN AMERICA. PÆONIES, PHLOX, IRIS, DELPHINIUMS, ETC.

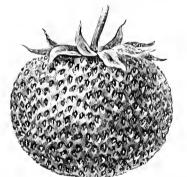

JACOH W. MANNING The Reading Nursery, READING, MASS.

Ентавывико 1851,

NURSERIES SPRINGFIELD, N. J.

New Fruits and rare Ornamentals. Shade Trees, Shrubbery, erivet, Specialites. 100,000 Peach at lowest prices. Catalogue free. Agents wanted.

The Earliest Strawberry in Cultivation is the ### EARLIEST"

Both by Name and Nature.

Mr. A. I. Root of Medium, Ohio, says it ripened with him the past senson fully two weeks whead of Michel's Early. (Sumply wonderful.)

Nurserymen and Seedsmen who get our entalogue will find this the best selling herry Introduced, as every person who grows strawberries wants the earliest.

Also Ducting, the most of the second services of the second second services of the second s

Also Durling, the most productive early herry

Carrie, the queen of strawberries, Mit other varieties

100 other varieties in 100,000 Early Jersey Wakefield Cabbage Plants, cold hell only $2.00 per 1000.
100,000 Mixed Canna Bufbs, flue stock, for the tride put up in 500 and 1000 lots at $10.00 per 1000.

Fins Tobacca Dust, #1 per 100 lbs.; #18 per ton. Send for wholesale catalogue

THOMPSON'S SONS. RIO VISTA, VA. Introducers.

Mention the American Florist when corresponding with an advertiser.

DON'T DELAY!

Order now-there is still time to get your orders booked for

> Fine Easter Lilies or Callas. First=Class Roses. Che Finest Carnations in the market, Any amount of Bulb Stock

In fact anything in season. Our Price List ready to-dayif you don't receive one write for itfree on application.

51 WABASH AVENUE, CHICAGO.

F. C. AMLING.

DON'T USE A

THRESHING MACHINE

TO LIFT VENTILATING SASH.

米米米米

Use the Evans Improved...... Challenge Ventilating Apparatus

NOISELESS---EASY TO WORK---STRONG.

SEND FOR CATALOGUE

DUAKER CITY MACHINE WORKS, Richmond, Ind.

Boston Florist Letter Co.

FLORISTS' LETTERS.

This wooden box nicely stained and varnished, 18x30x12 made in two sections, one for each size letter, given away with first order of 500 letters.

Block Letters 1 % or 2-inch size, per 100, $5.00. Script Letters, $1 Fastener with each letter or word. Used by leading florists everywhere and for sale by all wholesale florists and supply dealers.

N. F. McCARTHY, Treas. and Manager, 84 Hawley St., BOSTON, MASS.

THERE!

10,000 CENISTA SCOPARIA, Scotch Broom, splendld, ornsmental, hardy and rare, 18-36 Inch. 100 for $5, 1000 for $5; cash with order.

100,000 YUCCA FILAMENTOSA, strong tu-bers, htt for st, 1000 for $2. Fine plants, 100 for $2-5; 1000 fur $12-25, according to size. Our spring list will Interest YOU.

PINEHURST NURSERIES, Pinehurst, N. C. Otto Katzenstein, Supt.

Have You Seen Our Agent?

A Complete Catalogue for Florists. Send for One.

ELLIS & POLLWORTH MILWAUKEE, WIS.

John Conley & Son,

TIN FOIL

2 AND 4 DOMINICK STREET,

_New York.

FANCY

DAGGER

Do not order any ferns unless you are willing to pay this price as my stock is very limited and I pay this price as my stock is very limited and I have hardly enough now to carry my old stand-by customers to Laster

L. B. BRAGUE, Hinsdale, Mass.

When writing mention the American Florist.

lotice!

A Permanent Plant Market

Has been established. Through the instrumentality of the NEW YORK MARKET FLORISTS' ASSOCIATION, Clinton Market, Washington and Canal Streets, New York City, will be opened Monday, March 28, at 4 a.m., and will continue open daily thereafter for the sale of plants, including Bedding and Decorative kinds. & & & & 200 West Side Avenue, Jersey City, N. J.

A. D. ROSE, SECRETARY.

SPECIALTY

Floral Metal Designs & Des

SPECIALTY: WHEAT SHEAVES.

Write for Catalogue.

FIRST-CLASS GOODS and CORRECT PRICES

Herrmann,

404, 406, 408, 410, 412 East 34th Street.

have furced us to the front and today we are the largest manufact-urers of.....

RESERVOIR

and Lawn Settees in America. . . . A 40-page catalogue for the asking. McDonald Bros. 108-114 Liberty St. COLUMBUS, O

IRON

NEW YORK.

Manufacturer of Metal Floral Designs. Importer and Dealer in Florists' Supplies.

Made of Waterproof Cardboard, of nice terra cotta color. -Net cash with order. If ordered shipped by FREIGHT, ADD 50 CENTS CARTAGE.

|      |      |       |      |      |       |     | 088  |       |      |     |       |       |          |
|------|------|-------|------|------|-------|-----|------|-------|------|-----|-------|-------|----------|
| -8   | tze  |       |      |      |       |     |      |       |      |     |       |       | Per 1000 |
| 214- | Inc) | ì     |      | 000  |       | 8   | bou  | t 20  | Ibs  |     | 9     | 0.25  | $2 20   |
| 21.6 |      |       |      | 1000 |       |     | 9.6  | 23    |    |     |       | .30   | 2,40     |
| { ~  | 4.6  |       |      |      |       |     |    | 34    |    |     |       | .45   | 3.90     |
| il.  |    |       |      | 1000 |       |     |      | 45    |    |     |       | .60   | 5, 15    |
|      |      |       |      | 500  |       |     |      | 76    |    |     |       | .80   | 6.90     |
| 5    |      |       |      | 500  |       |     |      | 100   |    |     |       | 1.20  | 10.35    |
| 5    |      |       |      | 500  |       |     |    | 150   |    |     |       | 1.65  | 14.55    |
|      |      |       |      |      |       |     | Pot  |       |      |     |       |       |          |
|      | L    | енв ( | qua  | ntit | les t | hai | n fu | II ci | rate | 8 B | t 100 | ) rat | es.      |
| - 1  | Full | ean   | aple | do:  | ens.  | of  | a ⊩l | 20 D  | unli | ed  | on    | recei | pt of    |
|      | 100  | 9     | 12   | c    | 15c   |     | 22c  |       | 30e  |     | 15c   | - 60  | ke .     |

for 2½-in. 2½-in. 3-in. 3½-in. 4-in. 5-in. 6-in. puts. F. W. BIRD & SON, Manufacturers. Address all orders to our General Agents,

August Rölker & Sons

52 DEY STREET, NEW YORK. Our Eastern Agents are

R. & J. FARQUHAR & CO., Boston, Mass.

It is not much trouble to mention the AMERICAN FLORIST when corresponding with an advertiser.

ANNOUNCEMENT..

I take great pleasure in announcing to my many friends and patrons in the trade that I have started in business as Buyer and General Commission Agent. Am in position to fill orders for Plants, Seeds and Bulbs of all kinds, also agent Brazilian Tonic Plant Food. Thanking my many customers for past favors, and soliciting their esteemed future orders, I remain & & & Yours very truly,

F. L. ATKINS ORANGE, N. J.

Surplus Stock

Can be disposed of by advertising. Try it.....

this Size "Ad." Costs Only $1.00.

AMERICAN FLORIST CO., CINCAGO.

Doves

The largest and finest stock of white doves on earth. 🛰

S. J. RUSSELL, JERSEY CITY, N. J.

203 Summit Ave.,

THE FIRST GUN

in the campaign of spring business is fired by us this week, and we mean to make the fur fly all along the line. We have Larger Stocks, More Novelties, More Exclusive Designs, and Better Facilities than ever before, and can give better service and at unmatched prices. Our Mr. Bayersdorfer sails in a few days to inspect and secure every valuable idea and product of the great markets of the world, which knowledge added to our great manufacturing facilities in Philadelphia and aided by the genius of the up-to-date American, easily keeps us in the forefront, and is our contribution to American Supremacy before the world.

FOR EUROPE

A GOOD LICKING

in a the man up-to bution

to a post trated Ca help your Every requires and ma

50-52-54-56 No. to a postage stamp is all it will cost you to secure a copy of our Illustrated Catalogue. Write to-day. We have goods to sell that will help your business and give you a reputation with the people who buy. Every requisite for stocking up a first class florists' store is in our warehouses in quantity. This announcement will have done its duty if its readers will write us fully of their wants. Our catalogue will do the rest and make them our customers. FIRE AWAY.

H. Bayersdorfer & Co.

OF ALL FLORISTS' SUPPLIES ....

Philadelphia, Pa. 50-52-54-56 North Fourth Street.

Easter Earnings

Will be increased by handling flowers from our superb stock.

EVERYTHING THE BEST in all that is DESIRABLE for the Easter trade.

Lilium Harrisii, $12 per hundred---plants or cut flowers.

Special

American Beauties

A magnificent stock. All grades of Tea Roses.

Carnations

In any quantity. Our stock of this popular flower is unexcelled.

Our shipping facilities are the best in this country and our system of packing insures safe delivery.

Samuel S. Pennock

WHOLESALE FLORIST

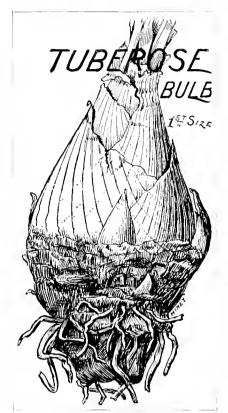

1612=14=16 Ludlow St., Philadelphia.

Cannas, Caladiums and Tuberoses

We offer an immense stock of Canna Roots... all in perfect condition: strong roots, 2 and 3 eyes each.... Strictly true to name and unmixed.

| 100                       | 1000    | 100                       | 1000    |
|---------------------------|---------|---------------------------|---------|
| Alexander Billard$3.00   |         | G. St. Hillaire $2.50    | $20.00 |
| Alphouse Bouvier 2.50     | $20.00 | Mad. Crozy 2.00           | 15.00   |
| Ami Pichon 2 50           |         | Miss Sarah Hill 2.50      |         |
| Austria 2.50              | 20.00   | Mad. Montifiore 5.00      | 40.00   |
| Chas. Henderson 1.25      | 10.00   | Oriole 5.00               | 40.00   |
| Chevalier Besson 1.50     | 12.00   | Paul Bruant 1.50          | 12,00   |
| Count H. de Choiseul 1.50 | 12.00   | Paul Marquant 2.00        | 15.00   |
| Egandale 2.50             |         | Pres. Carnot 2.50         |         |
| Florence Vaughau 2.50     |         | Professor 3.00            | 25.00   |
| F. R. Pierson 2.50        |         | Queen Charlotte 2.50      | 20.00   |
| Flamboyant 1.25           | 10,00   | Sec'y Stuart 2.50         |         |
| Francois Crozy 2.00       | 15.00   | Sunbeams 4.00             | 35.00   |
| Italia 4.00               | 35,00   | Wm, Elliott 1.50          | 12.00   |
| J. D. Cabos 3.00          |         | Mixed, Tall or Dwarf 1.25 | 10.00   |

TUBEROSES..... LXCELSIOR DWARF PEARL

Southern Grown, of extra quality and average size shown by the cut—many are larger. 75c per 100; $6.00 per 1000.

CALADIUM ESCULENTUM.....

Home Grown, solid, sound with good centres, 7 to 9 in., $4.00 per 100; $35.00 per 1000. 5 to 7 in., $2.50 per 100; $20.00 per 1000.

The | ovett ('ompany

LITTLE SILVER, N. J.

We Are Selling Lots of Stuff People Like to Buy of Us.....

"Because Mary Loves the Lamb, You Know."

They certainty are the finest in the land. Rooted Cuttings, 75c per 100; $ 6 per 1000 Pot Plants.....$2.50 per 100; 20 per 1000

DAHLIAS

CARNATIONS

Fine assortment. Sec Trade List.

FARFUGIUMS

$10.00 per 100.

FUCHSIAS

COLEUS....

Finest Sorts grown. Rooted Cuttings... $1 per 100; $6 per 1000 Pot Plants, $3 per 100; 200 for $5; $20 per 1000.

PELARGONIUMS

Altho' we have sold thousands we still offer Victor and Freddie Heinl, $6 per 100 Mixed . . . . . $3 per 100

Umbrella Plants

OLEANDERS

VIOLETS....

Marie Louise, California . . . . . $3 per 100

Roses

Chrysanthemums

Finest Sorts in cultivation. $3.00 and $5.00 per 100. See Trade List.

GERANIUMS

Finest Sorts......$3.00 per 100

Two Sorts, 2-in., $3 per 100; 3 in. $10 per 100; 4-in., $15 per 100.

W. L. SMITH, Aurora, Illinois.

And stacks of other stuff—Send for our Trade List if you haven't it. Keep watch of our ads. We are sure to interest you sooner or later.

Have you used....

Not "Any Old Thing," but OUR LABELS?

Our customers say that they are unexcelled. Send for samples and prices...x.

Benjamin Chase, Derry, N. H.

Quick for eash, mailing size ROSES, Margaret Dickson, Mrs. J., S. Crawford, John Hopper and Capt, Christie; Primula obeonica, Daphne odor ata, mixed Gloxinia, Oleo fragrams.

O. A. DAVIS & SON, Purcellville, Va.

Mention Am. Florist when writing,

Talk ("United States")

...ABOUT...

Import Bulbs

NEW YORK, VAUGHAN'S SEED STORE, CHICAGO.

Paving U. S. Custom Duties on honest invoice valuations,

NEW YORK, VAUGUAN'S SEED STORE, CHICAGO,

Paying its bills at one hundred cents on the $,

New York. Vaughan's Seed Store. Chicago.

Financially and otherwise supporting the U.S. Florists and other public horticultural interests,

NEW YORK, VAUGHAN'S SEED STORE, CHICAGO,

With sixteen years experience in caring for the needs of American Florists,

NEW YORK, VAUGHAN'S SEED STORE, CHICAGO,

With painstaking knowledge of the best and most reliable sources of supply in every line,

NEW YORK. VALGUAN'S SEED STORE. CHICAGO.

With ability to inspect and intention to send out only A No. 1 stock of every class,

NEW YORK, VALGHAN'S SEED STORE, CHICAGO

SOLICITS.....

the opportunity of quoting prices on the FULL LIST of your wants in Imported Bulbs and Azaleas. May we hear from you now?

$3.75 $35,00 5,00 45.00 L. RUBRUM (Speciosum) Per 100 Per 1000 LILIUM ALBUM (Speciosum) Per 100 Per 1000 7-5 (see b) 9-11 (neb) 7.50 05 00

BEGONIAS TUBLROUS ROOTED ...

TUBEROSES

True Excelsior Pearl. "Hallock strain" First size, per 100, §1.00; per 1000, $7.50.

GLOXINIASPer doz., 85e; per 100, $5.00

CALADIUMS.....

Fancy leaved choice bulbs, per doz., $1.75; per 100, $12.00

Caladium Esculentum

GLADIOLUS XXX Florists Mixture

GREENHOUSE STOCK.

Asparagus Sprengerii, strong, young plants, per

Asparagus 500, $5.00.

Ficus Elastica, true, large leaf variety, 6 inch pots, 20 inches high ω 50c each.

Crimson Rambler Roses, extra line, bushy plants, in 4-tuch pots, will soon bloom, per dozen, $2.00 per 100, $45.00.

Cycas Revoluta, dormant stems, size from 3 to 10 lb, ω 15c per lb.

Clothide Soupert, the great pot rose, our stock is A No. 1, 2-in, ω $3.00, 20-in, ω $4.00; 3-in, ω $6.00, 30-in, ω $6.00, 30-in, ω $5.00.

Dahlias, 20-in, ω $9.00 per 100.

Dahlias, 20-in, pot plants, in named varieties, per 100, $5.00.

100, $5.00

Pelargoniums Mme, Thibaut, Mrs. Robt, Sandiford, Edward Perkins and Dorothy strong 3-inch stock, per doz., $1.50; per 100, $12.00.

For Cannas, Carnations, Chrysanthemums, send us your list, we have all kinds.

H. P. Roses, dornant, 2 year, extra flue stock (a $12.00 per 100.

Clematis, Ampelopsis Veitchi, Hollyhocks, Paonies, Hydrangeas P. G., etc. we have in large quantities; write us for prices.

VAUGHAN'S SEED STORE,

NEW YORK: 14 Barclay St.

CHICAGO: 84-86 Randolph St.

April Offer.

Alternanthera A. Nana, $1.75; P. Major.....$2.00 Coleus Asst. and Centaurea Gymnocarpa.... 2.00 Geragiums, 16 Var., 21/2-io. pots, $2.50; 3-in.. 3.75 Geraniums, 4-in. pots and Marguerites (Paris Daisy)..... 5.00

Pansy plants from cold frames and Smilax.... 1.00 CASH PLEASE.

JOS. H. CUNNINGHAM, Delaware. Ohio.

"MARS,"

2 and 3-in. pots. $1 per dozen, $5 and $8 per 100, $45 per 1000.

LYCHNIS FL. PL. ROSEA, 2-inch pots, fine, 50e per dozen, $2 per 100.

CLITIBING WOOTTON ROSE, 2½-inch pots, fine, 75e per dozen, $3 per 100.

BURBANK, ITALIA, AUSTRIA CANNAS, 4-inch pots, started, $1 per dozen, $5 per 100.

....HENRY EICHHOLZ, Florist, WAYNESBORO, PA.

Best named, 2½-io., $25.00 per 1000.

250 Vinca Variegata, field-grown, now in 4-inch

GEO. W. GASKILL, WARREN, OHIO.

GERANIUNS. Grand Sun-proof Bedders and other new and faney, 50 var, $10 per 1000.

COLEUS. C. Verschaffeltii and G. Bedder $6 per 1000; 30 superb faney leaved, $5 per 1000.

ALTERNANTHERA. P.M.A. Naon and Amena, fine little plants, $5 per 1000.

PANSIES. Extra fine Giant and Bugnot in bud, $6 per 1000; small. $3 per 1000.

SAGE. Grandiflora and Bonfire, $5 per 1000. Same rate per 100, by express; by mail add 30c per 100.

per 100.

Begonias, Petunias, Verbenas, etc. Send for my

DANIEL K. HERR, Lancaster, Pa.

Rooted Cuttings Well Rooted ...

Scarlet Verschaffeltii, Golden Verschaffeltii, Fire King, Fire Brand, Tam O'Shanter, S. P. Gem, Alhambra, Golden Crown, Midnight, Salvator, John Goode, Nigger, 15c per doz.; 75c per 100; $5 per 1000; express paid.

S. T. DANLEY, Macomb, III.

The Cottage Gardens - QUEENS. L.I. Specialties in CARNATIONS. CHRYSANTHEMUMS. CHOORS, GERADIUMS, DAHLIAS. SEND FOR OUR PRICE LIST ~=.=.=.=.=.

PANSIES
THE JENNINGS STRAIN.
THEY ARE GRAND.
Fine stocky plants in bud and hloom, $10 and $15 per 100 by express; small plants,
75c by mail. Punsy seed, $1.00 per pkt. Aster seed, Semple's pink, $1 00 per oz. Cash with order.

E. B. JENNINGS,

Lock Box 254. SOUTHPORT, CONN. Crower of the Finest Pansies.

TELEGRAPH CODE

AM. SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION $2.00

In either stiff or flexible cover.

ADDRESS ORDERS TO

AMERICAN FLORIST CO., CHICAGO.

100,000 VERBENAS. THE CHOICEST VARIETIES IN CULTIVATION

Fine pot plants, $2.50 per 100; $20 per 1000. Rooted Cuttings. 75c per 100; $6.00 per 1000; $50 per 10000. NO RUST OR MILDEW.

PACKED LIGHT, AND SATISFACTION GUARANTEED. SEND FOR CIRCULAR. We are the Largest Growers of Verbenas in the country. Our plants cannot be surpassed.

J. L. DILLON, Bloomsburg, Pa.

wwVERBENAS.ww

The finest collection in America, 35 varieties, every one a gem—mammoth size, striking colors, green as grass. Strong rooted cuttings, 60e per hundred; $5.00 per thousand; five thousand, $20.00. New Yellow Marguerite finest variety, strong 2-iu. pot plants, 3c; rooted cuttings, 2c.

STRICTLY CASH WITH ORDER.

SOUTH SIDE FLORAL CO., Springfield, III.

Marie Louise..

Fine extra healthy Rooted Runners, ready for planting time 1st of June.

ORDERS BOOKED NOW. $15.00 PER 1000.

F. G. Mense, Florist, Glen Cove, L. I., N.Y.

Fine selected stock in separate colors. Rooted cuttings, per 100, 75c; per 1000, $6.00. Cash with order.

FRANK S. PAYNE, Barnard Crossing, N. Y.

AZALEA INDICA

We have an immense stock of all the best varieties; well set with buds; large plants, 12 to 15-inch, $6.00 per doz.; $45 per 100.

PANSIES

We grow over a million from the choicest seed of Bugnot, Cassier, Odier and Tri-mardeau; transplanted io cold frames; 60c per 100; $4.00 per 1000.

HARRISII LILIES

In bud, guaranteed right for Easter; 10e per bud.

CINERARIAS

In bud and bloom, $1.00 per doz.

| ROOTED CUTTINGS 100                 | 1000   |
|-------------------------------------|--------|
| Mammoth Verbenas $ .70             | $5.50 |
| Double Petunia 1.00  Heliotrope |        |
| Ageratum                            |        |

Double Golden Dwarf Marguerite, $1.00 per 100.

PLANTS 214-inch.

WHITTON & SONS.

Wholesale Florists,

ÚTICA, N. Y. City and Creen Sts..

FAXON'S "WHITE .. PANSIES.

The hest mixture in cultivation, flowers very arge, thick and velvety; of superb colors and arkings. The perfection of form and texture. large, this

In Trade Packets at $1.00 each. M. B. FAXON,

Lock Box 1528. BOSTON, MASS. Correspondence solicited.

IN BEST VARIETIES. ROSES, from 3-inch pots.

CARNATIONS, for fall delivery CHRYSANTHEMUMS. SMILAX.

VIOLETS. Prices low. Send for list.

WOOD BROTHERS, FISHKILL, N.Y.

CLEMATIS Jackmanoi, Heoryii doz. 100 and others......$3.00 $20.00

H. P. ROSES Strong 2 and 3 years own roots ... $1.50 $10.00 RED JACKET GOOSEBERRY, only large native red. ... ... 75 $4.00 BOWNING, best for general crop, special

PAEO'IES, fine ass't of colors and kinds $1.25 $8.00 SMILAX, extra strong plants...... $2.50

F. A. BALLER, Bloomington, III.

KLONDIKE

Cold Fields at Your Door.

Cold Fields at Your Door.

COLEUS—All kinds, all grades and all prices.
Verschaffeitl and Queen, 75c per 100: $8 00 per 1000;
2½-10ch pots, $15 00 per 1000; $1.75 per 100 Coleus in variety, 55c per 100: $4 50 per 1000; $2.45-inch pot $12 00 per 1000; $1.35 per 100. Akerstum dwarf blue 60c per 1000; $3.00 per 1000. Puchslas, standard sorts, $12 00 per 1000; $1.30 per 100. Double Petuolas, extra fine strsio for flats. $1.50 per 100; $12 00 per 1000. $10 che per 100. $10 che per 100 c

J. E. FELTHOUSEN, Schenectady, N. Y.

CARNATIONS AND COLEUS ROOTED CUTTINGS

THE 1898 INTRODUCTIONS

THE 1897 INTRODUCTIONS DAYBREAK of special quality.

ROOTED COLEUS in variety.

Cood stock only. Price list free.

DAN'L B. LONG, Growers' Agent, BUFFALO.

5,000 SMILAX...

From flats, by mall. 50c ner 100, $1.00 per 1000 From 2-inch pots, $2.25 per 100, $13.00 per 1000 Geraniums from 2-inch pots, $2.25 per 100; $20.00 per 1000. Cash with the order. Send for samples. Fred Boerner, CAPE MAY CITY, N.J.

Marie Louise Violet Runners

Good plants, healthy stock, $5.00 per 1000.

A. WASHBURN & SON BLOOMINGTON, ILL.

LETTUCE AND OTHER ... VEGETABLE PLANTS

LETTUCE-Big Boston, Boston Market, Teonis Ball, Grand Rapids and Reichber's Forcing, 15 cts. per 100; $1.00 per 1000

TOMATO, CABBAGE and CELERY-Small plants for transplanting oow ready. 15cts. per 100; $1 00 per 1000. Pepper and Egg Plants—25 cts per 100; $2.00 per 1000.

CAULIFLOWER, Soowball—35 cts per 100; $2.50 per 100; $1.50 per 100; $1.50 per 100 for small plants, and 50 cts, per 1000. Send for price list. Cash with order.

R. VINCENT, Jr. & SON, White Marsh, Md.

Mention American Florist,

Kaiserin for Summer Blooming.

As a summer blooming white rose, both indoors and out, the Kaiserin is without question queen of whites. To obtain best results with this peerless variety, good strong plants should be obtained at once from 3 or 4-inch pots and planted as early in April as possible.

They do best planted in a well drained solid bed in a well ventilated house. I find the Kaiserin does better in a very rich soil, in fact it has been my experience that it will stand more manure than any other rose that I have grown, therefore, tit is important to prepare a good rich soil for planting. I have had good success with plants grown in the following compost: Three-fourths good heavy yellow loam and one-fourth well rotted cow manure. Great care should be taken to have it thoroughly mixed. Plant them firm as you would roses for winter blooming, syringe every morning during April and twice a day from May 1. Through the summer, never allow the plants to become dry while they are growing freely. It is important to pinch the buds off until the plants have made a strong growth; do not be afraid to give them lots of air on all favorable occasions. Plants treated in this way should bloom continually from July 1. from July 1, through the summer.

Many people allow this rose to remain dormant from November 15 until the spring, but 1 have never allowed my plants to rest and I always get as many good blooms from them through the win ter as from same space of Brides. I believe the whole secret is in feeding them liberally during the summer and never allowing the temperature to drop below 60° at night during the winter. If they are run at a temperature of 54 to 56°, as is usual with Brides, etc., very little growth will be made, and many buds will come soft and imperfect. W. W. Coles.

| Per 100                                                               |
|-----------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Pansy Plants, trans.   1.1.   $1.50                                  |
| M. L. & L. H. C. Violet plants                                        |
| Mad. Salleror plants                                                  |
| Champion and Stone Tomato Plants25 =                                  |
| Each                                                                  |
| Kenthworth Ivv, 212 mehes 40 [2]                                      |
| Kenthworth Ivy, 202 mehes.                                            |
| Correntum Lyy, 20g melies 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 3c 2 2 1                  |
| Heliotrope, puride, 25, inches.                                       |
| Fuclistic Spee, 21 <sub>2</sub> inches                                |
| La Favorite Geranium, 21 <sub>2</sub> inches 4c                       |
| <ul> <li>Potted Plants are all ready to shift. No express.</li> </ul> |
| order less than $2.00 filled.                                        |
| E 1 BORINGON O-1 B-11 III                                             |

BARGAINS

Extra line robust plants, 2½-meh pots, of the dlowing at §§50 per 100. No liner plants offered. HELIOTROPES, large-flowering purple and white, FUCHSIAS, Storm king and four line vars. ABUILONS red veltow and Sonv. de Ronne. CUPHEA PLAIVCENTRA, Cigar flower. PETUN-83, double fringed choice seedlings. GERANIUMS, double Grant and lineas sortment. Latras added to cover expressing on all orders of §§50 or over Adams and L. S. Lapress. Cash athorder or one-half each and balance C. O. D.

JOHN F. RUPP, Shiremanstown, Pa.

BEGONIAS

|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | 100   | 2 |
|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-------|---|
| Argentea Guttata, Pres. Carnot, Actallic                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | ca,   |   |
| Thurstonli, 2 the pot                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | 32.50 | ı |
| Moonvine (I. Soctipheton), J. 7 m.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | 9.50  | ł |
| Rose Geranium, P., in Strong                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   | 2.54  | i |
| Tra. Taylor Geranium, 24 in strong                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | 2.50  | þ |
| Double Petunia, fireer strain, frong                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | 7.9   | ı |
| Russella Juncea, 1., in strong                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 | 3.0   | ž |
| Ampelopsis Veitchii, 1 , 10                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    | 2.74  | P |
| PALT, Letania Berbonica, 20, in 3 to                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | 1     |   |
| to the transmitted that the transmitted that the transmitted that the transmitted transmitted that the transmitted transmitted that the transmitted tr | 1.74  | J |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |       |   |

, HRYSANTHEMUMS

 Վաստանանական արանանան անանան անձան անձանան անձան /u>

We have all the New Varieties and all the Old Ones of Value. * * * *

Good Stock Packed Right at Down to Date Prices

🚜 🗷 CATALOGUE FREE 🧀 🧀

NATHAN SMITH & SON, - Adrian, Mich.

"Boss" Chrysanthemums.

William H. Chadwick The grandest white novelty of the season. The Yellow Fellow-Winner of $100.00 Stearns bicyc'e prize. Madeline Pratt—"As pretty as her picture." Distributed March 1st by leading firms and the grower.

Special Premiums offered for Rawson's 'Mums

President Chadwick, Chicago Horticultural Society, offers $50.00 in prizes for Chrysanthemum Wm. H. Chadwick, at the Chicago Floral Show next November. E.C. Stearns & Co., of Syracuse, N. Y., offer a 38 pattern high grade hicycle for best vase of 12 blooms "Yellow Fellow," at the fall exhibition Central N. Y. Horticultural Society, Open to all, except myself.

GROVE P. RAWSON, 107-100 W. Market St., Elmira N. Y.

TWO STERLING CHRYSANTHEMUMS...

Mrs. C. H. Peirce Merry Christmas

Which every florist must have among his collection for commercial and show purposes, They are worthy of the highest praise, and we do not besitate to recommend them to every florist. Order now. We will have a large stock ready April 1st, and can fill all orders with satisfactory plants

Mrs. C. H. Peirce A large yellow flower of good round form and best substance. Reautiful foliage, sturfy short jointed growth, with foliage up to the flower. An excellent commercial variety. Take first bad. Reight 30-40. At its best Nov. 6th to 25th.

Merry Christmas: The latest) hrysanthemous in cultivation, making it the only Chrysanthemous that can be grown successfully for Christmus flowers; needs no extra care; height P<sub>2</sub> ft. Good still stem large flowers and great substance, of purest white, and full to center. Take terminal bud, A) its best Dec. 20 to Jan. 1st.

35c each. $3.50 per doz. $25.00 per 100.

THOS. A. MCBETH, Springlield, O. F. DORNER & SONS CO., La Fayette, Ind.

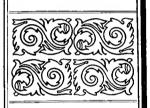

TELEPHONE

HARRISON ... 85...

"WE NEVER SLEEP"

WORK DELIVERED WHEN ORDERED

Che Regan==== Printing House

DAY NIGHT PRESSROOMS

CAPACITY: TWENTY TONS OF PAPER A DAY FORMS CALLED FOR AND DELIVERED

THE BEST

EDITION

AND PAMPHLET

BINDERY

TO BE FOUND IN THE EAST OR WEST

87-89-91
PLYMOUTH PLACE
CHICAGO......

Book, Job and News Printers.....

NURSERY AND SEED CATALOGUES

Monmouth Coun Society. County Horticultural The

A grand sociable was given by the Monmonth County Horticultural Society at the Red Men's Hall, Oceanic, New Jersey, on Wednesday, March 23. The hall was very nicely decorated and about fifty couples participated in the grand march.

Mr. W. Kennedy sang a song of his own composition which was very well received. The society's paper, "The Mon-month County Busy Body," was read by N. Butterbach and contained, as usual, the latest news. Mr. II. A. Kettel and Mr. Geo. Stanton sang several songs. One of the most prominent features of the evening was a cake walk. Mr. Hugh Birch and Miss Sarah Winton took the eake for the most comical, and Mr. Richard Rogers and Mrs. Theodore Togg for the most graceful performance. It was the best entertainment ever given by the society. Refreshments were served at intervals and at 12 o'clock. Everybody was home before daylight, and on parting they all expressed their thanks to the committee, which consisted of Messrs. John Downing, Hugh Birch and Thos McIntosh, also to the competent floor manager, Mr. Robt. Beatty. N. BUTTERBACH.

Hail Notes.

Henry Schwarz, of Price's Hill, Cincinnati, was struck by a hail storm on the 16th inst. B. Heshon, of Lawrence, Kan., and the Junction City Floral Co., of Junetion City, Kas., also met with slight losses recently by hail.

In order to compile correct statistics the secretary of the F. H. A. desired information concerning hail storms. Every florist is invited to drop him a line when a storm occurs. Address John G. Esler, Saddle River, N. J.

Armstrong's

Everblooming

Tuberose & &

Anish departure in Tuberose growth.

Flower bearing buds continue to form around the old flower steek indefinitely.

Flowers greatly superior to those of all other single Tuberoses. Awarded certificate of Merit by the S.A. F. at Providence last August, and the Shaw fold Medial at St. Louis in November.

For Prices and Particulars
...Address...

LUTHER ARMSTRONG.

3720 Olive St., St. LOUIS MO.

GLADIOLUS BULBS

WHY not grow your own. I can furnish it large number of half fuels bulbs, mixed colors very fine stock at $1.50 per 1900. Lach thousand will conflict your result with each thousand will conflict your results with the stock runs so argely to white and pair that some foreits said it would also a pass for. White and Light.

M. CRAWFORD, Cuyahoga Falls, O.

| CLADIOLUS BULBS.                |            | 100      |         |
|---------------------------------|------------|----------|---------|
| Vers Die Laive.                 | No. 5      | 111 75   | 45.00   |
| Cornell true (1)                |            | Ho.      | E50     |
| Langue Hay boarder              | -          | 1.25     | 10.00   |
| lance. Buchanan                 |            | 100      | 7.70    |
| Brine B. nete                   | J          | 1.25     | 10.00   |
| Mary Lemons Orch a mari         | +41: 1     | 2.1      | 25 1341 |
| Marie Leme on after first north | odi - 5    | 170      | 1.00    |
| White and Light                 |            | 1.00     | 7,50    |
| A sale with order. He fore to   | 1 13 60    | Don A    | 6.11    |
| JOHN FAY KENNELL Grower b       | o c 405. F | locheste | r,N.Y   |

(Copyrighted)

Kraft's Plant Tonic

For PLANTS, PALMS and FLOWERS

... A Wonderful Preparation for the Promotion of Plant Life, Destruction of Insects and Scale..

This is one of the greatest preparations for the use of Florists and Plant Growers ever compounded. It gives to the foliage of plants treated the bright, fresh color of healthy, growing vegetation. It destroys all insect life infecting the plant and eradicates scale.

Besides improving the color of the plant, it effects a general betterment of its condition, aiding nature in disseminating and retaining the sap and life of the plant. The Tonic makes the foliage of the plant soft and pliable, and a beautiful bright green.

Price per bottle, 25 cents. For sale at 84 & 86 RANDOLPH STREET, CHICAGO, VAUGHAN'S SEED STORE. 14 BARCLAY STREET, NEW YORK.

COLUMBIA PLANT TUBS....

MADE OF CYPRESS. NEVER

DECAY. NEVER FALL

APART.

SUCCESSORS TO HOME RATTAN CO. THE INVALID APPLIANCE CO. Manufacturers 339-341 Clybourne Ave., CHICAGO

if your dealer does not have it send direct to thermanufacturers 35 Warren Street, The Gutta Percha & Rubber Mfg. Co. 96 Lake Street, NEW YORK. Chicago. NEW YORK.

STEMS DUST EXTRAGT

BOTTOM PRICES.

VAUGHAN'S SEED STORE,

Chicago. New York.

NATIVE GUANO A COMPLETE AND NATURAL FERTIFIZER FOR . . . . (Desiccated Night Soil)

Gardeners and Florists.

SOLUBLE, QUICK TO ACT. PLEASANT TO HANDLE. STANDARD FERTILIZER CO. Inc.

1822 Filbert Street, Philadelphia. ' " "

Scollay Sprinkler....

INDISPENSABLE

J. A. Scollay, Maker, 11 Myrtle Ave Brooklyne Ne Ye

VAUGHAN'S SEED STORE, Gen'l Western Agents, 84 Rondolph St., CHICACO.

Everyhody is more pleased if you say "saw your ad in the American Florist" when writing.

HITCHINGS & Co.

Established

Greenhouse Builders

and largest mannfacturers

Greenhouse Heating and Ventilating Apparatus

The accompanying cut represents the interior of our new

> No. 57 Sectional Tubular Boiler regarding which we have received the following letters:

D. Falconer, Rose Grower, of Chatham, N. J., writes us as follows:

I am pleased to inform you that the No. 57 Boiler you sold me last Fall has proved satisfactory in every respect. All that you have claimed for it I have found correct.

I have heated two Rose Houses with it, each 18'6" wide and 160' long, total amount of glass surface 8,000 square feet. I didn't have to push it much when the temperature was 8 and 42 degrees below zero to have my houses 56 degrees. I consider it economical in fuel, easily cleaned and very easy to fire. If I am fortunate in the future to extend my plant, I shall select the same heater.

Your ventilating apparatus is also to my entire Respectfully yours.

(Signed) D. FALCONER.

I. P. Dickenson, Lettuce Grower, of Morganville, N. J., writes:

In answer to your inquiry as to how I like your New Sectional Boiler, would say that it gives good satisfaction, throws out heat freely, is easy to regulate, and requires very little labor and attention. I have two other sectional boilers, which it is claimed will beat nearly twice as much as yours, but I think yours, the No. 57, will bent them both, and with only one half the amount of coal. The No. 57 is a hummer.

Yours truly,

(Signed) I. P. Dickenson.

Louis Dupuy, Florist, of Whitestone, L. L.

It affords me great pleasure to tell you that your new sectional Boiler you supplied me last summer, is a boiler far superior to any I have so far seen in use. It has not been in any way over-estimated, as it does easily all you claim for it. Every man I have had attending to the fires was quick in praising your No. 57 in comparison Respectfully yours. with the other boilers. (Signed) L. DUPUY.

Auton Schultheis, Florist, of College Point, L. 1. writes:

The Sectional Tubular Boiler I received of you last October for my new house, 150x25, with high glass sides, has proved to be all you claim for it. It is economical, easy to regulate, and can be heated to boiling inside of thirty minutes if neccessary. I can recommend your tubular boilers where large houses are to be heated. They will

Respectfully yours. (Signed) A. Schultbers,

We give special attention to supplying Iron Frames, and Roof Wood Work, fitted ready for erection by Florist, with the aid of a local carpenter.

HITCHINGS & CO.,

233 MERCER ST., NEW YORK.

Hot=Bed

Tenons white-leaded. Corners secured with iron dowel pins. Every detail of construction perfect. Made of Clear Cypress Lumber.

Quick Shipments.

We have in stock and can ship immediately:

ft. x 6 ft., 3 rows 10 in. glass. 3 ft.3 in.x6ft.,4 " 4 ft.x6 ft.,5 " S in. 8 in.

Not glazed, 1% in. thick.

Delivered Prices

Quoted on application. State size and quantity wanted. No order too small to receive careful attention, and none too large for our facilities.

LOCKLAND LUMBER CO.,

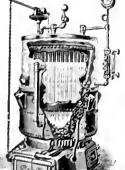

Lockland, Ohio,

Always mention the .....

American Florist

when writing advertisers.

GORTON SIDE FEED Boiler

boiler that will keep a steady heat in a greenhouse all night without attention No sitting up all night to keepa good fire-

Earther information on application.

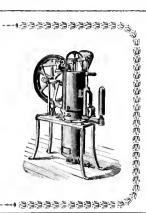

GORTON & LIDGERWOOD CO.

96 Liberty Street, NEW YORK.

NEW & SECOND-HAND MATERIAL,

purchased from Sheriff, Receiver, and Assignes, sales at less than one-half prices. Pipe and Fittings (Hose, Floriata Wire, Hot Water Reaters, Greenhouse Bollers and Englises, Rope, Light Wrought from Pipe, Johan Sanh and thousands of other articles, for as, 6 by

CHICAGO HOUSE WRECKING CO. Largest Mail Order Oepol for New and Second-Hand Material in the World W. 35TH & IRON STS., CHICACO. Write for our free Illinatrated catalogues

For Greenhouses, Gardens and Lawns in liberal quantities, every hour of the year, whether the wind & blows or not & & & & &

Improved Rider Hot Air Pump Improved Ericsson Hot Air Pump

Can be run by any ignorant boy without danger. Explosion impossible. Prices greatly reduced. In use in every part of the world.

RIDER-ERICSSON ENGINE CO.

22 Cortlandi St., NEW YORK. 191-193 High Sl., BOSTON. 684 Craig St., MONTREAL, P. Q.

86 Lake St., CHICAGO. 29-31 N. 7th St., PHILADELPHIA. Send for catalogue "A 3."

Steam Hot Water Heating

FNRY W. GIBRONS

134, 136, 138 Liberty Street, NEW YORK, N. Y.

CATALOGUES AND ESTIMATES FREE.

EXPERT ADVICE FURNISHED.

ler-Stenzel

*************

Make your contracts for next season now. We can deliver to any part of the country and Save You Money .....

************

Greenhouse Glass

72 Sudbury St., BOSTON, MASS.

Walworth Construction & Supply Co.

HEATING ENGINEERS

Experience in Hot Water Reading from 1842. And CONTRACTORS

GREENHOUSE APPARATUS FOR STEAM OR HOT WATER GREENHOUSE BOILERS

Heating Apparatus of Every Description. Small Boilers for Farmers, Steam Kettles, &c. Iron Pipe, Fences and Railings. Cheap and Ornamental.

Contractors for Inte Fred L. Ames' Greenhouses at North Easton.

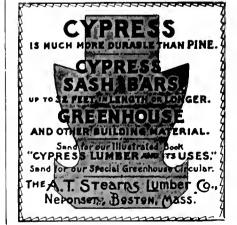

100 Pearl St., BOSTON.

LOUISIANA Cypress Green House

Write for Estimates.

Do the American Florist a small favor. Mention the paper when writing adver-

Peat Moss and Jadoo.

ED. Am. FLORIST:— "What is peat moss?" X. Y. Z.

The peat moss used in the manufacture of Jadoo is found, it is said, in North Germany; much of which is exported to this country in bales and is quite dry, and is used as bedding in stables, especially in and near the large cities on the scaboard. It is light and spongy, having great absorbing properties. In conjunction with straw for bedding it makes much better manure than does straw alone, absorbing the urine, thus securing more of the essential plant foods than otherwise would be the case.

Peat moss seems to contain all the ingredients necessary to sustain plant life for a certain period, but whether a proper balanced plant tood, I do not know, or how long it would keep a plant in a flourishing condition, I have not yet determined. Some of it was used here a year ago mixed with sereened coal ashes as a plunging material in a closed frame, and one of the young assistants on the place inserted some carnation cuttings therein a few weeks ago, and he states that they rooted in eight days. He also had a variety of cuttings in, in addition to the earnations, such as begonias, browallia, achyranthes and two American Beauty rose slips, all of which are rooted. The rose cuttings took fully three weeks to root, whereas the succulent softwooded cuttings named above rooted in from a week to ten days. I was afraid of the cutting bed fungus, but so far none has appeared. Jadoo could not do any better than that, and the peat moss does not cost half as much. It varies somewhat in price—I have boughtit as low as $10 per ton. Jadoo is recommended for the growing of sweet peas. I would like to know wherein it is better than peat moss.

Peat moss ought to be an excellent mulch for anything, because of its lasting qualities, in California where humus is somewhat lacking, on account, I suppose, of the natural grasses being annual, and so far there has not appeared to be much of an effort made to supply humus to the soil by a system of green manuring. Lime is recommended by agricultural chemists to be used in peat proper, and especially in what is known in America as muck, but whether it would benefit peat moss at all, I have not tried.

I am inclined to think that plain peat moss in the hands of practical gardeners and florists can be used in their numerous operations both outdoors and under glass to great advantage.

It has been said that the time willcome when every first-class establishment will have a laboratory attached thereto for the purpose of manipulating formulas for the different specialties in plants grown therein, and I can with confidence say that plain peat moss will furnish a "base of operations" that cannot be excelled.

Judging from the published analysis of Jadoo it has seemed to be weak in potash, and judging from the experience of some growers, it is not a well balanced plant ration, and that is the reason why some plants fail to do well in it. Practical horticulturists with a knowledge of agricultural chemistry could remedy this.

Try plain peat moss in comparison with and where Jadoo has failed, and add with care potash and phosphoric acid to suit; it seems to contain enough nitrogen for a while.

E. L.

Herr's

WITH

Experiences Carnations..

READY NOW
SEND FOR THEM
THEY ARE SENT FREE

HERR'S SMILAX

$5.00 per 1000; 75 cents per 100. Samples 10 cents.

ALBERT M. HERR

LANCASTER, PA.

When writing please mention American Florist

The New White Carnation GENESEE

IT GROWS WELL ****IT BLOSSOMS WELL IT SELLS WELL ****IT IS A GOOD KEEPER ***SEE AS FOLLOWS ON LAST POINT ***

Grand Haven, Mich., March 18, 1898. Some of the blooms of Genesee sent to the Grand Rapids Carnation Meeting March 1st are still (18 days after receipt), quite fresh.

GEO. HANCOCK & SON.

DAN'L B. LONG, SALES ACENT.

Priced Circular Free.

......BUFFALO.

Buffalo.

There is very little new to tell this week but a great deal to do. The weather still continues mild and balmy and keeps everybody hustling, both indoors and outside. For the first time in my experience, in this part of the country, we have had thirty-eight species of hardy plants in bloom in the open border previous to March 28. Some plants that frequently do not flower until May are now open.

The condition of Easter stock seems to me to be too forward as a rule and if this summer weather continues for another week, I imagine that much of it will be lost. There are a few good lots of Harrisii lilies in sight, and but a few. Most of the growers have had the misfortune to have diseased stock, some having lost nearly half their stock. At one grower's, whom I visited a short time ago, not only were the bulbs badly diseased but those which were growing were apparrently not true to name. However, I presume enough will be found somewhere to fill orders with, if they are not used up by the sun before the time.

Of azaleas there seems to be a good supply, but they have felt the warm wave too, and are in some cases pretty well out. Rebstock has an immense stock of them, but I have not seen them for several weeks and do not know how they are.

Scott and Milley both have large stocks of cinerarias of good salable size. There is the usual amount of cytisus, spiraea, etc. Bulbous stock ought to be plentiful, in fact too much so, for nareissi are already showing bloom in the open ground.

The Florists' Club had a well attended meeting on Friday night. The committee having the flower show in charge reported progress, and the schedule will soon be ready.

''Golden Glow'' HARDY

ellent for out flower purposes in summer — Strong pannts, $6.00 100, $10.00 per 1000.

IRIS KAEMPFERI strong clumps in ten to color $1.00 per doz; $6,00 per 100.

Edwin Lonsdale,

Money Order Office Station II Phila

Florist. CHESTNUT HILL. PHILA, PA.

ROSES, VERBENAS, VIOLETS

Invariably at these prices.

Cash with Order. F. WALKER & CO.

Carnations Chrysanthemums

NEW AND STANDARD VARIETIES

Corrice Wirade L. Awillembrace the lends at a notation of 1898 and 1897 as well as the best at tablet leaves. Address

H. WEBER & SONS,

Oakland, Md.

NIW 222 carnation ARGY

A few left at the following price 4 4 $10 00 per 100, $75,00 per 1000....

STOLLERY BROS. ARCYLE PARK.

CHICAGO, ILL.

Carnations for Business

A few people grow Carnations for pleasure, but most of us grow them for business. 18 varieties of '98, 15 of

> THE BEST IS NONE TOO GOOD FOR THE AGE IN WHIGH WE LIVE.

We have the Best Varieties in the market, many of them in soil, all ready for shipment. Send for prices. They are all right. & & & &

GEO. HANCOCK & SON, Grand Haven, Mich.

Flora Hill CARNATION

It sells because there is nothing in sight to at all equal it. It speaks for itself whereever grown. It is fragrant. It is the largest bloom. It puts all others in the shade. Nothing past or present to equal it. We have four thousand plants exclusively for propagating from; don't allow them to bloom. Send a once and get the best stock ever offered $5.00 per 100; $40.00 per 1000.

Our trade list is issued. Il you have not received one send for it.

E. G. HILL & CO., Richmond, Ind.

SWELL YOUR BANK ACCOUNT

By growing Emily Pierson Carnations, the most profitable Red Carnation in cultivation. Clean healthy grower, large full flowers with line stem. Our house, 70×29 feet, from which we have been cutting since September, has 20,000 buds in sight to day. We can supply flue rooted cuttings at $1.00 per 100: $8.00 per 1000. Cash with order.

South Side Floral Co., Springfield, III.

THE BEST OF THE NEW PINK CARNATIONS

Mrs. Frances Joost.

A WINNER EVERYWHERE.

22.00 per dozen: $10.00 per 100: $75.00 per 1000 cash with order.

C. BESOLD, Mineola, L. L., N. Y.

Never Fail to say "saw your ad. in the Florist."

🖊 A few thousands left at prices cheaper than you can steal them

| R000 Daybreak, #1.25 per 160 | $10.00 per 1000 | 5000 Waye | 1.25 per 100; | 10.00 per 1000 | 10000 Sectt s | 55 per 100; | 6.50 per 1000 | 10000 Webown | 75 per 100; | 75 per 100 | 750 per 100 | 1000 Juhile | 550 per 100 | 22.00 per 1000 VIOLETS

We have 20 000 fine strong plants of Marie Louise to Bats and pols, guaranteed free from disease. We are booling orders for field grown plants, de acce, after July 1st $35.00 per thousand. Cash with order

LAKE GENEVA FLORAL CO., LAKE CENEVA.

STRONG ROOTED CUTTINGS.

Scott's, McGowan's, Rose Queen.

per 100, $1.00; per 1000, $8.00. Hydrangea Otaksa, per 100, $1.75.

Cash with order. D. Y. DANENHOWER 52nd and Woodland Ave., Philadelphia.

The Gardenia Carnation.

Plants Now Ready * $10,00 per 1000

JOHN BURTON, Chestnut Hill, PHILADELPHIA, PA.

Please mention the American Florist

ORDERS PLEASE

All the Leading Carnations Now Ready. Per 100

THE MORRIS FLORAL CO., Morris, III.

WEST ISLIP GREENHOUSES.

CARNATIONS, Rooted Cuttings.

Scott, Portia, McGowan, $1.00 per 100. $8.00 per 1000 Daybrenk, $1.50 per 100. Mived Germiniums, from fints, strong plants $15.00 per 1000. Mived Chinnas, dry roots of the following sorts. Alphonse Bouvier, Mine. Croy, Closs. Henderson, Oneen Chirafotte, Burbank, John White, etc., $2.50 per 100. Cash with order,

E. B. SUTTON, Jr., Babylon, L. I.

Please mention the American Florist

NEW CARNATION....

infroduced

The largest, bright rich crim- Empress

Send for price list of above. New and Standard Sorte....

WM. SWAYNE, Box 226, Kennett Square, Pa.

A PHOTOGRAPH OF OUR UNNAMED WINTER BLOOMING SEEDLINGS

$300

American Rose Co.'s

PRIZE

For best Seedling Carnation for Winter Blooming.

Prize Money

will be deposited with the American Carnation So-ciety April 15, 1898 to be awarded by them at the

ANNUAL CONVENTION

Philadelphia, February 1899.

Send for circular giving full

P. O. BOX 422, WASHINGTON, D. C.

$300

COMPETITION

ONE HUNDRED

of our Seedling Carnation Plants

BUT

such purchasers are entitled to use in such competition our seedling plants or seedling 🚜 plants of 🥦 🎉

THEIR OWN

The owner of the WINNER agrees to SELL it to the

American Rose Co.

for the highest bona fide offer which would be accepted.....

10,000 strong plants ready April 15th, 1898 in 3-inch pots. Price per 100, $15 00. Sample plant mailed on receipt of twenty-five

THE SEEDLINGS WE SELL YOU ARE FROM HAND-FERTILIZED SEED OF THE SAME KIND.

JOS. B. TOWNSEND,

Berlin, N. J.

Dealer in SPHAGNUM MOSS and PEAT. Clump and Sheet Moss for florists' work, Laurel Wreathing and Laurel Branches for decorations in large quantities on the shortest notice. 🚜 🚜 🚜

CARNATIONS

STRONG, HEALTHY ROOTED CUTTINGS Ready Feb. 1st and Later

Including Morello, Flora Hill, Daybreak, Wm. Scott, Lizzie McGowan, Ivory, Silver Spray, Emily Pierson, Goldfinch, Eldorado, and others. Send me a list of what you want and get prices before you buy. We also have a fine lot of Carnation and Violet blooms for sale. Write for prices.

CHAS. CHADWICK.

Lock Box II.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.

Say "saw your ad. in the Florist" when you write advertisers.

Kathleen Pantlind

Price $1.50 per 12; $10.00 per 100; $75.00 per 1000.

Premium-5 Red Wave with every 100 Kathleen Pantlind.

IS a much more substantial flower than Daybreak; color a shade or two darker and entirely rust proof. Can be seen at Vaughan, McKeller & Winterson's every Wednesday and Saturday.

HOPP & LEMKE,

Paul P. O., E. GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.

TO CLOSE OUT.....

GRAFTED TEA ROSES, $15 per hundred.

H. F LITTLEFIELD, Worcester, Mass.

20,000 CHRYSANTHEMUMS.

24e-Inch pots.
Major Bonnafion, $2.00 per 100 or $15.00 per 1000; President Smith, Eda Prass, $1.50 per 100 or $12.00 per 1000.
Ceraniums—the best mixed varieties for bedding, 34e-inch pots, showing hads. $2.50 per 100 or $18.00 per 1000; 32e-inch pots, $2.00 per 100 or $18.00 per 1000. Cash with order or satisfactory reference.

PAXTON GREENHOUSES.

C. E. Taube, Prop.

Harrisburg, Pa.

mention the American Florist when you order stock.

REDUCED PRICES

Very Fine Rooted-

Taken from our "Prize" Stock.

McCOWAN ALASKA ALBERTINI HELEN KELLER ARMAZINDY
DAYBREAK
$2.00 per 100; $15.00 per 1000.

SOUTH PARK FLORAL CO., New Castle, Ind.

I have a fine stock of this peerless variety. also most of the leading standard sorts. MARIE EQUISE rooted runners at special low rates.
Write for prices. Will exchange for fruit

W. W. COLES, - Kokomo, Ind.

Fire Insurance.

The past winter has demonstrated the fact that even in well built houses, where careful precautions are taken, fires occasionally occur. Few are able to easily stand losses caused in this manner, and very few would care to allow their property to remain improtected if properrates could be secured. How, then, can the trade best secure adequate insurance at the least cost?

In a recent address, Governor Mount, of Indiana, stated that the farmers of that state had paid insurance companies $50,000,000 in premiums and had received in return less than half that amount. He advised them to form co-operative associations and thus save themselves what experience has shown about one-half actnal rates. Now, florists pay a still more disproportionate amount, and through co-operation, and through that only, will they be enabled to secure rates which will enable them to carry insurance sufficient to adequately cover their property. The Florists' Mutual furnishes a solution of the problem. It is necessary in order to place the association on a sound financial basis that the first assessment should be nearly as high as the average rates given by the old line companies throughout the country. But let no member of the trade hesitate on this account, as each one who gives his support assists in making assessments lower.

Although now carrying a larger amount of greenhouse insurance than any company in the country the association has suffered no loss in any of the recent fires. W. J. VESEY.

Field-Grown Roots in all the Leading Varieties $5.00 to $7.00 per 100.

Large

30,000 DAHLIAS

Before ordering your Dabila stock be sure and send for my catalogue of noveitles and standards of the best quality and at the lowest prices. All stock guaranteed true to name.

W. W. WILMORE, Dahlia Specialist, Box 382, Denver, Colo.

Flower Seeds...

... For the Trade.

NEW CROP. CHOICEST STRAINS *CLOSE PRICES

Vaughan's Seed Store, NEW YORK, CHICACO.

PANSIES

ROBITER'S Prize Pansies; extra fine stock plants from ends frames in had and bloom, transplanted in September, plants measure from 1 to 4 inches in dinneter by express $1.20 pc; 100-4100 pc; 1000 medium size plants transplanted in October inc per 100-35.00 pc; 1000 cish with riter sample pictis fiets.

PETER BROWN,

Lancaster, Pa.

Two Great Sports

CARNATION

VICTOR

Undoubtedly the best Pink Carnation in commerce and certainly the most prolitic bloomer, perfectly healthy and of vigorous growth.

Rooted cuttings now ready, $4.00 per 100; $35.00 per 1000. Come and see this carnation growing.

CHRYSANTHEMUM PENNSYLVANIA

The finest vellow for cut blooms or exhibition purposes ever produced Plants ready March 15, $5.00 per doz.; $35.00 per 100; $250 00 per 1000.

HUGH GRAHAM, 104 South 13th Street, PHILADELPHIA.

Chrysanthemum Mrs. A. F. Wienold

WE claim this to be one of the grandest early whites yet sent out. Originated with us 3 years ago and given a thorough test. It is earlier than Bergmann. Flowers 7 to II inches in diameter; is easy to grow; a splendid keeper and above all never shows its center. Except in color it looks like a well grown Golden Wedding. Select stock, 2½-in. pots, 20e each; $1.50 per doz.; $10.00 per 100.

CAL. VIOLETS. No disease. Strong runners. 50e per 100; §4 per 1000. MCDONALD & STEELE, Crawfordsville, Ind,

Ghrysanthemum PRES

Yellow Sport of JEROME JONES.

It received the highest points and a Certificate of Merit at the Cleveland Chrysanthemam Show. It is in Yellow what Jerome Jones is amongst the White. The very best for late blooming. 2½-in, pot plants, strong, $2.50 per doz.: $20.00 per 100. Stock ready April 15th.

E. J. PADDOCK, 295 Erie St., CLEVELAND, OHIO.

Offer

...Primula Seed...

to satisfy the most particular buyers. Sinensis fimbriata varieties.

- a Our Large-flowering London Market Mixture, the packet of 250 seeds for $1.00.

  b Our English Choicest of all Mixture, collected from the very hest large-flowering, full blooded stock only, one packet, enough for 500 plants, $3.00.

  c Rolker's Special Mixture, a good average large-flowering Primula, in mixture or in separate colors, the packet 25c; 1-16 oz., about 1500 Seeds, $1.50.

  d Double-Flowering, in mixed colors, the packet, 50c.

Cineraria Seed

Cineraria hybrida grandiflora, our large-flowering prize-strain, of compact habit and growth, flowers often measuring 2-3 inches across, of the richest shades and tints, are carried well above the foliage; in short, a strain not to be beaten; the packet, 50 cents,

Iobacco Extract, the best, equal to 200 lbs of stems. Send One dollar for one gallon tin.
Sheep Manure, unadulterated, nature's own, dry as bone; send Two dollars for 100 pound bag.
Waterproofed Sashpaper, ready for use, 38-in wide, the roll of 25 yards, $2.50.

Spring Bulbs, Florists' Seeds, Grass Seeds, Fertilizers, Supplies of All Kinds. Send for Lists.

August Rölker & Sons, 52 Dey Street. New York.

40 Fine Palms Ready For Sale

- 10 Kentius.
  6 Corypha Australis
  6 Areca Lutescens
  6 Areca Lutescens .......3-inch pots ....5 inch pots, strong .5-inch pots, 3 in n pot .3-inch pots, 1 in n pot

Packed light, by express

Rooted Cuttings of Lemon Verbena, Salvia Sidendens - Strong and well rooted - §1 00 per 100, §8 00 per 1000

Coleus, Golden Bedder, Nelly Grant and  Critchell's

110 E. 4TH STREET. Cincinnati, Ohio.

Mammoth Verbena Seeds only $1.60 per oz. Aster Seeds only 1,00 per oz. Pamey Seeds only 1,00 per oz.

THE MORRIS FLORAL CO., Morris, III.

Aster Seed

Semple's celebrated strain of Asters. Finest in the World. Mixed colors, pink, white and haven-der. Also a small quantity of pink separate.

JAMES SEMPLE. BOX 2. .. BELLEVUE, PA

THE KIND TO PLANT

GOOD ROOTS and GOOD TOPS

A large stock of healthy Brides, Bridesmaids, Morgans, Meteors and Perles in 2½ and 3½-inch pots. Just the stock for planting. Moderate prices quoted on application

...THE...

John Henderson Company,

ROSE GROWERS,

-Flushing, N. Y.

NEW FORCING ROSE MRS. ROBT. GARRETT

Hybrid tea, rich soft pink, buds very long, flower extra large, delightfully fragrant, rivaling Bridesmaid in color, but larger and much more productive. A sturdy, vigorous grower, a money maker and a triumph of American skill. The best firms in the country are investing in it. It has won numerous prizes and has elicited the most favorable comment from critical judges. Price strong plants from 21/2-inch pots, $25.00 per 100 in lots less than 1000; $225.00 per 1000. Orders booked now, delivery March 15, 1898. Correspondence solicited. Address

H. WEBER & SONS, Oakland, Md.

ROSES

PERLES.....
METEORS...
BRIDESMAID

Pots 100 2½ $2.50

Guaranteed first-class. Stock grown in low temperature.

THE E. HIPPARD CO., Youngstown, Dhio.

When corresponding with any advertiser on this page, please mention the fact that you saw the ad. in the AMERI-CAN FLORIST.

YOUNG ROSES 300,000 300,000

Ramblers, Climb. Malmaison, Climb. White Pet, Climb. Wootton, Pres. Carnot and 100 other leaders in Teas, H. Teas and Climbers. Moon Vines, $2.50 per 100.

Send for prices. The National Plant Company, Dayton, Ohio.

New American Rose

MRS. ROBERT GARRETT

As one of the syndicate holding stock in this rose we offer first class plants, from 246-inch pots, to be delivered on and after March 15, 1888, at the agreed price of $1.50 per doz., $25.00 per 100. $225.00 per 1000.

AMERICAN ROSE CO. WASHINGTON, D. C.

lemorial Kose

(Rosa Wichuriana)

Strong field-grown plants, $50, $75 and $100 per 1000

SAM'L C. MOON,

MORRISVILLE, Bucks Co., PA.

SCOTT'S ROSES!

AMERICAN BEAUTY

NOW READY TO SHIP

Plants from 2 1-2 inch pots.

$6.00 per 100; $50.00 per 1000

Ulrich Brunner. Strong plants of hard wooded cuttings, from 21/3inch pots, $4 00 per 100; $35 00 per 1000. This is gilt-edged stock, and has a reputation of its own Last year we could have sold 10,000 plants after our stock was sold. Sample for 10 cents.

Bride, Bridesmaid, Perle des Jardins, Meteor and Carnot, from 21/2inch pots. Write for prices.

New Dwarf Canna Gloriosa, without exception the most useful and beautiful Canna yet introduced. Plants, from 3-inch pots, $2.00 per doz; $12 50 per 100.

Canna Flamingo, dormant roots, $8.00 per 100.

Canna Paul Marquant, dormant roots, $2.00 per 100; $15.00 per 1000. Canna Chas. Henderson, dormant roots, $2 per 100; $15.00 per 1000.

*** ORDER NOW ***

Robert Scott & Son,

Mention the American Florist

ROSES

ROSES

ROSES

For immediate planting, all the best stardard varieties in A-1 stock, at reasonable prices, now ready, including CLARA WATSON and PRESIDENT CARNOT.

CARNATIONS

All the leading varieties, including LILY DEAN, the best and freest blooming of all the fancy varieties, also FLORA HILL, C. A. DANA, MAYOR PINGREE, Etc., in extra selected stock; also all the new ones of present year's introduction, at advertised prices.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS

All the very best new and standard varieties in extra fine stock.

CANNAS -

The cream of all the good ones on the market.

For Special Prices on Large Orders, write to

JOHN N. MAY, SUMMIT, NEW JERSEY.

ROSE PLANTS

|             |   |   |   |   | Per 100         | Per 1000 | Per 100        | Per 1000 |
|-------------|---|---|---|---|-----------------|----------|----------------|----------|
| Brides -    |   | - |   |   | 2½-inch, $3 50 | $30.00  | 3-inch, $4.50 | $40.60  |
| Bridesmaids | - |   | - |   | " 3.50          | 30.00    | 4.50           | 40.00    |
| Meleors -   | - | - | • | - | " 3.50          | 30 00    | " 4 50         | 40.00    |
| Perles      |   |   |   |   |  3.50         | 30.00    | " 4.5 0 | 40.00    |

All Stock Guaranteed to be first-class. Ready April 1st.

M. A. HUNT FLORAL CO.

P. O. Box 235.

TERRE HAUTE, IND.

GEO. E. HUNT, Manager.

ROSES OWN ROOTS A DORMANT &

FIELD GROWN

IN COLD STORAGE IN CHICAGO.

No. 1, 2 to 4 feet, cut back to 2 feet Yellow Rambler (Aglaia) Hybrid Perpetuals,

Mosses, Hardy Climbers and Madam Plantier

These plants are very strong and well shaped. Prices on application. Address

W. F. HEIKES, Manager.

CHICAGO, ILLS. 1308-1310 Unity Bldg., -

FINE ROSE STOCK

In 2 and 3-inch Pots.

Write for prices of kinds you want.

12 Best Varieties of Carnations in 2-inch pots, ady to plant out. Write for prices. Send 50c for amples. Fancy Smilax in 2-inch pots. ready to plant out, samples. Fancy S

GEO. A. KUHL, Pekin, III.

N. Dames

****** Vanderhorst sessesses & Dames...

BULB GROWERS

Lisse and Heemstede, Holland,

is on his round trip through the United States. To spare time, we beg to send all letters and communications up to May 15, care of Knauth Nachod & Kuhne, 13 William St., New York.

Give us the list of your wants and we will send you our lowest quotations for real good stuff.

IMPORTERS

JAPANESE PLANTS,

BULBS, ETC.

At lowest prices. Small orders filled from expertmental garden Columbia Road Dorchester, Mass Wholesale catalogue, 1828 free to the trade.

JAPANESE NURSERY,

Office: 272 Boylston St., . . .

BOSTON, MASS

For FLORISTS... For SEEDSMEN.

VAN ZANTEN BROTHERS.

HILLEGOM,

HOLLAND.

Dahlias

Get my Catalogue and Prices.

H. F. BURT, Taunton, Mass.

Brides.

"GRAFTED"

Maids.

CUTTINGS

* * Beauties, "Own Roots." * * * Fine Plants from 2 1-4 and 3 inch Pots.

ROBERT SIMPSON.

PRICES ON APPLICATION.

careful

687 Bergen Ave., Jersey City, N. J.

ROSES ...ROOTED

| nb wood used.   |             |       |         |          |          |          | From 256 | lneh Pots |
|-----------------|-------------|-------|---------|----------|----------|----------|----------|-----------|
| lly packed when | i sent out. | Send  | for sar | mples    | Per 100  | Per 1000 | Per 100  | Per 1000  |
| AMERICAN        | BEAUTI      | ES, F | Conted  | Cuttings | , $2.50 | $22.00  |          |           |
| BRIDES          |             |       |         |          | 1,50     | 12.50    |          |           |
| BRIDESMA        |             |       |         |          | 1.50     | 12.50    |          |           |
| METEOR          |             |       | 1.3     | * 4      | 1.50     | 12.50    |          |           |
| KAISERIN        |             |       | 1.5     | * *      | 1.50     | 12.50    |          |           |
| PERLE           |             |       | 1.6     | 4.1      | 1.50     | 12.50    |          |           |

J. A. BUDLONG, - STATION X, CHICAGO, ILL.

Vase for the Cemetery

The Clara Cemetery Vase
(Patent applied for by Mrs C. W. Pike.)
A RECEPTACLE FOR FLOWERS, LONG NEEDED FOR THE CEMETERY.

BASSETT & WASHBURN,

88 WABASH AVE., CHICAGO, ILL.

Jardinieres, Pots@Pedestals

ADAPTED TO Florists' Use.

Artistic Shapes and Decorations.

หลักกลักกลักกลักกลักกลัก

Write us for Illustrations

BURLEY & TYRRELL, 42=44 Lake St., CHICAGO.

BEST OUALITY

Holland Bulbs

LOWEST PRICES

JAC. WEZELENBUR

SASSENHEIM, HOLLAND.

Address up to May 1 in care of KNAUTH, NACHOD & KUHNE, 13 William St., NEW YORK. & &

CANNAS NEW AMERICAN Finest in the World Our Novelties for 1898

|                                           | rer | 1110  |
|-------------------------------------------|-----|-------|
| DUKE OF MARLBORO, darkest crimson         |     |       |
| DUCHESS OF MARLBORO, only pure pink       | 30  | . 00  |
| TOPAZ, only absolutely large pure yellow. |     | ), OU |
| LORRAINE, pink, edged white, fine         |     | 1.00  |
| MAIDENS BLUSH, delicate flesh color       |     | . 00  |
| GOLDEN PEARL, yellow, nearly double       |     | .00   |
| CUBA. finest and largest gilt edged       |     | 00    |
| GLORIOSA, very dwarf, March delivery      | F2  | . 50  |
| PHILADELPHIA, glowing crimson             |     |       |
| CHAMPION, largest, glowing scarlet $5.   |     | ıеh   |
| KLONDIKE, only large pure orange $2.     | 50  |       |
| Send for complete list of 50 novelties    | and | 200   |
| standard varieties at lowest prices.      |     |       |

OUR CANNAS IN FRANCE.

OUR CARROL.

To Messrs A. Blanc & Co.
Your new cannas of last year gave me much satisfaction. Please send me a complete set of your covetites for IS98 as soon as ready. Also 12
Glant Crimson, etc.

Signed CH. MOLLIN,
Lyon, France, Jan. 3, 1898.

ASPARAGUS SPRENGERI

Fine plants in 6-Inch pots, ready for 8-Inch, $5 per 12.

AMARYLLIS .....

Veltch's Hybrids. $4 per 12; Equestra, $4 per 100; Formosissima, $3 per 100.

CALLAS

Spotted Leaf, $3; Black, $5; Yellow, $30; all per 100. Golden, $2 cach

DAHLIAS

11 prizes out of 22 at the last Dahila exhibition. First prize Dahila, GillT EDGE, $15 per 100 Send for special list.

A. BLANC & CO., Philadelphia, Pa.

New Dwarf

CANNA

Pres. Cleveland

The greatest advance in the Canna line as yet, either foreign or native. It has the largest trusses and flowers of the whole tribe, of a rich deep shade of scarlet, and is the freest variety to bloom introduced yet. The habit is dwarf, as well as vigorous. A A A A A A A A A

We are Headquarters for the Genuine stock of it.

Strong Pot Plants at 50c each; $5.00 per doz.; $35.00 per 100, to the trade.

DENYS ZIRNGIEBEL NEEDHAM, MASS.

100,000 CANNA

Strong dormant roots in leading varieties; orders received until April 10th at $3.00 per 100, $25.00 per 1000 RICHARDIA ALBA MACULATA $7.50 per 1000 RICHARDIA ALBA MACULATA $7.50 per 100 DAHLIAS, strong whole roots in leading varieties, of Cactus, large flowered and Pompon $8.60 per 100 LILIUM AURATUM, 7 to 9 inches, $4.00 per 100; 9 to 11 inches $6.00 per 100 LILIUM SPECIOSUM RUBRUM $8.00 per 100 LILIUM SPECIOSUM RUBRUM $7.00 per 100 LILIUM SPECIOSUM ALBUM $7.00 per 100 PÆONY OFFICINALIS, best early-flowered red, strong roots $7.50 per 100 PÆONY OFFICINALIS, best early-flowered red, strong roots $7.50 per 100 GERANIUMS, large stock best bedding varieties $3.00 per 100, $20.00 per 1000 Big stock of pot R ses, Palms and other greenhouse plants.

Large supply of strong, dormant, nursery-grown Roses, 2-year roots, in H. P., Climbers and Moss. Large-flowered Clematis, Hydrangea Paniculata Grandiflora, etc.

If you have wants in Fruit and Ornamental Trees. Shrubs, etc., we have 'em.

THE STORRS & HARRISON CO., Painesville, Ohio.

PEACOCK'S DAHLIAS FOR 1898.

Snow White Cactus Dahlia '' La Favorite'' The only pure white Cactus Dahlia to succeed in America; large, line form, long stems and good substance, strong plants, each $1.00; doz. $10.00

- "Wilhelm Miller" Immense Size, Richest Imperial Purple, strong roots, each 75c; $7.50 doz.; strong plants each 50c; doz. $5.00.
- "Clifford Bruton" The Finest of all Yellow Dahlias. $25.00 per 100
- "Iridescent" The nearest approach to a Blue Dahlia. Strong roots, each 40c; doz. $4.00
- 44 Cyclops *** New Cactus Dahlia. The freest bloomer in the class. Strong roots, each 75c, strong plants 50c each; doz $5.00.

Cactus Dahlia "Xanthia," Pompon Dahlia "Carol," Show Dahlia "Purity." Strong roots, 75c each; strong plants, 50c each; doz. $5.00.

NEW SINGLE DAHLIAS FOR 1898.

Little Dorothy, Ada, Edina, Irene, Luxury, Vernie. 50e each; doz. $5 00.

The New Fragrant Dahlia " Novelty."

"Folia Variegata" The New Variegated-Leaf Dahlia. Each 30c; doz. $3,00.

For a complete and accurate description of all the leading new and old varieties send for our new illustrated, descriptive Catalogue.

W. P. PEACOCK, Dahlia Specialist, ATCO, N. J.

SEEDLING GLADIOLUS BULBS. هو بعر بعر

Our 2nd size, Seedlings and Mixed, are full of business for garden planting. Superb in coloring, delicate in markings, endless in variety. A light mixture.

We offer until sold 2nd size bulbs, $6,00 per 1000; 5,000 to one party for $25.00.

A few 1st size left at $10.00 per 1000.

MAY, 1st size, $2 00 per 100; $15 00 per 1000, 2nd size, $1 50 per 100; $12.00 per 1000

CASH WITH ORDER, PLEASE.

CUSHMAN GLADIOLUS CO.. Euclid. O.

...FINE...

JOHN H. LEY, Good Hope, D. C.

Solicits early orders for following fine stock:

NEPHROLEP(S. D. Furcans Very large, full of fronds, 3 feet over (Glinch pots, fit for Scinch)........ 1.00 9.00

Crotons...

_IN VARIETY

Rothschild, Hawkeri, Interruptum, Evansumum, Rubra Lineata, Andreanum, Aurea Macdatum and others, suitable for hedding. Fine plants in 3-meh pots, $2.00 per doz. New and rare varieties, 50 cents each.

Aurea Macdatum, extra fine plants in 1-in pots $2.50 per doz.; $15 per 100; 3-inch pot plants $2 per doz.; $15 per 100; thumb pots, $1 per doz.; $6 per 100.

Edwin Lonsdale,

Money Order Office, Station II Phila.

Horist. CHESINET HILL. PHILA., PA.

ORCHIDS

Our Specialty. Correspondence Solicited.

LAGER & HURRELL, – Summit, N. J. Mention American Florist.

The most showy semi-climber of recent introduction. Strong 3-Inch plants now ready. Also Little Cem Callas, 2% Inches Logan Berries, Strawberry Raspherries, Mayberries, Write for list and prices.

The Conard & Jones Co. WEST GROVE.

Hydrangeas

ine paints with 10 to 30 blooms or joint = 10 cents per bloom

JOHN SCOTT, Keap St. Greenhouses,

Rose Hill Nurseries

LARGEST Greener of Palms Orchids, State and Greenhouse plants Ferris Arometrics Pandams New Wholesale prior and with be ready March 20th

SIEBRECHT & SON, New Rochelle, N. Y. New York Office, 409 Fifth Ave.

ORCHIDS, impose extrans of the good The state of the s CACIL, arises a trace of 12 good varieties 100

J. A. McDowell, City of Mexico. 1

PRICE LIST

|           | easurements | , top | οſ | pot | to t | оp | ωſ  | tnl | les | t le | -21 | r.  |   |   |     |      | Size   |       |         | ter Pri | ice.           |
|-----------|-------------|-------|----|-----|------|----|-----|-----|-----|------|-----|-----|---|---|-----|------|--------|-------|---------|---------|----------------|
|           | TIES:       |       |    |     |      |    |     |     |     |      |     |     |   |   |     |      | Pot,   |       | Leaves. | Each.   | Doz.           |
| ARECA L   | UTESCENS    |       |    |     |      |    |     |     |     |      |     |     |   |   |     | - 4  | l-inch | 12-14 | 6-8     |         | \\\3.00 |
| 5.6       |           |       |    | . , |      |    |     |     |     |      |     |     |   |   |     | . 7  |      | 22-26 | 6-10    | $0.50  | 5.00           |
| 41        |           |       |    |     |      |    |     |     |     |      |     |     |   |   |     | ť    | ''     | 30-34 | 8~10    | .75     | 9.00           |
|         |           |       |    |     |      |    |     |     |     |      |     |     |   |   |     | (    |      | 34-38 | 8-12    | 1.00    | 12 00          |
| 5.6       | 11          |       |    |     |      |    |     |     |     |      |     |     |   |   |     |      |        | 40-50 | 15-20   | 2.50    | 30,00          |
| COCOS W   | EDDELJAN.   | Α.    |    |     |      |    |     |     |     |      |     |     |   |   |     | :    | 3    | 10-14 | 4-6     | .25     | 3 00           |
| 11        | 1.6         |       |    |     |      |    |     |     |     |      |     |     |   |   |     |      |        | 7-9   | 3-4     | . 15    | 1.50           |
| KENTIA B  | ELMOREAN    | A     |    | ٠.  |      |    |     |     |     |      |     |     |   |   |     | 1    | - 6    | 14-16 | 4-6     | .50     | 3.60           |
| 4.5       | 1.6         |       |    |     |      |    |     |     |     |      |     |     |   |   |     |      | ,      | 16-18 | 5-6     | . 75    | 7.20           |
| 1.1       | 4.6         |       |    |     |      |    |     |     |     |      |     |     |   |   |     | +    | 5 ''   | 20-24 | 4-6     | 1 25    | 15.00          |
| 4.6       | * 5         |       |    |     |      |    |     |     |     |      | Ċ   | Ċ   |   |   | ٠.  | 7    |      | 50-54 | 1-6     | 4.00    | 48.00          |
|  F(     | ORSTERIAN   | iA .  |    |     |      |    |     |     |     |      | Ċ   |     |   |   | . ' | !    | 4.5    | 18-20 | 2.3     | .50     | 3 60           |
|           | 11          |       |    |     |      |    |     |     |     |      | ٠.  |     |   |   |     |      |        | 20-21 | 3-4     | .75     | 7.20           |
| 4.6       | 4.4         |       |    |     |      |    |     |     |     |      |     |     |   |   |     |      | 4.     | 50-54 | 4-6     | 4 00    | 48 00          |
| LATANIA   | BORBONIC.   | A.    |    |     |      |    |     |     |     |      |     |     |   |   |     |      | 3      | 12-14 | 1-2     |         | 1.50           |
| 14        | 11          |       |    |     |      |    |     |     | Ċ   |      |     |     |   |   |     | 4    |      | 11-16 | 3-4     | . 45    | 3 00           |
| 4.4       | 4.4         |       |    |     |      |    | ٠.  |     |     |      |     |     |   |   |     |      |        | 18-20 | 4-5     | .50     | 5.00           |
| 6.6       | 4.4         |       | •  |     |      |    |     |     | 1   |      | - 1 | Ċ   |   |   |     |      |        | 20-24 | 5-6     | .75     | 9.00           |
|         | 11          |       | ٠. | •   |      |    | • • |     |     |      | Ċ   | •   |   |   |     | ٠,   |        | 30-36 | 6.8     | 2.50    | 30.00          |
| 1.1       |             | •     |    |     | •    | ٠. |     | ٠.  | ٠.  | • •  | •   |     | • | • |     | - 16 |        | 35-40 | 8.12    | 5.00    | 60.00          |
| PHOENIX D | RECLINATA   |       |    |     |      |    | ٠.  | ٠   | •   |      |     | • • |   |   |     |      |        | 18-20 | 4.5     | .50     | 5 00           |
| 44        | 14          |       |    |     |      |    |     | •   |     | •    |     |     | • | • |     |      |      | 22-24 | 1.5     | 75      | 9 00           |
|           | E (         |       | •  |     | •    | •  | : : | •   |     |      | •   |     |   |   |     |      |        | 26 30 | 5.6     | 1.00    | 12.00          |
|           | CANARIENS   | 115   |    |     |      |    |     | -   |     | • •  | ٠   | •   | • | • | -   | 5    |        | 18-20 | 4-5     | 50      | 5 00           |
|           | U CANADA    |       |    |     |      |    |     |     |     | ٠    |     |     | • |   |     | 1    |        | 22-26 | 5-ti    | 75      | 9.00           |
| 4.6       | 4.4         | •     |    |     |      |    | •   |     |     | •    | •   |     | • | • |     | 7    | 4.4    | 26-30 | 8-10    | 1,00    | 12 00          |
|           |             | ,     | ٠. |     | •    |    | •   |     |     | •    | ٠   | •   | • |   |     |      |        | 4     |         | 1,00    | 14 00          |

FERNS.

| NEPHROLEPIS | EXALTATA  | , from 4-in.  | iots . |     |  |   |  |  |  |       |  |      |  |      | . 1.50  | ì |
|-------------|-----------|---------------|--------|-----|--|---|--|--|--|-------|--|------|--|------|---------|---|
|           |         | from 5 in.    | pots   |     |  |   |  |  |  |       |  |      |  |  | ., 2.00 | J |
|             |           | from 6-in.    | pots . |     |  |   |  |  |  |       |  |      |  |  | . 4.00  | ) |
| 4+          | BOSTONIEN | ISIS, from 5- | in. po | ts. |  | ٠ |  |  |  | ٠ |  |  |  | ٠    | . 3.00  | ) |

Miscellaneous.

| FICUS ELASTIC | A, from 5-in.  | pots, 7-10 le | aves     |      |  |  |  |  |  |  |  |    |     |     | 5.00           |
|---------------|----------------|---------------|----------|------|--|--|------|--|--|--|--|----|-----|-----|----------------|
| 66 64         | from 4-in. j   | oots, 4-6 le: | IVCS     |      |  |  |      |  |  |  |  |    |     |     | 3.00           |
|             | from 6-in. j   | iots, 10-12 l | eaves.   |      |  |  |      |  |  |  |  |    |     |     | . 9.00         |
| PANDANUS UTI  | LIS, from 4-in | i. pots       |          |      |  |  |  |  |  |  |  |    |     |     | . 3.00         |
|               | 🖰 from 5 in    | i, nots       |          |      |  |  |  |  |  |  |  |    |     |     | 5.00           |
| SELAGINELLA   | MARTENSII,     | - from 2 in   | . pots . |  |  |  |      |  |  |  |  | *  | 1.0 | O p | ж т 100 |
| 4.4           | 4.4            | from 2 in     | mote     |      |  |  |      |  |  |  |  | 40 | : n | a î | OH 100         |

Address GEO. WITTBOLD, 1708 N. Halsted St., Chicago.

 $ar{eta}_{nnnnnnnnnnnnnn}$

404 E. 34th St.. NEW YORK CITY.

BUY YOUR ASPARAGUS PLUTOSUS SEED DIRECT FROM THE GROWER.....

J. W. LANDEVILLE, Florist, 535 17th Street. -SAN DIECO, CAL.

M<sup>OST</sup> magnificent bedding and decorative plant known. Equal to a palm in beauty and manner of growth; grows with the case of the Ricinus and endures drought with impunity. Plan a from 4-in, pots set out June 1st attained a height of 10 feet and though not watered once, remained fresh and vigorous throughout the extreme drought, Also produces a delicious fruit; as easily grown as a tomato. Our plants are propagated from a tree which has produced this winter 192 lbs. of fruit, the largest weighing 42 lbs. Send for half-tone illustration from photo showing bed of these plants. Every florist needs it. Price $2.25 per 12 for 3-in. pads, ready May 1st. We are headquarters for tropical plants. Send for list.

Martin Benson, DONGOLA, - -ILLINOIS.

For those who Want the best in Easter Stock

I call especial attention to the splendid BRUNNERS, JACQS and BEAUTIES which I am now receiving. These blooms are exceptionally fine and will please the best trade. Also a full line of other Roses, Carnations, Violets and Bulbous Stock in choicest grades.

THOS. YOUNG, Jr., Wholesale Florist,

43 West 28th Street, NEW YORK.

HEADQUARTERS FOR.....

Asparagus Sprengerii and Asparagus Plumosus

Both of these varieties can be grown to GREAT PROFIT on benches, planted out for cut sprays. Those who have not grown them in this way will be astonished at the quantity that may be

Ask for our Spring Trade List...

Robt. Craig & Son.

49th and Market Sts.,

PHILADELPHIA, PA.

|       |               |                    |  |         | 11333111 |      |
|-------|---------------|--------------------|------|---------|----------|------|
|  | - 27 - 22 7 0 | NAME AND A SECTION |  | * |          | 240: |

| Asparagus Sprengerii, 2 inch                                                                                                                         | 100$6.00 | 1000$50,00 |  |
|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|---------------|-----------------|--|
| " Plumosus, 3 inch, extra fine                                                                                                                       | 8.00          | 75,00           |  |
| Draclena Terminalis.                                                                                                                                 |               |                 |  |
| The best commercial Dracana, 2½ in. In extra line condition for growing on.                                                                          | 8.00          | 75,00           |  |
| Mosella Rose. Extra strong 2 inch,Ready for shipping for spring salesThis is a very fine bloomer in potand unsurpassed as a budding rose | 4 00          | 35,00           |  |
| Carnations.                                                                                                                                          |               |                 |  |
| FLORA HILL, the best White                                                                                                                           | 5.00          | 40.00           |  |
| VICTOR, the best Pink                                                                                                                                | 5.00          | 40.00           |  |
| LILY DEAN, the best Fancy MAYOR PINGREE, the extra fine yel-                                                                                         | 5.00          | 40,00           |  |

Also Triumph, Jubilee, Mrs. MacBurney. Armazindy, Wm. Scott, and all the desirable introductions of this year. Write and tell us your wants and we will give you as low prices as anyone for FIRST-CLASS_STOCK

.

KELSEY'S GALAX LEAVES

and Leucothoe Sprays

EASTER.

Brilliant Green and Bronze-

They are now too well known to need much description

For use with violets the small green leaves have found enormous demand.

small green leaves have found enormous demand.

Galax Leaves are to be seen at all the best floral decorations particularly at funerals, weddings and parties. For Easter, and to supply the demand during the Summer Months, I have placed a very large supply in cold storage, packed in original cases, and can ship promptly from Boston on order by mail or wire.

...PRICES...

Galax -Large or small, enther color, per 1000 $1.00, 100 to 10

HARLAN P. KELSEY 1150 Tremont Bidg., Boston. Mass.

FOR EASTER....

The following Stock in healthy growing condition. . . . . . . . . .

Latania Borbonica, from 5-in. pots, full of roots. 18 in high, average 7 leaves; Kentia Belmoreum, from 4-in. pots, 16 to 18 in. high, 5 to 6 leaves. Vrcca Intescens, 18 in. high, 5 to 6 leaves, above 40 cts. cach. or $3.50 per doz. Channerops excelsa, 15-in. high, 8 to 9 leaves, 25 cts. cach: $2.50 per doz. Cocus Hexmosa, 5 to 6 ft. high fine decorative plants, $1.50 cach. Pandanus utilis, from 4 in. pots, 15 in. high, 12 leaves, 20 cts. cach: $2.00 per doz. Nephrolepis D Furcaus, excellent plants from 5-in. pots, 15 to 18 in. across, 12 leaves, 50 cts. cach: $5.00 per doz., height of plants given above pots.

For Spring and other Stock see following numbers of the FLORIST.

N. STUDER, Anacostia, D. C.

LUCAS PAINT THE BEST FOR PRESERVING & BEAUTIFYING NO WATER NO BENZINE BUT PURE OIL AND PERMANENT PIGMENT

Alternanthera. ROOTED CUTTINGS.

Fine stock P. major and A. nana 90c per 100; $6.00 per 1000. Ready April 15.

HOFFMEYER, Box 31, Carnegie, Pa.

Seed Sweet Potatoes

Vellors Jersey and Vellow Sansemond choice stock, $2 per barrel or live bar rels at $1.55 per barrel

J. W. DAVIS, - - Morrison, III.

Try Some Easter Rusin Business ..

Ford Bros.

We are handling regularly the product of a large number of reputable growers and can suit you as to quality and price

Good Lilies Will Not Be Plenty

We can fill orders for the RIGHT KIND if booked early & & & & & & A A A ATTEND TO IT NOW

READY to quote favorable prices on all bulbous flowers in any quantity. Two & hundred thousand of the finest Marie Louise Violets in New York market. Also Roses, Carnations, Mignonette, Sweet Peas, Etc.

FORD BROS.

111 W. 30th STREET, NEW YORK.

ESTABLISHED EMIL STEFFENS SUCC. 10 N.STEFFENS.

ROSES 300,000 300.000

Fine, Young Plants, From 24-Inch Pots.

Following List, $2.75 Per 100; $25.00 Per 1,000.

Agrippina
Bridesmaid
Chromafella
Empress of China
Mme, Jos, Schwartz
Marie Van Hontte
Wichoriana
The Queen
Triumph Pernet Pere
Coquette de Ly on Andre Schwartz
Mernet
Frigneuse Frigneuse

J. B. Varrone
Mme. Pernet Ducher
Marechal Mel
Marie Lambert
Vellow Hermosa
Baltimore Belle World Lambert
Lyon
Duchess Brabani
triz
Mme. Welche
Mare Lambert
Media
Marie Calllot
Bride
Golden Gate
Laculius
Marie Lambert
Media
Marie China
Marquis Vivens
Moon Vines, 82,50 per 100. Rubra Begonia, $3,00 per 100.

Many other varieties of Roses and full general stock.

THE NATIONAL PLANT CO., DAYTON, OHIO.

FOREST GLES, 11.1., March 28, 1818.

Mr. H. MACMICHAEL, 25. N. Leavitt St., Chicago
Dear Str. Your sulphur Machine is simplicity liaded its work being rapid and perfect. An ineredibity small quantity fills the house. He is dust cloud, glying to well right every leat of every plant its evenly distributed inte. Notifica seen comparable with it. Predict its indexagluse.

Your respectfully. BRANTA NOE.

MacMichael's Sulphur .. Blower ..

The Best on Earth.

PRICE, $5.00.

All orders received before April 25th will be filled for $1.50. Cash with order.

PARK RIDGE, III, Feb. 41., 1898
MR. MACMICHAEL, Uldengo.
Denr Str. I have used your Sulphur Blower and tind Lin great Improvement over the bellows. It does the work better quicker and more even.

Yours truly.
EMIL BUETTNER.

H. MacMICHAEL,

956 N. Leavitt St,,

CHIGAGO.

E. G. HILL & CO.

RICHMOND, IND.

Magnificent Boston Fern

2½-in. pots, $6.00 per 100; 2-in. pots, $5.00 per 100.

Fine Clothilde Soupert Roses

3-in. pots, $4.00 per 100; 2½-in. pots, $2.50 per 100.

Mosella, "The Yellow Soupert"

Unequaled for market purposes.

3-in. pots, $5.00 per 100; 2½-in. pots, $3.00 per 100.

PRES. CARNOT

Nothing finer for pots.

3 in. pots, $5.00 per 100; 212-in pots, $3.00 per 100.

American Beauty

Ready April 10th.

Fine stock. 2-in. pots, $5.00 100.

Bride and Bridesmaid

Elegant stuff.

2½-in. pots, $2.50 per 100; $22.50 per 1000.

EVERBLOOMING ROSES

In only the very finest varieties.

$2.50 per 100; $22.50 per 1000. This is the best offer ever made in Roses, considering varieties and qualities.

Ulrich Brunner

2/2-in pots, $4 00 per 100.

We offer of the NEW ROSES of last year (1897) the following magnificent bedding varieties, viz.:

MURIEL GRAHAM

a marbled sport from Catherine Mermet;

JEANNIE CABANA

one of the most distinctly colored Roses ever inintroduced;

Mme. CADEAN RAMEY

a fine two-colored rose;

FERDINAND BATEL

an improved Eugenie Verdier;

Mme. JULES GROLEZ

HYBRID TEA

August Wattine and Emilie Gouin
Two fine Teas. All at $10.00 per 100.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS

All the certificated novelties of the year. Also MRS. O. P. BASSETT (the Yellow Robinson.) $20.00 per 100. See our trade list for prices.

100 Choice Chrysanthemums

one of a kind, including last year's novelty, $4.00.

1000 Choice Chrysanthemums

In 100 sorts, $20.00.

A grand collection of

Dwarf Perennial Phloxes

including the finest and latest French and English novelties, $4.00 per 100.

12 New "Crozy Type" Cannas

including Prest. Cleveland and Tarrytown for $3.50.

12 Dammann's newest Cannas for $3.00.

PINK SWAINSONA

A grand companion for the white variety, $4 per 100.

12 EXTRA NEW GERANIUMS

for $3, a collection that will charm and surprise every grower.

Careful Attention to Light Packing, Good Count and Lowest Express Rates.

E. G. HILL & CO.

RICHMOND, IND.

Kroeschell Bros. Co. IMPROVED GREENHOUSE BOILER

29 to 59 Erie St., CHICAGO.

Boilers made of the best material, shell, firebox sheets and heads of STEEL, water space all around (front, sides and back). Write for information.

WENTION AMERICAN FLORIST

WM. C. SMITH.

WHOLESALE FLORIST

No. 40 South 16th Street.

NEW YORK.

Consignments Solicited.

Unsurpassed Shipping Facilities.

Long Distance Phone.

BRIDESMA1D ($3.50 per 100; $30.00 per 1000 AMERICAN BEAUTIES, $6.00 per 100

Carnation Cuttings

Strong and healthy, from flats.

L. McGOWAN ...  $\frac{1}{2}$1.00$  per 100; $8.00 per 1000Strong Healthy Stock. Cash with Order.

MAGNUSON & PEARSON.

BOWMANVILLE. STATION X. CHICACO.

TRANSPLANTED CARNATIONS

| Mayor Ping |     | m nai |     |          |      |      |
|------------|-----|-------|-----|----------|------|------|
| Daybreak.  | ••• | ••    | and | transpla | nted | 1.5  |
| Scott,     |   |     |   |       |      | . 12 |
| McG wan,   |   |     |   |        |      | 1 2  |
| ohlnoor.   |   |     | *1  |          |      | 1.5  |
| Meteor.    |     | 1.4   | **  | **       |      |      |

All fine, healthy and no rust.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS

Kate Washburn, early white; Mrs. Robinson, extra early white; Miss Johnson, extra early yellow; elegant plants, 2½ in pots, 40c per doz, $3.00 per 100; rooted cuttings same, 2c each. salvias "Bonfire," extra fine 1½ in. pots, 25c per doz; $1.75 per 100 New Yeltow Marguerite, 2 in. pots, 25c per doz; cut-tings $1.50 per 100 Calliorula Violets, rooted cuttings or clumps. Cash, by express.

GEO. M. BRINKERHOFF, Springfield, III.

It is good business policy to mention the

....AMFRICAN FLORIST

when you write to an advertiser.

$85.50

$63.28

..JADOO FIBRE...

…and…

A LITTLE ARITHMETIC

"Use pots two sizes smaller than when you grow plants in soil." That's one of our most emphatic instructions. Let's see what it means to you. Here's the way to figure.

One Ton of JADOO FIBRE Fills 4000 4-inch Pots.

One ton of JADOO FIBRE F. O. B. Philadelphia... $27.50 4000 4-inch pots..... 31.16

4000 6-inch pots (size required for earth) cost

One Ton of JADOO FIBRE Fills 1150 6-inch Pots.

$ 58.66

One ton of JADOO FIBRE F. O. B. Phila-

Cost of pots and Jadoo Fibre for 4000 plants...

delphia..... $27.50 1150 6-inch pots..... 25.88 Cost of pots and Jadoo Fibre for 1150 plants... $53.38

1150 8-inch pots (size required for earth) cost

Even if Soil Cost You Nothing and Gave as Good Results as JADOO FIBRE, Could You Afford to Grow Your Plants in Soil?

The American Jadoo

815 Fairmount Avenue.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa.

Standard Ventilators

To has been fully demonstrated by the thousands of Standards now in use in the United States and foreign countries that it has no equal for the purposes to which it is adapted. It requires no expert to put in position. No chains or springs to adjust or slip. The Wheel and the Shaft are all in one piece, made out of malleable iron, consequently no slipping on the shaft. Has no friction that is not oiled by self-oiler.

CATALOGUE FREE

The E. Hippard Company

YOUNGSTOWN, OHIO.

GARDENING

THE FLADING JOURNAL OF HORTICULTURE AND FLORICULTURE

TWICE MONTHLY

$2.00

PER ANALM

This finely illustrated paper treats of all departments of horticulture and floriculture in the best, broadest and most popular style. Trees, shribs and vines, fruits, flowers and vegetables are all fully and seasonably discussed by the ablest writers. Special attention will be given during the current year to small fruits, dalilias and sweet peas.

This is just the paper that all Florists, Seedsmen and Nurserymen should recommend to their amateur friends and patrons, and we give a commission of fifty per cent on new subscriptions to those who act as our agents. Pays better than most kinds of stock.

The Gardening Company, Monon Bld., Chicago

SHOWY CARD FOR OFFICE DISPLAY AND SAMPLE COPIES TREE

AN INDICTMENT AGAINST

HAMMOND'S SLUG SHOT

THE INSECTICIDE.

Dosoris, { ss.

The following representatives of families injured by the use of the insecticide known throughout America, and even beyond the seas as Hammond's Slug Shot, which article we believe to be made at Fishkill-on-Hudson in the State of New York, and to be put up in packages of various sizes and the same to the best of our belief is sold by all dealers in seeds for the garden, and which tradesmen live in any loeality where a post office is established, but is mainly distributed by the large dealers who live in the chief cities and towns, the said Hammond's Slug Shot has for generations of our relatives been doing immense damage in destroying life, or producing an illness among our families-which ended in the death of many individuals, this preparation is a most insidious article, for while if it fall upon a plant be it ever so tender it does no appreciable harm, should one of our species inhale or chew but a very small portion this deadly stuff produces dire effects upon all our kin.

Therefore we representatives of the largest elass of living beings upon the surface of the earth assembled in conference in and among the bowers of this beautiful Island, do hereby affirm, that the said Hammond's Slug Shot is a most dangerous article used in every directiou to our hurt and damage, and warn each and every family of our species to be aware of and depart from any TREE SHRUB, vine flower ing plant or vegetable if one or any of them value their lives or health, for while the said Hammond's Slug Shot does no harm to our old ememy man or to his animals, the said Slug Shot is in man's hands the most destructive of weapons against our race.

Subscribed this 25th day of September, 1897 Aphis-The Green Fly.

Carpocapsa P .- The Codling Moth,

Doryphora 10 L.-The Potato Bug.

Onicus.-The Snow Bug.

Tyloderma T .- The Strawberry Crown Borer.

Pieris Oleracia ( Pieris Rapæ ) The Cabbage Worms.

Agrotis.-The Cut Worm.

Monostegia Rosoe.—The Rose Slug.

Paleacrita V.—The Cankerworm.

Nematus, Vent.-The Currant Worm.

Gateruca Xan.-The Elm Tree Worm. Diabrotica Vit.—The Cucumber Beetle.

Eriocampe, C .- The Pear Tree Slug.

Anasa T. The Squash Bug, and others by the score.

WITNESS to above signatures:

Conotrachelus, N.-The Curculio One and all of us sore sufferers from HAM-MOND'S SLUG SHOT, made at Fishkill-onthe-Hudson, N. Y.

STOCK THAT WILL PLEASE YOU. CARNATIONS in 2-in, pots or rooted cut tings, Mrs. S. A. Northway, $10 per 100; Flora Hill, Mapledaie, $5 per 100; Daybreak, $15 per 1000; Lizzie McGowan, $12 per 100; Rose Queen, $10 per 1000. All the new ones at regular perior.

1 09: Rose Queen, $10 per 1000. All the new ones at regular prices.

GERANIUMS in 21½ in, bots Heteranthe, at regular prices.

S. A. Nutt, La Favorite, $25 per 1000: Mme. Bruant, M. Alphonse Ricard, J. J. Harrison, Feur Politevine, $5 per 100, Frances Perkins, best double pmk. Surprise, Duchesse de Maiole, $1 per 100, our selection, $20 per 1000. Mme. Salberoi, $2 per 100; rooted cuttings from flats, at 100 per 1000. Mme. Salberoi, $2 per 100; coted cuttings from flats, 60 cts, per 100; 24 n., $1.25 per 100. Dwarf Beauty, 24 n. new, $2 per 100; Vinca Var., 5 in., strong, $6 and $7 per 100. Vinca Var., 2 in., $2 per 100.

Begonia Vernon, rooted cuttings, $8 per 100. Begonia Vernon, 24 per 100. Hegonia Vernon, 25 per 100. Heliotrope, Jersey Beauty, rooted cuttings, 60c per 103; 24 n. $1.50 per 100. 6 Coleus Klondyke with every order of $5.00 and over. Terms cash or half cash and half Co.D. Stock A No. 4. CARL HAGENBURGER, West Mentor, O.

Simplicity in Greenhouse Construction.

During our long experience we have not only made many improvements in greenhouses, but we have so simplified the construction that building a greenhouse is no longer a matter so full of complications as to tax the patience and the ingenuity of even the most intelligent mechanic. Our is worked out in the best manner ready to be put up, and we furnish our customers such complete detail drawings that any workman of only ordinary capabilities can put it up correctly.

Clear Cypress Building Material

Write for Circulars or Estimates.

Lockland Lumber Co.

LOCKLAND, OHIO.

American Pedigree Cannas...

ORIGINATED ON OUR OWN CROUNDS. ROSEMAWR, enormous trusses of bright rosy pink flowers.

PHILADELPHIA, MAIDEN'S BLUSH, TRIUMPH, PILLAR OF FIRE, CALIFORNIA, GLORIOSA, DUCHESS OF MARLBOROUGH, BRILLIANT,

| Justicia Velutina, Pink | $6 00 | per 100 |
|-------------------------|--------|---------|
| Justicia Flava, Yellow  | . 6,00 | + t     |
| Justicia Nervosa, Blue  | . 6.00 | * *     |
| Sauchezia Nobilis       | 6.00   | 1.1     |

DUKE OF MARLBOROUGH. GOLDEN PEARL, ALSACE, AUGUSŤA BALTIMOŔE, QUEEN ELEANOR, ŠUNSET. Send for Prices and full descriptions.

Little Gem Callas (strong plants) ... $4.00 per 100 Bougainville Sanderiana, 3 in ... 15.00 ... Spiræa A Waterer, strong, one year, 6.00 ... Double New Life Geranium ...... 6.00 ...

Very respectfully,

The Conard & Jones Company,

WEST GROVE, PA.

VIOLETS MY SPECIALTY.

On and after March 1st I will be ready to supply, in any quantity, stock of the following varieties:

FRED. BOULON.

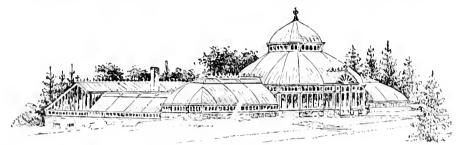

SEA CLIFF, L. I., N. Y.

VERBENAS.. Roses Extra strong plants from 3 inch pots. 96 per 100; Perle. Bride, Bridesmand, Pink and White La France. American Main moth strain, 2 inch pots, $6 per 100; Perle. Brides proper 100; Brides proper 100; Swainsona Alla. Strong Planck proper 100; Brides proper 100; Brides proper 100; Swainsona Alla. Strong Planck proper 100; Brides proper 100; Br

LORD & BURNHAM CO.

Horticultural Architects and Builders..... Steam and Hot Water Heating Engineers

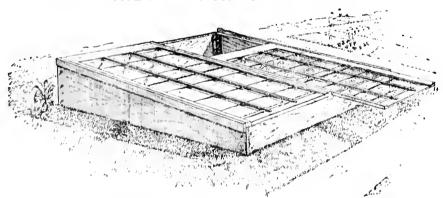

Plans and estimates furnished on application for greenhouses, conservatories etc., erected complete with our patent iron construction; or for material only, ready for erection. Estimates furnished also for Cypress Greenhouse Material.

LARCEST BUILDERS OF CREENHOUSE STRUCTURES.
PLANS AND CONSTRUCTION EMBRACE LATEST IMPROVEMENTS.
SIX HIGHEST AWARDS AT THE WORLD'S FAIR.

Send four cents postage to New York office for latest catalogue. Send five cents postage for Greenhouse HEATING and VENTILATING Catalogue.

Lord & Burnham Co.'s Cypress Hothed Sash and Frames.
THE BEST IS THE CHEAPEST.

THESE HOTBED SASH combine strength with durability and are superior in every respect. MADE OF RED GULF CYPRESS, STRICTLY FREE FROM SAP. Joints white leaded and litted with special steel dowel pins. Each sash furnished with a round iron bar running through the sash bars, tying the sash through the centre and supporting the bars without weakening them. Glazed with good quality double thick glass and painted two coats. We keep them in stock GLAZED and UNGLAZED, size 3 It. x 6 It. Other sizes made to order. Also keep in stock Cypress HOTBED FRAMES strongly made and secured with angle irons in the corners. These are portable so they can be readily taken apart for storage when not in use. FREIGHT ALLOWANCE covers freight to most points in Eastern and Middle States. CAN SHIP PROMPTLY.

Write to New York office for price list and circular.

NEW YORK OFFICE,

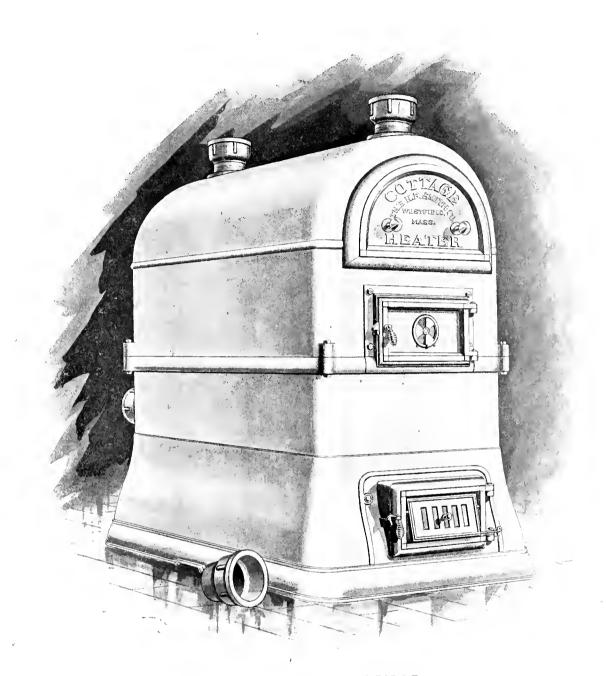

GENERAL OFFICE & WORKS,

160 Fifth Avenue, New York.

Irvington-on-Hudson, N. Y.

PACIFIC COAST AGENTS
HOLBROOK, MERRILL & STETSON,
SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

EUROPEAN AGENT
AUG. AGGERS,
BREMEN.

FOR WARMING GREENHOUSES AND CONSERVATORIES.

THE H. B. SMITH CO.

WESTFIELD, MASS.

WESTERN BRASS MFG. CO. ST. LOUIS, MO. SALESROOMS

133 CENTRE STREET, NEW YORK CITY.
510 ARCH STREET, PHILADELPHIA, PA.

| Index to A                                                                                                                                                                                        | dvertisers.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |
|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Advertising Bates 1001 Auen J K 1015 1023 American Jadoo Co 1035 American Rose Collut 1044 Auting E C 1014 1033 Anderson J F 1052 Armstrong Luther 1042 Asmus R 1061 Australian Palm Seed Co 1062 | Glblia & Co                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |
| American Jadoo Co . 1057                                                                                                                                                                          | Co1044                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |
| American RoseCol047 1049                                                                                                                                                                          | Graham Hugh 1048Garney Heater Co. 1048                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |
| Anderson J F 1052                                                                                                                                                                                 | Guita Percha and Rub                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |
| Armstrong Luther1042                                                                                                                                                                              | Hageman Wm1024                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |
| Atkins F L                                                                                                                                                                                        | Hagenburger Carl1059                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |
| Co                                                                                                                                                                                                | Hammond Renj1059                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |
| Baartman H C1007                                                                                                                                                                                  | Hart M A1015 1029                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |
| Bartlett Geo S 1042                                                                                                                                                                               | Helni Jos 1059                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                   | Strike   Percha and Reb-   Dex Mix (0)   1042     Haxeman Wm   1043     Haxeman Wm   1054     Haxeman Wm   1054     Haxeman Wm   1056     Hall Assimond Ren   1057     Hammond Ren   1058     Hancock Geo & Sons, 1066     Hearock Jos   1051     Helmi Jos   1054     Helmi Jos   1054     Helmi Jos   1056     Helkes W F   1056     Helkes W F   1056     Hernderson John Co. 1057     Hernderson Jo   |
| Benson Martin1052                                                                                                                                                                                 | Herendeen Mfg Co1005                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |
| Besold C                                                                                                                                                                                          | Hermann A                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |
| Blane A & Co1051                                                                                                                                                                                  | Herr D K                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |
| Boerner Fred1039                                                                                                                                                                                  | Hillinger Bros1008                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
| Boston Letter Co103                                                                                                                                                                               | HHI E G & Co 1046 1055                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |
| Brague L B                                                                                                                                                                                        | Hippard E 1049 1058                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |
| Brinkerhoil Geo M 1057                                                                                                                                                                            | Hitchings & Co1043                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
| Bryant Jaa M1045                                                                                                                                                                                  | Holton & Hunker Co. 1013                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |
| Rudlong J A                                                                                                                                                                                       | Horker H M Co1059Hopp & Lemke. 1047                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |
| Burpee W Atlee & Co                                                                                                                                                                               | Horan Edw C 1009 1015Horner C.R. & Sons 1005                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |
| Burt H F 1050                                                                                                                                                                                     | Hunt M A Flo Co 1049                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |
| Cambridge Tile Mfg                                                                                                                                                                                | Hittinger Bros   1008   1101 D   1032   1101 E Q X CO   1046   1055   11018 date Flo CO   1040   1055   11018 date Flo CO   1040   1055   1056 date Flo CO   1045   1056 date Flo CO   1056 date Flo CO   1056   1056 date Flo CO   1056 da   |
| Co                                                                                                                                                                                                | Invalid Appliance Co 1942                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |
| Chadwick Chas                                                                                                                                                                                     | Innia Pottery Co 1008                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |
| Chicago House Wreck-                                                                                                                                                                              | Japanese Nursery1050                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |
| Clark Bros                                                                                                                                                                                        | Jennison W C1023                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |
| Cleary & Co 1005                                                                                                                                                                                  | Johnson & Stokes1062Kaken H                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| Asmus R                                                                                                                                                                                           | Kasting W F 1013                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |
| Coles W W1047                                                                                                                                                                                     | Keller Geo & Sons1008                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |
| Clucas & Boddington  Co                                                                                                                                                                           | Hunt M A Flo Co. 1043 einnt E H. 1014 Illilnola Cut Flower Co Invalld Appliance Co liutz Invalld I |
| Conley John & Son1054Cottage Gardena1053                                                                                                                                                      | Kennell Jno Fay1042                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |
| Crate Robt 2d cover                                                                                                                                                                               | King J M 3014 1021                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
| Crawford M1042                                                                                                                                                                                    | Kraft'a Plant Tonte 1042                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |
| Conningbam J H1039                                                                                                                                                                                | Kuehn C A1013                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |
| Cushman Gladiolos Co                                                                                                                                                                              | Lager & Hurrell1052                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |
| Dames N                                                                                                                                                                                           | Lake Geneva Flo Co. 1046                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |
| Danenhower D V 1046                                                                                                                                                                               | Lang Julius 1015 1026                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |
| Davis A B & Son 105cDavis 1 W 105t 1062                                                                                                                                                       | Ley John 11                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |
| Detroit Flow Pot Miglus Dickinson Albert Co. 1938                                                                                                                                                 | Lockland Lum Co 1047                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |
| Dames   1051                                                                                                                                                                                      | Long D B 1039 1015                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
| FlornerFred & Sons Collist                                                                                                                                                                        | Lonsdate Edwin 1046 1052                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                   | Louisville Tobacco Colui?                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |
| Ehret F                                                                                                                                                                                           | Lovett The Co1957                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |
| Elchholtz Henry 1039Elizabeth Nurseries 1000 1032                                                                                                                                             | Lynch W ft 1014 1025                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |
| Elliott W 111013 1019                                                                                                                                                                             | Magnuson & Pearson, 1057                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |
| Ernest W. H 1008                                                                                                                                                                                  | Manz J & Co1027                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| FA F Nurseries 1032Faxon M B 1039                                                                                                                                                             | Ley John 11 1852 Lattlefield H F 1947 Lockland Lum Co 1948 1945 Long D B 1838 1945 Long D B 1838 1945 Long A Bornnam Co 1960 Loulaville Tobacoo Colle? Lovett The Co 1855 Lucas J & Co 1851 Lyneb W E 1911 1972 Magnuson & Pearson 1955 Manning Jacob W 1952 Manning Jacob W 1952 Manning Jacob W 1953 McBeth Thos 1950 McCarthy N F & Co 1955 McColonid drow 1954 McDonald drow 1954 McDonald drow 1954 McDonald drow 1951 1979 McDonald & McManuse 1951 1979                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |
| Felthousen J E 1839                                                                                                                                                                               | McCarthy N F & Co., 1015McCullongh J Chas ., 1028                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |
| Ford Bros 1011 1054                                                                                                                                                                               | McDonald drow1031                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |
| Gardening Co1058                                                                                                                                                                                  | McDonald & McManus                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
| Elizabeth Nurserbes                                                                                                                                                                               | McDonald & Steele. 1048McDowell J A 1052                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                   |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |

| Mense F G 1039              | Rider, Erickson Eng                |
|-----------------------------|------------------------------------|
| McFadden W A 1013           | Со1044                             |
| McMlchael 111054            | Robinson F J1040                   |
| Michell H F1007             | Rogera P'k Floral Co               |
| Millang Frank1015 1002      | 1014 1019                          |
| Moninger J C Co 1023        | Rolker A & Sona                    |
| Moon Samuel C 1032 1049     |                                    |
| Moon Wm H Co1032            | Rudd W N1006                       |
| Morris Florat Co. 1046 1048 | Rupp Jno F                         |
| Mound City Flo Co1013       | Russell S J 1031                   |
| National Flo Board of       | Schiller J L                       |
| Trade1027                   | Scollay Jno A1042                  |
| National Plant Col01 1054   | Scott Jno 1052                     |
| New York Flo Ass n 1034     | Scott Robt & Son 1049              |
| N Y Cut Flower Ex. 1014     | Shepherd Mrs T ·B 1028             |
| N Y Cut Flower Co1014       | Semple Jas                         |
| Nickel Plate R R1027        | Sheridan W F 1915 1029             |
| Paddock E J1045             | Slebrecht & Son 1052               |
| Palmer The R T Co., 1027    | Simpson Rubt1050                   |
| Paxton Greenhouses. 1047    | Situationa, Wants, etc. 1105       |
| Payne Frank S 1039          | Skabenra Din Co 1912               |
| Peacock W P1051             | Smlth The H B Co1061               |
| Pennock Sam'l S 1015 1036   | Smith Nath & Son 1040              |
| Pinehurst Nurserles.        | Sm!th W C1015 1057                 |
| 1021 1034                   | Smith W L 1037                     |
| Pittaburg Clay Mfg Co1008   | South Park Floral Col047           |
| Prince A G & Co. 1014 1024  | South Side Floral Co.1039 1046 |
| Quaker City Mo'h wk+1033    | 1039 1040                          |
| Randall A L 1014 1021       | Standard Fertilizer Col042         |
| Rawson Grove P 1040         | Stearns Lumber Co., 1044           |
| Raynor J 1 1015 1025        | Stevena Geo1013                    |
| Regan Printing Houseld41    | Steffens Emil1054                  |
| Reed Glass & Paint Colui7   | St Louis Cut FlowerColol2          |
| Reinberg Bros 1014 1017     | Stollery Bros 1046                 |
| Rice M & Co1010             | Storrs & Harrison Col051           |
| Ricksecker C H 1031         | Struck J N & Bro 1044              |

| Wabash R R1027             | Zirngiebel Denya 105     |
|----------------------------|--------------------------|
| Vincent R & Son1039        | Young Thos Jr 1015 105   |
| Winterson 4th cover 1014   | Young Jno 1015 102       |
| Vaughan, McKellar &        | Wors C W 1013            |
| 1028 1038 1042 1048        | Wooden Gooda Co 100      |
| Vaughan J C                | Wood Bros103             |
| Van Zanten Broa1050        | Wittbold Geo947 105      |
| Vance Better W'ks1006      | Winter 8 B 101           |
| Townsend Jos B 1047        | Willmore W W104          |
| Traendly & Schenck. 1015   | Whitton & Son1033        |
| Thompson's Son1032         | Wbilldin Pot Co1003      |
| Tallby J & Son 1022        | Wheeler-Stenzel Co 104   |
| Taft L R                   | Wezelenburg Jac105       |
| Syracuse Pottery Co., 1008 | Welch Broa 1007 1013     |
| tleurs 1002 1003 1004      | Weeber & Don 1025        |
| teura D'Olgnons a          | Weber H & Sons 1046 104  |
| Syndicat Des Cultiva-      | Weaver H B & Bro102      |
| Swayne Wm1046              | 3rd cove                 |
| Swahna Sona J G1008        | Weathered's T W Son      |
| Sozukl & Ilda 1028         | Watson G C102            |
| Sutton E B Jr1046          | Washburn A 103           |
| Sotherland Geo A1015 1016  | Supply Co 104            |
| Sunderbruch H L Co. 1013   | Walworth Cons. and       |
| Stumpp & Walter1009        | Walker Fertilizer Co.103 |
| Studer N                   | Walker F & Co 1030 1040  |
| Studen M 1051              | Weller E & Co. 1020 104  |

Cabbage and I omato PLANTS.

Thrifty stock, good varieties, 5e per 100 or $1.00 er 1000. Rooted Violet Runners, Marie Louise, 40c per 100.

J. W. DAVIS, Morrison, III.

How About It?

The only wholesale establishment in New York with the facilities of A BIG MARKET connected with it.

Send your address and let us give you some quotations on EASTER FLOWERS.

Mail a list of your probable needs AT ONCE and we will make prices that you cannot afford to ignore.

Fresh Goods Always.

FRANK MILLANC

34th Street Cut Flower Market NEW YORK CITY.

Knowing what we want to do ...

AND KEEPING AT IT EVERLASTINGLY IS THE SECRET OF SUCCESS IN THIS BUSINESS.

Our aim for nigh on to a score of years has been to give the market gardeners and truckers of the United States seeds of the highest quality at the lowest prices at which they can be produced and sold. That our object has been attained is evident by the fact that our trade to-day is the largest of any seed house in America, direct with critical market gardeners and experienced planters who grow for profit,

IN THE OLD-FASHIONED, STRAIGHTFORWARD COURSE OF BUSINESS ....

We were able by our ever increasing facilities to offer advantages to our customers that we do not say cannot be matched, but that so far have not been equaled.

In point of personal attention to growth and selection of Seed Stocks.

In point of assortment of varieties adapted for Market Sales.

In point of Price when Quality is considered.

We do not want M buyers except when buyers want us, and then we only ask 🛰 from those who have never planted our seeds the courtesy of a trial order.

عرغاره إماريه إماريه إماريه إماريه إ

Our Quarterly Wholesale Price List is now teady and will be mail-ed to Market Gardeners and Florists who write

Johnson & Stokes,

The Market Gardeners' Seedsmen ....

217-219 Market Street,

PHILADELPHIA.

Mention this paper

THE AMERICAN FLORIST

America is "the Prow of the Vessel; there may be more comfort Amidships, but we are the first to touch Unknown Seas."

Vol. XIII.

CHICAGO AND NEW YORK, APRIL 9, 1898.

No. 514.

THE AMERICAN FLORIST

Copyright 1898, by American Florist Company. Entered as Second-Class Mail Matter.

PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY BY AMERICAN FLORIST COMPANY, 324 Dearborn Street, Chicago.

Eastern Office: 67 Bromfield St., Boston.

Subscription, $1.00 a year. To Europe, $2.00. Subscriptions accepted only from the trade.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS AND ORNAMENTAL HORTICULTURISTS.

OFFICERS—WM. F. GUDB. Washington, D. C., president; A. DONAGHUE. Omaha. Neb., vice-president: W. J. STEWART, 67 Bromfield St., Boston, Mass., secretary: H. B. BEATTY, Oll City. Pa., treasurer. The fourteenth annual meeting will be held at Omaha, Neb., August, 1888.

THE AMERICAN CARNATION SOCIETY.

Annual Convention at Philadelphia, February, 1839. ALHERT M. HERR, Lancaster Pa., Secretary.

CHRYSANTHEMUM SOCIETY OF AMERICA.
Annual meeting at Omaha, Neb., August, 1898.
ELMER D. SMITH, Adrian, Mich., secretary.

CONTENTS.

| Larry discuse                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | 1003  |
|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-------|
| Primula obconica (illus.)                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | 1063  |
| Cluster bunchesBridesmaids and mignonette (illus.)                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | 1065  |
| Bridesmaids and mignonette (illus.)                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | 1065  |
| Our telephone. Paris Crotons (illus.)                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | 1065  |
| Paris                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | 11.66 |
| Crotons (illus )                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | 1067  |
| Hartford .                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     | 1067  |
| Hartford . To members of the S. A. F. and O. H                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 | 1067  |
| Carnations                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     | 1069  |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | 1009  |
| Boston                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | 1069  |
| Meteor roses (illus.)                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | 1070  |
| Philadelphia                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |       |
| Chicago                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | 1071  |
| DetroitCarnot roses (illus.)                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | 1071  |
| Carnot roses (illus.)                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | 1071  |
| New York.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | 1072  |
| Washington.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    | 1072  |
| Ornamental bedding (illus.)                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    | 107:  |
| Washington. Ornamental bedding (illus.)                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | 1073  |
| Grand Rapids, Mich                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | 1073  |
| Palm disease (illus.)                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | 11.73 |
| Sketches from my trip east                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     | 1074  |
| Pultimore                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | 1071  |
| Distributed                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    | 1071  |
| Baltimore Pittsfield Western N. Y. Hort, Society Prof. Cowell's experience with jadoo.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | 1075  |
| Description of the second seco | 1075  |
| Prof. Cowell's experience with Jadoo,                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |       |
| Postoffice receipt                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | 1075  |
| Printer's certificate                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | 1075  |
| A drummer's twaddle                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | 1076  |
| Rochester Dayton, O. Grafted roses for forcing                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 | 1070  |
| Dayton, O                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | 1074  |
| Grafted roses for forcing                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | 1077  |
| Nursery stock                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | 1080  |
| Nursery stock,Canada and San Jose scale                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    | 1080  |
| Bloomington, Ill                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | 1089  |
| Bloomington, III                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | 1081  |
| Suginaw, Mich.Wyncote, PaThe seed tradeCourt decision about seeds.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 | 1081  |
| Wyncote, Pa                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    | 1081  |
| The send trade                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 | 108:  |
| Court decision about seeds,                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    | 100.  |
| Cutabarnas ramicad                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | 1083  |
| Experime liliae                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | 108   |
| Commission building                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | 108   |
| Catalogues received. Foreing lilies Greenhouse building.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |       |
| St. Louis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | 1050  |
| Indianapolis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   | 10%   |
| worcester, Mass                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | 1088  |
| Rose queries and answers                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | 1090  |
| Worcester, MassRose queries and answersMilwaukee                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | 109   |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |       |

PRIMULA OBCONICA GR FIMB. (See Paris letter).

Lily Disease Symposium at the Philadelphia Florists' Club, April 5.

OPENING ADDRESS OF PRESIDENT HARRIS.

The programme of the evening is a symposium on the Easter lily, its diseases, their causes and cure; and upon this important question you have requested your president to open the debate. In that request you have shown much wisdom, because in all well managed feasts the best wine is served last.

Lilium longiflorum and L. Harrisii are universally admired the whole civilized world over, and they are the peer of all other flowers where the christian religion predominates, to beautify homes and places of worship, to commemorate the Savior of the world leaving a short life of misery for one of eternal blins, He leading the way and pleading to all mankind to follow. We annually eelebrate this, the most important and mysterious event the world ever knew. It raises hope to an apparent certainty in the breast of milions that there is a life beyond the grave which gives eternal happiness, far beyond anything the human mind can conceive.

In commemorating the day that Christ arose from the grave there are more lilies used to beautify the day than all other flowering plants combined. So when a plant which plays such an important part in the most eventful feast of the year becomes impaired inhealth from any causes that threaten its beauty it becomes a question worthy of the most serious consideration of this club, and the enlistment of its best thinkers and researchers to restore this most beautiful flower to its pristine health and beauty.

That there is a serious and rapid degeneration from year to year in the constitution of the Easter lily, which costs many thousands of dollars to the craft annually and threatens the destruction of this most beautiful flower, can not be questioned. The first thing, therefore, to do is to find out the cause if possible. That done, we are well on the road to success in restoring the lily to its former health. For there are but few of the many ills which plants are heir to that we can not master when the eause is known to us. Unfortunately I can give no positive facts, only theory, as to the cause, and not even that much for a cure. There has been much written as to the that it is due to hard propagation and continued growing in the same soil year after year.

The latter no doubt has contributed much to the propagation of the disease; the former, I think, has but little if anything to do with it, for I am sure that Lilium Harrisii never got such hard propagation and usage in Bermuda as I gave it for four or five years before I introduced it to the public. And again, the first few years it was grown in Bermuda for profit it received its hardest propagation, yet it was healthy during the time of its worst treatment. In my opinion the trouble is eaused by an insect known by the name of Rhizoglyphusechinops. Where this insect originally came from I can not inform you, nor does it matter. It is sufficient to know that, like the poor, we have him with us, and we want to get rid of him.

This mite is easily seen with a good magnifying glass in great numbers all through the bulbs and at the base of the roots on the stem while the bulb is in a growing condition. Whether he is visible in a dormant bulb or not 1 do not know, as I have not examined a dormant bulb with a glass. This little mite has somewhat the shape and appearance of a turtle, and the sluggish movement of the same, with the exception of having four pairs of legs instead of two, one pair on each side in front of the body and one pair on each side just behind the middle of the body. The rear legs are much shorter than those in front, just protruding beyond the body. Each leg is armed with a black hook or claw. The mite is white with a pair of black nippers on a small head. Quite a pretty contrast of color for such a mischievous enemy

Now if this little mite I have endeavored to describe so minutely, and with such plain and homely language, is the cause if the lily decease, and I believe it is, surely there is some insecticide that will kill this pest without doing injury to the bulb, either while growing or in a dormant state I believe the surest and best way would be treat the dormant bulb with some insecticide that would kill the germs of life of the mite in whatever shape it might exist in the bulb, if that can be done without injury to the bulb, and 1 believe it can.

I will now close, leaving the subject much as I found it-in mystery; but hope that those that are to follow after me will solve the problem. WM. K. HARRIS.

JOHN WELCH YOUNG'S VIEWS.

Our good president has asked me to prepare a short paper on the lily disease. say "good" to show that I bear no illtowards a man who compels me to dwell on so painful a subject.

I am not of a scientific turn of mind, and know absolutely nothing about the I only know that it cause of the disease. I only know that it is inherent in the bulbs when received here, and that efforts to grow the plants out of it by liberal treatment have so far proved fruitless.

I have grown lilies in a small way for a number of years, and had finally passed through the stages of hitting Easter with the crop and of getting the flowers in town without bruising before I met the disease. About that time I was talking lilies one evening with Mr. Battles. He asked, in that deferential sort of way that our great men have of addressing their smaller brethren, which variety I lavored. I blundered through my insurance theory that longiflorums, though more costly to grow and less prolific of bloom, were safer because then untouched by diseasc. asked what kind heliked. "I prefer longi-florum," Mr. Battles replied. Since then longiflorum it has been, for we want what is healthy and sells well.

Longiflorum has always done well with me until this season. I was induced to change from my usual importer and purchase the bulbs from another firm. This firm is of high standing and they sent me fine looking bulbs. Despite careful handling disease carried off over 1000 out of 1200 bulbs. I went to the firm and made a fuss. They were sympathetic, but decidedly skeptical about my abilities as a grower. In fact, they reminded me of the seedsman who, when he was asked why certain of his tuberous begonias had failed, promptly answered, "Was it the fault of the bulbs or the man? Use cocoanut ubre.

Morally we all have a claim on these bulb importers, but legally none. As the thing stands to-day we are simply being robbed by the Bermuda bily growers, not adv of the first cost of the bulbs but of much valuable time and space.

It seems to me the duty of our club stop this robbery. Let us pass a resolution requesting every member to insist on a written guarantee that all onlys be free from disease. Mr. Mills thinks this should be amended to cover in ported stock of every kind, that what ever a salesman says of his stock he subseries to in the name of his firm. This will send the importers to the Bernaida and other growers with a demand for a similar guarantee, and if they don't like for their keep their stock

Bassicie, Mr. Carl Beers opened a granch of his establishment on Columbia

Inspiring Gathering at Washington.

The banquet given at the Ebbitt House on Wednesday evening, March 16, to the Executive Committee of the Society of American Florists by their fellow members in Washington was a fitting climax to the week's proceedings The atmosphere of the national capitol was the proper stimulant for the broad, aggressive policy inaugurated by the committee of our great national association, and nowhere else in the world could the event have taken place under circumstances and annid surroundings so inspiriting and appropriate.

Among the guests at the table sat a member of the President's Cabinet, Hon. James Wilson, Secretary of Agriculture, whose manliness and sincerity has brought him closer to the hearts of the American people than perhaps any other member of that honorable body.

The position of toastmaster was excellently filled by J. H. Small, Jr. Mr. Small, in opening the after dinner exercises, spoke a hearty welcome to the guests and expressed his full sympathy with the aims and work of the S. A. F. Particularly complimentary was he toward his fellow townsman, Mr. W. F. Gude, who had been elected to preside over the society and whom he called upon to respond to the toast, "The Society of American Florists and Ornamental Horticulturists.

After referring pleasantly to the fact that he found himself on this occasion in the dual capacity of host and guest, Mr. Gude spoke as follows:

A taste for flowers creates the demand. In comparing the status of the business to-day with what it was twenty-five years ago, who can say but that it has increased greater than almost any other business and when it is estimated as to the extraordinary numbers of people employed in its various branches, it is easily to be seen that it forms no small factor in the support, maintenance, and education of many hundreds of thousands of human beings that make up the working element in our country. Therefore, it is important from many standpoints that the organization exists, and this Executive Committee have upon them a duty of greater importance than may be at first imagined.

Washington, which should be the great center in this country in art, literature, architecture and indeed in floriculture, has had much attention attracted towards it by reason of a controversy that has been going on between some of our local florists concerning the relations of the greenhouses of the United States Government and the those of the florists in a producing as well as a distributing sense, and it may be possible that I have been somewhat criticised, as an officer of the national association, for not taking a very active part in the animated discussion that has been carried on, which has resulted, as I at first expected, and now realize in considerable correspondence, the use of many unguarded words, and the publication of many extraordinary exaggerations. If the love of flowers is a cultivated taste, then every little flower must increase the desire to have. Such as have been distributed gratis to hospitals, churches and to some of the ladies and families of representative men, have only been the means of creating a desire that has reverted to the tmancial gain of every florist in the disthat, so instead of the extraordinary losses that have come, as has been represented the whole amount distributed daily it divided up among all the florists in the District of Columbia would be less than a dollar to each one engaged in the business.

In conclusion, President Gude spoke in complimentary words of Superintendent Smith, who by his long service and by his steadfast loyalty to those engaged in the florist business had shown that there exists nowhere a better or more faithful friend to the florists of Washington, and deprecated the disposition to criticise him in connection with these recent agitations. He expressed the wish that harmony might soon be restored, and that prosperity might come to all.

A mighty volume of applause greeted Secretary Wilson, who was next called upon. He spoke of the universal inhorn love of horticulture which, as the people learn more of its refining influence, is encouraged to begin earlier and earlier in life and he predicted that the time is not far distant when the cradle and the schoolhouse will be decorated with flowers as well as the altar and the grave. The association of flowers helps to high ideals; they cheer and revive; they develop that which makes the world better, and help to fit us for that other world, of which flowers and florists will form so important a part. Speaking of the relations of our national government to floriculture and horticulture, he pledged himself to do anything in his power to conserve the best interests of the florists during his term of office, and assured them that one of the highest honors conferred upon him since he came to Washington is the confidence of the American florists.

Secretary W. J. Stewart, of the S. A. F., was next called upon and spoke of the good work of the national society which has let in the light, and to whose influence is due so much the proud position held by American floriculture to-day, and was followed by Treasurer H. B. Beatty, who was beaming and witty as he expressed his thanks and appreciation of the courtesy and hospitality of the Washington brethren on this memorable occasion.

Next came Thomas Chalmers Easton. D. D. Dr Easton, by the way, quietly drops the D. D. when he goes out to dinuer and becomes "just one of us." He declared that he felt himself only in his true sphere when among flower lovers. His ancestors, he said, had all been florists for many generations and he was "the only stray sheep in the flock." But there is no flower so sweet, so priceless, as true "American patriotism," which he would take as the text of his remarks. Then followed an address, or oration, rather, of which, it is safe to say, the equal had rarely been heard by anyone present at that table. The wildest enthusiasm prevailed while he talked and great applause followed the conclusion of this unexpected treat.

Ex-President Adam Graham, who was next called upon, waxed eloquent as he enlogized the high privilege of membership in the organization over which he had presided during the past year and the nobility of purpose which dominates its counsels and impressed his hearers with the conviction that all the eloquence is by no means confined to the D. D.'s.

Ex-President Wm. R. Smith, superintendent of the Botanic Gardens, pleaded inability to express himself in words; and said that he little thought when years ago, he had rocked the toastmaster, Mr. Small, in his cradle, that the time would come when that gentleman would have the power to make him speechless. He regretted that Secretary Wilson had the misfortune to be born in Scotland instead of America, for otherwise he might have been in the White House. Mr. Smith concluded with a high compliment to the S. A. F. and graceful acknowledgment of what he had learned by his affiliation with it.

"The Ladies" was the toast assigned to Mr. E. D. Hay, who, with anecdotes and sentiment, witty and serious, soon proved that he was thoroughly acquainted with his subject.

Mr. Benj. Durfee, the next gentleman on the toastmaster's list, gave a most entertaining, satirical account of the controversy over the disposition of flowers grown at government expense, which has been agitating some of the local florists, which he thought would cease to be an issue of importance after Easter Sunday. Referring to the presence of Mr. W. R. Smith, he said: "Here, too, present with us is our youthful boss of the lesser Kew —a lesser Kew only because of a niggardly congress and a torpid public. How earnestly and nobly he has labored through all these many years. Disappointment has never checked his ardor or soured him, and the hope, I believe is still unquenchable within him that by some as yet unknown means, the pulse of the people may be quickened to secure a botanic garden the peer of any in existence, as it is now being quickened to build a navy equal to the best.

Messrs. E. D. Smith for the "Chrysan-themum," E. M. Wood for "The Hub," E. II. Cushman, J. G. Esler, G. M. Kellogg, W. W. Coles and Robert Kift were severally called upon, each giving a good account of himself and the festivities closed at a late hour.

The decorations of the table and the room were magnificent and unique in design and none of them came from the government greenhouses.

[The appearance of the above has been delayed over two weeks owing to the pressure of advertising and numerous seasonable articles.—Ed.]

Cluster Bunches.

For all occasions where bouquets are required the loosely arranged cluster has taken precedence over the more formal set bunch. The gradual evolution of the business together with the quantities of first-class long stemmed roses now so common, has brought about this welcome change. Roses alone are not now considered sufficient for the up-to-date bunch and the floral artist is given great latitude in its construction. The accompanying illustrations show a few examples of simple arrangements loosely tied together, none of the roses being wired.

The buds are gathered up and placed, but not tied, one at a time, being firmly held by the hand until almost the last, held by the hand until almost the last, when a piece of wire bindsthem all firmly together. A very pretty combination is a cluster of Brides with a spot of Gontiers or Bon Silene a little to one side of the center. If tied with narrow white ribbons, and a strand or two of pink to which may be attached by the same colored ribbon a few of the small buds, the effect is very pretty. the effect is very pretty.

Cypripediums work in well with roses, Meteors and cypripediums making a very pretty effective cluster. Mignonette and cypripediums tied with green ribbon is very odd and sure to attract attention. Long stemmed American Beauties with the thorns removed, tied about midway of the stems with a bunch of 100 or more double violets and good broad ribbon is generally received with great favor by the average debutante.

Cattleyas and other orchids with lilies of the valley or alone, make elegant bouquets and of course are the most expensive of the lot.

neither want friends nor business that the wire may bring."

"Whew! What airs since you got to be president of the Philadelphia club! You ought to set those remarks to BRIDESMAID ROSES AND MIGNONETTE.

Our Telephone.

"Now, central, please connect us with W. K. Harris, of Phil—what's that you say? The one they call the Bard? Yes, the same. Hello, Mr. Harris. Is that you?"

"Yes, but don't forget this is Easter week and I'm busy."
"Glad to know it. Well this telephone of yours is a great convenience for us; we want to have a little talk with you about the Easter plants."

"That's all right. A telephone is a great help to business and a social blessing in bringing one in contact with his friends at a distance at all times except Easter week; then it is a nuisance, because we

"I could do it, but I haven't got time. Poetry runs in our family. My daughter and one of my sons are beginning to write a little poem once in a while. Go on, now, what would you like to know?"

"What are you running on for Easter this year?

"Oh, we have about the usual line of stock: Azaleas, lilies, rhododendrons, lilacs, genistas, hydrangeas, Crimson Ramblers and so on. We've had a fine lilacs. Ramblers and so on. We've had a fine lot of azaleas but there are too many of them around. They're too cheap, and this interferes with the price of other flowering plants, but I'm in hopes the high duty will reduce the quantity on our shores this year and stop foolish compc tition somewhat. We find rhododendrons sell pretty well as Easter plants."

"What varieties are most popular?"

"Oh, any good, strong, bright color goes. Kate Waterer is a pretty good color. John Waterer and Michael Waterer are both good. Sappho is a nice light one. Sigismund Rucker I like, but it gives a little difficulty to carry its buds sometimes. This year it is fine with us. Everestianum is one of the best. It always makes a good plant with plenty of buds. William Austin is a rich, beautiful color and Glennyanum is all right. Then there's the blue one, Fostuosum; it's almost as good as an orchid.'

"Are you having your share of the Bermuda lily trouble."

"They're the meanest lot I ever grew. A few of them are passable, but none too good. The Japanese longiflorums are fairly healthy but the Harrisii are in awful shape."

"Do you find any disease on the Japanese longiflorum bulbsgrown in Japan?

"Yes, sir; some quite bad, but not nearly so much as in the Bermuda grown. Last year only one or two in a hundred showed, but we see strong traces of it in quite a number this year and a few are as bad as they can be. Did you ever see the insect or 'mite' that does the mischief? That is, I think he's the cause of it. He works right at the base of the root and will bore right into the bulb.'

"llow is that discussion on the lily trouble coming on in the Philadelphia

"Say, wasn't that a great idea; start up the thing with a lot of big words and then not take hold! They tried to have some fun with me at the last meeting, but I don't get annoyed when I am rattled. I'd a notion to throw the gavel at them one time. They're a hard crowd to handle."

"You mentioned lilaes and genistas a few minutes ago. Are they still in it as

Easter plants?

"Not genistas; they don't want them, but we grow a few. I don't like to dis-card them altogether. Hydrangeas are gone up as Easter plants too. In lilacs, Charles X is the best single purple and Mme. Legraye the best single white. The double varieties would be desirable, but they are a little costly vet."

Are you trying anything new?"

"Yes, we put in a few Spiraea Anthony Waterer. It is a splendid thing outside, you know, but for forcing it is doubtful. The color is not bright enough; alongside of azaleas it looks dull. We have some Bougainvillea Sanderiana that were planted out last summer, and in lifting we nearly killed them. Bougainvilleas want to be kept in pots for a year or two. There is always a right and a wrong way. You've got to learn to grow even a geranium. Then we have a great house of deutzias in full bloom. They to a beautiful sight." "Imported plants"

"No, sir I grow them myself, from cuttings. These plants are three to four years old. Crimson Fambler is one of the timbers among the newer things. Some grovers who found they were going to be a little late have been driving their Famblers too hard and have got the flowers bad, off color, Cursare all right. Se kept them cool until two weeks before See kept theme out intil two weeks before Laster when we put them into a temperature of 60°. We have a few Yellow Rambber , and it is no good?"

"What can you tell us about orining tall-tool besides Laster specialties?"

"Well, Pandanus Votchii is our great specialty yet a rou know we were the first to popularize this plant in quantity. Then we are heavy on oranges. They are full of bloom now and are a beautiful sight. Those that we wish to fruit for next fall we planted out in open ground last summer. Planted out they make good sturdy growths that will flower well in spring and the check in lifting also helps to throw them into bloom. plants, for next fall's sales, we keep inside from now on."

"Do you thin out the fruit on these orange trees?"

"No, we allow them to carry all that nature gives them. The more fruit the better we are satisfied. Speaking about fruit, you know I'm trying to get up a stock of pineapples. I think they will take. There are a number of varieties, green and variegated. When in fruit they are grand as decorative plants and will last in beauty in a window of a dwelling house for two or three months, in a temperature of about 70°. Their price has stood in the way of them so lar, but we can get fruit fit to cut in two years now where it used to take them ten years."
"Is that so? How do you manage it?"

"Oh, plateglass, you know. They want a tropical heat; 80° won't hurt a pincapple

"Are you ready to tell your fellow craftsmen how to grow naturally branched rubbers vet?'

"Now that question becomes a little personal, as it affects my private interests, but I will tell my competitors some time in the near future, and when I do I don't believe many will be able to doit as I have in the past. Rubbers have sold well this year. We are all down to small plants; not a large rubber on the place. I suppose you have heard that we have made a good thing of putting up potting soil in neat little half-peck grape baskets and supply-ing it to the retail stores for their customers. I'd just as leave sell dirt as I would plants. Good bye."

Paris.

The annual Parisian Agricultural Fair held for the second time in the spacious machinery hall at the Champ de Mars, the only remnant of the big exhibition of 1889. was opened March 11 by the Minister of Agriculture. Two days previous to the opening, when the thermometer had marked the coldest night of the winter and at the same time we had a pretty good fall of snow, some fears were expressed for the success of the fair. The cold, however, lasted only one day and the weather brightened up again to the satisfaction of all interested in the fair.

AZALEAS AND FORCED SHRUBS AS EXHIBITED IN PARIS.

The machinery hall being about 475 yards long and 140 yards wide gives a covered superficial area (without any pillar) of, broadly speaking, 14 acres with a gallery around the hall measuring four acres. There is therefore no lack of room for the 2000 exhibits. The sight from the gallery over the whole show is grand indeed and as it would be too great a demand upon the space of your paper to give a list of even the most interesting things, we shall proceed right to the horticultural section.

Vilmorin-Andrieux & Co. cover more ground than the other firms together and their display of itself constitutes a fair sized exhibition. The arrangement of their products is this season particularly attractive. They show us a tall pyramid of hyacinths twenty-four feet high with two other somewhat smaller pyramids which produce capital effect. The spikes composing them are all first-rate and the combination of colors highly creditable. Below the hyacinths, the pyramids are well ornamented with nicely demarcated rows of narcissus, jonquils and of brilliant hued yellow, white, crimson and rose tulips, such as Pottebakker, Prince of Orange, Joost von Vondel, Standaart and Cottage Maid, etc. After these rows comes a nice edge of Ionopsidium acaule and further down encircling the base of the pyramids is a charming bed of primulas, cinerarias, calendulas, lilies of the valley, freesias and other flowers serving to relieve the stiffness which the hyacinth spikes display. Close by the same firm exhibits a fine bed of large flowering cinerarias bearing blooms of immense size, and a bed of wallflowers including all the different colors usually found in that species, which latter bed is nicely margined with Primula obconica grandiflora fimbriata.

Besides the above flowers Vilmorin & Co. also show a fine collection of gourds and squashes, roots, various vegetables and all the different grasses and cereals in sheaves with their ears, spikes or pods. Mention must also be made of their display of sprays of southern grown trees and shrubs such as cucalyptus, mimosa, Cytisus proliferus; Genista monosperma, polygala, Grevillea rosmariniflora and other kinds. We must also call the attention of the florists to their fine plants of Primula Chinensis, giant strain, to which they will add next season a distinct new variety, P. Chinensis marmorata.

« L. Paillet, Croux & Son and H. Defresne have the finest collection of forced shrubs, amongst which the most conspicuous are: Andromeda, azalcas, Chamacerasus rosca, Cerasus Wateri, Clematis Standishi, Cydonia Japonica aurora, Deutzia gracills, Exochorda grandiflora, Forsythia Fortunei, Genista floribunda, Magnolia alba spectabilis, M. Lennei, M. Haleana, M. Soulangeana, Malus baceata, Pæonia arboræa nigricans, P. Stuart Low, P. Elizabethi, Prunus Sinensis, P. triloba, P. Pissardi, Rhododendron Agamennon, Ribes sanguinenn, Spiræa Thunbergii, S. prunifolia, Staphylea colchica, Syringa persica and S. Charles X, with different double sorts and viburnums.

Moser shows a collection of hardy open ground shrubs, such as andromeda, Pernettya mucronata lilacina, with berries of various shades, and a lot Aucuba Laponica Japonica.

Millet has as usual a fine display of violets including Viola sulphurea, of a

PAN OF HYACINTHS AND LYCOPODIUM TRIMMED WITH CREPE PAPER.

sulphur color, and Viola pubescens, a novelty with a brilliant yellow hue, but small flower. This lot also includes Princesse de Galles and La France the two largest single violets, Armandine Millet, striped leaved, Admiral Avellan, of a curious reddish color, and other kinds.

Georges Boucher, one of our best elematis and rose growers, exhibits a splendid collection of Lilaes Charles X and other single and double flowered sorts in pots. The finest single white seems to be Marie Legray; the best double white, Mine. Lemoine, and best double lilae Michael Buchner.

Leveque has also a good group of lilaes and roses.

Gaulier shows a bed of a new strain of cinerarias with strange, pale colors, mostly pink, rose and coppery red like the viscaria. We understand that the entire stock has been sold to Vilmorin and will be introduced to the trade in the fall of 1899.

Dalle's exhibit comprised some excellent warmhouse plants, anthurium, vanda, odontoglossum, nepenthes, etc., grouped in an effective way around a big phænix.

The displays of other firms are of little importance to the readers of your paper.

Parisian.

HARTFORD, CONN.—The annual spring exhibition of the Connecticut Horticultural Society was held on April 5, 6 and 7, at Putnam Phalanx Armory.

Crotons.

Crotons are exceedingly useful as decorative plants, and it is to be regretted that they are not more generally used by our florists; their varied hues far surpass any of those autumnal effects which artists are so fond of painting. They are not only fine decorative plants for winter work, but in the summer season they are equally as effective for bedding out purposes.

There are so many varieties suitable for both purposes that it will perhaps suffice if I enumerate a few of the best. For indoor work I would recommend Reedii, Dayspring, Madame Seilliere, Mortii, Johannis, Aneitumensis, Carrieri, Lord Belhaven, Disraeli, Lady Zetland, Hanburyanus and Chrysophyllas. For outdoor planting the following will be found reliable, Baroness James De Rothschild, Dayspring, Interruptus, Aurea maculata, Fasciatus, Multicolor, Lady Zetland, Veitchii, Rubra variegata, Evansianus, Mooreana and Queen Victoria.

They can be propagated from cuttings put in sand, or by ringing, the latter plan I prefer, as it enables much larger tops to be taken than could possibly be done from cuttings. They should, if rung in March, have made a growth of from two to four feet by the end of September. In order to grow them on successfully, it is necessary as soon as they have rooted through the moss, which usually takes about twenty days, to take every particle of moss carefully away, then either pot them while on the plants or cut them of and place them in a close propagating box until they have taken hold of the soil, when they should be transferred to quarters where they can have more air and light; it will then be necessary to keep them potted on as often as they may require it, in a compost consisting of good fibrous loam, sand and bone dust.

During the time between March and September, which is the season they make their growth, it is necessary to keep them in a moist atmosphere with a temperature of from 80° to 90° during the day and 70° to 75° at night. During the first three months of their growing season, only sufficient ventilation should be given to prevent them from making a weak growth and at no time should ventilation be given which will reduce the temperature below 75°. A house with a southern aspect is best adapted to them, which should be kept shaded until the end of September, when they may be gradually exposed to the snn.

The stock plants after the cuttings have been removed can be planted out in the nursery during the summer when they again will furnish another batch of cuttings by the fall. Another way of utilizing the stock plants is to cut them down to within three or four inches of the pots, then shake all the soil from them and reduce the roots so as to be able to get them into considerably smaller pots than they have been grown in, when if given similar treatment to that recommended for the young plants it will be found that satisfactory results will be obtained.

A syringing with a solution of tobacco extract, in the proportion of one 2-inch potful to two gallons of water once a week will be found an excellent preventive against mealy bug and scale, two pests which they seem to be particularly subject to.

With reference to outdoor planting I would suggest the advisability of plunging the pots, as it will be found that after having been taken up in the fall, the risk of losing their lower leaves will be reduced to a minimum.

D. C.

To the Members of the S. A. F. and O. H.

Upon the eve, as we are, of another annual meeting of the Society of American Florists and Ornamental Horticulturists, I may be pardoned for addressing our fellow members and all interested a few thoughts pertinent to the organization and its approaching meeting.

But a few years ago a few men engaged in the business came together and discussed the feasibility of forming an organization so as to unify and encourage the development of floriculture in our country. Prior to this time the progress was slow and extremely selfish. Each grower reaped no farther than he personally sowed. He had no ideas beyond those that had come into existence by his own endeavors or chance experiment, and every infant idea thus obtained was feebly nurtured in a single nursery.

A very small but earnest representation were present at the first meeting; at the last meeting there were five hundred members in attendance, every one interested in some way in the advancement of the association. Live hundred is a small propertion of the eight or ten thousand engaged in the business to which the association applies.

It is a liberal organization and extends its invitation to no particular class, but to every honest worker in every brauch of industry that directly or indirectly bears upon floriculture or horticulture; the professional botanist, theoretical or practical, the tiller of the soil, the grower of trees or plants, the raiser of flowers of every variety; the builder of greenhouses, the manufacturer of heating apparatus for the same, the maker of sashes and means ol lighting conservatories, the potter who shapes the pots for plants, from the simplest clay molding to the most expensive vases; the wire worker who is such an able assistant in the tormation of beautiful and unique designs; the sellers and the buyers, and the merchantmen who have attained wealth and reputation in our line of business; all are welcome. So that, although much of benefit has resulted from the begislation of those who are now members, it is yet of great importance that there should be still a larger percentage than 5% engaged in the work which is, admittedly, not only for the benefit of the profession itself, but for every individual admirer of the resultant efforts of skill and energy.

It is useless to argue a thing so apparent as the advantages of this society.

It should be accepted as an axiom, which as we have all learned in the school books, "needs no proving."

"needs no proving."

One of the first objects is to create and encourage a taste for flowers. This necessarily increases the demand; the demand increases the business; and the business naturally spreads abroad prosperity to our fraternity.

As in union there is strength, it has caused a bond of fraternal sympathy to spring up in our midst, and individual ideas have all been placed in the common pool for the benefit of each other, so that by it the interest of every one has been advanced in a most appreciable manner. It has not been local in its work but national, and its influence has gone into legislation and has brought to the attention of the lawmakers of the country many signal points in the matter of the tariff that has been of incalculable advantage. At the session soon to be held at Omaha, there are many matters of the greatest importance to be considered and upon which it is necessary to have the very best opinions from the practical men of our organization.

CROTON MADAME SEILLIERE.

Omaha is a most hospitable city and its people are generous always in extending the glad hand to all who assemble there in meeting and convention. There is an advantage, too, in having the meeting so far west as Omaha, as it will be the means of giving an impetus to the trade west of the Mississippi, where there is so much lertile soil especially adaptable to flower growing. To those who have not been as far west it will give them an opportunity of visiting some of the interesting cities en route to and from Omaha, and will no doubt be most pleasant in every particular.

I therefore urge upon every member of the association to make his arrangements so as to attend this meeting, and wherever it is possible to do so, for him to extend the invitation to all of his fellow workers who are not yet members, as once in attendance upon a meeting it will be such an event that it will be impossible to remain away from subsequent meetings.

WM. F. Gude.

Carnations.

In reading over the papers, trade and amateur, it sometimes seems as if florists had a great and grand contempt for nature and her methods of dealing with plants. To a certain extent this is all right, as we violate nature's laws by forcing our stock under glass, where it requires and should receive special treatment.

Sub-watering is one of these special treatments, and the indoor culture of carnations during summer for the elimination of rust is another. Both of these should and will no doubt be experimented with to a considerable extent the coming summer.

None the less there are advantages in the outdoor culture of carnations during the spring and summer months that it is simply impossible to obtain under glass. One of these is good honest rain water straight from the clouds. There is an element in rain that is conducive to the health and building up of vegetation. An element that can not be obtained from any other form of watering. Just what this element is 1 am not scientist enough to know (in fact I do not think scientists themselves know), but that it is there the proper use of our eyes will give us abundant evidence.

Another one, and possibly the greater of the two, is the abundance of air continually circulating around and among the plants day and night. This is a great aid to life and vitality, and a producer of root action, such as it is impossible to obtain in the confined atmosphere of a greenhouse, no matter how well it is ventilated.

If any grower has a plot of good ground for the planting of carnations outdoors, by all means plant them there. The little vitality lost in the replanting next fall is made up ten-fold by their outdoor life during the spring and summer.

Like everything else, there are two sides to this question, and unless a grower has good soil and a plot of ground bigenough to give the carnations room and proper cultivation, grow, them inside as being the lesser of two evils.

My own experience with the soil 1 am favored with is that the results in fine flowers, as well as the number produced, will be at least 40% in favor of those grown outdoors over those grown under glass. Perhaps fine flowers is not the proper expression, as those grown under glass will give as fine flowers (not one whit finer), but not anywhere near the same number of them. In addition to my own evidence I have yet to see the houses of any grower who advocates and practices indoor culture that would not show about the same ratio over field grown plants under good conditions.

With one of these advocates of indoor culture I found about three-fourths of an acre of carnations stuck in one corner of a ten acre field, the balance of the field being a wilderness of weeds. They were planted in beds four feet wide, with about a 10-inch path between the beds, and the carnations planted something like six by

Boston.

PLANT TRADE BOOMING.—LILIES AND AZA-LEASSOLDUP CLOSE.—ALL CUT FLOWERS IN FULL SUPPLY EXCEPTING CARNATIONS. —MEETING OF GARDENERS' AND FLO-RISTS' CLUB, CO-OPERATIVE FLOWER GROWERS' ASSOCIATION AND MASS. HOR-TICULTURAL SOCIETY.—VISITORS.

The first five days of April have been record breakers for the season; snow, sleet, darkness and cold, such as are appropriate for February have been the rule so far, and those who feared their lilies would be ahead of time are now putting eight inches in the beds. Such treatment would certainly make any one an advocate of indoor culture, but what a waste of good facilities.

METEOR ROSES, CYPRIPEDIUMS AND HYACINTHS.

With another grower, who by the way was an advocate of outdoor culture, I tound a half acre city lot that had been used for carnations year after year and manured until it was soured and unfit for any but the strongest kind of vegetation. Carnations were simply a complete failure, and this grower would have hadwith proper indoor treatment—at least 60° better results from his carnations.

Next week I will give my ideas on out-door culture. Albert M. Herr.

on all steam in the effort to bring white flowers out of the hard green buds.

Kidder and Pierce and Twombly and Dee, Edgar and Bock and Leuthy and Fee, all big lily growers, are already well sold out and there is certainly no surplus in sight. Most of them are longiflorums, but few Harrisii being seen anywhere in this market, and the prices are below those at which it is understood our Philadelphia contemporaries sold. As a rule the lilies here are good, the plants stocky and flowers of heavy substance. The department stores have laid in big stocks of pot lilies and make a big noise over selling them at a few cents advance beyond cost, but the rough handling the flowers get in these places quickly removes them from the line of serious competition with the regular florists.

Of other plants there is a good supply visible, but it is understood that azaleas are sold up close and that this market could stand a good many more without hurting it. Rhododendrons are more abundantly displayed than in the past. Some of them are of dull colors and consequently sell with difficulty. In Crimson Rambiers, too, there are many off-color specimens and many that are poorly grown and sparsely flowered. Many of the regular city dealers have taken extra stores for their plant trade and have laid in a heavy stock.

There is more or less cut flower shipping for out of town trade, but the city florists are not inclined to talk cut flowers much until the last moment. There is every indication of a full supply of roses for all needs. Several growers are in with good hybrids. Lawrence Cotter, always on a little quiet hunt by himself, has a grand crop of Kaiserin and Malmaison roses just in the nick of time. Carnations are scarce and when of good quality, bring decidedly faney figures. In whites Nivea takes the lead in this market now. Several growers are sending this variety in elegant shape. Violets are plentiful, the scare regarding them having departed with the warm spell. The best ones are coming from frames but a good many fair ones are still being picked in the houses. There is plenty of bulbous stock and no advance in prices. Smilax is exceedingly scarce, but the call for "greens" of any kind is decidedly limited and no inconvenience is felt.

Twenty representatives of park departments in several cities of Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut, met at Hotel Brunswick Wednesday evening, April 6, and after enjoying a dinner completed preliminary organization of a society to be called the New England Park Association. Many hopeful speeches were made on the desirability of such an organization for comparison of experience, discussion of problems of construction and mutual social advantages. Temporary officers were elected as follows: President, I. A. Pettigrew, Boston; secretary, Geo. A. Parker, Hartford, Conn.; committee on organization, John C. Olmstead, Brookline, Mass., J. D. Fitts, Providence, 1, Jackson Dawson, Jamaica Plain, The next meeting will be called carly in June. On Thursday the visitors were given a drive through the suburbs as guests of the Boston Park Commis-

On Tuesday evening, April 5, Jackson Dawson entertained the Gardeners' and Florists' Club with some reminiscences of his late European trip. The stormy weather added to the demands of Easter business kept many away who would have been glad to listen to Mr. Dawson. who is always entertaining and instruct-

The Boston Co-operative Flower Growers Association held its semi-annual meeting at d dinner at Young's hotel on Saturday (verting, April 2

At the morthly meeting of the Massa-· husetts Hortscultural Society on April 2. are an endment to the by laws constitut ing a con mittee on forestry and roadside improvement was passed to its second reachi 2 reading and to the August Hacrens, Samergin, Belgaine J. Austin, Shaw, tepresenting Swarecht & Son, New York, L. J. Harnon, Portland, Mc., H. J., Hans, Sesport, P. L.

CROTON JOHANNIS.

Philadelphia.

THE LILY DISEASE SYMPOSIUM. - P.EONY SYMPOSIUM FOR MAY MEEEING, -ATRO-CHOUS WEATHER.-GREAT SHOW OF PLANTS IN TRADE STORES .- LARGE DEMAND FOR LILIES,-VISITORS.

The lily symposium at the April meeting of the club was quite a success although there might have been more members present, growers who are interested and who ought to do what they could to preserve the health of the lily. Ouite a number of the bulb merchants were present and showed much interest in the proceedings.

Mr. Harris opened the discussion with a short address he had prepared and John Welsh Young also sent a paper, he not being able to be present; both of these appear elsewhere in this issue.

Mr. G. C. Watson thought that something should be done if possible; probably more careful propagation would do it, also better cultivation selection of land, changing crops, etc. Mr. G. Anderson thought it was not so much the fault of the bulbs as the methods of forcing; that one might as well blame the buzzards for the carrion as the lilies for the disease; that better results would come with more intelligent cultivation.

Mr. Dillon of Bloomsburg was present and said that he had some planted in the ground under the gutter plates or caves of the division of his large house; they had been growing there for four years and produced fine flowers each season, not being disturbed. This season they showed signs of disease for the first time

Mr. Craig thought it impossible to hold seedsmen responsible as some suggested. In Bernauda from reliable reports he had learned that no held of lilies was without it, all were affected more or less. He thought packing the bulbs in tobacco dust might kill the mite. The symptoms of disease showing in the Japan importations may have come from some bulbs sent over from Bermuda some few years ago, which probably had some mites in them at the time.

Mr. Clark thought a solution of one ounce of carbolic acid in one gallon of water might do to dip the bulbs in, as it had prevented a rot that affected lilies from Japan, when carried over the winter some years ago. Such a treatment might kill the present mite. He also said that his firm, the H. A. Dreer Co., exported large quantities of Harrisii to Europe, mostly in large sizes, and he had yet to hear the first complaint of disease; their treatment was different from that of growers in this country.

Mr. Michell thought a remedy was in order and suggested a thorough fumigation of the bulbs as likely to kill the mites. Tobacco extract or nicotine as strong as possible might be used he thought with good effect. A grower who had pursued this plan had been quite successful.

Mr. Kennedy thought if bulbs were started inside there would not be so much trouble, as those from outside did not seem to force so well when brought inside. A resolution offered by Mr. Young to place the responsibility on the dealers and growers of bulbs, holding them by a guarantee, was tabled.

A preony symposium is scheduled for the May meeting with Mr. Hencock holding the post of honor.

The weather is atrocious at this writing. Vesterday the glass was at freezing point all day, with a snow storm con-tinuing until late in the afternoon. This coming after such fine weather as we have had has put the growers to a great deal of trouble, and interfered largely with the retail business. It is well, however, to have it early in the week rather than later, it is to be hoped that something better is in store before Easter Sunday

The stores have all put on their holiday attire, and the great masses of color where plants are packed in as they have to be to utilize every inch of room, make a great show. All hope for a good business, and as for the growers nearly all are sold out, lilies particularly being in great demand.

Visitors in town: James Hartshorne and John D. Thompson of Chicago; J. L. Dillon, of Bloomsburg. K.

Chicago.

GOOD PROSPECTS FOR EASTER TRADE.-SCARCITY OF BLOOMING PLANTS. -WHOLESALE TRADE GOOD,—PERSONAL.

Retail trade this week has been very peculiar. Very few orders for Easter were placed early in the week. Monday and Tuesday retail trade was very quiet, the florists' extra large stock and finely decorated show windows seemed to have very little attraction to the average customer; for this reason many in the trade predicted a quiet Easter. This was only the quiet before the storm. Wednesday trade commenced with a rush. The prospect now is that the Easter trade this year will be the largest ever done in Chicago. There will be no very elaborate church decorations this year, such as were made a few years ago. Churches now depend upon the contribution of memorial pieces, with perhaps a few plants for Easter decorations. On the other hand the large retail stores in all lines are using vast numbers of palms and flowering plants. Geo. Wittbold has had nearly every plant he has suitable to decorate with rented out all the week, mostly for store decorations.

Blooming plants, such as lilies, hya-cintlis, cinerarias and azaleas are sold in large quantities for this purpose, and more could be sold if the plants were to be had. All kinds of good blooming plants are scarce except hyacinths and tulips. With the vast amount of glass and the constant cry of over-production and close competition which we hear on every hand, it is certainly strange that there is no one around Chicago who makes a specialty of growing the better class of pot plants for the wholesale trade. We are shipping cut flowers all over the United States from the Atlantic to the Pacific coast and from Manitoba to New Orleans, and yet we do not produce pot plants enough to supply our own city. Why can we not supply pot plants to be shipped over as large a territory as we do cut flowers? We are shipping cut flowers this week to New Haven, Conn., and receiving azaleas by express from Philadelphia. Doing business this way is all right for the express companies, but where does the florist's profit come in. A case of azaleas could be sent here by freight in the fall for less than it costs to pack and ship a half dozen azaleas in bloom by express.

The wholesale trade was never better than it has been during the past week. With large orders to fill and a fairly good with large orders to in and a fairly good supply of stock to fill them from the wholesale men are in their glory. There is plenty of everything to fill orders ex-cept carnations, which are somewhat short and steep in price, bringing from $2 to $5 for common, and from $5 to $7 for fancy. Lilies were selling at from $8 to $15 on Monday and Tuesday; by Thursday they were held quite firm at the latter price. Roses are selling at from $6 to $10. American Beauties at from $2 to $6 per dozen. Smilax is quite scarce, and good strings bring $2.40 per dozen. Tulips bring from $3 to $5.

Walter Heffron, now with E. H. Hunt, will be with E. C. Amling after the first May. Mr. Hunt is still quite sick.
It is reported that T. J. Corbrey is in the city.

the city.

A. L. Randall is well pleased with his new quarters; he has the fixtures about completed. The place is thoroughly adapted to his method of doing business.

Visitors: H. Van Zonneveld, of Van Zonneveld Bros. & Co., Sassenheim, Holland; B. K. Bliss, of Boston, the veteran seedsman.

Detroit, Mich.

That Mr. Gust Knox never does things by halves goes without saying. One of his recent achievements is a conservatory the like of which one seldom sees on a commercial place. The structure covers 20x60 feet and is built in Gothic style. The high dome, the lofty arches and columns, and the cobble stone walls give it the appearance of an ancient castle, while the numerous little nooks and corners about the place, the stone elevations, or pyramids, covered with moss and holding palms and ferns of all sorts and sizes—are no less attractive to the casual observer.

A fine aquarium, artistically constructed adds much to the general appearance of the place.

Besides the conservatory, Mr. Knox has also added a house covering 20x90 feet. Taken all in all, Mr. Knox's is one of the finest greenhouse plants in the state of Michigan.

TOPEKA, KANS.—The meeting of the Shawnee County Horticultural Society will be held in this city on April 7. It will be devoted principally to the interests of fruit growers.

Princeton, N. J.—The greenhouse property belonging to the Lanchau estate has been sold to Frank Biallas, who proposes to introduce extensive improvements.

CARNOT ROSES AND CYPRIPEDIUMS.

New York.

PLANT TRADE BOOMING.—CUT FLOWER BUSINESS WAITING FOR ITS TURN.—A NEW GREENHOUSE HEATER.—DEATH OF ROBERT B. YOUNG.

The plant trade is on a boom this week hampered, however, by the very bad weather experienced during the early part. As has been the rule in recent years the cut flower interests must bide their time until the plant business has had its full innings, which is likely to last until Saturday, and not until then will the cut flower people know what their fate is to be. There is no indication of a special run on any one article and no probability of any disturbing shortage on any line, excepting carnations which continue in light supply with prices beyond the normal. As to lilies the result is not yet in sight but the probabilities are that every good flower and plant will find a customer. The quality of stock, in general, is excellent, averaging better than at any previous Easter season.

Genial Sam Burns, who laid the foundations of his success as a heating engineer under the careful training of the veteran, Thos. W. Weathered, thirty years ago. and who has been a mainstay of the Weathered establishment ever since, has evolved a new sectional boiler for which he makes great claims as an up-to-date greenhouse heater. The writer is not blessed with a great reputation as a judge of the relative merits of direct or indirect surface or other qualifications that these heating experts talk so glibly about, and if he were to say that Mr. Burns had proved his case in a recent convincing presentation of the novel points in his invention it would not strengthen that gentleman's claims a particle, so he discreetly refrains; but the catalogue tells all about it, and is well worthy of perusal. The new boiler is called the "Weathered."

Robert B. Young died on April 2 at his residence in Asbury Park, at the age of 60 years. Death was caused by chronic rheumatism from which he has been a sufferer for four years. Mr. Young was born in Greenwich street, New York City. He started in business as superintendent at the establishment of Young & Elliott. Shortly after the death of his brother, Mr. Isaac Young, of Young & Elliott, in 1891, Robert established himself as a horticultural auctioneer at 205 Greenwich street, where he continued until forced by ill-health to retire. He was a reliable and successful man in his business and was held in high esteem by his business associates, employes and friends, who found him at all times a man of big who found film at all times a similar and generous impulses. He was a member of the New York Florists' Club. A widow survives him. The finneral services were held on Tuesday, April 5, and interment was at Greenwood Cemetery on Wednesday.

Visiting New York: Geo. II. Thompson, Lenox, Mass.

Washington.

In the House of Representatives Mr. Cummings introduced the subjoined bill April 4, and it was referred to the committee on agriculture and ordered to be printed. A BILL TO EXCOCPORATE THE SOCIETY OF

A BILL TO INCORPORATE THE SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS AND ORNAMENTAL HORGICAL PRISTS

To it enacted by the Senate and Hinse of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress a sembled. That William I. Gude, C. Leslie Reynolds, Ben iamin Durfee and William R. Smith, of Washington, in the District of Columbia; William J. Stewart, M. H. Norton, Lawrence Cotter, E. M. Wood and Patrick Welch, of the State of Massachusetts; E. Welch, of the State of Massachusetts; E. G. Hill and W. W. Coles, of the State of Indiana; W. N. Rudd, John Thorpe and J. C. Vaughan, of the State of Illinois; Robert Craig, Edwin Lonsdale, John Burton, W. K. Harris, William Falconer and H. B. Beatty, of the State of Pennsylvania; W. A. Manda, John X. May, J. G. Esler and Patrick O'Mara, of the State of New Jersey; John M. Jordan and William Trelease, of the State of Missouri; Charles W. Hoitt, of the State of New Charles W. Hoitt, of the State of New Hampshire; Joseph Dirwanger, of the State of Maine; Farquhar Macrae, of the State of Rhode Island; A. Donaghue, of the State of Nebraska; James Dean, John Taylor, William Plumb and William Scott, of the State of New York; Sidney Clack, of the State of California; Henry Holzapfel and John Cook, of the State of Maryland; F. A. Whealan, of the State of Virginia; R. Maitre, of the State of Louisiana; J. Spalding, of the State of Connecticut; Elmer D. Smith, of the State of Michigan; their associates and successors, are hereby created a body corporate and politic, by the name of the Society of American Florists and Ornamental Horticulturists, for the elevation and advancement of horticulture in all its branches, to increase and diffuse the knowledge thereof, and for kindred pur-poses in the interest of horticulture. Said association is authorized to adopt a constitution and to make by-laws not in-consistent with law, to hold real and personal estate in the District of Columbia, so far only as may be necessary to its lawful ends, to an amount not exceeding fifty thousand dollars, by purchase, and such other estate as may be donated or bequeathed to it: Provided, That all property so held, and the proceeds thereof, shall be held and used solely for the pur-pose set forth in this act. The principal pose set forth in this act. office of the association shall be at Washington, in the District of Columbia, but annual meetings may be held in such places as the incorporators or their sucressors shall determine. Said association shall from time to time report its proceedings to the Secretary of Agriculture, at least once in each year, and said secretary may communicate such reports in whole or in part to Congress.

The bill will be pushed with all possible speed. It will probably be introduced in the senate April 6. This will be for the purpose of gaining time, and the committee on agriculture will consider it at its next meeting. No hitch is expected in the committee or on the floor.

REVNOLDS.

Orange, N. J.—The monthly meeting of the New Jersey Horticultural Society was held in Decker's Hall on Tuesday evening, April 5. Prof. N. L. Britton, director of the New York Botanical Garden, illustrated by stercopticon views, which was greatly enjoyed by a large audience. Robert McArthur exhibited some excellent carnations, Mrs. Geo. M. Bradt being particularly fine. David Tate showed Lapageria rosea and Peter Duff a large vase of Phains grandifolius. Certificates were awarded to all. Prof. Britton was elected an honorary member. There will be a spring exhibition on April 21 in Berkeley Hall, near Brick Church in which the Inanges will co-operate. Much interest is manufested and a fine display is promised.

Ornamental Bedding.

PART IV.

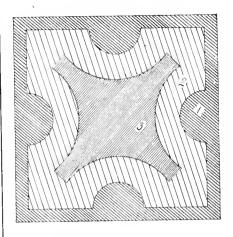

Fig 13.

Here is an easy design to fill the above square.

1, Alternanthera amona spectabilis; 2, Coleus Golden Bedder; 3, C. Verschaffeltii.

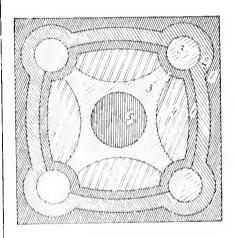

Fig. 11.-An eleven foot square.

1, Alternanthera Reevesii; 2, Mesembryanthemum cordifolium variegatum; 3, Santolina incana; 4, Alternanthera aurea nana; 5, Achyranthes Lindenii.

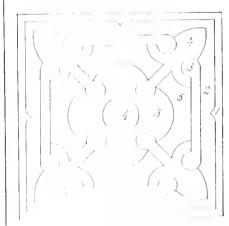

Fig. 15 - A twelve fool square.

1, Alternanthera paronychioides major; 2, Mentha Gibraltarica; 3, Alternanthera amoena spectabilis; 4, Santolina incana; 5, Alternanthera aurea nana.

A Palm Disease.

Specimens of a diseased palm, Phœnix reclinata, have been sent to me recently for consideration from a large palm grower. The affected leaves have lost much of their original beautiful green color, and along with the yellowing of the foliage there has come a large number of nearly circular pimples that rise for some distance above the surface of the leaf.

The trouble is of fungus origin and the dark spots are due to cup-shaped pro-tuberances in which the spores are developed. This fungus bears the name of Graphiola Phœnicis Poit., and is one of the members of the group of smuts. It is met with upon members of several genera of palms, as chamærops and phœnix; but so far as the writer knows it is not found upon other than the palms. It belongs to a group of fungi that contains some of the worst of parasites, among which are the various smuts of corn, wheat, oats and the grasses generally. Another smut makes sad havoc with the onion industry in some localities.

Those who grow greenhouse plants may not fear the spread of this disease to the ordinary commercial sorts such as roses, violets, carnations or chrysanthemums, but may expect it to attack many species of palms.

The smuts are deeply seated fungi and by the time the spore spots are produced the affected leaves are beyond recovery, and the best way is to cut all such away and burn them. The removed parts should not be left to rot in a waste heap. It is possible to keep healthy plants from taking the disease by spraying the foliage, thereby destroying any spores that may have fallen upon them. The removal of the young spore masses as they appear may be of some value.

Figure 1 shows a portion of palm leaf magnified three times and the spore spots are overrunning with the spores. In figure 2 a later appearance is shown where the wall of the cup is thick and quite dark. This leaf is likewise increased to three times its natural size.

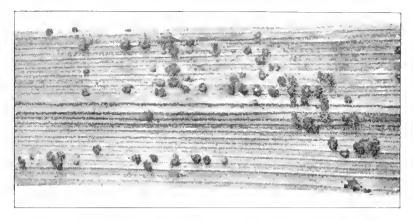

Byron D. Halsted.

Mr. W. H. Taplin's Experiences with Jadoo.

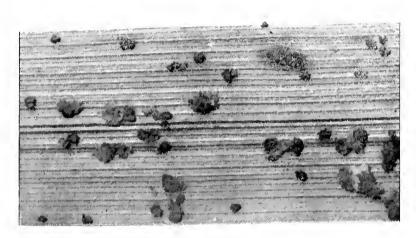

My first experiment was made with a small quantity of the jadoo fibre during the summer of 1896, and the material being received at about the same time as a lot of seeds of Latania Borbonica, I planted a number of pans of these seeds in the new substance, and carefully noted the results.

In addition to the pans referred to, in which no other compost but jadoo was used, I partially filled several others with our ordinary compost on which the seeds were sown, then used jadoo as a covering for the seeds. The entire lot of seeds, including those planted in pure jadoo, those in part jadoo, and also those in the ordinary compost, were then placed in one house and submitted to the same treatment.

The seeds sown in jadoo seemed to germinate slightly quicker than the others. showing above the surface about one week sooner than the main lot, but this apparent improvement was only temporary, and when the seedlings were about three inches high they stopped growing, the jadoo evidently failing to provide the necessary nourishment. From this time forward the jadoo seedlings did not improve, and for some months after the entire lot was potted off in ordinary soil the batch of jadoo seedlings could readily be picked out, owing to their starved appearance The seeds that were merely covered with the jadoo, while not equal to those on which no jadoo was used, were better in results than the first lot.

A PALM DISEASE, FIG. I.

A PALM DISEASE, FIG. 2.

The lesson from this experiment was obvious, and I at once decided that I had no use for jadoo for this particular purpose. On September 15, 1897, I began a few more experiments which have ex-tended over a period of six months, and were as follows: Three sets of plants were selected, each set containing a given number of Pandanus Veitchii, P. utilis, Latania Borbonica, Areca lutescens, Kentia Beliuoreana, Cocos Weddeliana, and Ficus elastica, the plants in the three lots being selected to correspond with each other as nearly as possible. The first lot was potted in jadoo and watered with jadoo liquid in accordance with directions, the second lot was potted in jadoo and watered with pure water, and the third set of plants was potted in ordinary compost and also watered with pure water only.

At the end of the six months' trial the only species grown in jadoo that are equal to those grown in ordinary soil are Pandamis Veitchii and Kentia Belmore-ana, while all the other species tested have been steadily depreciating for the past two months, there being apparently little or no difference between the plants watered with jadoo liquid and those which only received pure water.

The jadoo liquid was also tested on some pot-bound specimens of Kentia Forsteriana, being applied twice a week for seven (7) weeks, and at the end of this period no improvement whatever could be seen in the plants.

As a rooting medium for cuttings, I have only used jadoo for a few araucaria cuttings, and in that instance it was not satisfactory, while similar cuttings planted in the mixture of sand and cocoa fibre that I have used for many years for propagating purposes rooted readily. The only conclusion arrived at after these brief experiments is, that we have much more confidence in our regular compost which costs possibly $2.25 per ton than in jadoo at $27.50 for the same weight.

W. II. TAPLIN.

Grand Rapids, Mich.

Trade has been very good here this week, mostly funeral work. Flowers plentiful, excepting carnations which have been rather scarce.

Easter lilies, callas, roses, violets and bulb stock will about equal the demand, but carnations will be rather scarce for Easter

Crabb & Hunter are preparing to build a new carnation house and several violet houses. Wealthy Avenue Floral Co. expect to rebuild some of their houses. Grand Rapids Floral Co. and James Schols both expect to add to their glass. Henry Smith is building a carnation honse and more violet houses.

honse and more violet nonses.

The next club meeting will be held at the Engle hotel, Tuesday evening, April 5.

H. S.

Sketches From My Trip East.

I am sure I voice the sentiments of every member of the executive committee of the Society of American Florists and Ornamental Horticulturists when I state we shall carry with us for a long time many pleasant recollections of Washington, and our florist friends who so royally entertained us.

That banquet! Well we will never forget it. The Washington boys have proven beyond question that they know how to get up a banquet in a most artistic style. Tables, walls, in fact the whole banquet hall was profusely and artistically decorated; nothing was lacking to make everything most pleasing and enjoyable. The speeches from the Hon. James Wilson and other distinguished guests were very instructive and entertaining. President Gude and our old friend W. R. Smith proved to be good after dinner talkers.

Your Philadelphia correspondent has given you a full account of what took place while we were in Washington, therefore I will only briefly mention a few things which may interest your readers.

I was much impressed with a red seedling carnation at the American Rose Co.'s establishment. As seen there it seems to be a good healthy grower, free bloomer, good size, flower on long stiff stems. A house of Victor carnations was a sight long to be remembered. Mr. Victor has no doubt come to stay. Roses in general were also in fine condition at this immense establishment. I like the way Golden Gate is done there; it seems very prolific and many fine flowers on long stiff stems were seen; the name, however, is very misleading, as the color is a light delicate shade of pink, somewhat in the way of President Carnot; Alme. Chatenay is a very pleasing shade of pink, quitefree, but flowers a little under size; one house 50x145 filled with this variety was a grand sight. American Beauty, Brides and Bridesmaids were conspicuous by their absence in this establishment, not a plant of these standard varieties was

Mr. Durfee has great faith in Kaiserin; it is the only variety he grows for a white; his stock looked in the pink of condition. I was much disappointed in Mrs. Robert Garrett; not more than 10% of the flowers seem to come perfect, and mostly on short stems. I sincerely hope this variety will prove better in other sections of the

At Gude Bros.' everything was in first-class order. Meteors, La France, Golden Gate, Maids and Bride roses were particularly fine.

After leaving Washington my visit was with the "Grand old duke" (Lonsdale) at Chestnut Hill. There American Beauties in solid beds were seen, perhaps as fine as any in the coun-This collection of orchids (which is said to be the finest in Philadelphia) were the picture of health. Farlevense fern and palms were also grown here to some

In close proximity to Mr. Lonsdale is Mr. John Burton, whose reputation for growing A No. 1 roses is world wide; about half of Mr. Burton's establishment (which is over 10,000 square feet of glass) is devoted to American Beautics, and a finer pet et process our scribe has never ber a fact ever thing on the place was to any good attension the investment in the system of the state of Carnot were the pattern of the theorem poor house in the continuous model place, two Lines of Mark Superlanders and the sight this variety should prove a good commercial sort.

I also visited Myer and Samtman, which is within a few blocks of the last mentioned place. Beauties were also the leading variety here and done in grand shape; their whole establishment, which is quite large, is devoted exclusively to roses for cut flowers. It will be remembered Della Fox carnation originated here, but not a carnation of any description is seen on the place to-day.

I was sorry to leave l'hiladelphia, as the oysters served there seem to have a better flavor than in most other cities, but my time was limited and next day I made a flying trip to New York, in company with Mr. Elmer D. Smith of Michigan. Having only one day in this eity it was spent at Queens and Floral Park.

Mr. Ward was first visited. Carnations, geraniums and chrysanthemums are here grown in large numbers. White Cloud and John Young impressed me as being two good white carnations worthy of trial; New York was also in fine shape. Bon Ton is a very pleasing warm searlet, good free bloomer and very stiff stem; not quite up to Jubilee and Flora Hill in size, but has enough other good qualities to make it a good commercial sort. Mr. Ward has had enough of short span to the south greenhouses, and hereafter will build nothing but equal span with a space between each house. His last house is certainly a model for the growing of any plants for cut flowers in winter.

After spending about an hour and a half with Mr. Ward he kindly gave us a carriage ride to Floral Park to visit Mr. C. H. Allen. Gladiolus is one of Mr. Allen's specialties, of which many thousands were seen in storage. In the greenhouses Scott carnations were a sight not soon to be forgotten-large heavy plants, long stiff stems and blooms, extra large for this variety. It had never before been our pleasure to see any house of carnations so thickly set with buds and flowers. McGowan was also in fine condi-

Next day found me at Binghamton, N. V. A call was made on Mr. W. H. Graham, who has worked up a nice local trade since locating there some four years ago. Roses, carnations, bulb stock, etc., are well grown for a general retail trade, mostly sold through his store, which is located in the heart of the city.
W. W. Coles.

Baltimore.

EASTER OBSERVATIONS.—LILIES SHORT.— CURBSTONE DEALERS. - JONQUILS AND DAFFODILS PLENTIFUL -ROSES AND VIO-LETS CHEAP,

Well, here we are again on the eye of our spring harvest, known to church goers as Easter, and let every man who has just the stock he intended to have, in just the condition he wants it, hold up his hand, or make some sign, andible or visible. Every man in the crowd said to himself last spring, "I have found out what to grow, and the experience I have picked up will set me just right for next baster." But, alas! observation doesn't seem to prove that all came out, or will come out, where they expected to, In fact, considering the number of conditions necessary to be weighed and provided against, it is a sort of workday miracle of skill and prescience that enables the florist to have the bulk of his Easter plants and flowers at Easter instead of some weeks before or after. The seeds, bulbs or plants; the heating, the ventilating; the clouds, rain, sunshine, frost, all are to be considered; besides the responsibility of employes, one of whom by one bit of carelessness may spoil a houseful almost ready for market.

It is something of a wonder that flower growers are as contented and cheerful a lot as they generally are, in spite of the strain of uncertainty and unceasing watchfulness in which they live. They must catch some reflection of trust in Providence in their toiling existence, from the lilies "that toil not" and the bright works of nature by which they are surrounded. What else could keep a man in a business where the brain of a scientist. the taste of an artist, the skill of mechanic, must be combined with the cunning of the merchant and the physical vigor of a day laborer to insure success in a moderate degree? And where the hours of labor are not from 9 a. m. to 3 p. m., nor from 8 a, m to 5 p. m., nor even from 7 a. m. to 6 p. m., but all day, yes and frequently all night too, with enough cares for the seventh day, which almost every other trade has for rest, to keep a pretty continuous wear.

A flying triparound among the growers shows a very moderate amount of distinctively Easter material on hand. Lilies will almost certainly be a short crop, several whose plants seem healthy will be too late; only two have been seen whose flowers are too forward, and they are practically in full bloom three weeks too

Though a good many tulips and hyacinths are coming on there seems not to be enough, even of these, to supply a full fledged demand. It is hard to estimate these this far ahead, as many are no doubt in out-of-the-way corners and will turn up all right when needed.

Messrs. Fischer & Ekas have one of the most interesting places to visit about town. It is a sight to see when Mr. Fischer goes over his seedling carnations, showing off the strong points of pets and disdainfully passing by plants with monster blooms that have a split calyx or weak stem or bad color, or some other unpardonable defect. Several now on probation seem perfection to anyone but a carnation specialist, notably one about the color of Philadelphia chrysanthemum, and another white with delicate fringe of searlet around the edge of each petal. The place is not confined to seedlings by any means, as the thrifty looking plants in the other houses testify.

J. G. Erdman is not only ahead with Harrisii lilies, but has planted a lot of chrysanthemums outside, and has a nice lot of smilax and miscellaneous plants

Montgomery Bros., Jas. Simpson and M. Richmond all seem to be growing seedling ferns enough to supply the city. The geraniums, and pot plants generally, on all these places are looking first-class. Curbstone dealers are having things all their own way in the city. Violets seem their chief stock, but now and then one sees really good roses in a dilapidated basket or tin bucket with a voluble salesman behind them. The worst form of this business is when it is combined with some malformation or pity-exciting deformity, as was shown by the steady sales of a little hunchback girl.

PTI (800 to, Mass,—Frank McCarry, employed by John White, the florist, recently received a severe scalp wound by being thrown from his wagon.

The American Florist

Subscription $1.00 a Year. To Europe, $2.00, Subscriptions accepted only from those in the trade.

Advertisements, 10 Cents a Line, Agate; $1.00 per inch. Cash with Order.

No Special Position Guaranteed.

Discounts, 6 times, 5 per cent; 13 times, 10 per cent; 26 times, 20 per cent; 52 times, 30 per cent.

The Advertising Department of the AMERICAN FLORIST is for Florists, Seedsmen, and dealers in wares pertaining to those lines ONLY.

Orders for less than one-half inch space not accepted. Advertisements must reach us by Wednesday to secure insertion in the issue for the following Saturday.

Address THE AMERICAN FLORIST CO., Chicago.

WE desire to call the attention of our advertisers to the annexed statements of the Chicago postmaster and our printers in connection with the last issue of the AMERICAN FLORIST.

Springfield, O.—John M. Good of Good & Reese, who was deposed as mayor last February was re-elected April 4 by a majority of about 900. Many leading republicans supported him on the ground that the ouster wasclear persecution.

THE WESTERN NEW YORK HORTICULT-URAL SOCIETY.—We are in receipt of the report of the proceedings of this society at its forty-ninth annual meeting, held at Rochester, January 26 and 27. The volume contains numerous valuable essays and reports from prominent authorities.

Professor Cowell's Experiences with Jadoo.

We have been experimenting with jadoo for over a year and have as yet been unable to obtain any results that convince us of its superiority to other materials which we use, or to lead us to think that we can use it for the few things that do well in it with any profit. There are a few plants that for a time do remarkably well in jadoo, but the stuff is too expensive for us because we have other materials which answer just as well at onethird the cost.

The mechanical condition of soil or compost is a most important item, and one that though generally recognized in a way, receives from comparatively few gardeners the consideration which it deserves. We have all of us perhaps been too prone to pot everything from the same pile, because we felt sure that it was rich in food supply and offered all the usual elements in abundance. It is well because that certain plants can not be known that certain plants can not be grown in what we call our ordinary potting soil. Who can tell just how many of our everyday plants would do better under different physical conditions of soil? It is to the physical condition of jadoo that I attribute the success that seems to have attended its use by some growers.

There are certain plants, more particularly some of the very coarse rooted ones, like dracanas of the terminalis style and some young palms, that start off very well in jadoo, but they very soon exhaust the food supply and require repotting; and we find that if we keep the plant moving we soon have it in a pot that is out of all proportion to the right of the ont of all proportion to the size of the plant. To those who have been using peat moss and cocoanut fibre for years, I think jadoo will not bring any help, for they will, with the proper fertilizers added, produce as good or better results at a very much lower cost.

We have tried during the year a great many kinds of plants in this much advertised material, and are still trying it.

RECEIPT OF CHICAGO POST OFFICE.

American Florist Co..

324 Dearborn St.,

City.

Gentlemen:

This ie to certify that we printed Sixteen Thousand Four Hundred, (16,400) copies of the American Florist, Easter Edition and mailed Fifteen Thousand Six Hundred and Thirty, (15,630).

Respectfully,

Regan Printing House.

- afskeard before me dant & above, this Fifth 98 Lillian M. Jewett.

PRINTERS' CRTIFICATE AND AFFIDAVIT.

Undoubtedly many plants can be grown in it. A chrysanthemum can be grown in it and even flowered but we have not been able to grow one which was at all satisfactory, and we have tried many.

The foliage has always been poor and the plants have presented invariably the appearance of starvation notwithstanding frequent applications of the "liquid." Dracenas like fragrans and its variety Lindeni after a short time take on this starved look. We have grown several species of asparagus (Sprengerii among the number), some ferns and many other plants selected from a general collection in jadoo alongside the same species planted in other material, and the latter were with only one or two exceptions by far the best.

With orchids we have not tried it very extensively, some half dozen species being the extent to which we cared to go. Of these one species has done very well, in fact I think better than the check plants which were beside it-this species was Calanthe Veitchii,

For seedlings and cuttings it does not seem to me as good as several other substances which have been in use for years.

JOHN F. COWELL.

A Drummer's Twaddle.

Not in the history of the florists' trade has there been earlier or more extensive transactions in the east than during the past week. Most of the plant trade usureserved until Easter week is now well on and business promises to be heavier than at any preceding holiday, and inci-dentally we have had the chance to note what an orthodox class the eastern florists are, when witnessing at several large places the industrious preparations and packing on Sunday to meet the exigencies of this unusual and early demand.

Prices, too, are firm and stock will clearly sell out at a shade or more above usual Easter prices. Azaleas, hydrangeas, genistas, spirasas, etc., are generally in excellent shape. Hyacinths, tulips and narcissi, most of them in without heat, are especially well-grown and lasting. The Crimson Rambler rose has increased its reputation for value as an Easter plant, several of the large florists having grown quantities of large plants in profuse bloom bright-flowered and free of mildew.

It has taken a season or two to learn how to handle this, but from the appearance of stock we have seen, the lessons have been well learned and this rose now is added to the list of showy and salable Easter plants.

Lilies are scaree on account of diseased bulbs, a portion of the crop having gone to waste during the mild weather.

This is the time when the grower anathematizes the bulb dealer as a venial wretch, and the drummer as his arch conspirator, and wonder is expressed why he still walks the earth and "rears his head in unblushing effrontery;" it is just the season when this industrious pilgrim should lie low and await the passing of the harvest trade of this profitable season to bring about that pleasanter mood among the florists which we all enjoy when the hard earned shekels jingle their sweet music. The planting mania will again return and the growers again "burn their fingers" as surely as the water ran on in Tennyson's "Brook"—and this is no babbling either—and so the villified drummer sees the light ahead, trudges his weary round, weaves his blandishing smile; extends his jolly greeting, talks, it may be flippantly, on the fresh topics of the day—your drummer is always fresh— if about Cuba Libre, to illustrate the American deep-seated feeling against spain he tells of that last hotel where he stopped which nearly had to close its doors because it had Spanish mackerel and Spanish onions on its menu, and thus ever beginling with his far-fetched and gleiful sermons on current questions of the hour, customers in self-detence and tor riddance, torgetting the past, secretly for fundance, to getting the past, secretly admitting that after all he did as well lest year as anyone in this imperfect wild, give him the coveted order, serence, and satisfaction again spread over the scene, both florist and salesman begin mey the round of another year in their with among the flowers, jointly exclaim-The sun has come

Philadelphia, Pa-Resea Loos

Cut Flower Price Lists Received.

H. L. Surderbruch, Co. Cincinnati; Holtaria, Hunlel Co., Mileauker, W. A. & Laderi, Cincinnati, Llis & Pollworth, Mickauler, A. G. Prince & Co., Chicago, Acich, Bros., Boston, W. L. Kasting, Battalo, St. Louis, Cit. Hower, Co., St.

Rochester, N. Y.

GORGEOUS WINDOWS. - PLANTS IN GOOD DEMAND. -- CUT FLOWER MARKET STEADY. -COLD SNAP.

The store windows of our florists present a most gorgeous appearance this week. Most conspicuous among the plants are of course the lilies and the azaleas in variety. Another prominent feature in the display is the increased number in rhododendrons and in well shaped lilaes, also some profusely flowered metrosideras in compact bushy plants. Kalmias are seen in several places, some of these are a little lanky but thickly set with flowers; ericas of medium sizes seem to sell rapidly and it is not very likely that any of them will be left over; hydrangeas had time this year to get har-dened off, and are in better condition to withstand the dry atmosphere in a dwelling house than they usually are when forced for Easter. The grand large specimen of Paris daisies, offered in various places are sure to find purchasers Genistas are in evidence everywhere in all sizes. Spiraea astilboides and the Japan varieties are represented in profusion; einerarias are not at all scarce and H. P. roses are quite plentiful. Crimson Rambler has also been bloomed by several growers, but here I have to state that budded stock has invariably given better satisfaction than those on own roots, the clusters or panicles being not only much larger and far more robust but are produced on every growth, while the plants raised from cuttings have a tendency to run up blind shoots from the base.

The flat pans filled with bulbous stock of all description have sold remarkably well all winter and the demand is not diminishing. Valley pans are decidedly in fashion here at present and in addition thereto we may mention the dwarf English primrose and its hybrids, and the low compact growing forget-me-not, which when fully out in bloom are so inviting, and not being very high priced are readily sold. Violets and pansies grown in the same manner are equally acceptable and several of our storemen have them in their windows.

The cyclamen at Geo. Keller's, which were so successfully kept back for Easter are nearly all disposed of and have proved quite profitable, as also have his blue daisies, which he had in cold frames until seven or eight weeks ago; undoubtedly we shall see more of these near and freeblooming plants another season

As to the state of the cut flower market during the week past, we can not say that the demand was very brisk, though but very little stock went to waste. The supply was not excessive, and what came in could be used up every day. The prospects for an abundant Easter supply are layorable, but cut lilies will be rather scarce and command a good price.

All our florists are quite confident that Easter trade will be ahead of last year's, especially in the plant line, and they are well prepared to meet a large increase in the demand for the latter.

Four or five successive real cold days have done a lot of damage among bulbous stock outdoors, especially is this noticenble with hyacinth beds which were nearly fully out in bloom at the time, they are lying flat on the ground now and early tulips have suffered in many localities in the same way, the mild March days had tayored a rapid growth which proved too J. B. K. soft for severe frosts.

Say "saw your ad, in the Florist" when you write advertisers.

Dayton, O.—Warren Matthews' greenhouses were in the flooded district. He lost the entire contents of the houses.

DAVENPORT, IA.-Mrs. F. L. Bills has opened a new place at 104 West Second street. For the present she will continue the business at her former location, also.

SITUATIONS, WANTS, FOR SALE.

Advertisements under this head will be inserted at the rate of 10 cents a line (seven words) each insertion. Cash must accompany order. Plant advs. not admitted under this head.

Every paid subscriber to the AMERICAN FLORIST for the year ISBS is entitled to a five-line want adv. free to be used at any time during the year.

SITUATION WANTED-By No 1 grower of reses, carnations, violets and general run of cut flowers; married, 27 years' experience. References.

P. R. care American Florist.

SITUATION WANTED—'y competent gerdener and florist on private or public place, where intelligent service and good results are wanted. Best of wages expected.

A P A, care Am. Florist.

SITUATION WANTED—Single size 30; grower of roses, carnations, 'mums, vi lets, paims ferns, etc ; qualified to take responsible position commercial or private. F A 11, care American Florist.

SITUATION WANTED—By good, aft-round green-house man, age 27: 10 years' experience (Hol-lander). Best of references. Can come at once. Address II. KLEINSTARINK, Station A. Louisville, Ky.

SITUATION WANTED—A men 30 years of age, single, wants position in commercial place; good grower of roses, carnations, imms, palms and general stock. Best of references A tiberty April 1 F 11 B, care American Florist.

SITUATION WANTED—Married man, age 28, no family; private or commercial; 12 years with leading tirms; capable in all branches; willing to ran commercial place on commission plan. References.

GARDENER. Floral Park. L 1, N. Y.

SITUATION WANTED—As forement or manager in large cut flower establishment by a first-class grower of roses, carnations, immis and general stock; has been forement in lurge places for the past 10 years; 24 years' experience. Best references. Address F.B. care American Florist.

WANTED—An all-round good man for greenhouse work; married man, stendy work. Address JACOB MEYER, Morton Grove, Ill.

WANTED TO RENT-Established florist business; houses must be in good condition. Or would buy interest in business. In writing give thi particulars. Address  $G \cup G$ , care American Florist

WANTED AT ONCE—A florist, German and sln-gle; wages for the first two months $20, and after that $25, board and washing included. Steady work the year round. A. SENIF, Menominee, Mich.

WANTED-in a Wisconsin city, an all-round fierist, a capable man to take entire charge, grow good roses, carnations and general greeoionous stock. Must be sober, honest, industrious. Good wages to the right man. References required. Address.

M.G. care American Florist.

ROR SALE- Greenhouses on principal street in the city of H. REBSTOCK, 584 Main St., Buifalo, N. Y.

FOR SALE OR RENT CHEAP - Six well-stocked greenhouses, dwelling, etc. Best R. R. facilities, no competition Reason, poor health.

W. L. WINN, White Hall, III.

FOR RENT Two neres of rich land suitable for ito-rists' purposes; conveniently is cated within nine interest aboiton. Will give ten ear lease on very invortible terms. Lattely occupied by a florist. Ad-dress

Hox 56, East Lexington, Mass.

FOR SALE.

Two Greenhouses, well stocked, no competition.

House attached.

E. GRAVES, Piltsfield, III.

FOR SALE AT A BARGAIN.

A newly built but well established florist business of to,oro feet of glass Centrally located and well stocked. Sickness cause of wanting to sell. Address

BUSINESS, care American Florist.

FOR SALE

Six Greenhouses; about 11,000 feet of glass, well stocked; wholesale and retail; town of 4,000; no competition; less than one hundred miles of Chicago; two railroads. For particulars address

"A," care American Florist.

Grafted Roses for Forcing.

ED. AM. FLORIST:-In reply to your inquiry for my conclusions as to the value of grafted roses for forcing, as compared with those on their own roots, I would say that after reading Mr. Simpson's article about grafted roses a year ago I procured 1000 of the Manetti stock and grafted them with Beauties, Brides and Bridesmaids. The Beauties have not done as well as those on their own roots. The Brides and Bridesmaids planted on the same bench with those on their own roots have grown much stronger. The proportion of buds with stiff strong stems has been greater, but those on their own roots have given a greater number of buds.

I do not see that the grafted ones have any great advantage over the others, and do not think that grafting will ever take the place of growing them on their own

I did not keep any account of the number of buds cut from the same number of plants grown in each way, and cannot speak as positively as I would like to be able to do.

I am making a trial of another 1000 and hope to be able to give you a fuller report next year. Joseph Heacock.

Strings 8 to 10 feet long,

50 CENTS.

W. H. ELLIOTT, Brighton, Mass.

ASHES CHEAP.

ALSO PURE GROUND BONE.

Write for prices. CEORCE STEVENS, Peterborough, Ont.

Wholesale Flower Markets

| Brides   15,006-35,00     Brides   6   000-10     Bridesmalds   6   000-10     Meteore   8,000-10     Perles   4,000-6     Carnations   3   00     Romans   3,000-4     Narciseus   3,000-4     Daffodila   4,000-6     Callas   10,000-7     Harristi   12,50     Callas   10,000-7     Meteore   3,000-6     Adjantum   1,00     Adjantum   1,00     Brides Bridesmalds   4,000-6     Wiolets   5,000-7     Adjantum   1,000-7     Brides Bridesmalds   4,000-6     Brides   5,000-6     Brides   5,000-6     Brides   5,000-6     Brides Bridesmalds   5,000-6     Brides Bridesmalds   5,000-6     Brides Bridesmalds   6,000-6     Brides Br   | G                                       |
|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----------------------------------------|
| Brides                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | CINCINNATI, April 7.                    |
| "Bridesmalds                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |                                         |
| Britesmans   0,002   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00   10.00     |                                         |
| " Meteors                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | Bridenniarida 0 000 10.00               |
| " Peries. 4.00 â 6 00 Carnations 3 00 fancy 4.00 a 5 00 Narciseus 3.00 a 4 00 Narciseus 5.00 a 5.00 Daffodils. 4.00 Violets 5.50 a 5.00 Tulipe 3.00 Smilax 12.50 Adjantum 12.50 Adjantum 12.50 Adjantum 12.50 05.00 Roses, Beauties. 3.00 a 5 00 " Meteors. 3.00 a 5 00 " Brides, Bridesmalds. 4.00 a 10 0 0 0 1 1 0 0 0 1 1 0 0 0 1 1 0 0 0 1 1 0 0 0 1 1 0 0 0 1 1 0 0 0 1 1 0 0 0 1 1 0 0 0 1 1 0 0 0 1 1 0 0 0 1 1 0 0 0 1 1 0 0 0 1 1 0 0 0 1 1 0 0 0 1 1 0 0 0 1 0 0 0 1 0 0 0 1 0 0 0 1 0 0 0 0 1 0 0 0 0 1 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |                                         |
| Carnations                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |                                         |
| Fancy                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |                                         |
| Lily of the valley                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |                                         |
| Romans                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |                                         |
| Narciseus                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | Lary of the valley 3 00                 |
| Violets                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | Komans 3,000 ± 00                       |
| Violets                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | Narciaeua 3.00                          |
| Violets                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | Daffodila 4.00                          |
| Tulips 3.00 Smilax 12.50@15.00 Adlantum 5.00 Adlantum 5.00 Adlantum 5.00 Adlantum 5.00 Smilax 5.00 Smilax 5.00 Smilax 5.00 Smilax 5.00 Smilax 3.00@35.00 Brides Bridesmaids 4.00@10.00 " Perles 3.00@6.00 " Kaleerin 4.00@10.00 Carnations 1.00 Ulolets California 1.00 Lily of the valley 2.00 Harrish 15.00 Callas 15.00 Smilax 5.00@20.00 Smilax 5.00@20.00 Smilax 5.00@20.00 Smilax 6.00 Smilax 6.00 Smilax 6.00 Smilax 6.00 Smilax 6.00 Smilax 7.00@20.00 Smilax 7.00@20.00 Smilax 8.00@20.00 Smilax 8.00@20.00 Smilax 9.00@20.00 Smilax 9.00@20.00 Smilax 15.00@35.00 Smilax 15.00@35.00 Smilax 15.00@35.00 Smilax 15.00@35.00 Smilax 15.00@35.00 Smilax 10.00 Smilax 15.00@35.00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | Violets                                 |
| Tulips 3.00 Smilax 12.50@15.00 Adlantum 5.00 Adlantum 5.00 Adlantum 5.00 Adlantum 5.00 Smilax 5.00 Smilax 5.00 Smilax 5.00 Smilax 5.00 Smilax 3.00@35.00 Brides Bridesmaids 4.00@10.00 " Perles 3.00@6.00 " Kaleerin 4.00@10.00 Carnations 1.00 Ulolets California 1.00 Lily of the valley 2.00 Harrish 15.00 Callas 15.00 Smilax 5.00@20.00 Smilax 5.00@20.00 Smilax 5.00@20.00 Smilax 6.00 Smilax 6.00 Smilax 6.00 Smilax 6.00 Smilax 6.00 Smilax 7.00@20.00 Smilax 7.00@20.00 Smilax 8.00@20.00 Smilax 8.00@20.00 Smilax 9.00@20.00 Smilax 9.00@20.00 Smilax 15.00@35.00 Smilax 15.00@35.00 Smilax 15.00@35.00 Smilax 15.00@35.00 Smilax 15.00@35.00 Smilax 10.00 Smilax 15.00@35.00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | Harrisii                                |
| Tullps                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | Callaa                                  |
| Smilax                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | Tulips 3.00                             |
| Adjantum                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | Smtlax 12.50@15.00                      |
| ST. LOUIS, April 7.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | Adlantum 1 00                           |
| Roses                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | Agneragus 50 00                         |
| Roses   Beauties   3 00@35 00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |                                         |
| Meteors   3,002   10   10   10   10   10   10   10                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | ST. LOUIS, April 7.                     |
| Meteors   3,002   10   10   10   10   10   10   10                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | Rosea, Beautles                         |
| "Bridea, Bridesmalda. 4,00@ 10.00 "Perles. 3,00@ 6,00 "Kaleerin. 4,00@ 10.00 Violets. California. 1,00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | " Meteors 3.00@10 00                    |
| Raiserin                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | " Brides, Bridesmalds 4.00@10.00        |
| " Kaleerin. 4,00@10.00 Carnations. 3,00@ 6 00 Violets. California 1,00 Lily of the valley. 2,00 Harristi 15,00 Callas 15,00 Callas 15,00 Tullpe 3,00@ 5,00 Smilax 15,00@ 20,00 Smilax 15,00@ 35,00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     | " Perles 3.00@ 6.00                     |
| Carnations 3,00 € 6 00 Violets, California 1,00 Lily of the valley 2,00 Harrisii 15,00 Callas 10 00 Narciseus, Romans 10 00 € 50 Narciseus, Romans 10 00 € 50 Smillax 15,00 € 20.00 Freesla 2,00 € 2,50  MILWAUKEE, April S  Roses, Beauties 5,00 € 20.00 Perle, Belde 6 00 00 00 00 00 00 00 00 00 00 00 00 0                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 | " Kaiserin 4.00@10.00                   |
| Violets, California   1.00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     | Carnations 3 00@ 6 00                   |
| Harrisii                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | Violets California 1 00                 |
| Harrisii                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | Lily of the valley 2 00                 |
| Callas                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | Harriali 15.00                          |
| Tullpe                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |                                         |
| Narclesus. Romans                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |                                         |
| Smllax                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | Namedana Tanana                         |
| MILWAUKEE, April 8   Roses   Beauties                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | Narcissus, Romans 1 00@ 2.00            |
| MILWAUKEE, April 8.   Roses. Beauties.   5. 00   3.5   00   3.5   00   3.5   00   3.5   00   3.5   00   3.5   00   3.5   00   3.5   00   3.5   00   3.5   00   3.5   00   3.5   00   3.5   00   3.5   00   3.5   00   3.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5   0.5      | Smilax 15.00@ 20.00                     |
| Roses   Beauties   5,006.35,00     Brides   Bridesmalds   6   006.410     Perice   Belle   4   00.26     Meteors   5   6   006.410     Carnations   4,007.45     Oliver   5   6   006.410     Romans   3   00.24     Roses   Hyacinths   3   00.26     Von Slona   Jonquilis   3   00.26     Callas   Harrisi   15   00.20     Smilax   Buffalo   April     Roses   Beauties   15   00.20     Brides   Bridesmalds   Meteors   8   00.20     Peries   5   00.26     Rajectin   Mermets   8   00.24     Carnations extra   3   00.24     Carnations extra   3   00.24     Carnations extra   3   00.24     Carnations   5   00.25     Carnations   5   00.   |                                         |
| Roses   Beauties   5,006.35,00     Brides   Bridesmalds   6   006.410     Perice   Belle   4   00.26     Meteors   5   6   006.410     Carnations   4,007.45     Oliver   5   6   006.410     Romans   3   00.24     Roses   Hyacinths   3   00.26     Von Slona   Jonquilis   3   00.26     Callas   Harrisi   15   00.20     Smilax   Buffalo   April     Roses   Beauties   15   00.20     Brides   Bridesmalds   Meteors   8   00.20     Peries   5   00.26     Rajectin   Mermets   8   00.24     Carnations extra   3   00.24     Carnations extra   3   00.24     Carnations extra   3   00.24     Carnations   5   00.25     Carnations   5   00.   | MILWAUKEE, April 8.                     |
| Brides, Bridesmalds                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |                                         |
| " Perle. Belle.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | " Brides Bridesmaids 6 00a 10 00        |
| " Meteors 6 00% 10 00   Carnations 4 00% 5 00   Violets 75% 1 00   Romans 3 00% 4 00   Lily of the valley 3 00% 4 00   Freeslas 3 00% 4 00   Tultps. Hyacinths 3 00% 4 00   Callas, Harrisi 12.50   Smilax 15 00% 25 00   " Brides, Bridesmalds, Meteors 8 00% 12 00   " Brides, Bridesmalds, Meteors 8 00% 12 00   " Brides, Bridesmalds, Meteors 8 00% 12 00   " Riphetos 5 00% 15 00% 10   " Raiserin, Mermets 8 00% 12 00   Carnations extra 3 00% 10 0   Lily of the valley 1 1 0 00% 15 0    Lily of the valley 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    | " Perle Relle 1 00% 6 00                |
| Carnations                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     | " Metpore 6 006.10 00                   |
| Violets                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |                                         |
| Romans.   3 00@ 4 00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |                                         |
| Lily of the valley   3,00@ 4,00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | Pomore ".000 1 00                       |
| Freeslas. 3 00@ 4 .00 Tulips. Hyacinths. 3 00@ 4 .00 Von Slons Jonquils. 3 00@ 4 .00 Von Slons Jonquils. 3 00@ 4 .00 Callas, Harrisi 12 5 Smilax. 15 00@ 20 .00  Burdes, Bridesmalds, Meteors. 8 00@ 12 .00 Brides, Bridesmalds, Meteors. 8 0.0@ 5 .00 Brides, Bridesmalds, Meteors. 8 0.0@ 5 .00 Brides, Bridesmalds, Meteors. 8 0.0@ 12 .00 Brides, Bridesmalds, Meteors. 8 0.0@ 12 .00 Brides, Bridesmalds, Meteors. 8 0.0@ 12 .00 Carnations extra. 3 0.0@ 4 .00 Lily of the valley. 3 0.0@ 4 .00 Lily of the valley. 3 0.0@ 4 .00 Violets. 75@ 1.25 Romans. 3 0.0@ 6 .00 Harriell 10 00@ 15 .00 Smilax 15 .00@ 20 .00 Adjantum. 1.25% 1.50                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | I Un of the maller                      |
| Tulipa. Hyacinths. 3 00@ 4 00 Von Slona Jonquils 3,00@ 4 00 Callas. Harristi 12,56 Smllax. 12,50 Smllax. 15 00@ 20.00  "Brides, Bridesmalds Meteors. 8 00@ 12 00  "Perles. 5,00@ 5 00  "Raleerin, Mermets. 8,00@ 12 00  "Raleerin, Mermets. 8,00@ 12 00  "Ally of the valley. 3 00@ 4 00 Ulity of the Slower of the Slow | Enty of the variey                      |
| Von Slona Jonquils   3,000 d 4 (0) Callaa, Harrisi   12,50 Smilax   15 00 cc 20,00 Smilax   15 00 cc   | Freearaa 3 0004 1.00                    |
| Callas, Harrisi     12,50       Smllax     15,00@ 20,00       Boses, Beauttes     15,00@ 75,00       Brides, Bridesmalds, Meteors     8,00@ 12,00       Perles     5,00@ 8,00       Niphetos     5,00@ 16,00       Ralserin, Mermets     8,00@ 12,00       Carnatione extra     1,50@ 2,00       Lily of the valley     3,00@ 4,00       Vlolets     75@ 1,25       Romans     3,00@ 6,00       Harrisit     10,00@ 15,00       Smilax     15,00@ 20,00       Adjantum     1,25% 1,50                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | Tumpa. Hyacinths 3 00(a 4.00            |
| Roses, Beautles   15.00@75 00     Brides, Bridesmalds   Meteors   8 0.0@12 00     Perles   5.00@ 5.00@ 5.00     Niphetos   5.00@ 5.00     Kalserin, Mermets   8.00@12.00     Carnations extra   3 0.0@ 4.00     Ully of the valley   3 0.0@ 4.00     Violets   75@ 1.50     Romans   3 0.0@ 6.00     Harriell   10 0.0@15     Smilax   15.00@20.00     Adjantum   1.25@1.50     1.25@1.50                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | von Siona Jonquila 3.00@ 4.00           |
| Roses, Beautles   15.00@75 00     Brides, Bridesmalds   Meteors   8 0.0@12 00     Perles   5.00@ 5.00@ 5.00     Niphetos   5.00@ 5.00     Kalserin, Mermets   8.00@12.00     Carnations extra   3 0.0@ 4.00     Ully of the valley   3 0.0@ 4.00     Violets   75@ 1.50     Romans   3 0.0@ 6.00     Harriell   10 0.0@15     Smilax   15.00@20.00     Adjantum   1.25@1.50     1.25@1.50                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | Callaa, Harrian 12.50                   |
| Roses, Beautles   15.00@75 00     Brides, Bridesmalds   Meteors   8 0.0@12 00     Perles   5.00@ 5.00@ 5.00     Niphetos   5.00@ 5.00     Kalserin, Mermets   8.00@12.00     Carnations extra   3 0.0@ 4.00     Ully of the valley   3 0.0@ 4.00     Violets   75@ 1.50     Romans   3 0.0@ 6.00     Harriell   10 0.0@15     Smilax   15.00@20.00     Adjantum   1.25@1.50     1.25@1.50                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | Sm1tax                                  |
| Rosea, Beautlea   15.00% 75 00     Brides, Bridesmalds   Meteora   8 0.06 12 00     Perles   5.00   8.00     Nipletos   5.00   8.00     Kalserin, Mermets   8.00   12 00     Carnations extra   3.00   4 00     Lily of the valley   3.00   4 00     Volete   75   6 1.25     Romans   3.00   6.00     Harriel   10.00   15.00     Smilax   15.00   20.00     Adjantum   1.25   3.00   3.00     1.27   3.150   3.00     1.27   3.150   3.00     1.27   3.150   3.00     1.27   3.150   3.00     1.27   3.150   3.00     1.27   3.150   3.00     1.27   3.150     1.27   3.150     1.27   3.150     1.27   3.150     1.27   3.150     1.27   3.150     1.27   3.150     1.27   3.150     1.27   3.150     1.27   3.150     1.27   3.150     1.27   3.150     1.27   3.150     1.27   3.150     1.27   3.150     1.27   3.150     1.27   3.150     1.27   3.150     1.27   3.150     1.27   3.150     1.27   3.150     1.27   3.150     1.27   3.150     1.27   3.150     1.27   3.150     1.27   3.150     1.27   3.150     1.27   3.150     1.27   3.150     1.27   3.150     1.27   3.150     1.27   3.150     1.27   3.150     1.27   3.150     1.27   3.150     1.27   3.150     1.27   3.150     1.27   3.150     1.27   3.150     1.27   3.150     1.27   3.150     1.27   3.150     1.27   3.150     1.27   3.150     1.27   3.150     1.27   3.150     1.27   3.150     1.27   3.150     1.27   3.150     1.27   3.150     1.27   3.150     1.27   3.150     1.27   3.150     1.27   3.150     1.27   3.150     1.27   3.150     1.27   3.150     1.27   3.150     1.27   3.150     1.27   3.150     1.27   3.150     1.27   3.150     1.27   3.150     1.27   3.150     1.27   3.150     1.27   3.150     1.27   3.150     1.27   3.150     1.27   3.150     1.27   3.150     1.27   3.150     1.27   3.150     1.27   3.150     1.27   3.150     1.27   3.150     1.27   3.150     1.27   3.150     1.27   3.150     1.27   3.150     1.27   3.150     1.27   3.150     1.27   3.150     1.27   3.150     1.27   3.150     1.27   3.150     1.27   3.150     1.27   3.150     1.27   3.150     1.27   3.150     1.2   | RUFFALO April 7.                        |
| Bridea, Brideamaids, Meteora.   8 0.06/12 00     Perlea.   5 0.006 8 00     Niphetos   5 0.006 10 00     Kaleerin, Mermets.   8 0.06/12 00     Carnatione extra.   3 0.06/4 00     Ordinary   1.50/6 2 00     Lily of the valley   3 0.06/4 1.25     Romans.   3 0.06/6 1.05     Romans.   3 0.06/6 1.05     British   10 0.06/6 1.05     British   10 0.06/6 1.05     British   11 0.006/6 1.05     British   12 0.06/6 1.05     Br   | Roses, Resuttes 15.00@75.00             |
| Niphetos   5.00% 5,00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   | " Bridge Bridgemalds Metoors 8 00@12 00 |
| Niphetos   5.00% 5,00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   5.00   | " Parlue 5 00@ 2 00                     |
| Carnatione extra.         3 0 0 4 00           ordinary.         1,50 2 00           Lily of the valley.         3 00 4 00           Violete.         75 6, 1.25           Romans.         3 00 6 0.00           Harriel!         10 00 6, 50           Smilax         15 00 20 00           Adjantum.         1, 25 7 4, 1.50                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 | " Ninhatos 5.00@ 6.00                   |
| Carnatione extra.         3 0 0 4 00           ordinary.         1,50 2 00           Lily of the valley.         3 00 4 00           Violete.         75 6, 1.25           Romans.         3 00 6 0.00           Harriel!         10 00 6, 50           Smilax         15 00 20 00           Adjantum.         1, 25 7 4, 1.50                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 | " Kataarin Marrosta 8 00@12 00          |
| rordinary. 1,50@ 2 00 Lily of the valley. 3 10@ 4,00 Vlolets. 75@ 1,25 Romans. 3,00@ 5,00 Harrielt 10,00@ 15,00 Smilax 15,00@ 20,00 Adjantum. 1,25@ 1,50                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | Cornetions pytre                        |
| Lilly of the valley. 3 00@ 4.00 Vlolete. 575@ 1.25 Romans. 3 00@ 5.00 Harriell 10 00@ 15.00 Smilax 15.00@ 20.00 Adjantum. 1.25% 1.50                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |                                         |
| Violete 75:6 1.25 Romans 3:00:6 6:00 Harrist 10:00:65:00 Smilax 15:00:20:00 Adjantum 1.25:6 1.50                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | Tily of the maller                      |
| Romans         3,00% 6.00           Harrlell         10,00% 15,00           Smllax         15,00% 20,00           Adjantum         1,25% 1.50                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | Violeta valley                          |
| Harriell     10 00@15.00       Smllax     15.00@20.00       Adlantum     1.25@ 1.50                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | Provent                                 |
| 8mllax                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | Numans                                  |
| Adjantum                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | 11 a fright                             |
| Augantum                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | Smilax 15.00@20,00                      |
